U.S. PROSECUTOR RECOMMENDED THAT IMPASTATO NOT BE DEPORTED

Attorney's Letters Disclose Gangster Agreed in Return to Plead Guilty in Narcotics Case.

By JAMES DEAKIN
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, June 18 — A Government prosecutor recommended in 1942 that Nicolo Impastato, notorious Kansas City gangster, not be deported, in return for his plea of guilty to narcotics charges, correspondence in the Impastato case has disclosed.

The recommendation was made by Richard K. Phelps, then an assistant United States Attorney in Kansas City. Phelps, who is now Kansas City prosecuting attorney, presented the Government's case against Impastato, who pleaded guilty and was sentenced to two years in federal prison.

Two letters written by Phelps were brought to light this week by Senator William Langer (Rep.), North Dakota, who has co-sponsored a private bill to grant Impastato permanent residence in this country. Impastato had been ordered deported as an undesirable alien but has fought a delaying action against the order in the court.

Letters to Johnston, Brownell

The letters from Phelps, one to Senator Olin D. Johnston (Dem.), South Carolina, principal sponsor of the bill, and the other to Attorney General Herbert Brownell, show that Phelps recommended against deportation on the ground that such punishment would be too severe.

In the letter to Johnston, Phelps said: "We gave him (Impastato) definitely to understand that if he entered a plea of guilty of the charge pending against him that there would be a recommendation of no deportation made to the judge before whom his plea of guilty was received.

"We did make that recommendation to the judge, and the judge in turn made such order and forwarded the same to the office of the United States Attorney General."

On Nov. 4, 1942, Langer told the Senate, Impastato pleaded guilty to possession of heroin, and on April 14, 1953, he was sentenced by United States District Judge Albert L. Reeves of Kansas City.

In his letter to Senator Johnston, Phelps said the recommendation against deportation was made "with the full knowledge and concurrence" of his superiors, the Treasury Department and the senior United States judge for the western district of Missouri, presumably Judge Reeves.

Phelps said he was "morally certain that the defendant was guilty of the crime charged, but as I recall, our evidence was not very convincing.

'Did Not Bargain for Plea.'

"While we did not bargain for the plea of guilty, yet our office did recommend to Judge Reeves, and we agreed with counsel for the defense for such recommendation, that the defendant not be deported for such violation, mainly for the reason that we did not believe in deportation as a punishment for the crime."

Phelps wrote Attorney General Brownell that he had not seen Impastato since the 1942 case, but that he was advised of the deportation proceedings by Impastato's attorney, James Daleo of Kansas City, "for whom I have a high respect."

MISSOURIAN MAILS WIND-BORNE TRASH BACK TO WISCONSIN

The story of the wind-borne trash, that began and ended in New London, Wis., after a 450-mile flight to Catawissa, Mo., near St. Louis, was pieced together yesterday.

It all began April 5 when Harold Behnke of New London deposited old papers and other odds and ends on the city dump. He could be excused for thinking that was the last he would see of the rubbish.

The winds blow hard out of Green Bay in the spring and they apparently blew across the New London dump. Last week Behnke received a letter from Cletus Apke, Route 1, Catawissa. In it was a receipted Behnke electric light bill, an old letter from a relative and a hand-drawn map that is a Behnke souvenir.

Apke explained he found the papers in a field on his farm, and thought perhaps Behnke wanted them back.

Catawissa, in Frankin county, 35 miles southwest of St. Louis, is about 450 air miles from New London.

PAIR SUES MURRAY STUDIO FOR $3669 WORTH OF DANCING

BLOOMINGTON, Ill., June 18 (UP)—Mr. and Mrs. John Howell have charged Arthur Murray dance studios at Decatur with forcing them to "sit out" 464 hours and $3669 worth of dancing.

The Howells filed suit in McLean County Cricuit Court yesterday charging the studio informed them they were "no longer welcome to dance at the studio" although they had danced out only 86 hours of a 550-hour course of instruction.

The Howells said they signed a contract for 550 hours of instruction for $4455. They said the studio also threw in 100 hours of free instruction and a free trip to Cuba.

The suit claimed the studio owes the Howells $3669 since they paid $2905 for the first 86 hours of instruction. Formerly of Shelbyville, they now live in McLean county.

FRENCH TOURIST BOAT SINKS, AT LEAST 17 DROWNED

CAEN, France, June 18 (AP)—A wartime landing craft converted to a tourist boat stranded and sank tonight off this northwestern French port. At least 17 of the 28 or 30 passengers drowned.

All aboard were said to be French.

The vessel was used to carry tourists from Ouistreham, a port on the Orne river, to Riva Bella point off Caen, 125 miles northwest of Paris. Officials said the vessel went aground on a rocky sandbar. Some victims drowned while trying to swim ashore. Most, however, were trapped when the rising sea spilled into the stranded vessel.

KIEV, Russia, June 18—Increasing agricultural production, especially livestock, is the most vital problem today in the Soviet Union and is the subject of an intense propaganda campaign in this capital of the Ukaninian Soviet Socialist republic. At the large city market hall are sold the products of the three principay types of Soviet farming, from state farms operated like factories, collective farms—in theory co-operative—and from small individual holdings, remnants of old-style farming, before the 1917 revolution.

A fourth type is growing in popularity under Government encouragement: small garden plots attached to the suburban homes of city workers, and allotments farther from the city, used by industrial workers who want to augment their food supply or raise vegetables as hobby. In the aggregate, this type of production could eventually be substantial, perhaps as great as present individual production by unreconstructed peasants.

Opposite to U.S. Production.

Russian farm production presents the opposite to American. We have surpluses of basic crops and the Government supports prices to sustain the farmers' buying power on parity with that of other workers. Russia, for a variety of reasons but mostly low per-capita output, has deficits of all sorts and farmers of the three major categories are sustaining living standards of other workers. In most instances the Government fixes the prices which farmers receive, although there are some free markets particularly for vegetables, where the law of supply and demand permits fluctuation — almost always above Government levels.

Russian agriculture dovetails closely into the over-all economic policy of emphasizing heavy industry production over consumer goods. Workers in heavy industries receiving relatively high wages, by Russian standards, have money to buy food and consumer goods. Farmers have shown they will produce more if they are sure consumer goods will be available for the money they make. Malenkov, when Prime Minister, tried to solve this problem by increasing consumer goods and lessening taxes and other charges on farms. Foreign observers say this did not substantially increase farm production last year.

Khrushchev, as first secretary of the Communist party, is trying a new approach. By re-emphasizing heavy production and at the same time increasing farm production — by opening virgin lands in western Siberia and Kazakhstan and by encouraging farmers everywhere to raise corn, generally new to Russia, to feed to livestock—he has taken personal charge of this campaign. Foreign observers are making no predictions as to the outcome, explaining that much depends on the weather within the next one to three years.

Storage Dam Projects.

Russians say they can overcome weather difficulties by storage dams and irrigation. I saw many such new projects in the Volga, Don and Dnieper river basins.

It is difficult for Americans to understand either the old or the new style Russian farming. When I first came to Russia, in 1922, strip farming—which was abandoned in England centuries ago—was still practiced by peasants around Vitebsk, in White Russia. It was one of the most inefficient types of farming. To insure equality of land strips, about 50 feet wide and several

Pauline Cloin Says Public Administrator Brady Offered to Sell Her Jacket Mrs. Lytz Had Owned.

The circuit court grand jury's investigation into alleged police pay-offs by brothel operators will be resumed Tuesday. The inquiry began June 2.

Witnesses are expected to be heard Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, but their identities were not disclosed by the circuit attorney's office.

Key witness in the inquiry is Miss Pauline Cloin, who told the Post-Dispatch yesterday of strenuous competition among police officers to have the business of Mrs. June Alma Lytz, murdered brothel operator, in their district. She has testified before the grand jury.

Tells of Offer on Jacket.

Miss Cloin told the Post-Dispatch that Public Administrator Thomas M. Brady recently offered her an opportunity to buy one of Mrs. Lytz's fur jackets while they were waiting in a witness room to testify before the grand jury.

Brady fixed the price at $500, then jocularly offered to reduce it to $499, Miss Cloin said, but she refused to give more than $200.

On a second occasion, when they were also in the witness room, Brady again offered to sell the jacket, this time for $400, she related. She again refused to buy it.

Brady, in his version, said Miss Cloin had come to his office in the Civil Courts building in connection with her claim for the $14,355 in cash found hidden in Mrs. Lytz's establishment after she was killed.

At the time, Miss Cloin called attention to the fur jacket and asked if she could buy it for $500, the public administrator asserted. He said he rejected the offer because the jacket had not then been appraised.

Appraised at $50.

Subsequently, after an appraisal of $50 was made, Brady said he saw Miss Cloin in the witness room and offered her the cerulean (sky blue) mink paw spencer jacket for $499. He agreed with Miss Cloin that, on the second occasion, he reduced the offer to $400.

The jacket was bought for $380 from a downtown fur store. It had been worn only one season by Mrs. Lytz and is reported to be in an almost new condition.

Brady, as public administrator, took charge of the estate of Mrs. Lytz, who left no will and had no close relatives living in St. Louis.

His action in giving to a friend one of Mrs. Lytz's books that reportedly listed alleged pay-offs to police is being investigated by Circuit Attorney Edward L. Dowd.

Brady said he gave the book to Verne Parrott, who has a filling station near Mrs. Lytz's establishment.

When Miss Cloin saw the book in the hands of a woman in a tavern near Grand boulevard and Olive street, she protested to her attorney, Charles R. Cuntz. He called Brady, who later gave the book to him. The book later was given to State Senator Michael Kinney.

Dowd got possession of the book, through subpena, after it was found in Kinney's office in the Holland building.

In her account of competition among police officers to have Mrs. Lytz's operations in their district, Miss Cloin told the Post-Dispatch that:

A former police lieutenant ad-

Family in H-Bomb Shelter 3 Days, Humidity and Odors Worst Problems

HOUSTON, Tex., June 18 (UP)—The first American family to live three days in a tight, underground H-bomb shelter came out tonight and told Civil Defense officials the worst problems were humidity and odors.

The family crawled throuh an escape hatch into the back yard of its home to be greeted by Dr. W. P. Bonin, who gave them all a thorough medical examination, just as he had done before the family went in the bomb shelter last Wednesday. He found them in excellent condition, but noted a slight irritation of the eyes and a little change in blood pressure.

The family consisted of John R. Christmas, 36 years old; his wife, Dorothy, 40, and their children, Stanley, 13, and Mary Louise, 11. Before emerging, Christmas was interviewed by telephone in the 113-square-foot steel and concrete shelter.

Except for not having to contend with the problem of atomic contamination in their air intake pipe, the Christmases tried to live exactly as they would in a real attack. But the emphasis in the test was on air, even though there was no danger of its being radio-active.

The first four hours they spent in the shelter, the humidity jumped from 80 per cent to 96 per cent. Christmas found that by operating his hand air pump for 20 minutes every two hours, he could get the humidity back to about 80 per cent.

To keep the humidity down, they also had to move about as little as possible. Mrs. Christmas feared that she would not be able to cook because of the humidity problem.

"The first time I lit up the canned heat stoves it caused the humidity to jump way up," she said. "But we worked out that problem by cooking while the air pump was in operation."

Air was drawn in through an overhead pipe and pulled through a foot-thick filter to get out impurities. The odors came from cooking, waste foods and the small chemical toilet. The pump also reduced these odors until they could be endured.

"That pump was about the most important thing in the shelter," Christmas said. "We were fairly comfortable all along. We didn't experience any serious physical discomfort. It is nothing that any normal, healthy person couldn't endure.

"In case we were at war with a foreign power, and an atomic or hydrogen bomb were dropped in the area, the shelter would give people peace of mind to know they had something for protection.

"As I see it, the problem of morale is just as important in case of war as anything else. This shelter certainly would be something that would lift people's morale if they thought an atomic bomb might be dropped in the area."

They were not unduly depressed by their cramping shelter. In shape, it was like a hollowed-out cupcake, with a total area about the size of a small room in a house. They ate dehydrated and canned food and drank reconstituted powdered milk.

Each member of the family had a gallon of distilled water a day to drink and about 20 gallons for washing. Christmas said this was plenty. They also had 200 pounds of compressed oxygen, but they did not need this.

MOLOTOV FIRST OF BIG 4 LEADERS IN SAN FRANCISCO FOR U.N. SESSION

Russia's Next Move Due Tomorrow When Ministers Confer — Pinay Says West Goes to Geneva With Open Mind.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 18 (AP)—Soviet Foreign Minster V. M. Molotov held the spotlight today as world diplomats waiting hopefully for new signs that the cold war tension is finally ending.

The first indication of Russia's next move is expected Monday night when the Big Four foreign ministers meet to map plans for the meeting of their chiefs of government in Geneva July 18.

Molotov, although unusually genial on his 3000-mile trip across the country, has given no hint that he has anything new to offer, but there still was an air of optimism here as a result of recent Soviet moves on the Austrian treaty and on the Yugoslav peace mission.

In Jovial Mood.

Molotov was the first of the Big Four foreign ministers to arrive for the U.N.'s tenth anniversary session June 20-26. Apparently in a jovial mood, the Soviet diplomat arrived by train at 1:08 p.m. and transferred to a limousine for his headquarters at suburban Hillsborough. He was accompanied by a staff of more than 50 aids and advisers.

He had nothing to say beyond a brief greeting, which his interpreter translated from the Russian. He said:

"Thank you for this cordial welcome to San Francisco. Allow me to convey through you greetings to the people of San Francisco where the United Nations was founded."

Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, British Foreign Secretary Harold Macmillan and French Foreign Minister Antoine Pinay will arrive by air tomorrow following their two-day strategy meetings in New York.

President Eisenhower will arrive tomorrow night to deliver the opening address to the 60 U.N. delegations Monday afternoon. Reports reaching here indicated that the President might make an important policy speech rather than a simple speech of welcome.

He told U.N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold in a special message that he considered the speech a "responsibility." Diplomatic quarters said the President originally had been reluctant to come to the U.N. session because he had understood that he was expected to do nothing more than greet the delegates.

Hammarskjold, meanwhile, was on way to San Francisco by air coach. He was expected here tonight.

The Western attitude toward the forthcoming Big Four talks was indicated in New York by the French foreign minister, who said the Western nations are going to Geneva with open minds, hopeful of finding proof to support Russia's recent goodwill measures.

He added, however, that the West wanted to see more before they were convinced.

Signs Are the Proofs.

"We would be naive," he said, "to believe that the signs are the proofs."

"You don't tear up your fire insurance policy because an architect says the house is well built," he added.

Pinay told a press conference that the Western Big Three had reached an identity of view and that he was "very confident" about the outlook for peace.

There was no indication as to how extensive the Big Four talks in San Francisco would be. So far only the Monday session had been arranged. Some diplomats believed this might be enough to set up an agenda for the Ge-

EISENHOWER GETS TWO BIRDIES, ALSO A PAIR OF SEVENS

GETTYSBURG, Pa., June 18 (AP) — President Eisenhower, spending the weekend at his farm home here, played the Gettysburg Country Club golf course this morning with an old Army friend, retired Brig. Gen. Arthur S. Nevins.

After the match, Mr. Eisenhower happily reported that he had carded two birdies. He also related that he had had a pair of sevens.

The President toured the first nine on foot but shifted to an electric runabout cart for the second nine.

At his country home, Mr. Eisenhower got in some work on a preliminary draft of a major address which he will make Monday at United Nations tenth anniversary ceremonies in San Francisco. He expects to drive back to Washington tomorrow morning and take off for San Francisco in the afternoon.

WILEY FOR GIVING RED LEADERS BID TO H-BOMB TEST

SHEBOYGAN, Wis., June 18 (AP) — Senator Wiley (Rep.), Wisconsin, proposed tonight that Russian and Red Chinese leaders, as well as all United Nations members, be invited to witness the next American test of the hydrogen bomb.

Wiley, senior Republican on the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said such a demonstration might prevent a rash decision by the Communists to start a war.

In a speech prepared for a state Amvets convention, he said the Reds may underestimate the devastation that war would bring to both sides.

"The fact is," he said, "that there is much evidence to confirm that the leaders of the Soviet Union, and the especially insulated leaders of the Peiping Government, very definitely do not understand that they are near a fuse, which, if lit, might disintegrate them and much of mankind."

GARNER TO PUT ON ONLY SUIT, COME TO AID OF PARTY

UVALDE, Tex., June 18 (AP)—John Nance Garner will shed his old khaki loafing breeches and don a pin-stripe gray suit for a front porch reception here tomorrow.

He is getting into his political working clothes to lend a hand to national Democratic chairman Paul Butler who is in Texas trying to build up Democratic solidarity and bring the state back into the Democratic fold in 1956.

Garner, who left Washington in bitter anger with the late Franklin D. Roosevelt 14 years ago vowing to stay out of politics until he died, first broke the vow in 1952 to help House Speaker Sam Rayburn keep Texas Democrats in line for Adlai Stevenson. They went down under the Dwight D. Eisenhower landslide.

Now, for the second time since he went into political retirement after two terms as vice president under Roosevelt, Garner volunteered to welcome Butler. Garner invited the public to meet Butler at his home.

Garner, who is 86 years old, spends most of his time puttering around his home, dressed in khaki and old shoes. The gray suit he will wear tomorrow, he says, is the "only one" he owns.

Tax Man Puts Squeeze on Mop.

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M., June 18 (INS)—S. P. Vidal turned inventor in Albuqueque to develop a new type of mop, but he claims his everyday job is not related to it. Vidal is district director of the Internal Revenue Service, and the mop is designed to squeeze without pinching.

ARMY WELSHED IN ARGENTINA, NAVY REBELS SAY

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, June 18 (AP)—Some units of the Argentine army promised to support the navy in its Thursday revolt but backed down, naval officers in refuge from Argentina declared today.

The 120 officers and men who took refuge in Uruguay Thursday night had been held incommunicado. Today the Uruguayan government permitted reporters to talk freely with some of them.

They said the army action, plus fog, was responsible for the rebellion's failure. By their account:

Some army units had pledged their support in advance, but failed to come out at the crucial deadline.

Navy planes, plus some from the air force, landed at the big Buenos Aires airport of Ezeiza and the Moron military field, which navy forces held for hours. Two hundred marines dislodged Peron forces guarding Ezeiza, the commercial airport.

The revolt started later than planned because a navy plane due to give the starting signal by flying low over Buenos Aires was delayed by mechanical troubles. Navy planes made a series of sorties, returning to the Punta Indio, Ezeiza and Moron bases for refueling. One plane crew claimed 14 bomb drops on or around Government House in Buenos Aires. Others sought to bomb the federal police headquarters but were unable to sight it through fog and smoke, and withheld their explosives.

The pilots said the fog not only prevented accurate bombing but also delayed the arrival of warships due to join the attack.

The attack began about noon Thursday. Army regiments recaptured the airfields in midafternoon while a small column from the naval mechanics school was marching toward Government House. It was stopped by army tanks.

First-Hand Pinball Survey.

SANTA CRUZ, Calif., June 18 (UP)—District Attorney Charles L. Moore of Santa Cruz county is out to play every pinball machine in his county—to see if they are illegal. He said only three of the 43 he has played so far are on the up and up.

Testifies College Girls Posed Nude In $1,000,000 Photo Business

LOS ANGELES, June 18 (UP)—Girl students at the University of California at Los Angeles were used as nude models in a lucrative photography business which averaged $1,000,000 a year, a blonde divorcee testified before Senator Estes Kefauver's subcommittee on juvenile delinquency today.

Kefauver (Dem.), Tennessee, delved into an alleged $300,000,000 national "smut mill" of films, photographs and books at the fourth and final session of the subcommittee meeting here.

One witness, Mrs. Mary Dorothy Tager, 44 years old, of Balboa, Calif., said she and her former husband and another partner were making $3000 to $4000 a day from 1948 to 1951 peddling nude pictures.

Mrs. Tager, on probation on a conviction of sending obscene literature through the mails, said "most of the models we used came from U.C.L.A."

At the conclusion of her testimony, Mrs. Tager told reporters that "thousands of college models" posed in the nude and were not paid for it. The girls posed in exchange for free photographs of themselves in street clothes, she said.

"You didn't have to go to them, they came to you. The girls will pose for practically nothing."

NEGOTIATIONS WITH NAVY TO PREVENT CIVIL WAR REPORTED

Three Admirals Named as Leaders of Rebel Forces—Two Said to Be Prisoners, Third Suicide.

BUENOS AIRES, June 18 (AP)—President Peron put the army in full command of the Argentine nation today. It clamped down a tight control on the people under a state of siege in the wake of Thursday's naval-air rebellion.

At the same time authorities of the Roman Catholic church, from which Peron has been excommunicated, announced that all priests arrested in the seven-month church-state conflict have been freed from jail.

(The radio Farroupilha at Porto Alegre in Brazil said Saturday afternoon that the Argentine Army minister, Gen. Franklin Lucero had taken over effective control of the Argentine government and had started negotiations with navy forces to avoid civil war and bloodshed. The station said its information came from Damonte Taborda, exiled former deputy in the Argentine Congress, who claimed to have radio contact with rebels still in Argentina.)

Rebellion Leaders Named.

Meanwhile, two pro-Peron newspapers, Noticias Graficas and La Epoca, for the first time named the alleged leaders of Thursday's rebellion.

They were listed as R. Adm. Anibal O. Olivieri, minister of the Navy when the fight broke out but since replaced; V. Adm. Benjamin Gargiulo and R. Adm. Samuel Toranzo Calderon, both of the Marine Corps.

The newspapers said Gargiulo had committed suicide when he became convinced the rebellion had failed.

Unofficial sources said that both Olivieri and Toranzo had been arrested.

(A radio amateur in Santiago, Chile, quoted the Argentine news agency Saporiti as saying Olivieri and Toranzo had been arrested in the Navy Ministry, and that Gargiulo shot himself to death there. The report said Olivieri had been tried by court-martial.

Private civilian plane flights were barred throughout the nation. Previously they had been prohibited only in the Buenos Aires area. Regular commercial flights were barred in the Buenos Aires area "except at the express order of the Air Force," but were permitted in the interior.

Among the priests freed, church information said, was the Rev. Lujan Rafael Fontanella, who was arrested May 21 on a charge of printing and distributing anti-Peron pamphlets.

Police had considered Father Fontanella and his two assistants at the Church of the Miraculous Medallion their key prisoners in a nationwide campaign to wipe out underground distribution of church literature.

The two assistants, the Rev. Olivio Martina and the Rev. Ignacio Riasol, were believed already to have been given their provisional release pending trial.

It was not known how many priests were freed. Eighty-five have been arrested since last November, but most have been turned loose after brief detention.

Two priests were arrested today and police explained that priests and nuns had been asked to go to police stations for "protection" against Communist elements and had then been transferred to private homes for safety.

Army Over Security Forces.

Surrounded by his three armed forces chiefs, Peron today set up his headquarters in the Army Ministry.

The army smashed the naval-air rebellion which cost 360 dead and nearly 1000 wounded. Today it took charge of all security forces including federal police, national gendarmes who guard the frontier, and maritime port police.

It forbade gatherings of more than two persons and put reinforced patrol in battle dress and field kits on guard over public buildings, power stations, churches, banks, embassies and strong points.

A communique tonight authorized religious services in churches tomorrow despite the bar on gatherings.

Cardinal Copello thereupon ordered special funeral services in all Catholic churches Sunday for those who died in the rebellion.

The government communique warned that worshippers must disband immediately after the

RED CHINA TO LET FIVE TURNCOATS LEAVE; ONLY TWO RETURNING HOME

Peiping Says 17 Other American Ex-P.O.W.s Who Refused Repatriation May Go If They Wish.

TOKYO, June 18 (AP)—Red China announced today five former United Nations soldiers who chose to remain in Red China after the Korean war have been given permission to leave the country but that only two had asked to go home.

Those who wanted to go home, a Peiping radio broadcast said, included two of three Americans permitted to leave. The other American chose Japan. One Belgian asked to go to the United States, the other to Laos.

There was no hint when the five would leave China.

The broadcast said the 17 other former American soldiers who chose life in Red China could leave too if they wished.

Names of Those Leaving.

These are the five Peiping said had been given permission to leave:

Cpl. Lewis W. Griggs, Jacksonville, Tex.

Cpl. Otho G. Bell, Olympia, Wash.

Cpl. William Cowart, Dalton, Ga.

Roger Devriendt, Westvlaanderen, Belgium.

Louis Verdyck, Anjtwerp, Belgium.

Griggs, Bell and Devriendt, the broadcast said, asked to go to the United States. Cowart asked to go to Japan and Verdyck to Laos.

(In Washington, Government officials said a decision on admitting Devriendt to the United States would be made when and if he files an application for an entry permit. They added that several factors would have to be taken into consideration including whether he asked for political asylum or sought admission under the Belgian immigration quota. Also a factor, they said, would be his choice of Communism at the end of the Korean war.)

The five were not present at a gathering of all other former U.N. soldiers at which the Peiping government's decision was announced.

Asked by a correspondent why the five were not at the meeting, Peiping quoted a Chinese Red Cross spokesman as saying they had been invited but had not come.

"They were free to come or not," he said. "Reporters can interview them at their hotel if they wish and if the men are willing."

The broadcast did not say whether such an interview was attempted.

No Mention of 11 Flyers.

There was no mention in the broadcast of 11 American flyers captured late in the Korean war when their B-29 bomber was shot down. Four jet pilots also captured late in the war were released last month and now are home. It was recalled here they reached the border at Hong Kong only a few hours after Peiping radio said they would be released.

The Far East Command here had no information other than news reports on Red China's action and declined comment.

The three Americans who will leave were among 25 P.O.W's who refused repatriation after lengthy "explanations" at Panmunjom. The two Belgians, the Red broadcast said, had "crossed over" to the Chinese-Korean side and chosen to stay in China.

The Americans face an uncertain future if they return home. A joint statement by the State and Defense Departments Thursday said any of the former soldiers who come back will be held accountable "for any wrongful act" they may have committed. In Washington today a Defense Department spokesman said each individual case would be investigated closely if the men actually return to American control.

Making Arrangements.

Concerning the prospective release of the five men, Peiping said:

"We are engaged in going through the formalities for their exit and making all necessary arrangements. Upon completion of these formalities, our five friends will leave China."

Lin Shih-hsiao, vice secretary-general of the Red Cross Society of China, read the announcement of the Government's decision to the former U.N. soldiers. He said the Red Cross would continue to give those who choose to remain "all possible assistance and care."

"At the same time," he said, "if any one of you wish to leave China, please tell us at any time. We will certainly do everything to help him in accordance with his wish."

He wished the five who are leaving "a smooth future."

Lin commented upon the "many difficulties" the men are likely to encounter. He said China "is an economically backward country" and does not have the living standards to which the men were accustomed in their native lands.

He pointed, too, to the language barrier and the difference in "the customs and way of life" of the Chinese people and those of Europeans and Americans.

Comment From Men.

At the close of his statement, Lin invited comment from the men.

Lowell D. Skinner, of Akron, O., told the group he was employed at a paper factory in Shantung.

"If I myself wish to go, I can go," he was quoted as saying. "But I am satisfied."

He added that he had experienced difficulties at first but "after more than one year in China, I believe that I have made a good decision."

Samuel D. Hawkins, of Oklahoma City, said he was studying at the People's University and was planning to get married in a few months. He said he was making rapid progress in learning the Chinese language.

Richard E. Tenneson of Alden, Minn., told the group his mother had not been able to come to China.

"Around Thanksgiving day last year my mother tried to come," the broadcast quoted him. "She asked me what the chance would be. I checked with the Red Cross what arrangements could be made. Within five days I got a reply that she could stay in China."

He said the Red Cross told him it would pay all her expenses. But, he said, the United States State Department had refused her permission to go to China.

In addition to Hawkins, the Americans remaining in Red China include Cpl. Arlie H. Pate, Carbondale, Ill.

U.S. Suspects Peiping's Motives In Freeing Communism Converts

Believed Propaganda to Bolster Pose of Benevolent Nation—How Former P.O.W.s' Families React.

WASHINGTON, June 18 (AP)—Red China's announcement that it has given permission for three American "turncoat" prisoners to go home was viewed in Washington tonight as either a propaganda move or designed to grind Peiping's ax in some hidden way.

Prevailing opinion seemed to be that the Communist Chinese regime was trying to picture itself before the world as a benevolent one, not a nation of jailers.

Some suspicion was expressed that the Communist leaders were seeking to send pirsoners back in the hope they would serve Communist purposes in this country.

Representatives Richards (Dem.), South Carolina, and Judd (Rep.), Minnesota, said the move has a "definite purpose" to benefit Peiping.

The families of the three former G.I.'s expressed little emotion at the news that the men have changed their mind about living in Red China.

There was cautious silence from some and the statement, "Of course it makes me very happy," from others.

In Jacksonville, Tex., Mrs. Albert Griggs, mother of Lewis W. Griggs, had little to say about the news.

"I had just rather wait until he gets home," she said, "until I know something for sure."

Mrs. Jewell Bell, wife of Otho G. Bell, of Olympia, Wash., said she was not surprised at the news. She said Bell wrote her recently that he planned to return as soon as he could.

"I'm glad he's going to return," Mrs. Bell said. "But I'm afraid to say anything until he gets home, lest something might happen."

Awaiting Bell is his 4-year-old daughter, Paula, whom he has never seen.

In Hillsboro, Miss., E. A. Bell, Otho's 55-year-old father, said it's the "best news I've ever had."

At Monticello, Ark., Mrs. Chester Green, mother of William A. Cowart, said she was happy that her son had decided to leave Communist China.

Told of a report that he had elected to go to Japan rather than back home, Mrs. Green said:

"I'd rather see him go anywhere than stay in China."

She said she had no idea why Cowart chose Japan instead of the United States. Asked by a newsman if she thought the corporal might be trying to avoid prosecution by military authorities, she declined to comment. She said she received a letter from Cowart yesterday, and that he had not mentioned anything about leaving China.

YEMEN MONARCH FIRES MINISTER, TAKES OVER POST

CAIRO, June 18 (AP)—Yemen's minister to Egypt said today his monarch, Imam Ahmad, has dismissed the Premier and taken over the post himself.

The Imam, who thwarted an April plot led by his brother, Prince Saif Al-Islam Abdullah, to dethrone him, now becomes supreme authority in Yemen. The country is a small Arab state on the Red Sea. Prince Abdullah and 13 others were executed for their part in the abortive plot.

The Yemen minister here, Abdel Rahman ab Taleb, said the Imam relieved Seif el Islam el Hassan of his duties as Premier Thursday. El Hassan now is en route to San Francisco, where he will head Yemen's delegation at the tenth anniversary U.N. meeting.

Traffic Safety Appointments.

WASHINGTON, June 18 (AP)—President Eisenhower has asked T. S. Petersen, president of Standard Oil Co. of California, to serve as business men's representative on ihs Committee for Traffic Safety. He also sent a letter to publisher William Randolph Hearst Jr., chairman of the advisory council to the Traffic Safety Committee, asking him to serve also as an ex-officio member of the committee.

REDS SAY CHIANG FORCES STEP UP FUKIEN ATTACKS

TOKYO, Sunday, June 19 (UP)—Peiping radio reported today the Chinese Nationalists have stepped up air, sea and artillery attacks on the Fukien coast of Red China.

The broadcast said "Chiang Kai-shek planes, ships and artillery increased their harassing actions along the Fukien coastal area" opposite Formosa and Nationalist-held offshore islands. It said the attacks occurred Friday.

"United States-made planes" strafed and bombed "fishing boats sailing between Wu islet and Tao Mei," the Red radio said.

The broadcast said Nationalist batteries shelled a fishing boat from Matsu island and others opened up from Quemoy to fire "20 shells onto Paihsia island south of Hsiaoting island.

CHURCHILL'S PET LION DESTROYED; INFIRM WITH AGE

LONDON, June 18 (AP)—Sir Winston Churchill's pet African lion, Rota, was destroyed today to save him from suffering further the infirmities of old age.

Churchill gave his permission reluctantly—and only after being assured that the lion was in great pain and could not live much longer anyway.

Rota was 17—old as lions go—and had been seriously ill for months. Doctors at the zoological gardens, where he was kept, long ago gave up hope for his recovery.

The lion who was presented to Churchill in 1943 as a symbol of his own lion-hearted efforts during World War II. George Thomson, who gave the lion to the Prime Minister originally, said its skin would be stuffed and mounted.

ALGERIA, MOROCCO SWEPT BY WAVE OF TERRORIST BOMBS

PARIS, June 18 (UP)—A new wave of terrorist bombings was reported today to have swept France's North African empire in the last 24 hours.

Seven bombs exploded in Philippeville, Algeria, last night, killing two Europeans.

A bomb exploded in Casablanca, Morocco, at the door of Marc Desanti, vice president of the Association of Corsicans. He was not home.

Algerian officials reported a burned bus was found abandoned at Oulach, some distance from its normal route. There was no sign of either the passengers or drivers.

In contrast to the outbursts in Algeria and Morocco, Tunisia was quiet following the recent home rule agreement.

Money Counted by Weight.

NEW YORK, June 18 (AP)—Many banks now are using highly sensitive scales to check packages of paper money. The machines are so delicate that the absence of a single banknote in a $1000 package of $10 bills is immediately detected.

PEIPING REPORTS FOURTH ANTI-RED GROUP SMASHED

Some Leaders Executed, Others Given Long Terms in Prison, Broadcast Says.

TOKYO, June 18 (AP)—The Peiping radio today announced the roundup of the fourth "anti-revolutionary" group in 10 weeks.

Leaders of a group called "the emperors" were arrested, some executed or given long prison terms, and others turned over to local authorities in Hopei province, northern China, the broadcast said.

The radio did not say how many were involved, but said 27 underground code rooms and hideouts used by the group had been found.

The origin and meaning of the name "the emperors" was obscure, but the flat Hopei plain, criss-crossed by waterways, traditionally has been the breeding ground of revolutionary movements such as the Boxer rebellion early in this century and later of the Communists guerrilla activity.

The broadcast, heard here, was in the Chinese language, indicating the news was for internal consumption as Peiping's English and other foreign language broadcasts have not mentioned the Hopei group.

The same restricted coverage was given yesterday to an account claiming a group of saboteurs had been arrested in Manchuria. Few details were given, but the broadcast said the group infiltrated a government branch in Kirin province and set fires, destroyed trains and carried out other sabotage.

Early in April the radio clarioned the first real purge of top Communists in China when it announced Kao Kang and Jao Shu-shih had plotted to seize power. Kao was boss of Red China's lagging five-year plan. He committed suicide, the radio claimed.

What happened to Jao, a former East China party boss, still hasn't been cleared up.

Borrowing Thief a Gardener.

FALCONER, N. Y., June 18 (UP)—Falconer volunteer firemen are pondering the case of the borrowing thief. Someone stole 50 feet of garden hose from their clubhouse two weeks ago. Last Saturday the hose was returned but a power mower was stolen. Last night the mower was returned and $20.75 was taken from the cigarette machine.

They Say There Is Less Danger in Giving Salk Shots at That Time Than Calling Them Off Till Fall.

NEW YORK, June 18 (UP)—A committee of physicians and public health officials today gave the green light to completion of the national polio vaccination program in the peak polio summer "season."

Thirty doctors called together by the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis said after a six and one-half hour meeting that the hazards of giving Salk inoculations in the polio season were smaller than the hazards of calling off the program until next fall.

Infection Question.

The doctors had been called here to consider whether an injection of the polio vaccine would bring on paralysis in a person already infected with poliomyelitis virus but not yet sick.

Their conclusions were disclosed in a six-page statement containing recommendations the committee will submit to the United States Public Health Service.

"It must be emphasized that when poliomyelitis vaccine is given to large numbers of individuals in epidemic periods, a small proportion receiving the vaccine will subsequently experience paralytic disease," the statement said.

"This is because the vaccine is not 100 per cent effective."

The doctors said that it should be emphasized that the "small risk" in giving the injections in the summer probably can be reduced still further by not giving injections to persons with minor illnesses, especially fever, sore throat, or gastro-intestinal upsets.

"Those present at the meeting agreed that the total preventive effect of the vaccine in a period of rising poliomyelitis incidence should be much greater than the possible hazard from the provoking effect of the injection," the statement said.

"Those present also concluded that the benefits to be gained by poliomyelitis immunization, in contrast to the small potential risk of provocation increases in proportion to the severity of the poliomyelitis incidence since a larger number of paralytic cases should be prevented during the entire period of the epidemic.

"Therefore, the slight hazard of provocation is insufficient to limit the injection of poliomyelitis vaccine even in the presence of a rising incidence of poliomyelitis in the community."

Peak Periods Vary.

Peak periods vary in different areas. The polio season began in the South in April and May. Then it moved slowly north and will hit the northernmost states in August or early September.

Among those who attended the meeting today were Dr. Leonard Scheele, United States Surgeon General; Dr. Hart E. Van Riper, medical director of the Foundation; and representatives of the American Medical Association, the American Academy of Pediatrics and several public health organizations.

Basil O'Connor, foundation president, said the final recommendation was made unanimously.

The doctors said it is the practice to advise against giving injections against diphtheria, whooping cough and tetanus in peak polio periods.

The foundation said some inoculated persons will come down with polio in epidemics not only because the vaccine is less than 100 per cent effective, but also because:

1. Individuals receiving shots during the "early silent period" of an infection may not be protected but may be subject to paralysis only at the site of injection, such as in the left arm.

2. A certain number of cases will be reported as polio erroneously and will actually be cases of other diseases with similar symptoms.

The doctors cautioned against giving vaccine to individuals in a household where a case of polio has just occurred. They said that almost all the other members of such a household already are infected when the case is identified. An inoculation at that time may bring on paralysis, they said.

Salk Present.

The Associated Press said that Dr. Jonas Salk, developer of the vaccine, was among those present at the meeting of experts.

(The AP was told by Dr. Malcolm Phelps, El Reno, Okla., a representative of the American Academy of General Practice, that an advisory committee on distribution of the vaccine would meet with federal officials in Washington Wednesday "to arrange for a fair and equitable distribution of the vaccine.")

The exact number of children who have received at least one shot was not known, but it was believed to be about 6,000,000 of the 9,000,000 who were to be immunized during the first mass polio inoculation program.

Five states—New Jersey, North and South Dakota, Maine and Montana—are finishing up their first shots now. Eight southern and southwestern states are about to start their second rounds. Some areas have not yet given the first shots.

Administration Studies Need for New Polio Powers.

WASHINGTON, June 20 (UP)—The Administration is seriously considering the need for sweeping new federal powers over mass vaccinations in view of the troubles encountered in the Salk anti-polio program, informed sources said today.

Some top health officials are arguing that the public health service should be given clear legal authority to approve or disapprove nationwide medical programs affecting the lives of millions of Americans.

They feel the present licensing machinery, designed merely to assure the safety of a biological product, is an inadequate basis for deciding whether it is wise to go ahead with a mass program with all of the possible dangers it involves.

The question of what new powers the Government needs or should request from Congress is being debated vigorously behind the scenes. A final decision has not been reached but the issue is expected to be raised in public next week when the House Commerce Committee opens its long-promised full-scale investigation of the polio controversy.

Michigan to Go Ahead if Vaccine Is Available.

LANSING, Mich., June 18 (AP)—Michigan will go ahead with polio vaccinations of the "highest risk" five-to-nine age group during the summer months if the vaccine becomes available, Dr. Albert E. Heustis, state health commissioner, decided yesterday. The recommendation was made by a Governor's special advisory committee composed of physicians, pharmacists and public health officers, with only one negative vote.

BOY FEARING POLIO SHOT PRAYS AND SUPPLY RUNS OUT

STUART, Fla., June 18 (AP)—Mrs. Willard Brady, driving her son, Danny, 7 years old, home from vacation Bible school, noticed he hung his head down on his arm.

"Got a headache, son?"

"No, Mom? I'm praying."

"Praying for what, Danny?"

"That I won't have to take that polio vaccine shot. The needle hurts."

An hour later Danny was in line to get the shot. He stood in last place. Finally it came his turn. Not until then did the nurse realize she had miscounted the number of injections available. She was one short.

"Sorry," she told Danny, who responded with a big smile.

8 EAST GERMANS SENTENCED TO PRISON ON SPY CHARGES

BERLIN, June 18 (AP)—On the second anniversary of the June 17 uprising, Communist courts sentenced eight East Germans on spy charges to long prison terms at hard labor.

The official East German news service A.D.N. said five of the accused, among them one woman, received terms ranging from 3½ to 12 years at Frankfurt-on-the-Oder for spying on the Soviet army and German police forces.

Another group of three defendants was sentenced on similar accusations at Schwerin to prison terms ranging from eight years to life.

OPPONENTS SEEK TO REPRESENT DIXON-YATES PLANT AS WASTE

Strategy Based on Quick Approval by Memphis of Plan for Municipal Steam Plant to Produce Power.

WASHINGTON, June 18 (UP) Democratic opponents of the proposed Dixon-Yates power development were mapping plans today designed to represent the private power jroject as unneeded and wasteful.

This new strategy assumes the Memphis city council will act quickly to approve construction of a municipal steam plant to meet city power needs and thus not have to rely on Dixon-Yates. The council may act next week.

Opponents of the development argue that the decision to build a Memphis plant will eliminate the need for Dixon-Yates plant across the river at West Memphis, Ark. They hope to persuade some economy-minded Senators, who might normally favor the Dixon-Yates arrangement, to oppose it as wasteful.

Showdown in Senate.

Partisans of the Tennessee Valley authority, hard core of the Dixon-Yates opposition, lost their fight against it in the House last week. The final showdown will come in the Senate when the House-approved public works money bill comes up for a vote.

The bill carries $6,500,000 to finance construction of a tranmission line to link the proposed Dixon-Yates plant with the TVA power network at Memphis. The Dixon-Yates plant is designed to provide power at Memphis to replace TVA power sold to the Atomic Energy Commission.

TVA is currently supplying a little more than 300,000 kilowatts to Memphis under a contract which expires in 1958 Critics of the Dixon-Yates project contend that a Memphis plant can be built in time to take over the area's needs and avoid Dixon-Yates "replacement" power.

Senator Albert Gore of Tennessee, a Democratic strategist in the long fight against the Dixon-Yates contract, declined to comment today on the reports that Memphis would move speedily to build its own plant. He said it would be improper for him to do so in advance of the council's action.

But Gore, commenting on the expected Senate fight, said "I am quite sure we will be able to show that the power plant and transmission line are entirely excess and unneeded."

Testimony Before Committee.

Thomas H. Allen, president of the Memphis Light, Gas and Water division, told a Senate committee yesterday that Memphis would build its own plant rather than accept power from Dixon-Yates.

Gore is known to have been among a group of congressional TVA supporters who had been counseling Memphis to go slowly in the hope that Congress would appropriate enough money to build a projected TVA steam plant at Fulton, Tenn. Informed sources said today that the same congressional group is now urging Memphis to act in view of the House action.

Gore commented candidly that, even if Memphis does build its plant the transmission line is defeated and the Dixon-Yates power is kept out of the TVA system, there will have been no great victory for TVA partisans.

"We will have lost our long fight for additional generating capacity in the TVA system," he said, "but the Eisenhower Administration will have lost its fight to run in power from the Dixon-Yates plant."

"It would be a dogfall—slightly in our favor," Gore said.

Mother to 17 Children for 5 Years Says It 'Takes More Patience Than Money' to Rear Such a Family

Imperial (Mo.) Housewife Has 11 of Her Own, 6 Belonging to Sister in Hospital.

Mrs. Emma Janson, an Imperial (Mo.) housewife who has been a mother to 17 children for five years, says it "takes more patience than money" to rear a family that size.

Eleven of the children are her own and six are the children of her sister, Mrs. George Steinbach, who is hospitalized. The Steinbach children's father, suffering from multiple sclerosis, is at St. Joseph Hill Infirmary in Eureka.

Last week—only a few days before Father's day—the Jansons were told by their family doctor they could expect not one more baby, but twins, in August.

Mrs. Janson, 39 years old, said, "We'll manage, somehow."

Crackdowns Are Rare.

The father, Gregory Janson, 40, told a Post-Dispatch reporter yesterday he rarely has to crack down on his large family. "We couldn't handle a group this size unless every one co-operated," he remarked. "Everybody has to work for one end, or it would not go."

The Janson children are: Benedict, 16; Patricia Ann, 15; Christian, 14; Gregory, 13; Timothy, 12; Raymond, 8; Michael, 7; Daniel, 5; Juanita, 4; Mark, 3; and Stephen, 1½.

The Steinbach children are Roger, 17; James, 15; Lorraine, 14; Thomas, 12; Mary Frances, 10; Martha, 9.

Janson works in St. Louis as a paper cutter for Buxton & Skinner Printing and Stationery Co. He also sells insurance in his spare time to make ends meet. The family receives help from the St. Vincent de Paul Society and gets state aid to support the five Steinbach children under 16.

Grow Own Vegetables.

The Jansons raise their own vegetables on their 24 acres of Jefferson county land—tomatoes, sweet corn, cucumbers, beets, carrots, lettuce and potatoes.

They have two cows—milked by the children. There are also three pigs, some chickens, a duck and a dog.

The "patience" which is the prime ingredient in Mrs. Janson's recipe comes in particularly handy when the inevitable family squabble develops. "You have to listen to their arguments—and make sure you hear both sides, before you punish," she said.

But arguments are rare, and there are many ways in which the family works together as a unit. Janson has appointed four of the older boys as "angels" for their younger brothers or cousins.

"I get him up in the morning, make sure he gets his right clothes on, and make his bed," says angel Timothy Janson, 12, of his duties toward younger brother Michael, 7.

Everyone Pitches In.

When it comes to the chores, everyone pitches in. The older boys do odd jobs like repairing the family tractor. The oldest girls—Pat Janson and Lorraine Steinbach—handle the dishwashing.

At mealtime, the family splits into two groups around separate tables in the kitchen. Each table has its own "server" to fetch the plates as Mrs. Janson—who does the cooking—heaps them with food at the stove.

Here is a typical Friday night menu: Four pounds of fish, beets from the family garden, 10 pounds of potatoes from the garden, two gallons of milk and a gallon of peaches for dessert.

"We do more cooking than a lot of small restaurants," says Mrs. Janson.

The children attend Catholic schools. The four oldest boys attend St. Mary's High School in St. Louis.

To help meet expenses for books, tuition, and clothing, there is an "educatinal fund"—a bank account where the earnings of all the children over the course of each summer are deposited, to be withdrawn during the following school year.

Berry-Picking Expedition.

The educational fund has prospered this year. Last week a berry-picking expedition netted $11, while the three oldest boys earned $6 helping a neighbor repair his house. The fund should reach the $600 mark by the end of the summer, Janson predicts.

The seven-room frame house in Imperial, tidy and well-organized as it is, is already crowded, and with the arrival of the twins this summer it would become impossible. So the Jansons have bought a nine-room house in Lemay in St. Louis county. They will move July 1.

"You always say you can't afford another child, but you can," said Mrs. Janson. "We may not have the nicest things in the world, but we're happy."

WOODSTOCK, Vt., June 18 (AP) — Miss Ann Batchelder, food editor of the Ladies Home Journal, died today after a brief illness. She was 73 years old.

BODY OF YOUTH FOUND, DROWNED WHEN SWIMMING

The body of 16-year-old LeRoy Holsinger of the Thomas Dunn Memorial Home, 325 North Ewing avenue, was found in the Mississippi river about a mile north of Franklin avenue today by three men who were boating, police reported.

Holsinger drowned Wednesday while swimming near the McKinley Bridge. A ward of the Board of Children's Guardians, he was the son of Mrs. Florence Young, 6139 Vermont avenue, and Fred Holsinger, Hamilton, O.

MAN IS FOUND IN STREET BEATEN AND UNCONSCIOUS

A man found unconscious in the street in the 5100 block of Enright avenue early yesterday was identified later as Lee Bunch, 28 years old, a neon sign worker, of Imperial, Mo. Identification was made through communication with Bunch's wife and his employer, police reported.

Officers said Bunch, beaten severely about the head, apparently had been robbed. His trousers pockets had been turned out and were empty. His automobile was found nearby. He had not regained consciousness at the hospital.

HAVEY'S PLANE FOUND AT AIRPORT IN ST. CHARLES

Two Men Arrived June 9, Manager of Field Says — Search for Them Renewed.

The airplane in which Birney T. (Chick) Havey Jr. and Kenneth Mueller are believed to have fled from East St. Louis a month ago, after their two Cadillacs were shot up, was found yesterday at the St. Charles airport. It had been there since June 9.

Havey and Mueller, former associates of Frank (Buster) Wortman, East Side hoodlum, still were missing, and authorities renewed a search for them in this area. Mueller was wounded in the shooting, early the morning of May 17 in East St. Louis.

The airport manager, John LaBarge, told the Post-Dispatch the plane arrived with two men about 10 o'clock the morning of June 9, and that they said they would pay the rent when they returned to get it, but did not say when that would be.

Met By Woman In Cadillac.

He said they were met by a woman driving a Cadillac, and left with her.

Havey's wife, who is suing him for divorce, told a reporter she did not meet them, and knew nothing of the plane's arrival at St. Charles.

LaBarge said the men had little to say as they landed, and that he had no reason to be suspicious of them. However, he did begin to wonder about the situation when he heard nothing from them after several days, he said.

Yesterday a mechanic from Kratz airport, Wilbert Furmann, was at the St. Charles airport and noticed the plane. "You've got a hot airplane there," he remarked, noting that it fitted the description of Havey's—a Ryan Navion four-seater, painted yellow with blue trim, unusual coloring for a Navion.

LaBarge said he replied that he thought the Havey plane was green, but when Furmann insisted it was yellow he checked with the Civil Aeronautics Administration, which had circulated an alert, and found that this appeared to be the missing craft.

Plane Number Checks.

The number on the plane was the same as that of Havey's, but the owner's name was not posted in it as required by regulations.

Havey was manager of Wortman's Terrace Lounge in East St. Louis until recently, when Wortman fired him over his rough treatment of unruly customers—as Wortman told the story to police. Wortman was picked up for questioning but was released without delay after saying he knew nothing about the shooting and had no differences with the missing men.

The last official report on Havey and Mueller had them in Royal Oak, Mich., a Detroit suburb, five days ago. East Side authorities decided then they had not violated any law under which they could be extradited, and said they probably would soon turn up voluntarily.

Airport officials in 10 Midwestern states had been asked by the CAA to watch for the Havey plane. It was last reported seen at Russell, Kan., May 22, five days after the Cadillacs were riddled with bullets.

Havey Lived in Jennings.

Havey lived at 9669 Halls Ferry road, Jennings. The Jennings chief of police, John Obertz, said last night he had kept the place under surveillance but had received no reports of anyone there appearing to be Havey or Mueller.

J. Fred Koenig, who had told East St. Louis police Mueller came to him for help after the shooting, and of taking him to Havey's home, said last night he had not heard from either of them.

'TEEN O'CLOCK TIME' WINNER

Roger Heitland, 15-year-old student at the St. Louis Institute of Music, was named yesterday as the winner of the Station KMOX "Teen O'Clock Time" program talent contest.

Heitland, a pianist, will receive a $1000 scholarship, a $500 government bond, and a free trip to New York City. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Frank B. Heitland, 4995 Parker avenue.

CHEST IS FIRST ORGANIZATION TO JOIN UNITED FUND

Board Accepts Invitation — New Agency Will Take Over Money-Raising Activities.

The Community Chest of Greater St. Louis, which serves 102 voluntary health and welfare agencies, has become the first organization to join the newly-organized United Fund, it was announced yesterday.

Donald Danforth, United Fund president, reported that the board of directors of Community Chest has accepted an invitation to join the campaign, which is designed to combine a majority of the health and welfare fund-raising appeals into a single annual drive.

The Community Chest will continue as an organization during the coming year, carrying on its usual budgeting and agency operations, but will turn over its fund-raising activities to United Fund, Danforth said.

Negotiations With Others.

Chapin S. Newhard headed the Community Chest committee which held discussions with United Fund representatives leading to the decision to join the new organization. Similar discussions and negotiations are being held with other health and welfare agencies which have conducted independent fund-raising campaigns in the past.

The Community Chest, which was organized in 1946 as a successor to the War Chest, annually held the largest fund drives in the St. Louis area. Its first campaign in 1946-47 raised $4,730,000. Its campaign last year brought in $5,794,300.

Danforth praised the decision of the Community Chest to join United Fund. He said it would give the new organization the backing of thousands of St. Louisans who have supported Community Chest or benefited from the services of its member agencies.

McDonnell Chairman.

Plans for United Fund's first campaign, to be held this fall, are being made. William A. McDonnell, president of the First National Bank in St. Louis, will be general chairman of the drive. Edwin M. Clark, president of Southwestern Bell Telephone Co., will be fund-raising chairman, and Clark Hungerford, president of the Frisco Railway, promoting chairman.

United Fund was established last April after an extended study. It is intended to reduce the number of separate fund drives conducted by health, welfare and character-building agencies in the St. Louis area.

neva meetings. They pointed to the fact that Russia has not made much trouble in recent meetings on procedural questions such as time, place and agenda.

Molotov is expected to confer with a number of small countries while he is here. India's roving diplomat, V. K. Krishna Menon, also is expected to be active behind the scenes in trying to ease tension in the Far East.

Sources close to Menon expressed the belief privately that he had made some progress in his immediate aim, which is to establish direct contact between the United States and Red China. This was not amplified, however, and could not be confirmed from other sources.

(The United Press said a feud between Nationalist China and neutralist India loomed. It quoted Nationalist Foreign Minister George K. C. Yeh as saying he was "anxious" to talk with Menon, who has recently visited Communist China and Washington in an attempt to "mediate peace."

("I'd be happy to see Mr. Menon and tell him what I think of his so-called efforts for peace," Yeh said. "I don't know what Mr. Menon is working for. If he's a trouble shooter, what's he shooting at?"

Menon, along with the delegates of the other U.N. members, will address the commemorative session.

Former President Truman, who attended the first San Francisco conference in 1945, is scheduled to address the commemorative meeting on Friday evening. Foreign ministers of the Big Four nations are listed to speak as follows: Macmillan, Tuesday morning; Molotov, Wednesday morning; Pinay, Thursday morning; Dulles, Friday morning.

From Tuesday through Friday, addresses—at the rate of 15 a day—will be given by representatives of all 60 U.N. member states. The first delegate to speak will be Paul-Henri Spaak, Foreign Minister of Belgium, who was president of the first General Assembly in 1946. The sixtieth speaker will be Menon.

The week-long observance will close with a ceremony at 3 p.m. Sunday, June 26, marking the day, 10 years ago, when the charter was signed.

The original signed copy of the U.N. charter, bound in blue morocco and trimmed with gold, will be on public display at the commemoration for the first time since it was deposited in the archives of the United States 10 years ago. The charter was flown to San Francisco, in the custody of Andrew Cordier, executive assistant to the Secretary General.

Gay Color Flags.

San Francisco, proud of again becoming headquarters of world diplomacy, will blaze with gay colors of bunting and flags during the anniversary session of the U.N.

The War Memorial Opera House in the Civic Center where the U.N. was born and the veterans building next door was ready for the appearance of the world's greatest statesmen.

The city's famed cable cars and municipal streetcars and busses will be gay with streamers, flags and bunting.

Hundreds of citizens were decorating their automobiles and business houses and many homes will be decked out appropriately.

A detachment of 200 soldiers from Sixth Army headquarters at the Presidio has been organized to provide transportation for the delegates, using a pool of 130 new cars donated for the occasion by automobile dealers and manufacturers.

San Francisco police have been organized on an around-the-clock basis to assure the utmost in protection for the world figures.

GRAND JURY'S 'PAY-OFF' INQUIRY RESUMES TUESDAY

vised Mrs. Lytz she made a mistake moving out of his district, pointing out she was raided in the new location.

Two Lucas avenue district policemen suggested, after Mrs. Lytz's death, that Miss Cloin continue operating June's Massage Parlor of 308A North Theresa avenue.

Describing efforts of the police lieutenant who is still on the force to have the North Theresa establishment shifted to his district, Miss Cloin said the officer assured Mrs. Lytz:

"Why don't you come over here? Then you will only have to pay me. I'll keep the other cops off your neck."

Paying for Home.

The lieutenant pleaded that he needed money to help keep up payments on a home he bought recently and promised to give Mrs. Lytz a substantial reduction in the amount of pay-offs she was then making, Miss Cloin related.

The last call the officer made to Mrs. Lytz, urging her to transfer her operations, came last April 21, several hours before the brothel operator was shot to death on the streets by Guy Nolan, Miss Cloin recalled. The shooting had no connection with the alleged police pay-offs.

Soon after Mrs. Lytz moved in 1953 from Boyle and Chouteau avenues, in the Newstead avenue district, to 308A North Theresa, in the Lucas avenue district, she was arrested along with two young women who worked for her, Miss Cloin said.

Shortly thereafter, she continued, a lieutenant no longer in the department called and said: "See, if you hadn't moved from my district this would not have happened."

'Turned Her In.'

Mrs. Lytz was later informed by other policemen that the lieutenant from the other district "turned her in," Miss Cloin said.

She told the Post-Dispatch that two Newstead avenue policemen, on the day of Mrs. Lytz's, death said to her (Miss Cloin):

"Why don't you take over the business? We'll get a phone for you."

Miss Cloin said she replied: "Not me. I'm not going to pay you off the way June did."

Names of the policemen who showed great interest in having Mrs. Lytz's operation in their district have been given to authorities by Miss Cloin.

Just prior to her death, Mrs. Lytz told her employes: "Every dime you girls are making is going to pay-offs," Miss Cloin said.

She alleged Mrs. Lytz moved out of the Newstead district because demands for money by a lieutenant, no longer in the department, were greater than she could pay.

Money at Christmas.

At Christmas, she said, Mrs. Lytz, who had a deep-freeze always well stocked with foods, gave meals to scores of policemen at her North Theresa establishment. At the same time, she sent out Christmas greetings with money for many police officers, Miss Cloin continued.

She said she would refuse, on the advice of her attorney, to take a lie detector test requested by Maj. James F. Thompson, head of a special police squad set up to investigate the alleged pay-offs.

As disclosed by the Post-Dispatch, Circuit Attorney Dowd made secret trips last week to interview Louis Shoulders and Elmer Dolan, former St. Louis policemen now serving prison terms for perjury in the missing Greenlease ransom inquiry.

The circuit attorney described his trip as "satisfactory" but said he does not plan any similar journeys in the near future.

"This investigation is going to require a long time to complete," Dowd said. "We have been accomplishing something substantial, but we do have a problem with witnesses who are extremely anxious that their names are not made public."

5000 VIENNESE PHYSICIANS JOIN MARCH IN PROTEST

VIENNA, June 18 (UP)—More than 5000 Viennese physicians marched through downtown Vienna in their white coats today to demonstrate for the right of patients to choose their own doctors.

The doctors were protesting against a new social security law, now pending in Parliament, under which government health insurance officials automatically would assign patients to physicians.

In Austria, health insurance is a government-run institution and a source of disagreement between the two big coalition government partners—the People's party and the Socialists. Conservative People's party officials have promised to support the doctors' point of view during forthcoming debate on the proposed legislation.

—United Press Telephoto.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 18 (AP)—V. M. Molotov arrived in California today, smiling and apparently happy, on what likely is one of the hardest assignments he ever had from the Kremlin—to make himself more pleasing to the Western powers and to Americans especially.

Molotov radiated charm as much as possible on the 3000-mile train ride across the country, but he clammed up on all questions relating to the meeting of the Big Four chiefs of state beginning July 18 in Geneva and on the tenth anniversary celebration of the United Nations which brought him to California.

He was a model passenger and spent hours watching the passing American scene with interest. He demanded no extraordinary favors on the train and his delegation followed the same line.

He even submitted to the ancient American political custom of accepting a ten-gallon hat at Cheyenne and did it with an ease that surprised other Communist delegates aboard the train.

He gave his porter a $17 tip at the end of the run.

Molotov was somewhat stiff when the train left New York City but he warmed up as he travelled into the Midwest. Apparently he felt as one member of his delegation felt—"this is America." Some of the Russians have always said New York is not American.

His private dining car was taken off at Chicago and he ate once with the public, laughing and chatting with three members of the delegation. He showed a handsome appetite all the way.

After his appearance at dinner in the diner when he left Chicago, he had his meals served in his drawing room. The steward waited outside while his maid served him. The plates always were returned clear of food.

Other members of the delegation ate in the public diner. They were liberal tippers.

While Molotov was relaxing and enjoying the scenery, his guards were not. Two Russians maintained guard post at each end of his Pullman car and scrutinized passengers carefully.

Once a train representative went back to deliver messages. By chance he put his hand in his pocket—and found himself immediately squeezed between two guards with no chance of removing his hand from his pocket. Two other men stepped in front of Molotov. The train man turned and left the car, sending the messages back later.

The Soviet, White Russian, Soviet Ukraine and Polish delegations arose early in the Reno area to view the mountain scenery as the train crossed the Sierra Nevadas.

Molotov left his drawing room and stood at the window of his car to see the mountains. An aid reported he enjoyed the scenery. Molotov himself said nothing outside the delegation.

After Molotov left the train in Oakland, a cavalcade of 22 automobiles, with a 14-motorcycle police escort, took the Foreign Minister from the terminal, across the Bay bridge and then proceeded south of San Francisco to the Hillsborough mansion that will be the Russian delegation headquarters in the week-long tenth anniversary sessions of the U.N.

The caravan included two new Cadillacs owned by the Russians, and driven from the East Coast last week. One of the cars came from the Russian embassy in Washington and the other from the United Nations delegation in New York.

Among the approximately 200 officials, newspaper men, photographers and citizens on hand to witness the arrival of the Russian Foreign Minister were two correspondents from the Soviet Tass news agency, one from Pravda, the official Soviet newspaper, and a Russian newsreel photographer from the central studio of documentary film in Moscow.

Scores of United States security agents and members of the Russian secret police milled through the crowd.

As soon as Molotov arrived at the delegation's headquarters an immediate police line was thrown up around the estate to prevent any sightseers from entering.

The Soviet Foreign chief's porter on the train trip, J. B. Carlton, not only received a $17 tip from his distinguished charge, but also he said he did no work to earn it.

Carlton said as he was preparing to arrange Molotov's linens on the first day aboard the train out of New York, a Russian secret police agent "told me politely and firmly that I didn't have to."

Instead, Carlton said, a Russian woman of about 35 took over all of his housekeeping duties in the two-room suite.

Carlton said Molotov and his staff did no smoking or drinking during the trip.

The only work the porter did for the $17, twice his usual tip, was help carry five small pieces of luggage from the train.

HEARING ON TUMULTY, ST. LOUIS U. ROW ENDS

Three-Man Group Expects to Make Findings Public Next Fall.

A subcommittee on academic freedom and tenure of the American Association of University Professors yesterday completed a two-day hearing here of allegations against St. Louis University made by Dr. Philip A. Tumulty. He was ousted last July as head of the university's internal medicine department.

University witnesses were heard by the three-man subcommittee Friday. Dr. Tumulty and some of his faculty associates, who resigned in protest against his dismissal, were heard yesterday in closed sessions at the Mayfair Hotel. A major allegation by Dr. Tumulty was that his dismissal violated a long-term contract. The university alleged "administrative incompatibilities."

Russell N. Sullivan, professor of law at the University of Illinois, and chairman both of the tenure committee and the subcommittee, said its findings would be made public by the association's national headquarters in Washington, possibly next fall. A censure could be approved only at an annual meeting, the next one of which will be in St. Louis in March 1956.

Sullivan said the subcommittee hoped to complete a preliminary report within two weeks. This will be referred back to the disputants for reply. Other members of the subcommittee are Dr. Anderson Nettleship, professor of pathology at the University of Arkansas School of Medicine, and Dr. Elmer L. DeGowin, professor of internal medicine at the University of Iowa.

NBC NEWS BROADCASTER ARRIVES FOR MOSCOW VISIT

NEW YORK, June 18 (AP)—The National Broadcasting Co. revealed today one of its news broadcasters had arrived in Russia, first American news broadcaster from a major network to enter the country in seven years.

NBC said Jack L. Begon, its Rome correspondent, had arrived in Moscow yesterday for a two-week visit. The network said he probably would send out his stories either by telephone or by tape recordings. No broadcast circuits have been available for radio newsmen since 1948.

Begon was one of the newsmen who took advantage of an invitation issued by the Russian delegation which recently visited Yugoslavia.

QUEEN JULIANA URGES EQUALIZING WEALTH OF WORLD

THE HAGUE, June 18 (INS)—Queen Juliana of The Netherlands said today the world's greatest problem is to rectify the unequal distribution of wealth and technical resources.

This, she said, would ease famine among two thirds of the globe's population.

Agence France Press quoted the Queen in a speech at Leiden as telling Dutch students that the main task is to redistribute the western countries' wealth in technical, medical and other such categories to the peoples of the East. She said:

"We who call ourselves Christians often make ourselves seem barbarians to other peoples. If we give to humanity and to the individual a healthy body and mind, then a large pretext for war will be removed."

The Queen said there is enough money but not enough men to solve this problem. She added that Europe could contribute greatly to accomplishment of the task and "the countries of the East also have work to perform."

ELECTED BY PUBLISHERS

Mrs. Nannie M. Turner, president of the St. Louis Argus Publishing Co., was re-elected treasurer of the National Newspaper Publishers' Association at its seventeenth annual convention yesterday in Kansas City.

Dr. Franklin D. Murphy, chancellor of the University of Kansas, told the Negro newspaper executives at a dinner Friday night that the degree of freedom enjoyed by universities is the best barometer of the people's freedom.

FOUR ARE KILLED IN ST. LOUIS AREA AUTO ACCIDENTS

Two Die as Result of Crash Near Belleville — Boy Loses Life as Truck Upsets.

Four persons died yesterday as a result of traffic accidents in the St. Louis area.

Airman 2-C Ronald H. Frederick of Dupo and Gus (Pete) Deuker of Route 4, Belleville, were killed in a collision on Illinois Highway 159, two miles north of Belleville.

Frederick, 19 years old, was a passenger in an automobile driven by Airman 2-C William F. Burke Jr. of St. Joseph, Mich.

He was trapped inside the machine when it caught fire after the accident. Deuker, 62, driver of the other automobile, died of a head injury at St. Elizabeth's Hospital in Belleville shortly after the crash. He was a brewery worker.

Frederick was an instructor at Chanute Air Force Base, Rantoul, Ill., as is Burke. Burke suffered minor injuries.

Ronald R. Hartmann, 12, son of Mr. and Mrs. Russell R. Hartmann, Caseyville, Ill., was killed when a bakery truck in which he was riding overturned on the Mayestown road, nine miles south of Waterloo. The Illinois Highway Patrol said the youth was a passenger in a truck driven by his uncle, Richard G. Hartmann, who apparently lost control of the vehicle. When the truck crashed into an embankment, the boy was thrown from the machine and it overturned on him. His uncle was not injured.

Mrs. Anna Schultz, 82, died yesterday in St. Louis County Hospital of injuries suffered Friday night when she was struck by an automobile in front of her home, 7228 Natural Bridge road, Normandy.

Normandy police said a man who identified himself as Walter J. Fischer, 7524 Stanwood avenue, Berdell Hills, told them Mrs. Schultz stepped into the path of the automobile he was driving as she was crossing the street. Mrs. Schultz had lived alone since the death of her husband, Frank J. Schultz, a title examiner, in 1936.

Six persons were injured when a Missouri-Pacific bus en route from St. Louis to Kansas City went out of control on wet pavement and overturned several times near Lees Summit, Mo., yesterday. None of the injured was from the St. Louis area.

Police reported the machine was dragged 300 feet.

RED CARTOONISTS RIB AMERICA OVER 'OPERATION ALERT'

During the three-day test top Government and Pentagon officials left Washington to operate from secret headquarters.

A cartoon in the Literary Gazette showed bureaucrats scampering into a dripping underground shelter. The Gazette commented:

"In order to step up war hysteria still more and furnish an excuse for gigantic war preparation and expenses, American authorities organized an atomic drill attack.

"We unfortunately haven't yet received American newspapers with pictures of the 'evacuation' of the Pentagon, 'The Flight' of Government and other 'monumental stupidities' so we enlisted our cartoonist's aid."

ROBBER HOLDS UP IOWA BANK, ESCAPES WITH $12,000 CASH

MOUNT AUBURN, Ia., June 18 (UP)—A robber held up the Mount Auburn Savings Bank today and escaped with about $12,000, all the currency in the bank, after binding a cashier.

The robber escaped with a companion and authorities throughout eastern Iowa were alerted.

"I sure hate to do this," the robber told cashier R. W. Hadley, as he tied him.

"Just don't shoot me," Hadley said.

APPROVAL SOUGHT FOR CLUB OFFICES AT SHAW'S GARDEN

Suit for permission to give six acres of Shaw's Garden to the National Council of State Garden Clubs, Inc., for a new headquarters building here was sought in a suit filed yesterday in circuit court by the trustees of the garden.

It was necessary to ask for a further modification of a circuit court decree of 1899 which originally permitted the trustees of that day to dispose of certain land within the garden confines. Under Henry Shaw's will, none of the land could be used for any purpose other than those prescribed for the garden and none could be alienated.

In their petition, the present-day trustees point out that the 6.20 acres in question cannot be developed for purposes of the garden because of lack of funds, that they are remote from the garden proper and that the National Council has objectives similar to those expressed in Shaw's will.

The land in question lies along the Magnolia avenue side of the garden facing Tower Grove Park. A $300,000 campaign is under way to finance construction of a suitable building and appropriate landscaping for the headquarters.

STATE ACCOUNTANT GROUP OPENS MEETING HERE TODAY

Registration for the annual meeting of the Missouri Society of Certified Public Accountants will be held today at the Sheraton Hotel, where programs will be held through Tuesday.

The speakers for the technical sessions on Monday include: Richard C. Rhea, an Ohio C.P.A. and management engineer; Carman G. Blough, director of research, American Institute of Accountants, and Cylvia A. Sorkin, St. Louis business consultant and lecturer.

GRAND VIADUCT IS CLOSING TOMORROW UNTIL JULY 2

Grand boulevard viaduct from Chouteau avenue to Market street will be closed beginning tomorrow and continuing through July 2 while a detour is constructed around the Grand-Market intersection where an underpass is under construction.

Detours will be set up for north-south traffic via Theresa and Compton avenues on the east, and Spring avenue on the west. The Theresa and Spring detours will be grade crossings.

Director of Streets and Sewers Frank Kriz strongly recommended that motorists use Vandeventer avenue, three blocks west of Grand, for north-south movement during the period, reaching Vandeventer via Laclede avenue or Forest Park boulevard. Streetcars will continue to use the tracks on the closed section of Grand.

Farm Output Is Top Problem In Russia; Emphasis on Corn

hundred yards long, some good, some fair and some poor were alloted by the mir, or local community. A peasant family might have 10 or 12 such strips located in different part of the area.

Strip farming makes an interesting view but it necessitates many wasted hours going from one strip to another with oxen or horses. When I returned in 1931, the Kremlin was experimenting with huge state farms ranging up to 250,000 acres. I visited one near Rostov, named Gigant, where extensive as against intensive wheat farming was under way. I was not greatly impressed. There was much unofficial complaining about the tempo of workers and the functioning of tractors and tractor station.

This farm now has been made into three farms. The picture today is a compromise between when I saw in 1922 and 1931, at least in the rich black earth region of the Ukraine Republic.

View From Airplane.

By airplane at 600 to 2000 feet, one gets a bird's eye view of present methods. Communities of 50 to 150 houses and other buildings are widely scattered over the landscape. These are either state or collective farms, with collectives usually near the large cities and towns and with state farms having at least one large building which could either be apartments or administrative offices.

My interpreter said fields usually are about 50 hectares or 125 acres each. They stretch as far as the eye can reach. The land in southern Ukraine is as flat as parts of Illinois.

The great difference is that fields are separated by trees or high bushes. There are few highways or railroads and virtually no individual farm houses. Woodlands are near meandering rivers and small streams and there is much erosion.

Much new construction is evident. Everywhere are two- and three-room homes, with small gardens, new livestock barns and machinery buildings.

The season is about a month late and wheat fields are a greenish yellow. Corn is beginning to come out and the geometric design on the black earth indicates expert planting. Close to towns and villages the two other types of food production are visible. New homes still two or three rooms with small gardens at the rear and old houses of peasant families also can be seen, with larger plots and sometimes a horse or cow.

Took Years to Achieve.

It is hard to imagine individualistic middlewesterners conforming to this pattern and it took years to achieve it here. Experts on Russia and Communism say it is increasing production. Whether it will be increased enough to take care of the rapidly increasing migration to the cities and the rising standard of living is the unanswered question.

Ideologically or dogmatically the Kremlin could not afford to let farmers, especially the Kulaks—rich peasants—co-exist with the nationalization of production and the wider distribution of goods and services. Even now, individual peasant farmers cannot exploit the labor of other persons.

Stalin initiated the state and collective farm idea as part of the first five-year plan, begun in 1928. There was persistent opposition from rich peasants to collectivisation, factory methods and farm work for wages. His determination was great and he continued the program at full strength.

Since the war, the Kulaks have died or been liquidated. Imediately after the war the problem was to get food by any means and restoration of state and collective farms was started. Small peasant holdings were permitted.

Russian affairs experts are divided over long-range trends. One school argues that for doctrinaire reasons state farms, on which the Government is the sole employer and workers are paid like factory hands, will predominate. The other argues the collectives offer personal incentives not possible on state farms.

Although general and sometimes detailed supervision of collectives is by governmental agents, who work through party members on the collectives, they say workers have a sense of ownership. They are paid basic wages for each working day, with a fixed norm, can have gardens from a half to almost two acres, and at year's end share in the farm's profits.

State farms require large capital outlays, even in virgin lands, for machinery and equipment, and farm workers must wait at least a year for cash returns. Collectives plow back half their earnings and can borrow from government banks.

What the new leadership will do is not known but the plight of Russian agriculture is serious and the propaganda campaign is so intense that experts are cautiously guessing that whatever method promises the biggest immediate increase in production will be adopted for the time being.

DR. EUGENE CARSON BLAKE INJURED IN AUTO COLLISION

WABASH, IND., June 18 (UP)—Dr. Eugene Carson Blake of Philadelphia, Pa., president of the National Council of Churches of Christ in America, was injured in a two-car collision near here tonight.

Blake, who also is the stated clerk of the Presbyterian Church, U.S.A., was taken to Wabash County Hospitol where he was reported in "fair" condition.

Police said a car driven by Ford Smeltzley, Wabash, veered into the opposite lane of traffic and hit the car carrying Blake and driven by his chauffeur. Smeltzley was injured seriously but the chauffeur was unhurt.

LAUNDRYMAN FIRES 2 SHOTS AT ROBBER WHO STOLE $50

Joe Lee, who operates a laundry at 3728 West Florissant avenue, fired two shots last night at a man who had just entered his establishment and robbed him of $50, police reported. The robber got away.

The intruder, hand in pocket as if clutching a pistol, demanded money and then ushered Lee into a washroom. When the robber left, Lee seized a pistol from underneath the counter and gave chase to a nearby alley, where he fired.

GEORGE HELLMUTH ESTATE INVENTORIED AT $213,055

The estate of George W. Hellmuth, former architect, was valued at $213,055 in an inventory filed yesterday in probate court. He died May 9 at his home, 4468 Maryland avenue, at the age of 85.

Principal asset of the estate was stocks with a current market value of $212,640. Under terms of his will, filed previously, one-half of the estate was bequeathed to his wife, Mrs. Harriet Hellmuth, who also will receive the income during her lifetime from a trust fund established with the rest of the assets of the estate. At her death one-fifth of the trust estate will go to the Religious of the Sacred Heart and the residue will be divided in equal shares among his surviving sons and lineal descendents of any deceased child. He is survived by four sons and a daughter, Mother Hildegarde Hellmuth of the religious order.

Hellmuth began his career here as an architect in 1895 and retired in 1935. He designed many of the residences on Hortense, Lenox, Portland and Westmoreland place.

U.S. ENVOY VISITED PERON 30 MINUTES BEFORE BOMBING

BUENOS AIRES, June 18 (AP)—United States Ambassador Albert F. Nufer and his Army attache were the last foreigners to call on President Peron Thursday before the rebels bombed Government House.

Nufer and the attache, Col. Arthur Tyson, presented a pistol as a gift from Maj. Gen. Arthur G. Trudeau, assistant chief of staff for the United States Army who recently visited Argentina. The weapon is a short-barrel .38 with a shoulder holster of hand-tooled leather.

U.S. PROSECUTOR URGED GANGSTER NOT BE DEPORTED

or Daleo, "but simply as a matter of keeping faith with the defendant."

Impastato, 55 years old and a native of Sicily, is a reputed member of the Mafia and a reported associate of John J. Vitale and Anthony (Tony) Lopiparo, St. Louis gangsters and Mafia members.

The bill to grant him permanent residence, which, if approved, would halt the deportation proceedings, provoked a controversy on the Senate floor Thursday.

Senator Alexander Wiley (Rep.), Wisconsin, told the Senate it "would be unthinkable . . . if any bill in his (Impastato's) behalf received the slightest attention, except to be quickly killed in the immigration subcommittee of the Senate Judiciary committee."

Wiley, ranking Republican member of the Senate Foreign Relations and Judiciary Committees, said he would "do everything I can toward that end." The bill has been reported unfavorably by the immigration subcommittee and is pending before the full Judiciary Committee.

'Must Be on Guard.'

Wiley said private bills occasionally are introduced for the benefit of "highly unworthy individuals, and each of us knows that we must be on our guard against such unworthy individuals."

"Of all the low, filthy crimes in the United States," he continued, "there is nothing lower or filthier than peddling dope.

"Mr. Impastato was a member of an eight-state heroin ring which did a volume of more than $1,000,000 a year. No one can count up the lives wrecked by this individual."

Criticizing the Johnston-Langer bill, Wiley declared: "Let me say that, in my judgment, far too often in recent years stay-of-deportation bills have been offered on behalf of proven criminals."

Langer immediately challenged Wiley's statements. He told the Senate he and Johnston had been subjected to "innuendo," "insinuation" and "accusation" since introducing the bill.

Blasts Crime Unit.

Langer accused the Kansas City Crime Commission, which has opposed the bill, of a "dirty, underhanded, sneaky attempt" to discredit its sponsors.

Johnston has steadfastly refused to give his reasons for introducing the measure, but he said Thursday he had "no apologies" in the matter. Langer said he did not know Impastato but was guided by the views of Phelps. At this point he introduced the two letters.

Impastato, who has used various aliases, was named in hearings before the Senate committee to investigate organized crime, headed by Senator Estes Kefauver (Dem.), Tennessee. Witnesses said Impastato was the chief lieutenant of Joseph de Luca, head of a Kansas City Mafia ring. The Department of Justice is opposing the bill to halt Impastato's deportation.

DIXON-YATES CALLED ISSUE IN 1956, NOT SEGREGATION

The Dixon-Yates power contract, not segregation, will be the big issue in the 1956 presidential campaign, Representative James Roosevelt (Dem.), California, told several hundred persons attending the annual all-day picnic of the St. Clair County Democratic Central Committee yesterday at Mascoutah Sportsmans' Lake, 10 miles east of Belleville.

The son of the late President called the controversial power measure "the opening wedge to kill TVA." Citizens will not accept such a threat to free, cheap power, he said. He said he believed Southern states would comply with the Supreme Court desegregation decision and vote Democratic in the presidential election next year.

As for the camapign, he predicted Adlai Stevenson will defeat President Eisenhower, whom he characterized as unwilling to run for a second term, but is under strong party pressure to do so. Roosevelt declared, "Ike is tired of jumping from camp to camp in the Republican party, trying to placate the liberals, the middle-of-the-roaders and the strict conservatives."

HELD FOR IMPERSONATING OFFICER IN AUTO INCIDENT

An East Side motorist who hailed another driver before a police magistrate yesterday and used a deputy sheriff's name in swearing out a complaint was himself arrested and charged with impersonating an officer.

Police said David Henderson, a Negro, 4300 block of Tudor avenue, Fireworks Station, near East St. Louis, took the other motorist before Magistrate Josep Shevlin. In making out a complaint, Henderson signed the name of Special Deputy Booker Payne and produced a badge.

Shevlin, however, was acquainted with Deputy Payne and called police, who arrested Henderson. The other motorist, accused by Henderson of reckless driving, was not held.

SENATE GROUP URGES CHECK OF LOYALTY SETUP

Avoids Criticism of Program, but Says It Needs Careful, Comprehensive Review.

WASHINGTON, June 18 (UP)—The Senate Government Operations Committee today urged a "careful and comprehensive" review of the Administration's loyalty-security program in a report which avoided any criticism of the program itself.

The report recommended enactment of a bill to set up a bipartisan 12-member commission to make the study. The committee approved the bill yesterday by the unanimous vote of 10 of its members. Three others did not vote.

The committee's report, made public today, outlined the special powers and functions which would be given the proposed commission. But it carefully steered clear of commenting on criticisms of the loyalty-security program which were made in hearings on the commission proposal.

Full Review Urged.

The report contained a one-paragraph statement on the "necessity" for reviewing the program:

"The evidence before the committee shows that our security system has developed in a gradual and piecemeal manner over the past decade. It should receive a careful, comprehensive review by the representative bipartisan commission proposed in this bill."

Senator Karl E. Mundt (Rep.), South Dakota, who was present but abstained in the 10-to-0 vote for the commission plan, explained today that he withheld his vote because he wanted assurances that the commission would not duplicate the work of a Senate Civil Service subcommittee. That subcommittee already has undertaken an investigation of the security program.

Under the bill the review commission could hold hearings, subpena witnesses and get information from Government agencies within the limits of national security.

The President, Vice President and Speaker would each name four members of the commission, and each could select only two from any one political party. The commissions final report would not be due until the end of 1956—after the presidential election next year.

Director Criticized.

In the Senate Civil Service subcommittee's hearings on the security program yesterday, a second former security investigator for the Small Business Administration criticized the agency's security director, George V. McDavitt.

Louis James Lyell charged that McDavitt monitored his telephone conversations, would include only derogatory information in summaries of security files and rewrote investigators' reports, changing and falsifying facts.

Earlier, Clarence E. Clarke, another former SBA investigator, had charged McDavitt showed "total disregard of the rights of individuals" in handling security cases.

But Wendell Barnes, SBA administrator, told the subcommittee such charges were "irresponsible, erroneous and misleading."

He said both men tried while working for SBA to evaluate security reports—a job belonging to their superiors. He also said Lyell was dismissed after severely questioning and browbeating an informant in a security case.

A.D.A. Chief Says Government Loses in Loyalty Setup.

BALTIMORE, June 18 (AP)—Joseph L. Rauh Jr., national chairman of Americans for Democratic Action, said last night the real victim of the "gumshoe era" in Washington is the Government.

Rauh told 80 delegates to the national convention of the Students for Democratic Action "the scandalous abuse of loyal government servants in the past few years has succeeded in driving from government payrolls independent-minded and creative men and women, and replacing them with numbskulls, yes-men and neurotics."

ISRAEL AND JORDAN TROOPS REPORTED IN A NEW CLASH

JERUSALEM, Israel Sector, June 18 (AP)—An Israel military spokesman said an Israel patrol clashed today with a group of armed Jordanians who had penetrated into Israel territory near Kfar Saba in the coastal plain. He said one Jordanian was killed.

The Israelis said that in another incident last night infiltrators from Jordan shot and seriously injured an 18-year-old Jewish girl on guard duty outside Kfar Menachem village.

(A dispatch from the Jordan sector of Jerusalem said an Israeli patrol penetrated into Jordan territory, exchanged fire with Jordan guards, kidnaped one and shot him to death on Israeli soil. Jordan lodged a complaint with the U. N. Mixed Armistice Commission.)

CHIROPODIST GROUP ELECTS

The new officers of the St. Louis Association of Chiropodists were announced yesterday, with David B. Pace chosen president.

Other officers are: Earl E. Fischer, president-elect for 1956-57; Samuel Zuckerman, vice president; Gerald W. Cohen, secretary, and Thomas L. Tynes, treasurer.

LUTHERAN OFFICIAL REPORTS SUCCESS OF EVANGELISM

CHICAGO, June 19 (AP)—A Lutheran Church executive has reported that heavier emphasis on adult evangelism is bringing results.

Dr. W. F. Lichtsinn, vice president of the church's Missouri Synod, said 57,737 adults, twice the number of junior adults, were admitted last year.

He told the English District convention of the synod in suburban River Forest that church membership now totals 2,104,427 baptized members and 1,364,898 communicant or junior-adult members, a total increase of 2.9 per cent over last year.

Peron Gives Army Control And Releases All Priests

services and not attempt demonstrations.

Labor Leaders Hear Peron.

For the first time since the uprising, so far as was known, the President conferred with the leaders of the pro-Peron General Confederation of Labor.

In a 48-minute speech to them Peron strongly defended himself against the church's charges of persecution, and ridiculed complaints that he was a tyrant.

"We exert the tyranny of the people, which perhaps is the only tyranny there is, when there is tyranny," he exclaimed.

Peron conferred with Gen. Lucero, Gen. Humberto Sosa Molina, minister of defense; and Brig. Juan Ignacio San Martin, air minister. He also talked with Gen. Jose Domingo Molina, army commander-in-chief, and Miguel Gamboa, chief of federal police, a communique said.

At the military club Peron paid homage to the Gen. Tomas Vergara Ruzo, director of engineers, who was killed in the fighting Thursday. Ruzo's body was lying in state at the club.

(All Buenos Aires dispatches are subject to censorship under a state of siege which gave the military firm control.)

Peron Visits Wrecked Center.

Peron, who was excommunicated by the Vatican a few hours before the rebel attack, also visited wrecked Government House, where he had escaped death by only 10 minutes when a machinegun bullet from a low-flying rebel plane smashed between his desk and his chair in the Thursday air attack.

It was Peron's first visit to the pink-walled palace since he left it for the Army Ministry at 12:30 p.m. Thursday. Ten minutes later the first wave of navy planes began dropping bombs that hit the building.

Cardinal Santiago Luis Copello, Roman Catholic primate, today announced successors to Msgr. Manuel Tato, the auxiliary bishop of Buenos Aires, and his assistant, Msgr. Ramon Pablo Novoa, who were expelled from the country this week in the church-state controversy.

The cardinal announced Msgr. Antonio Rocca, vicar general of the Buenos Aires diocese, would discharge the duties of the auxiliary bishop, and that Msgr. Albino Mensa would succeed to the tasks of the assistant.

At least eight churches were set afire by mobs roaming downtown Buenos Aires Thursday night.

Peron Again Blames Reds.

In his talk with the labor secretaries tonight, Peron again blamed Communist elements for burning the churches.

"Undoubtedly Communists have taken advantage of these days," he said. "We already have seen it and during the (rebel) movement I had reports."

Peron thanked the labor unions for their help during the revolt and said, "I well know that it was not the workers who have provoked acts of violence in the churches or any of those places."

The Peron-organized labor union have been the backbone of his political support.

Peron again charged that a campaign of "slander and lies" had been conducted against him by phamphlets and rumors.

He said Congress had authorized election of a constituent assembly to decide whether the constitution should be amended to separate church from state and "for me this was a finished affair—in civilized nations decisions are made in constitutionally established elections."

"For us, all religions are exactly the same," he said, adding that he had been only "a referee in this fight between the ecclesiastical hierarchy and the people."

The two priests arrested today before the release order were identified as Fathers Jose Dardi, an Italian, and Juan Grirlo, a Yugoslav. They were arrested in Bragado, Buenos Aires province.

The government's general practice had been to hold the priests briefly on charges of disrespect for top officials in the government, frequently Peron himself, or for alleged participation in disorders.

When the feud started, a few priests were required to serve terms up to 30 days.

The cardinal's prompt action in replacing Msgr. Tato and Msgr. Novoa indicated the Catholic hierarchy intends no interruption of church administration.

Food stores, which opened for the usual half day of business Saturdays, were ordered by the Labor and Commerce ministries to keep open a half day Sunday to make sure the population is fed.

Transportation in the capital moved with little difficulty. Communications with the outside world were restored Friday night, and photographs continued to move out by radio today.

Seizure of Radio Station.

One minor mystery of Thursday was cleared up.

Managers of Radio Mitre, of Buenos Aires, said an armed band waving revolvers seized its studios near the downtown area at the height of the revolt and began to broadcast rebel claims and exhortations.

The transmitting station quickly cut the power supply and the station faded from the air after two or three minutes.

The broadcast was clearly heard in Argentina and neighboring countries.

An afternoon newspaper, Noticias Graficas, asserted the band came from the nearby building of the Vatican's diplomatic representative to Argentina, Msgr. Mario Zanin, but there was no official information on that.

The Communist pary, which has legal status in Argentina, issued a declaration denying any part in the burning of the churches.

A protest statement by the Radical pary group of Congressmen, Peron's chief opposition, indicated party leaders have been jailed.

The 12 Congressment forming the Radical bloc in the House of Deputies adopted a resolution mourning Thursday's deaths and protesting against what they called "unjust arrests of outstanding figures of the Radical (party) Civic Union—the president of the committee and convention of its national legislators and former national and provincial legislators and party leaders and militants throughout the country."

The resolution also spoke of "the outrages committed against Radical party headquarters in Cordoba (a large provincial city) and churches in the federal capital."

Police remained on an alert throughout the city, and especially at all foreign embassies. This was presumed to be a step to prevent rebels from taking asylum in them under the Latin American diplomatic code.

The United States and British embassies were among those damaged by bombs Thursday. Windows were broken and there was other slight damage.

The air force announced it would take over supervision of all naval air bases in the country.

An Argentine mission headed by Brig. Gen. Gonzales Filgueiras and a special government envoy arrived in Montevideo, Uruguay, today to look over planes flown there by Argentine rebels. They hope to return them to Argentina. Included in the group were 27 Argentine military men.

There was one exception to the bar on flights into the capital. An Argentine military craft sped Foreign Minister Jeronimo Remorino back here. He had reached Lima, Peru, en route to the United Nations' tenth anniversary session in San Francisco, but was urgently called back.

No official estimate has been given on the extent of damage to Government House which was the first target for the bombers. The task of allowing demolition squads to set off unexploded bombs continued today and a 15-block zone was cleared around the Pink House, the cathedral and the Plaza de Mayo.

Vatican Paper Says Communists Have Part in Conflict.

VATICAN CITY, June 18 (AP)—L'Osservatore Romano said today Communists are in connivance with actions against the church in Argentina.

The Vatican newspaper said news from that country attests to the fact that the fight against the church is being given more and more of a class basis.

"If one considers that the present form of Argentine regime is based on unions . . . one must ask very seriously where is the government of Buenos Aires going and where has it gone?" the newspaper asked.

"The full Communist connivance with the Argentine persecution is a reality, now more than amply documented," the newspaper said.

It commented that it was part of Marxist teachings to infiltrate unions.

L'Osservatore said that labor leaders in Argentina made "certain anti-religious declarations of a strictly Communist type" at meetings held there last November, when the church-state quarrel began, and again in May.

"The motive of 'religion is an opiate of the people' was more than transparent," the newspaper declared.

MANY TACHENS REFUGEES GIVEN JOBS IN FORMOSA

TAIPEI, Formosa, June 18 (AP)—Remember those 18,000 civilian refugees uprooted from their homes in the Tachen Island when the Nationalists abandoned the islands under threat of Communist invasion?

The Nationalist government now says jobs have been found for many of them in fishing, farming, industry and co-operative enterprises.

How Cook's Paints give you a new coat of paint every time it rains

Touch Cook's House Paint while it is raining. You'll see and feel the old oxidized pigment which the rain is helping wash away to reveal a bright new surface of Cook's Paint year after year. Here's real proof that Cook's House Paint has extra pigment dispersed uniformly through the paint to reveal a new coat of beauty every time it rains.

Beauty that's "years deep"

For years your house will look fresh, clean, and newly painted—thanks to Cook's controlled chalking. For years you'll be proud of that Cook Paint job every time you come up the driveway. Here's why:

With Cook's you get, without actually repainting, a fresh coat of house paint color every time it rains. The rain washes away old oxidized oils and pigment and reveals a bright new surface of Cook's quality House Paint. Cook's Paints are made that way (as you'll see in the pictures below), reinforced with additional pigment to provide this "beauty-bath" chalking in both white and colors.

See your Cook's dealer or store manager now. Let him show you these beautiful super-quality paints. Let him help you give your house beauty that's "years deep." Choose white or one of Cook's 54 modern "Suburban" colors—the subdued browns, grays, greens, and brighter tints—but don't settle for less than Cook's!

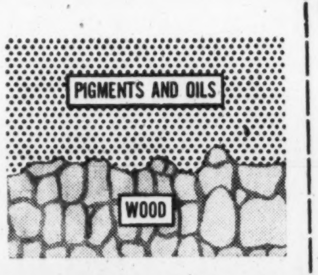
Extra Pigment goes into Cook's, as you can see from the contents of a typical gallon of Cook's House Paint. Each time it rains old oxidized oils and pigments wash away to give your house a "fresh painted" look for years. Would you ever have imagined so many pigments and liquids go into one gallon of paint?

BALANCED MIXTURE OF FOUR PIGMENTS

2.

This Schematic drawing of a layer of Cook's Paint shows how extra pigments are dispersed uniformly through the paint so a microscopic sheet of color can be released each time it rains. The body of Cook's pure linseed oils fortifies this house paint against chipping, cracking, alligatoring.



3.

The Difference in pigments shows! Below, you see Cook's White House Paint, after it has weathered two years. It's really white. It has beauty that's "years deep." Up above, you see another brand of white house paint, also two years old. It's a gray, aged color due to inadequate pigment. There's the difference in paint!

One Coat?
Two Coats?

Painting your house white?
On new wood or old weathered wood use two coats: First, Cook's Super White Primer. Then, Cook's White House Paint. On wood that has been painted before and is in good repaintable condition, use Cook's One-Coat Outside White. Saves half the work and almost half the cost of 2-coat painting.

Easier to paint with Cook's
The Extra pigment in Cook's House Paints provides extra hiding power—whether you use Cook's one-coat or Cook's two-coat system. Cook's is easy to apply, too, because the fine oils used in Cook's House Paints make the paint flow evenly and reduce tiring brush drag. Either white or colors, Cook's goes on great!

WESTERN UNITY STRENGTHENED, ADENAUER SAYS

He Leaves U.S. for London, to Confer With Eden—Says Cold War Will End Gradually.

NEW YORK, June 18 (AP)—Chancellor Adenauer of West Germany took off for Europe today, greatly encouraged, he said, by further bolstering of Western unity.

Adenauer flew to London where, fresh from his visits with President Eisenhower and Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, he will confer with Prime Minister Eden next week.

At Idlewild airport, the Chancellor handed newspaper men a prepared statement that said talks with the United States officials and British and French foreign ministers now in this country confirmed, "again and again, the unity of the West."

Common Problems.

He said the unity "is the most important basis for a solution to our common problems, and I believe this unity has been further strengthened in an atmosphere of mutual confidence."

Earlier in the day Adenauer submitted to a filmed interview for a TV program, CBS's "Face the Nation."

The program, ordinarily seen on Sunday, was telecast an hour after Adenauer was on his way to Europe.

In the TV interview, Adenauer disputed an assertion by Senator McCarthy (Rep.), Wisconsin, that the projected Big Four "summit" meeting might lead to loss of Germany as a Western ally.

Germany always will remain allied with the West, Adenauer told a panel of newspaper men.

He also expressed belief the cold war will end "gradually."

Adenauer said it was 'too early to say we have won the cold war, but there seems to be certain break, a certain interruption." The task of Western diplomacy, he said, is to determine what is at the bottom of it.

Adenauer was asked whether he believed unification of Communist-controlled East Germany with West Germany was possible in the absence of an over-all East-West settlement.

He said it probably would be wise to undertake the solution in connection with the problem of a European security system.

Adenauer said he believed opposition within Germany to the raising of 12 divisions within NATO had been overrated in foreign countries. He said he expected a law for drafting volunteers would be adopted in July and that it will be possible to draft up to 70,000 volunteers by the end of next March.

Russia's Position

Asked whether the Big Three should close the door against any concessions to Russia at the Big Four "summit" meeting next month at Geneva, Adenauer said that would depend largely on Russia's position.

He said he believed no one should say from the beginning, "I am going to make concessions or I am not going to make concessions."

To a question os to what "reasonable" Russian demands would be satisfactory to him, Adenauer said:

"The Russians always claim that they feel themselves threatened by German rearmament, but I believe ways ond means must be thought of as to how we can take this fear away from the Russians, provided their fear is genuine and true."

Adenauer Reported Reody to Ask For U.N. Admission

BONN, June 18 (UP)—Chancellor Adenauer intends to ask shortly that the West German federal republic be admitted to membership in the United Nations, informed sources said today.

Adenauer is expected to make the formal request for membership through the United States, Britain and France. He will do so, informants said, even though he feels Russio is sure to veto it.

The Russian veto is foreseen because Adenauer would reject any Communist proposal that East Germany, as well as West Germany, be admitted to the United Nations.

COUNTY POLICE APPLICANTS TAKE PHYSICAL AGILITY TEST

About three-fourths of 50 applicants for jobs with the new St. Louis County Police Department passed their physical agility tests yesterday, it was announced by Police Superintendent Albert E. DuBois.

The applicants' written examinations, also given yesterday, have yet to be evaluated, he said. Both tests were conducted at Clayton High School.

Successful applicants must also be examined orally by a three-man board, take a physical examination and undergo a character check. DuBois said several men who did not pass the physical agility test were "border-line" cases whose final status would be determined by their written examination showing.

VA SHIFTS ITS EAST SIDE MEDICAL OFFICE TO ST. LOUIS

Medical examinations and outpatient treatment for veterans with service-connected disabilities will be shifted, effective tomorrow, from the Metropolitan Building, 435 Missouri avenue, East St. Louis, to the out-patient clinic in the St. Louis Regional Veterans Administration Office, 415 Pine street.

In making the announcement, Joseph F. Kelley, office manager of the Regional Office, said the closing of the medical activities in the East St. Louis VA office would permit VA to utilize personnel and facilities to better advantage.

He emphasized that contact, social services and vocational counseling activities would continue at the East St. Louis office where information and assistance on veterans' benefits will still be available.

SATISFACTION GUARANTEED OR MONEY BACK. BALL BEARINGS NEVER NEED FURTHER OILING. GUARANTEED FIVE YEARS.

HOW MUCH SHOULD I PAY FOR A 20" WINDOW FAN?

Pay as little as you must, but a fan is not a bargain at any price UNLESS it keeps you cool, runs quietly, and performs DEPENDABLY for many years.

A BALDOR 20" fan is NOT low in price—it IS A BARGAIN. GUARANTEED to keep you cool—or your money back. WHISPER quiet at high or low speed. So well constructed that every part—including the motor—is guaranteed for FIVE years.

BALDOR could make a 20" window fan to sell for $29.95 but it would have less than half the COOLING POWER of this one at $69.95. It would not be as quiet because it would not have a low speed motor or a wooden frame. Would last only half as long because it would not have a totally enclosed burn-out proof motor, ball bearings that never need oiling, or the rugged construction of the present Baldor fan.

How many window fans will you buy in your lifetime? One, if it does your job, and is built to last. That's why a BALDOR is cheaper in the long run. Its performance is really AMAZING. Every part, including the motor, is guaranteed for FIVE YEARS—your guarantee of SATISFACTORY, DEPENDABLE, and TROUBLE-FREE SERVICE year after year.

MARION (ILL.) KILLER GETS 20-YEAR TERM

Convicted of Murdering Man Scuffling With Friend at Picnic.

MARION, Ill., June 18 (AP)—Fred Odum, 41-year-old Marion electrician, was convicted of murder early today in the killing of Lorin Norman, 25, of Marion at a Crab Orchard lake picnic last August.

His punishment was fixed at 20 years in the state penitentiary by a circuit court jury of 11 men and one woman, which deliberated nine hours before reaching the verdict.

The state had sought a life sentence.

Norman was killed by a blow inflicted with a three-foot length of firewood as he was scuffling with a friend, Harry O'Neil of Marion.

Odum testified he struck Norman because he believed he was about to attack O'Neil with a knife as O'Neil was on the ground. Odum said he later learned Norman had a bottle in his hand and not a knife.

O'Neil and his wife both testified that he and the victim were good friends and that it was a friendly scuffle. The victim's wife did not attend the picnic.

NEW BOND ISSUE 'WATCH DOG' GROUP TO MEET TOMORROW

The Citizens' Bond Issue Supervisory Committee appointed by Mayor Raymond R. Tucker to see that the $110,639,000 program of public works approved by the voters is carried out properly will hold its first meeting tomorrow at 3 p.m. in the Mayor's office.

Sidney Maestre, chairman, said the session will be devoted mainly to organizational matters. Later the committee will go over a detailed list of projects being prepared by city department heads and decide which improvements should be started this year.

The "watch dog" committee is made up of 21 persons representing all sections of the community. Maestre headed the citizens' group which studied the city's needs and drafted the bond issue program, and a number of other members of the supervisory committee helped plan the program from its inception.

BRITAIN TRYING TO IMPROVE ITS CIVIL DEFENSES

Scandinavian Countries Also Hard at Work — Others in Europe Doing Little.

The New York Herald Tribune-Post Dispatch Special Dispatch.

LONDON, June 18—News reports of the "devastating" mock H-bomb attack on the United States Wednesday were read with interest this week by millions of Britons, most of whom had experienced real bombing attacks during World War II.

They know the actual horror of the "blockbusters" which killed thousands and laid waste to block after block of factories, buildings and homes. They, too, fear the many-times-more-powerful nuclear bombs and realized the havoc that would wipe out millions of persons and destroy whole cities at a time.

Civil defense workers did a memorable job during the 1940s with their fire-fighting squads, rescue teams, evacuation units and groups of doctors and nurses who administered to the injured and most Britons today are seriously planning how to cope with even greater disasters.

Better System Planned.

Possibly second only to Germany, Britain had the most extensive and best organized system of civil defense of the war. Today, this country is going ahead with what is hoped to be an ever better CD setup.

Throughout western Europe, with the exception of the Scandinavian countries, little preparation is being made along civil defense lines. West Germany has been hampered by the occupation and many of its bomb shelters which saved thousands of lives during the war have been demolished as part of the country's de-militarization.

In France, the people seemed to feel that there is no real protection of the A and H-bombs and little has been done. The same is true in Italy. Some precautions have been taken in Belgium and The Netherlands but these countries, too, have not organized their facilities as have the British.

The Swedes—and to a lesser extent the Norwegians and Danes—take the H-bomb threat seriously and have made extensive preparations. This is particularly interesting in that Sweden was not involved in the two world wars. However, the Swedes believe in civil defense preparedness.

The Manchester Guardian has estimated that Britain could survive only 20 to 30 hours after an H-bomb attack, but most Britons believe they can pull through against any odds. It was this same spirit that contributed greatly to their survival during the German onslaught a little more than a decade ago.

They know their job will be a bigger one than during the war and already there are more than 350,000 volunteer civil defense workers contributing five to six hours weekly to CD training.

There are 12 CD regions, including one in Scotland, and each has a small paid staff to direct the volunteers. It is estimated that almost $200,000,000 will be spent this year in equipping these workers and preparing shelters and emergency first-aid stations.

Men and women are being trained in emergency discipline, firefighting, police and casualty work. Doctors and nurses are receiving training for an emergency and most of them have been assigned particular tasks.

Maj. George at Helm.

The Home Secretary, Maj. Gwilym Lloyd George — son of the World War I Prime Minister —heads "home defense" as CD is often referred to here. His staff includes representatives from the War Office, Air Ministry, Admiralty, the Ministries of Labor, Health, Transport and other branches of the government.

The 12 regional chiefs cooperate with some 180 local governments and they are working towards a CD organization of some 600,000 persons which will form the nucleus of a much larger force if an H-bomb emergency should come about.

Many Britons are afraid of a nuclear attack—more so than the actual bombings of World War II—but the majority feel that every step possible should be taken in advance to weather such an assault. The City Council of Coventry—which was one of the most severe casualties of the German bombers—voted some time ago not to take part in civil defense preparations on the theory that such precautions would be useless.

Volunteers Sought.

Nevertheless, the CD authorities without fanfare sent three representatives into the city to organize volunteer teams and build whatever protective shelters deemed necessary. It is expected that the City Council will be billed for the expense at a later date.

It has been pointed out to Coventry that there might be a case where the city's help is needed vitally somewhere else if a nuclear bomb were dropped on a nearby town. How would the people of Coventry feel if the city could not help those who rushed to its rescue in 1940, they have been asked.

CD officials feel that one of their most effective means of saving lives—the evacuation of children and the aged from congested areas—may not be possible in another war. In 1939, before Britain declared war, some 3,500,000 people were sent to less-populated areas. It is believed that in the next war, there will not be time. This has added to CD worries but those in authority believe that they can overcome the problem with better defense facilities overall.

ATOM INSURANCE STILL PROBLEM FOR RISK FIRMS

Industrialists Working Nuclear Energy Seeking Hundreds of Millions' Coverage.

By WALTER BUSSEWITZ

NEW YORK, June 18 (AP)—Executives of insurance companies are wrestling with a tough problem—how to go about writing insurance on atomic power plants.

Industrialists working with the atom have mentioned policies so large they leave insurance men gasping.

"Spokesmen for the nuclear power industry," says John H. Forest, vice president of Liberty Mutual Insurance Co., Boston, "are talking of required limits of liability of 100, 150, 250 million dollars, which are beyond the capacity of the private insurance market."

Token Coverage.

In the background are complaints that the insurance companies are shying away from the field or offering little more than token coverage for big undertakings.

Dr. John R. Dunning, dean of engineering at Columbia University, puts it this way:

"I frankly think it is time the insurance underwriters and insurance brokers backed up this growing industry, got their courage up and were willing to put their own money into it to the tune of a good many hundreds of millions of cold cash."

The Atomic Energy Commission on March 15 appointed a panel of 10 insurance executives to consider the problem and report back in mid-June. The report was completed this week and its contents will be announced by the AEC at its discretion, perhaps in a matter of weeks.

"We promised a statement this week and we came through, but it was pretty much an interim report," says one member of the group. "We'll have much more to say later when we know more about this complicated subject."

Another source says the report demonstrated clearly that a cross-section of the insurance industry is hard at work and by no means dodging this issue.

It was learned the committee of 10 has dealt at length with possible steps to avoid pyramiding of premium charges that would result if each manufacturer of component parts of a reactor felt he must purchase the maximum limits available for his own protection. Some in the industry have suggested pyramiding can be held down if the owner of the reactor assumes the liability of the components makers.

Disaster Remote.

As for the risks involved, the major item of concern is what industrialists generally agree is the remote possibility of a disaster spreading far beyond the confines of the atomic plant.

This does not mean a nuclear explosion, but a type of accident spreading destruction complicated by radioactive contamination.

Discussing the danger of a blast, Dr. Dunning says, "It has proved to be for all practical purposes essentially impossible to explode a reactor."

Another insurance problem is posed by the disposing of the waste or "ashes" from reactors. The costs and difficulties associated with handling atomic wastes are so great that most private companies now are letting the AEC do the work.

One indication of the risks involved was shown on Dec. 12, 1952, when the Canadian government announced that its reactor "went out of control" at Chalk River, Ont. There were no casualties, but decontamination men had to wait until the following summer for the reactor to cool enough so they could start a clean-up.

Regarding risks, it is worthy of note that the phrase "to protect the health and safety of the public" appears 17 times in the Atomic Energy Act of 1954, which opened the door to private industry to develop the atom.

Some sources say a number of companies seeking atomic insurance have moderated their requests for coverage in recent months, but that the figures still are too big for the insurance companies.

Stuart MacMackin, counsel of General Electric Co.'s atomic products division, proposes this solution:

"The insurance industry should try to develop the first tier of coverage with limits of two to three or even $10,000,000, limited to major losses by means of a deductible provision. Then, through legislation, the Federal Government should furnish excess coverage in very substantial limits, as in the case of war risk insurance."

RED INQUIRY WITNESS JAILED ON SUPPORT CHARGE

PITTSBURGH, Pa., June 18 (AP)—Joseph D. Mazzei, who says he is a former Federal Bureau of Investigation undercover agent, was jailed yesterday on a charge of violating a court order for support of a child.

Earlier this week, Mazzei told a Senate Internal Security subcommittee that former Mayor John J. Mullen of Clairton, Pa., was a Communist. He has testified in several similar hearings in Washington. Mullen, now political activity director for the CIO United Steelworkers, denied Mazzei's charge under oath.

Mazzei is charged with violating a court order to pay $8 a week to Irene Corva, a waitress who named him as the father of her child, born in 1952. He is $1100 behind in the payments, police said.

INVESTIGATOR'S WIFE IS SHOT TO DEATH

Killed When She and Husband Step Onto Porch of Home.

ALAMOSA, Colo., June 18 (UP)—The wife of a district attorney's special investigator was killed on the porch of her home today by one or more assassins apparently seeking her husband.

Mrs. Virginia Armijo, 33 years old, mother of three young children, was shot in the head as she and her husband, Jerry, 32, stepped onto the porch of their home at the nearby small town of La Jara.

Armijo, special investigator for District Attorney John Ira Green of the Twelfth Colorado judicial district, was not hit. He is a long time peace officer in the San Luis valley of southern Colorado.

Armijo said the killer or killers fired as he and his wife stepped onto the porch of their home about 1:30 a.m. while returning from a party.

Police said while only one bullet hit the woman, Armijo told them he heard at least four shots. He said, however, he believed there was only one killer.

La Jara Chief George Lipenzott said Armijo has been investigating murder charges recently but those have all been settled. "This shooting must have been the result of some old grudge," he said.

The couple's three children, Jerry, 7, Virginia, 4, and Samuel, 18 months old, were inside the house at the time with a baby-sitter who had been caring for them while their parents were at the party.

The police chief said he found a set of footprints in the alley that possibly were made by a killer. Neighbors who heard the shots said they heard no sound of an automobile leaving the neighborhood after the shooting and assumed the assassin or assassins had fled on foot.

Davy Crockett Man of the Hour At City Library as Well as on TV

Other Walt Disney Shows Also Boost Children's Department Reading, Librarian Reports.

Davy Crockett is the man of the hour at the St. Louis Public Library (children's department), the same as in most every television-equipped living room in the St. Louis area, Librarian Louis M. Nourse reported yesterday.

Also, favorite childhood stories like "Peter Pan," "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea" and "Treasure Island" are enjoying renewed popularity as a result of Walt Disney's dramatizations on television and in the movies, Nourse said.

The library therefore is not unhappy, either with television or the movies, Nourse indicated in his annual report to Mayor Raymond R. Tucker, since use of good books in the programs is reflected immediately in the reading interests of boys and girls.

And circulation in the children's department in the year ending last March 31 was 1,276,100 volumes, a rise of 100,368 over the year before, the librarian reported.

This increase constituted the bulk of the library's overall circulation rise, 172,390, which brought total circulation for the year to 2,167,144, the report said.

The impact of television on the library was reflected throughout Nourse's 56-page report, which pointed out that the library had a part in no less than 30 programs on the four local TV stations.

Nourse concluded: "For the first time since television has emerged both as a blessing and a threat there is unmistakable evidence that libraries eventually should have nothing to fear from television. Both departments and branches have reported that TV has influenced reading trends in a constructive manner and has aroused and stimulated many people to acquire more knowledge. We confidently predict that the final outcome will be TV AND books."

69 PLAYGROUNDS TO OPEN TOMORROW AT CITY SCHOOLS

Summer recreation programs at 69 St. Louis public school playgrounds will open tomorrow. Activities—including play, handicraft work, dancing for girls and tumbling for boys—will be conducted Monday through Friday from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. until Aug. 26.

Besides the dancing classes at each playground, dance centers in Beaumont, Roosevelt, Southwest and Vashon High Schools will be open from June 24 through Aug. 19. Lessons in fundamental rhythms, tap dancing and ballet will be given without charge Wednesdays and Fridays.

The classes, open to boys and girls, will be on the following schedule: 9 to 9:30 a. m., children, 5 to 8 years old; 9:30 to 10:15 a. m., children 8 to 11, and 10:30 to 11:30 a. m., children 11 to 16.

It's News Only if It's 'Valuable,' 'Useful,' Defense Official Says

Pentagon Public Affairs Chief Sets Up Test for Release of Information — Editor Takes Issue.

WASHINGTON, June 18 (AP)—R. Karl Honaman, who has been given the job of overhauling the Pentagon's information policies, takes the position that demands for defense information ought to meet a test of being "useful," "valuable" and "interesting."

Honaman, Deputy Assistant Defense Secretary in charge of public affairs, expressed that view in a recent letter to J. R. Wiggins, managing editor of the Washington Post & Times-Herald and chairman of the freedom of information committee of the American Society of Newspaper Editors.

Wiggins described the standard as one in which all information might be withheld from the public. He said it was up to the people, and not the Government, to decide what is "usful" or "interesting" in the field of information.

Pentagon officials, in response to specific requests, showed reporters correspondence between Wiggins and Honaman.

It was initiated by Wiggins on May 16 with a letter in which he said an order by Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson on May 29, directing that defense information must be "constructive," had "cast doubt upon all information emanating from the defense establishment."

Wiggins added that when an organization "makes a deliberate statement that it is going to release only information that is self-serving, it is bound to have a very damaging effect upon public credibility."

In reply, Honaman said that he was sure Secretary Wilson had no thought of limiting the availability of information to that which is "self serving." He said information which is "only self serving would not be constructive."

Honaman's letter added:

"The public are eager to be informed of the activities of the Defense Department and need to have this information in order to effectively play their part as citizens. There are, nevertheless, many cases where demands for information which take up the time of people with busy schedules do not truly meet the requirements of being useful or valuable, nor yet very interesting to the public. These are tests that should be met. Thus, I would substitute for self-serving, public serving, and I am sure that this is a part of the interpretation of constructive."

In a letter replying to Honoman, Wiggins wrote:

"The trouble with releasing only information that is 'constructive' or 'public serving' is the difference of opinion that often arises in construing the terms. An official inside the Defense Department is not likely to regard as 'constructive' information that discloses his own errors. Persons on the outside may very well regard these disclosures as constructive and public serving."

WOMAN HURT IN COLLAPSE OF GRANDSTAND SUES U.S.

A $125,000 damage suit was filed against the Federal Government Friday in United States District Court at Springfield, Ill., by Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Cachick of Granite City for injuries suffered by Mrs. Cachick in the collapse of a reviewing stand at Granite City Engineer Depot last summer.

The Cachicks, who live at 2611 Benton avenue, said they were attending a public function at the depot at the invitation of the Government. A violent windstorm struck the depot during the ceremonies, overturning the temporary stand and injuring 13 persons.

Mrs. Cachick asked $100,000 for her injuries. Her husband sought an additional $25,000 for loss of companionship and for medical bills.

THERE'S NO MISTAKING HIS GOOD JUDGMENT!

You may not know his name, as he sweeps by in his sleek and massive 1955 Imperial . . . nor where he lives. But you can easily tell, by the car he drives, that he is a man of considerable accomplishment. A man of genuine stature in his own world of home and club and office. A man who has made a career of success.

He is not thinking of such matters now, however. The smile that lights his face was kindled by the rediscovery of how heart-warming it is to be openly and honestly admired—even by strangers. He is prepared for the heads that turn his way as he passes, and the admiring glances that follow after . . . in his own words, he has to admit it gives him "quite a kick."

Equally pleasing is the pure personal thrill he now enjoys of tapping the immense reservoir of V-8 power present in Imperial's great 250 hp engine. A thrill further heightened by the almost telegraphic response of its fully-automatic PowerFlite transmission . . . and the effortless control of Full-time Power Steering and extra-large, extra-safe, extra-smooth Power Brakes.

Yes, the gentleman here has only one regret—that he didn't buy an Imperial a whole lot sooner. And this is one of the chief reasons we'd like you to become acquainted with this magnificent car just as soon as you possibly can. For here is the greatest satisfaction you can know in the world of motoring!

Why not visit your Chrysler Dealer today and enjoy an Imperial demonstration? It will be a truly memorable occasion for you!

Ten 'Mona Lisas' Being Shown In Paris Exhibit of Art Fakes

Wall Papered With Counterfeit Money, Family Trees Among Hoaxes Disclosed Under Police Sponsorship.

PARIS, June 18 (AP) — The season's oddest art show — it includes no less than 10 "Mona Lisas"—opened here today.

Called "frauds in art and history" it is appropriately sponsored by the police.

All 10 "Mona Lisas" have been considered authentic at various times and places. One of them may even have been painted by Leonardo da Vinci, who apparently produced several versions of his "true" Mona Lisa, which remains in the Louvre, a mile from the Grand Palais where the show is being held. The "true" is in quotation marks, since museums in other cities have versions with their own claims to authenticity.

Other exhibits range from a wall papered with counterfeit United States currency to a letter once supposed to have been written in French by St. Peter—who died nearly 1000 years before the French language developed.

The curiosities include manufactured butterflies, imaginary family trees and of course phony paintings, complete with forged experts' guarantees.

Among the favorite subjects for fraud among contemporary artists are the late Raoul Dufy, whose slap-dash style locks easy to imitate, and the still-living Maurice Utrillo.

There's a false Utrillo sold every month at Paris auctions, an expert testified in a court case a few years ago.

Some hoaxers go to great expense, like the Russian who used hundreds of dollars worth of gold to make an "ancient" Greek tiara. Or sculptor Francesco Cremonese, who did an "ancient Roman" Venus, broke its arm and nose, buried it in a turnip field and waited for a farmer to come along and plow it up. The farmer did, and Cremonese had to produce the missing arm to prove it was his own work. Both the tiara and the Venus are on show.

One item brought reminiscent smiles to the lips of elderly Paris art critics. It was the authentic "Sunset on the Adriatic," by "J. R. Boronali," exhibited a an "advanced" art show in 1910. Next to it is a copy of the affidavit, certifying that it was painted by a mule with a brush tied to his tail.

Checker Exhibition.

Marion Tinsley, national tourney checker champion, will give an exhibition of checker playing today at 3 p.m. at the Railroad Y.M.C.A., 201 South Twentieth street. Persons who want to play the champion were asked to bring their own board and checkers.

THOMAS DOUBTS SOCIALISTS WILL HAVE NOMINEE IN 1956

LOS ANGELES, June 18 (AP)—Norman Thomas, six times candidate for President on the Socialist ticket, doubts if the Socialists will nominate anybody for President in 1956.

He said that Socialist party strength is "low." He told a press conference that if an election were held now President Eisenhower would win.

"But there would be a Democratic Congress," he said. "And this he (Mr. Eisenhower) would be thankful for, as so far it has been the Democrats in Congress who have saved most of his measures that had merit. He should pray that this will continue."

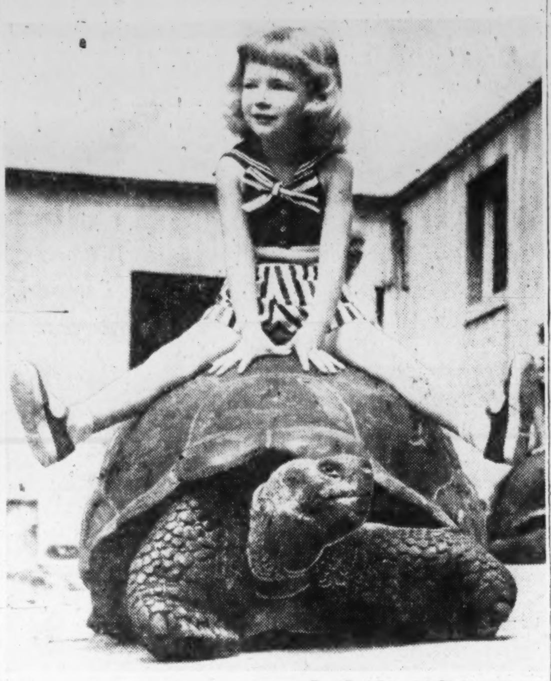
Children Ride Giant Tortoises On Way to Zoo Summer Quarters



—By a Post-Dispatch Photographer.

Riding at snail's pace on the half shell is SARA JANE GORDON, 3 years old, of Charleston, Mo. Tortoise is bound for summer quarters at St. Louis Zoo.

Turtles Weigh More Than Half a Ton Collectively—Youngsters Not Too Eager to Be Passengers.

The St. Louis Zoo's three giant tortoises—Big Boy, Pop and No. 145, weighing more than a half a ton collectively—were moved from winter to summer quarters in Forest Park yesterday. They will remain on display in the valley south of the reptile house until fall.

The huge turtles, from the Galapagos islands, were weighed individually and with some difficulty before being moved. Big Boy, three and a half feet long, 33 inches wide and more than two feet high, weighed in at 370 pounds. No. 145 tipped the scales at 328 pounds, while Pop, the smallest, hit 325 pounds. The turles, which have the longest life span of any reptile—one once lived to be 177 years old—are estimated to be from 45 to 55 years old.

Children who were watching the transportation of the tortoises to their summer quarters were offered rides on them by attendants. Few of them seemed anxious to accept. Of those who did, one, Larry Chaney of Maplewood, Ill., who was celebrating his sixth birthday said: "I didn't like the ride."

Randall Gordon Dixon, 4, of 310 West Side avenue, Webster Groves, who had to be persuaded to take a ride, said it was "nice riding." The turtles just plodded stoically along.

SOVIET NAVY AID IN ITALY HOME; ACCUSED AS SPY

ROME, June 18 (AP)—The Soviet naval attache to Italy has been called home following accusations of espionage in the Italian press.

No Soviet embassy official could be reached for comment.

Capt. Alexander Romanovich, the attache, told other members of the diplomatic set he wanted to return to Moscow because of "nostalgia" for his homeland. The Continental News Agency of Rome and the Corriere d'Informazione, a Milan newspaper, said his recall followed recent publication by a weekly of "a documented report on contacts between Romanovich and Communists working in Italian shipyards.

EISENHOWER APPOINTEE DENIES BRICKER CHARGES

TOLEDO, June 18 (UP)—John G. Feild, center of a controversy following his appointment to a post in the Eisenhower Administration, denied charges by Senator John W. Bricker (Rep.), Ohio, today that he took part in the 1952 presidential campaign.

Feild, recently appointed to the job of executive director of the President's committee on Government employment policy, said he didn't even vote in the 1952 presidential campaign. Bricker charged in Washington that Feild campaigned actively for defeated Democrat candidate Adlai Stevenson.

Bricker, in a letter to Presidential Assistant Sherman Adams, said he had been informed that Feild told Negro citizens "they would be in jeopardy if Eisenhower was elected." Bricker also was reported to have told Adams that the appointment should be suspended until a check is made on Feild's politics.

Feild, secretary of the Toledo Board of Community Relations, said Bricker was misinformed.

VICTORY NEAR FOR DIEM OVER HOA HAO REBELS

Leaders of Religious Sect's Troops Reported Held in Cambodia.

SAIGON, South Viet Nam, June 18 (AP) — Premier Ngo Dinh Diem's nationalist army drive against rebellious Hoa Hao troops tonight appeared to be near victory. High government sources said the Hoa Hao commander and two other important military leaders have fled to Cambodia.

National army headquarters in western Viet Nam reported the Hoa Hao commander, Gen. Tran Van Soai, and Gens. Nugyen Van Hinh and Nguyen Van Vy, had escaped entrapment and crossed the Cambodian frontier where they are said to be under house arrest.

The remnants of Soai's forces —once estimated to number as high as 5000 men—are encircled in a small triangle of rice paddies between Rachgia on the west coast and Thot Not, 35 miles northeast.

Diem ordered 20,000 nationalist troops into the offensive June 5. Since then more than half of Soai's men have surrendered and it appeared tonight that all organized resistance would collapse soon.

Diem's Objective.

Hoa Hao is a religious sect with a Buddhist background. Diem's objective is to break up the private armies of it and other sects and bring them into the national army as means of unifying South Viet Nam against encroachment by Communist North Viet Nam.

The five or six sects control rich rice lands in south and west Viet Nam. Soai and other sect leaders have amassed fortunes through running local government and levying arbitrary taxes on rice road and and river traffic

Soai, a former minister of state in Diem's cabinet, and Vy, a former inspector general in the nationalist army, have been accused of treason and declared outlaws. No specific count has been levied against Hinh, ousted nationalist chief of staff, but presumably he will be charged with aiding the rebels.

At Diem's request Viet Namese Foreign Minister Vu Van Mau asked the Cambodian foreign ministry to detain the three for extradition. There is some question whether they will be returned, however, since there is no extradition agreement between the two countries.

Backed by Bao Dai.

Reports here said the generals, all of whom have the support of absentee chief of state Bao Dai and the tacit backing of some French elements, escaped to Cambodia from Tri Ton, a town 15 miles southwest of Chau Doc. They are now said to be at Takeo, 25 miles northwest of Chau Doc under armed surveillance in the house of the deputy chief of province.

Another Hoa Hao leader, Gen. Le Quang Vinh—better known as Bacut, "the one-armed"—is reported trapped with considerable of his forces in the same area as Soai's troops.

By the United Press

Hundreds of refugees besieged headquarters of the International Armistice Control Commission here today clamoring to be returned to Communist North Viet Nam.

The demonstrators invaded the commission's courtyard and whole families, many with babies, set up camp on the grounds. They vowed they would not leave until the commission arranges their early repatriation to the north.

The refugees were part of the more than 800,000 Viet Namese who fled south to free Viet Nam to escape Red rule when the Geneva armistice split Indochina in two last summer.

FRENCH COMBACK AS MAJOR AIR POWER SHOWN IN DISPLAY

PARIS, June 18 (UP)—France put on a dazzling air display today that marked the nation's comeback as a major air power capable of building jet airliners and some of the world's fastest fighters.

French premier Faure proudly told an aircraft industry banquet before the display at Le Bourget Airport that "of the 10 planes in the world today which are supersonic in level flight, five are French."

Two of the faster-than-sound jets were revealed for the first time in public at the twenty-first Aeronautical Salon. They were the Leduc O-21 Ram jet, launched from a transport plane, and the delta wing Gerfaut fighter, the first plane in the world to break through the sound barrier in level flight without after-burners.

COUNT, 75, MARRIES A 14-YEAR-OLD ITALIAN PRINCESS

LUCCA, Italy, June 18 (AP)—A 75-year-old count married a 14-year-old Italian princess in a private ceremony here last night.

The bride, Princess Lidia Maria Antonia Caracciolo di Torello, will not be 15 until July 25.

Papal dispensation was necessary for the marriage, both because of her age and because the bridegroom, Count Aubry William Tealdi, is a Protestant.

The aged bridegroom, an amateur botanist, is among the wealthiest men in this region. His fortune is estimated at more than $11,000,000.

Born in Pisa in 1881 of Swiss ancestry, the count was a widower without children.

The Caracciolo family is one of the most famous in Italy. They descend from Giachina Murat, who was made King of Italy and Prince of Naples by Napoleon.

FIFTH SUMMER WORKSHOP IN ECONOMIC EDUCATION

The fifth summer work shop in economic education will begin tomorrow at Washington University and continue for three weeks, it was announced yesterday by the St. Louis Regional Council on Economic Education.

The Council has granted scholarships to 50 teachers and school administrators enrolled in the work shop. Its purpose is to help improve economic education in elementary and secondary schools.

An opening banquet tomorrow night will honor three teachers — Miss Edna Fisse, Cleveland High School, Miss Dorothy Pauls, Soldan-Blewett High School and Miss Anna Mary Bullock, Ritenour High School—for outstanding classroom projects in economic education during the past year. All attended the 1954 work shop.

TEXAS INDIAN TRIBES TO BE FREED OF U.S. SUPERVISION

WASHINGTON, June 18 (UP)—A group of Texas Indians soon will be given full independence from federal supervision, the Department of Interior said today.

A proclamation signed by Secretary Douglas McKay will remove the affiliated Alabama and Coushatta tribes of Polk county, Texas, from all federal controls, effective July 1. Under the proclamation, trusteeship responsibilities for 3100 acres of tribal land will be transferred to the State of Texas. In addition to this land, the tribes have 1100 acres in Polk county deeded to them in 1854 and 1855 by Texas.

The Texas Indians will become the first group to be completely separated from federal trusteeship since 1909.

LUGGAGE MYSTERY SOLVED: OWNER IS JUSTICE WARREN

STORRS, Conn., June 18 (UP) —Sleuths at the University of Connecticut finally determined today that the initials E. W. stand for Earl Warren.

The initials of the Chief Justice were on a suitcase found here. Someone—the university doesn't say who — picked the lock. Inside were robes which an official recognized as being from the University of California in Warren's home state.

A phone call to Washington verified that it indeed was the suitcase of the Chief Justice. Last Sunday his plane was forced to land at Providence, R.I., instead of at Bradley Field, Windsor Locks, from where he was to have gone to Amherst, Mass., to receive a degree. Warren completed part of the trip by bus, arriving at Amherst College just eight minutes before he received an honorary degree, and left the suitcase in the vehicle.

It got mixed up with baggage of a group of educators who arrived in Storrs Monday by bus. Warren will need the suitcase. He plans to leave by air Monday for a month's visit in Europe.

URANIUM MAY BE ON ITS WAY OUT AS POWER SOURCE

DENVER, June 18 (AP) — Uranium already may be on the way out as a power source, a research expert said yesterday, even while the hunt for the metal is booming.

The opinion was voiced in a speech by Eugene Ayres of the Gulf Research Co., Pittsburgh, to the Interstate Oil Compact Commission.

He said some nuclear experts think uranium will be supplanted for power by "nuclear fusion of hygrogen."

Work along these lines is classified, he said, but expressed belief that such a development would have advantages over atomic power from uranium and could lead to nuclear-driven automobiles.

1000 ITALIAN WORKERS SAID TO HAVE QUIT RED GROUP

ROME, June 13 (AP)—A thousand Italian workmen have left the Communist-dominated Labor Confederation and joined the Free Union, a Rome news agency said today.

The Continentale agency, which specializes in labor news, said the mass exodus from the Communist-led organization occurred in Salerno province.

It said the big walkout virtually brought to an end Salerno's Communst-led Chamber of Labor. The workmen were traveling salesmen and newspaper salesmen.

MOST Modern V8 FOR YOUR JOB!

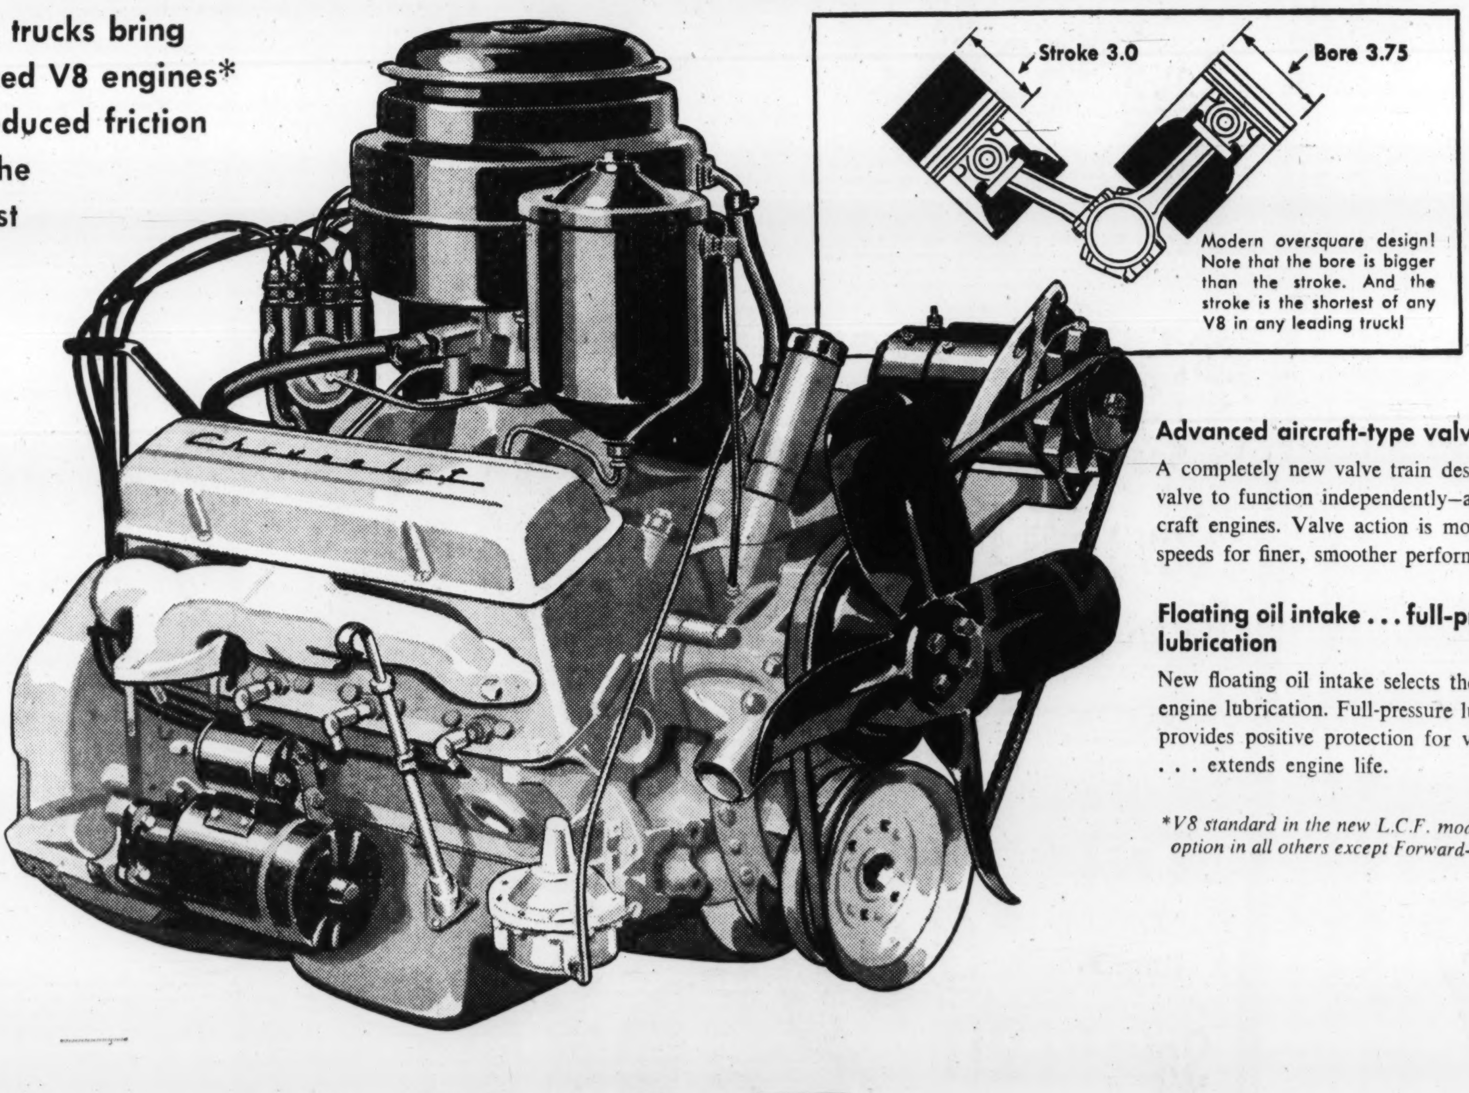
NOW...THE SHORTEST STROKE V8's IN ANY LEADING TRUCK!

Now new Chevrolet Task-Force trucks bring you the industry's most advanced V8 engines* with an ultra-short stroke for reduced friction and wear. Here are some of the features that make 'em the most modern V8's money can buy!



Modern oversquare design! Note that the bore is bigger than the stroke. And the stroke is the shortest of any V8 in any leading truck!

Modern 12-volt electrical system

You get double the punch for quicker starting (up to 30% faster cranking speed) and more efficient ignition for finer performance. Also, you have a greater reserve of electrical power.

Gas-saving high-compression ratio

With a high 7.5 to 1 compression ratio, Chevrolet's new V8 truck engines squeeze extra power – and work – out of every tankful of gas. Your ton-mile hauling costs go down with this modern V8 power on the job!

Extra-high power per pound

The compact, super-efficient design of these advanced V8's results in high power output per pound of engine weight. This means that more of the power is actually available for hauling.

Advanced aircraft-type valves

A completely new valve train design permits each valve to function independently–as in modern aircraft engines. Valve action is more positive at all speeds for finer, smoother performance.

Floating oil intake . . . full-pressure lubrication

New floating oil intake selects the cleanest oil for engine lubrication. Full-pressure lubrication system provides positive protection for vital engine parts . . . extends engine life.

2400 Miles of Shoreline, 2500 Lakes, 5000 Streams, Vast Timberland in Pine Tree State.

When the sun comes up for the United States every morning, the first spot in the nation it touches is the easterly tip of northern Maine. It comes up over a rugged country, because all of Maine is rather rugged. That's its chief virtue as one of the country's top vacation spots. Almost any corner of Maine will not be like the neighborhood you left behind.

Geographically, Maine's most spectacular asset is its coastline. The bumps, hollows, bays, inlets, rocks and beaches make up 2400 miles of coastline, from a straight-line measure of 250 miles. Part of this coast is treated to the world's biggest tides, running past 24 feet, which keep everyone, including the fish in the area, alert at all times.

Maine's interior is no slouch, incidentally, when it comes to figures. There are 16,783,000 acres of forest, much of it virgin timber, and a large portion of it has just been flown over—no white man has ever set foot in hundreds of miles of this wilderness. If one ever does, he'll see pine and spruce of the same type which contributed so much to the nation's huge building booms back in the old days. They may have thought Maine was lumbered-out, but there was plenty left, just a bit further back.

For vacations, Maine covers the full range, from a soft, sunny poolside loaf to the toughest kind of up-river portage. Twenty-five hundred lakes offer fishing of all kinds. Salt-water angling starts with mackerel and works up through a dozen species to the horse mackerel, the giant tuna.

One summer activity, though, is a Maine specialty. This is keeping cool. It's possible to get warm in the state—even to get hot on the right day in August—but there's no danger of this condition's becoming chronic. It'll cool off soon.

MINNESOTA OFFERS CHOICE OF SIMPLE OR PLUSH VACATION

If you are planning a Minnesota vacation, you can pick your lake from the sky or follow the route of the speeding streamliners as they wind along the lazy Mississippi.

And when you have made your choice, awaiting you will be modern lakeside hotels, roomy northwoods lodges, or thousands of modern cottages for two or a dozen. You can set your own table—or order from some of the finest game and fish chefs in the land.

Minnesota's way of life fits every purse, because Minnesota's out-of-doors provides the same abundance for all. It is your choice whether you enjoy it simply, or in plush surroundings.

If it is a quiet cabin on the shore of a shady lake, Minnesota has it. If you want a rugged north woods trip complete with pack sack and canoe, Minnesota has that too. Or perhaps you prefer the happy combination—the hammock near the golf course, the bridge game near the swimming beach or fishing near the tennis court.

LAKE ERIE

Lake Erie, fourth largest of the Great Lakes, got its name from the Indians living on its shores. They were known as "People of the Cats" and the word "Erie" is a contraction of the Indian word "Erige" meaning "Cat" or "Panther."

It was discovered by Joliet in 1669. Early French maps show Lake Erie as "Lac du Chat" (Lake of the Cat).

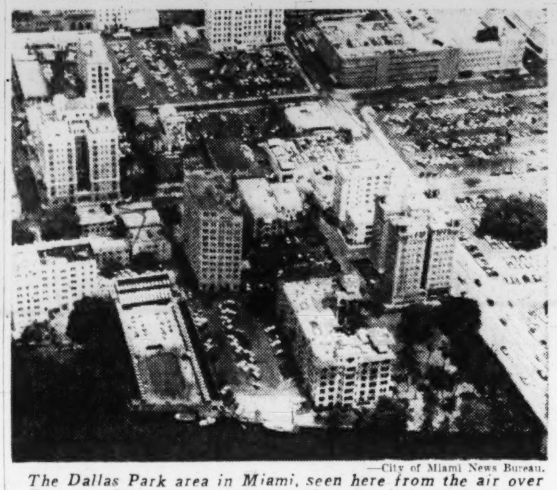
Miami's Dallas Park Hotel Area



—City of Miami News Bureau.

The Dallas Park area in Miami, seen here from the air over Biscayne Bay, is a section of sedate hotels and apartments. Since there are no through streets, there is an air of quiet privacy to the neighborhood.

FT. LAUDERDALE TAKES PRIDE IN ITS FIVE-MILE BEACH

After marvelous climate, the one feature which impresses visitors to Fort Lauderdale most is the length and breadth of the public beach. Summer or winter, the beach is the winner in every popularity poll.

Five miles long and so wide at every point congestions are few and far between, the golden strand along the Atlantic beckons to all age groups for sun and surf bathing.

In contrast to many resort cities which permit hotels to fence off sections of beach for private use, Fort Lauderdale takes pride in maintaining its oceanside area on a free-to-all basis. There are no obstructions or hazards of any kind to mar a restful snooze or an ambitious search for shells.

Miami Skyscrapers.

Two buildings in Miami, the courthouse and Miami Daily News tower are the highest in the world at their latitude. The Taj Mahal is third.

RESTFUL ATMOSPHERE IN MIAMI PARK AREA

MIAMI, Fla.—Historical sights and landmarks are a rarity in this youthful vacationland. Towering hotels and office buildings have long since replaced most of the early-day structures where Miami history was made.

Nowhere is this better illustrated than in the Dallas Park hotel section on the north bank of the Miami river, just a few blocks from busy Flagler street.

The early history of the Miami area centered largely around what is now Dallas Park. The park gets its name from old Fort Dallas, built by the United States Government at this location in 1835, during the Seminole wars.

When Miami was incorporated in 1896, Dallas Park was the heart of the original city limits. Today the area is a delightful riverside plaza, occupied by a cluster of sedate hotels, popular with visitors seeking "a quiet place close to downtown," and those planning an extended stay in the city.

Few traces of the park's historic past and the important role it has played in Miami's history, can be found. The only remaining structure from Fort Dallas long ago was removed to Lummus Park, across town.

No through streets traverse the park area, giving the hotels located there an air of quiet privacy. Landscaped walks and broad lawns lead to the river's edge where the garrison of Fort Dallas once embarked on campaigns against the Seminoles.

50 YEARS AS SUMMER RESORT, BOASTS JACKSONVILLE BEACH

Unlike many Florida resort cities Jacksonville Beach has been catering to summer vacationists for more than 50 years. The townfolk of Jacksonville Beach have been entertaining summer vacationists for so long that it just seems to come second nature to them—like swimming to a fish or flying to a bird. They have seen so many summer crowds come and go that they are almost able, in advance, to determine the wants of next year's pleasure seekers.

As a result of all that has gone before, this vacation spot has developed into really big business.

One will find at this resort city a wide Boardwalk and promenade that is several blocks long, flanked on one side by the beautiful blue Atlantic ocean and lined on the other side with all kinds of amusements. There are more than 20 various types of amusement riding devices besides a complete section of nothing but miniature rides for the small fry. There are games and concessions of all types, and eating establishments ranging in class from ordinary hot dog stands to fancy dinner and night clubs.

A modern fishing and dancing pier juts out from the Boardwalk several hundred feet and there is a splendid recreation building containing a tourist lounge, a picnic pavilion and a bandshell, shuffleboard, horseshoe, tennis and handball courts.

In addition, one finds some of the best fishing in all Florida, and an excellent surf bathing and driving beach. The resort also has a planned recreation program with sports and entertainments to appeal to all classes and ages.

SPECIAL SUMMER EVENTS AT ESTES PARK, COLO.

Estes Park, Colo., gateway to Rocky Mountain National Park, is one of the few towns in the country whose only business is entertaining visitors.

In addition to its natural facilities, many special events have been planned for this summer's visitors. July 4 will bring the annual American Legion Fireworks display, a special thrill for the visitor, when viewed against a setting of towering peaks, green forests and Lake Estes in the foreground.

The Mountain and Plains Appaloosa horse show will be held for the first time in Estes Park on July 16 and the famous Koshare Indians will perform July 21-22. On July 23 the Round-Up Riders of the Rockies will parade through the village and later give Western entertainment.

Estes Park's own colorful Rooftop Rodeo will be held Aug. 4, 5 and 6 and Arabian horse owners from throughout the nation will bring their fine Arabian mounts to Estes Park on Aug. 20-21 for their annual show.

SOME DIFFERENCES BETWEEN NATIONAL PARKS, FORESTS

By DAVE PHILLIPS

You own more than an acre of ground in the country, and so does your wife and each of the kids.

That is roughly your share of 200,775,000 acres of land which Uncle Sam holds for his citizens within the boundaries of the National Parks system and the National Forests.

No nation of the world has set aside so much of its territory for the enjoyment and recreation of its people and for the protection and development of certain basic natural resources.

Altogether it is a tremendous acreage—about the size of the Republic of Ireland—and practically all of it is open to the vacationer. Although millions of Americans visit their national parks and forests every year, few understand the important differences between the two.

The vacationing sportsman should know, for example, that hunting is allowed in National Forests, never in National Parks, but both are open to fishing.

The two were established to administer different functions. It's the job of the Forest Service to provide for the "protection, development, and use of timber, water, range, and other resources in the public interest." Carefully supervised commercial timbering operations are permitted, and stockmen can graze their herds in the National Forests. Mining is permitted and water is used for irrigation, power, etc.

The Forest Service is part of the Department of Agriculture and oversees 180,000,000 acres of land in 150 National Forests from Alaska to Puerto Rico and in most of the 48 states.

By contrast, no commercial use may be made of the resources of the National Parks. They are officially thought of as "great outdoor museums," and the Park Rangers are required by act of Congress to keep them "unimpaired for the enjoyment of future generations." The Service comes under the Department of Interior.

In other words, "keep it as we found it" is the aim of the Park Service. The beautiful log guest lodges at Bright Angel Point on the Grand Canyon's north rim were built from lumber that was hauled in from outside the Park. Likewise, wood that is burned in the lodge fireplaces must come from beyond the Park boundaries, although there may be a fallen tree 20 feet away.

Technically, the visitor to a National Park is not even allowed to kill a rattlesnake, although Parks men will admit privately that no one has been arrested for doing it.

There are some exceptions. The Park Service can salvage logs cut down in building a new road. If a Ranger cabin must be constructed in the back country, inaccessible to lumber trucks, local timber may be used. And trees may be felled to reduce fire hazard.

A nominal fee is charged to enter National Parks, not to enter National Forests, although a camping fee is sometimes charged in the latter. All National Park camp grounds are free, and most of these offer running water, trash disposal, fireplaces, toilet facilities and tables.

Most of the National Parks and Forests are concentrated in the extreme 11 western states. Most of Central Colorado and northern Idaho are National Forest. A wide continuous strip of National Forest runs from the Canadian border through Washington and Oregon to a point in south-central California.

113 Parks, Monuments.

Of 113 Parks and Monuments in the National Park system, 77 of them are in the west. The system also includes areas of special historical interest in a number of categories, such as National Memorials, National Military Parks, National Cemeteries and several others including the National Capital Parks in Washington, D.C.

"Our biggest problem," one Parks Service official said, "is the impact of the millions of visitors on the naturalness of the Parks." By "impact," he means fire, litter, deliberate vandalism and the innocent destruction by souvenir hunters.

Some of the Rangers' minor headaches are caused by tourists who scrawl their initials in lipstick on the Statue of Liberty, a National Monument, or attempt to take home a piece of bark from the General Sherman tree in California's Sequoia National Park.

The Park Service also maintains the White House lawns, thereby having the unique responsibility of replacing divots after the practice golf sessions of the present resident.

COLONIAL WILLIAMSBURG

In summertime Williamsburg, Va., takes on much of the color and bustling activity of "publick times" when eighteenth century visitors swarmed to the Virginia capital for session of the Legislature. The holiday atmosphere moves out of doors with the opening of garden dining rooms, the swimming pool, special garden tours and Matoaka Lake Amphitheater.

"The Common Glory," Paul Green's dramatic spectacle of Revolutionary days will open its ninth season at the Matoaka Lake Theater on June 29. This historic drama has a cast of 150 and features full orchestra, a capella choir and dance group.

Grand Mesa.

Colorado's Grand Mesa near Grand Junction contains more than 200 lakes that are two miles above sea level.

INDIAN DANCES TO BE HELD AT WISCONSIN DELLS

WISCONSIN DELLS, Wis.—While the vacation season here extends from May through October, the Winnebagos and Indians from a dozen other tribes hold their ceremonial dances each night from June 25 to Sept. 5, in the Stand Rock Amphitheater.

This is a natural gorge, which has been used for hundreds of years as the council ground for the Winnebago nation.

Ranking along with the ceremonial dances as an attraction for visitors are the boat cruises on a swift flowing river which has cut its own course through solid rock, leaving vistas of beauty on either side. Vacationers to the Wisconsin Dells already are plying this stretch of the Wisconsin river, known as the Upper and Lower Dells.

The swallows returned to the Dells as usual last month, and the vacationers were not far behind.

Most boat schedules include leisurely shore trips at Stand Rock, Witches' Gulch and Coldwater Canyon; on the Lower Dells trip one sees the fantastically beautiful islands known as Sugar Bowl, Ink Stand and Lone Rock.

The odd rock formations and exposed strata bordering both sides of the river provide a field day for photography enthusiasts.

OUTBOARD SKI-ATHON

The first annual Atlantic City Mermaid - Outboard - Ski-Athon, 110-mile race, is set for June 24, the first such event on waterskis ever undertaken at so great a distance.

Ten teams have already entered in the ocean grind that will get under way at New York's Seventy-ninth Street Yacht Basin and continue down the coast to a finish line in front of Atlantic City's North Carolina avenue. Each team will consist of a man and woman, who will take turns both skiing and driving the tow boat.

Even your budget is carefree when you ride the Central!

Let New York Central "pay" for 2 days of your vacation

This family of five is going to New England on their vacation. And because they are taking advantage of New York Central's Family Plan rates, part of their vacation will be paid for by money saved on fares!

Here's how: Dad bought himself a regular round-trip ticket. But Mother and the youngsters under 22 had to pay only one-way fares for the round trip! And the piggy-backer under 12 rides both ways at half the one-way fare! (Kids under 5 ride free!) This saved $116.20—enough to cover at least 2 days' vacation expense!

Why don't you visit New England? Your ticket and connecting buses let you see twice the sightseeing at no extra train fare!

Write today for New York Central's free Vacation Planner. Learn how much money you save . . . how many bonus miles you enjoy with New York Central Family Plan rates.

FOREIGN ROAD SIGNS

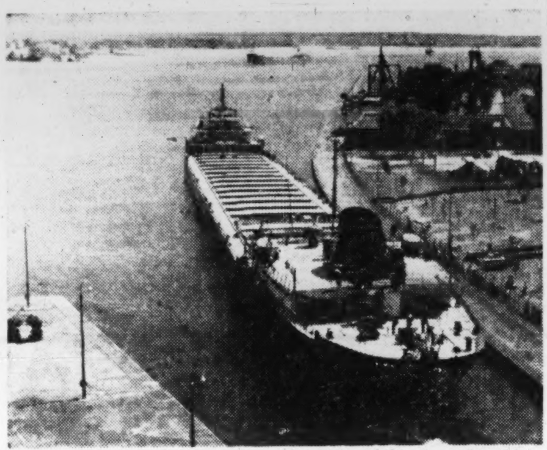
Vacationists from the United States who take their cars abroad need not be able to read a foreign language in order to understand the road signs used by the Continental European countries. Most important road markers in the twenty-one countries represented by the European Travel Commission employ uniform, easy-to-recognize symbols the meaning of which is instantly apparent.

Signs indicating a railroad crossing, for example, usually incorporate a picture of a locomotive or a section of railroad track.

Lake Michigan Beaches.

More than three million tourists visited the Lake Michigan beaches in state parks at Grand Haven and Holland, Mich., last year.

Soo Locks at Sault Ste. Marie



Featured among Michigan's centennial celebrations in 1955 will be the Soo Locks Centennial Exposition at Sault Ste. Marie, June 29 to Sept. 5. A major tourist attraction with Michigan vacationers, the Soo Locks handle more tonnage annually than the Panama and the Suez combined.

Sleeping Bear Dunes.

Specially built motorcars carry tourists over the Sleeping Bear dunes of Michigan's Leelanau peninsula and the Silver Lake dunes along Lake Michigan west of Shelby, Mich.

'Garden Peninsula.'

So beautiful were the fertile gardens cultivated by the Menominee Indians who lived near St. Ignace, Mich., that the entire peninsula on which they lived was named the "Garden Peninsula."

Queen Marinette.

Marinette, Wis., was named for Queen Marinette, a white woman who became a member of the Menominee Indian Tribe and one of the most noted fur traders of the Northwest.

MICHIGAN'S GREATEST ASSET--INLAND WATER

Michigan's 3121 miles of Great Lakes shoreline offer wide sandy beaches and some of Michigan's most unusual scenery—the sand dunes along Lake Michigan and Lake Superior's Pictured Rocks, to name just two outstanding examples.

This extensive shoreline implies an abundance of Michigan's greatest vacation asset—40,000 square miles of inland water, including the Great Lakes and more than 11,000 inland lakes. Naturally air-conditioned as a result, Michigan's climate offers visitors welcome relief from summer heat.

Michigan also possesses more than 36,000 miles of rivers and streams—some of them nationally famous. To name a few: the Au Sable, Rifle, Pere Marquette, Manistee, Sturgeon and Escanaba rivers.

Along with Michigan's scenic and recreational attractions, there are 80 special events packed into the 1955 summer vacation calendar from June through August. Designed to appeal to every taste, they range from flower festivals to fishing tournaments; from sailing races to rodeos.

High on the list of tourist favorites are the fishing festivals that center around the opening of Michigan's bass season, June 18. Among them are the Greenville fish festival and the Sebewaing bass festival the third week in June; the Marcellus bluegill frolic, June 24; the ninth annual fishermen's festival at Coldwater the second week in July, and the Sturgeon river trout festival at Wolverine July 24.

For boating enthusiasts, Michigan offers a number of outstanding events, beginning with the Saugutuck-Chicago yacht race July 1, followed by the Thunder Bay-Midwestern canoe championships at Alpena July 4 and the blue water festival's Port Huron-Mackinac sailboat race July 23.

A special feature of Michigan's event-filled summer season is the centennial celebration of the world-famous "Soo" locks at Sault Ste. Marie in Michigan's Upper Peninsula, and of Michigan State University, the nation's first agricultural college.

A unique event that will last for two years may be witnessed by Michigan visitors this summer—construction of the world's longest single suspension span bridge that will soon link Michigan's two mighty peninsulas.

Art Colony.

Grand Marais, Minnesota, is becoming a favorite summer art colony. On one side is Lake Superior and its rugged, Maine-like shoreline, while to the north stretches the famous 50 mile Gunflint Trail to the Canadian border.

Try Exploring Out-of-Way Spots in Missouri Ozarks

THE OUT-OF-THE-WAY spots of Missouri's Ozarks offer a tourist with an adventuresome spirit some real exploring and, according to the Missouri Division of Resources and Development, a tour of this area is one of the best ways to "discover Missouri."

By "out-of-the-way," we don't mean inaccessible. Sometimes these "off-the-beaten-track" places lie merely a block or so off the main drag. But usually you have to get off the much-traveled highways when you want to see adventurous, rustic, scenic Ozarks land at its best.

Covered Bridges.

Covered bridges are a part of these. Here is an essential part of the early life of the ancient Ozark mountains, when folks traveled by horseback, by wagon and by foot. The covered bridges of today remain passable in some instances, picturesque in all cases.

Caves, nearly all of which are off the highway, are fascinating to almost everyone and the Ozarks is dotted with them, both commercial and those not open to the general public. Included in these is the nation's third largest cave.

If you really want to travel differently, try flying. Many Ozark resosts are building or have already constructed, landing strips for those who wish to fly in for a few hours fishing, golf or loafing.

The most fascinating part of this off-trail tour of the Ozarks, however, is the scenery. From the Shepherd of the Hills country to the central Ozarks or down along the border, the nation's oldest mountains offer truly beautiful scenery.

Serene Beauty.

They are a type of mountain all their own—not with the height of the Rockies — but rather with a serene beauty which offers the tourists Missouri's top "selling point"—relaxation.

It is this spirit of relaxation which you'll find throughout the Ozarks. Folks down there aim to take life easy and they aim you will too when you take those few weeks away from it all. Shucks, no sense hurryin' all the time.

The Ozarks are within a day's drive for one of every six people in the United States, and for travelers right here in Missouri they are an ideal vacation land.

Lake Taneycomo, the state's oldest developed tourist area, offers boating, fishing, swimming, and unique resort centers like Rockaway Beach. Bull Shoals and Norfork offer exceptionally fine fishing. And, of course, the giant 60,000-acre Lake of the Ozarks has, besides, its more than 14,000 tourist accommodations, every type of sport and resort possible.

If it's an off-trail trip or vacation you seek, you might drop in at the J-Bar-H Rodeo at Camdenton July 5-10, sixth largest in the nation; or, you could take a tour of the eight remaining covered bridges; or see some of the 25 commercial caves or go spelunking in some of the 350 others; or perhaps you prefer the lazy float trip fishing along one of the Ozarks' quiet, winding streams like the James, Current, Gasconade or Eleven Point.

Just Exploring.

There is another type of tour of interest to an increasingly large number of persons who travel the Missouri Ozarks.

That is just taking down a country road and exploring the countryside. Pick wild flowers, watch the Ozarks' abounding wild life, sit by the side of a twisting stream and listen as the water hurries by over the ripples beneath.

The theme of the Ozarks is relax, take it easy, get away from the rush and worry of routine. And the Ozarks back this up, especially when one tries an "off-trail" type of vacation.

You can rough it any way you want. Either camp out (in a state park or in the "wilds"); reserve one of the rustic fishing camps hidden from hurry and worry; or stay in bright, new modern accommodations.

You'll be surprised at the low cost, too. Comparatively low prices, plus accessibility, are contributing factors in the growing number of Missourians staying at home in 1955.

Pick Your Time.

Pick your time of year to visit the Ozarks. In the summer, you'll find things at their peak —everything's open and at your disposal. In autumn it's "nature's flaming fall revue" when the leaves burst forth in a vast array of colors. In the winter, the snow sometimes covers the mountains like a vast bleached blanket. In the spring, life comes anew again.

To see all of this, the best way is to just take to the hills. Take off the highway and see the out-of-the-way things you don't often get a chance to see. Stay in modern surroundings, if you choose, and then take your tours of the "back country" from there.

It's a "new" way to discover the Ozarks—or any part of Missouri, for that matter.

MORE WOMEN NOW PARTICIPATING IN MISSOURI SPORTS

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo.—The woman sportsman is an increasingly important factor in Missouri, according to the Missouri Division of Resources and Development.

The Division, in cooperation with the Missouri Conservation Commission, took a survey on women fishing and hunting and found that some conservation agents estimate that percentages of women in these out-of-door sports in the state has gone up to as much as 200 per cent in som counties in the past 10 years.

"It would seem to bear out our feelings that family participation in vacations of all types is becoming more and more prevalent throughout Missouri," said Prentiss Mooney, director of the Division of Resources and Development.

Agents said that while women were taking a greater part in hunting—and these include out-of-state as well as Missouri residents—fishing is the main sport in which the female seems to be gaining in numbers.

GROUP FOUNDED TO FIGHT LIQUOR, DRUG ADDICTION

Board Estimates There Are 5,000,000 U.S. Alcoholics, Millions of Borderline Cases.

NEW YORK, June 18 (UP)—The newly formed Alcoholism and Addictive Diseases Foundation announced today that it has launched a voluntary health program to cope with "the tragic diseases of alcoholism and drug addictions."

The foundation said the program will conduct research into important problems directly and indirectly related to addictions, the causes, the results and the interrelationships.

It said the aim of the program is to develop useful methods of early detection of addictive tendencies, to prevent potential addicts from becoming actual addicts and to treat and rehabilitate those who become addicts.

Prominent Names.

The foundation's board of directors list names prominent in education and industry.

"The incalculable destruction done to the health, strength and happiness of our country by these diseases commands the support of this voluntary program by every citizen," a statement released by the directors said.

"It is of vital interest not only to leaders in science, education, business and philanthropy but also to every person who has the lease awareness of the direct and indirect dangers to his dear ones and himself."

The board said there are more than 5,000,000 alcoholics in the United States and "several million" in addition who are "borderline cases."

Board Members.

Board members include: Gen. Donald Armstrong, President, National Academy of Economics and Political Sciences; Edward M. Cabaniss, chairman, Joseph Dixon Crucible Co.; Colby M. Chester, honorary chairman, General Foods Corp.; Robert C. Clother, president emeritus, Rutgers University and director Mutual Benefit Life Insurance Co.; Wilson M. Compton (he is a brother of Arthur H. Compton, distinguished service professor of Natural Philosophy at Washington University, St. Louis); former president, State College of Washington; Fairfax M. Cone, president, Foote, Cone & Belding; and trustee University of Chicago; Howard Coonley, vice president and director, Research Corporation and director National Association of Manufacturers; Jasper E. Crane, director, E. I. duPont de Nemours & Co. and Trustee Princeton Theological Seminary; John V. N. Dorr, chairman, Dorr-Cliver Inc.; Edward A. Fitzpatrick, president Emeritus, Mount Mary College for Women.

Tom M. Girdler, chairman, Republic Steel Corp.; and director Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co.; George Leary, president, Morris & Cumings Dredging Co. and president Electral College of the United States; D. R. McLain, former secretary and director, Chrysler Building Corp.; Spencer Miller Jr., former assistant Secretary of Labor; David P. Page, executive secretary of President Eisenhower's Interdepartmental Committee on Narcotics, and Noel Sargent, honorary secretary, National Association of Manufacturers and director of hte National Council of Churches.

Officers of the organization include Frederic R. Briggs, acting president; Leo Nejelski, executive vice president and Clement C. Mason, treasurer.

DEMOCRATS PLAN TO ASK FOR FUNDS FOR JET FIGHTERS

New Attempt to Boost Defense Budget Is Certain to Cause Dispute.

WASHINGTON, June 18 (AP)—Democratic Senators today planned a new attempt to increase the Eisenhower defense program. They want to add $200,000,000 to the funds for supersonic jet fighters.

Pending before the Senate is a $31,836,521,336 defense money bill, slated for passage Monday.

Senator A. S. (Mike) Monroney (Dem.), Oklahoma, said the added funds for fighters probably would be proposed by Senator Stuart Symington (Dem.), Missouri, former Secretary of the Air Force.

Bomber Speed-up.

Under pressure from Democratic Senators, the Defense Department recently asked for a $736,000,000 boost in funds to speed up production of B-52 jet bombers. The request was approved by both Democrats and Republicans on the Senate Appropriations Committee.

This move came after some Senators contended that recent Soviet air displays indicated that Red Airpower was challenging United States supremacy.

No opposition to the increase for B-52s is expected in the Senate but the extra $200,000,000 for fighters is certain to cause a dispute. Gen. Nathan F. Twining, top Air Force commander, and civilian leaders of the Pentagon testified they do not need more money for fighters.

They said fighter production had been under study for more than a year and that if added funds could be used they would come back to Congress later.

Most Senate leaders expect the big appropriation bill, which accounts for more than half of all government spending, to win Senate approval about the way it came from committee.

Challenge Expected.

Some challenge is expected in the Senate to administration plans for reducing the Marine Corps and the Army during the next 12 months.

Efforts to prevent both cutbacks by adding millions of dollars to the bill were defeated in the appropriations committee by a margin of about 2-to-1.

Senator Dennis Chavez (Dem.) New Mexico, floor manager for the big bill, told the Senate last night that he voted against the Marines cutback in the committee but now would support the committee's decision.

That calls for a strength of 193,000 in the Marines by July 1 next year, a decrease of 12,000.

Planned Army strength a year from now will be 1,027,000, a decrease of 87,000.

Prediction by Brooks.

Representative Brooks (Dem.), Louisiana, predicted that the House will act on some type of legislation to strengthen the military reserves, as the result of President Eisenhower's appeal to the country yesterday.

Brooks is chairman of a House Armed Services subcommittee which wrote the original measure to increase the active reserves fourfold, to 2,000,000 men, by 1960.

Among other things, the measure authorizes a new pool of 250,000 teen-age volunteers each year for six months' training, followed by 7½ years in the reserves. It also provides that reservists failing to attend weekly drills can be recalled for 45 days' active service.

The bill is now stalemated in the House as the result of an amendment prohibiting assignment of reservists to National Guard units practicing segregation.

Brooks said the House "will have to get out some kind of a bill to strengthen the reserves before the end of the session. It is unthinkable for use to quit without doing this."

Plans House Speech.

Brooks said he will speak to the House on the issue Monday. Chairman Vinson (Dem.), Georgia, of the Armed Services Committee has promised an announcement Tuesday. Otherwise Democratic leaders who are carrying on the President's fight decline to reveal their plans.

The President said in a speech Friday that the legislation must be enacted for the nation's security. He said it is "so important" that "we cannot allow any extraneous matter of any kind" to block it.

Senator Thurmond (Dem.), South Carolina, promptly wired the President that "every American should heed your appeal, realize that no one who has not served as you have in the capacity of chief of staff and now, as President, in the role of commander-in-chief, can make the same appraisal of our defense needs."

Thurmond, president of the Reserve Officers Association, pledged "my continuing efforts and the full statement of the association on behalf of this vital legislation."

Representative Powell (Dem.), New York, author of the anti-segregation amendment, was absent from Washington and unavailable for comment. He has said, however, that he will not back down on his amendment but will support a bill that eliminates authority for federal assignment of reservists to National Guard units.

A spokesman for the National Guard Association has said it will oppose this type of bill because, he contended, the Guard will be dependent on between 100,000 and 150,000 assigned reservists each year to meet its buildup quotas.

Lodge Pays Tribute to the U.N. As Tremendous Force for Peace

Chief Delegate Says Agency Is Most Powerful Instrument for Influencing World Opinion.

WASHINGTON, June 18 (AP)—Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge said today the United Nations is the most powerful instrument in the world for influencing world opinion, and this has been a tremendous force for peace.

The chief American delegate to the U.N. reviewed a wide range of global problems on the eve of ceremonies in San Francisco next week marking the tenth anniversary of the international agency launched in the wake of World War II.

Speaking on a radio network (CBS-Capitol Cloakroom), the Ambassador said two of the original assumptions on which the U.N. was founded have failed to materialize. The first was that Soviet Russia and the United States would work together in unity, he said, and the second was that the U.N. would issue legally binding orders for action to keep peace.

Prevented Spread of Wars.

Still, Lodge said, the U.N. "has played a decisive part in preventing wars from spreading." He cited six potentially explosive flare-ups which he said have been settled through the U.N. without global war: Troubles in Greece, Iran, Kashmir, Israel, Indonesia and "of course, the aggression in Korea."

Experience thus has proved, he said, that "world opinion is a much more powerful weapon for peace than legalistic devices."

Without elaborating, Lodge said he is "optimistic" about prospects for release of 11 American flyers captured near the near the end of the Korean war and still i mprisoned in Red China.

"Not a day has gone by," Lodge added, that U.N. Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold hasn't been planning and working toward the release of the airmen. Lodge said Hammarskjold's work had a great deal to do with recent release of four other flyers, announced after talks in Red China by India's roving ambassador, V. K. Krishna Menon.

Comment on Big Four Talks.

As for the coming Big Four talks by President Eisenhower and other Western leaders with Russian Premier Bulganin, Lodge said " I think it will be a matter of finding out whether they (Communists) really want to do business on some of the problems of the world. . . . It isn't going to be like Yalta and Potsdam at all."

By this he apparently meant he expects the talks to be more exploratory and general and not produce the sweeping specific decisions reached at the two World War II conferences.

Lodge said it's always possible "that when you get to the top level you can find out more." He said he was "optimistic" about the Big Four talks because of the strength of the free world and President Eisenhower's leadership.

U.S. SAYS HITLER PACT UPSET JAP CABINET

State Department Papers Tell of 'Colossal Miscalculation.'

WASHINGTON, June 18 (AP)—State Department documents released today told of the "colossal miscalculations" of Japanese authorities in failing to foresee the Hitler-Stalin non-aggression pact before the outbreak of World War II.

In the second of five volumes on United States foreign relations during the critical months of 1939, the department completed publishing exhaustive records dealing with the undeclared Japanese war on China.

The United States embassy in Tokyo cabled then Secretary of State Cordell Hull in August 1939 that the fall of the Japanese government of Baron Hiranuma was due to "the colossal miscalculation of the military with regard to European affairs and because of the storm impending in Europe."

It said that Prime Minister Hiranuma had taken personal responsibility "for the failure of his government to foresee the conclusion of the German-Soviet non-aggression pact."

The 892-page volume recorded in detail mounting Japanese pressures on the international settlement in Shanghai during 1939, including the bitterly protested search of American nationals by Japanese sentries.

The records showed United States protests over the repeated bombing of missionary and other United States properties by Japanese naval and army planes.

The stream of diplomatic messages brought out clearly the conviction of United States officials at the time that Japanese military authorities had assumed dominant control in foreign policy dealing with the Allied forces in China.

One embassy message from Tokyo declared there was very little doubt "the extremists have now been given a free hand."

FUNERAL HOME DRIVERS ARE GRANTED NEW CONTRACT

A new contract for the 150 regular drivers employed by members ofthe St. Louis Funeral Directors Association has been negotiated with AFL Teamsters Local 610, it was announced yesterday by Pete Saffo, acting secretary-treasurer of the local.

Contractual provisions include a 40-hour week, compared with a previous 49½ hour week, an increase in the hourly pay rate from $1.77½ to $2.12½ and guaranteed year-around employment. Employers also will pay $20 monthly to a health and welfare fund.

CIVIC NEEDS COUNCIL HEADS

Carl H. Goener has been elected chairman of the General Council on Civic Needs for 1955-1956, it was announced yesterday .

Other officers: Roy L. Slattery, vice chairman; Frank E. Lawrence Jr., secretary; Carl W. Pinckert, south side district chairman; Edward J. A. Gain, west side district chairman, and Christ Hermann, north side district chairman.

EISENHOWER'S IMPENDING VISIT FELLS AIRPORT TREE

RUTLAND, Vt., June 18 (UP)—The impending visit of President Eisenhower accomplished what complaining plane pilots were unable to do.

A broad, towering elm which made landings at Rutland airport a hazard, was removed yesterday.

Pilots making practice landings in a plane similar to that of the Presidential craft Columbine decided the tree was dangerous and ordered it removed.

CIO TELEPHONE OPERATORS SEEK 35-HOUR WEEK

Union, Opening Convention Here Tomorrow, to Make Demand in Fall, Official Says.

The CIO Communications Workers union will demand a 35-hour week for switchboard operators of the Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. and other subsidiaries of American Telephone & Telegraph Co., Joseph A. Beirne, president of the union, told the Post-Dispatch yesterday.

The shorter work week proposal, which would mean a seven-hour day for 175,000 operators nationally, will be a major negotiating objective this year, Beirne said.

Beirne, whose union opens its convention here tomorrow, said the proposal was designed as "a short term answer" to the impact of job losses which he ascribed to substitution of dial for manually - operated telephones and to other technological developments.

Negotiations with Southwestern Bell, representing one of 108 contracts held by the union, will begin in September.

Beirne, who pointed out his union had "lived with so-called automation" for the last 20 years in an expanding industry marked by technological improvements, said his group recognized and even welcomed such advances as a reality of modern life.

Drop in Members Expected.

The problem of the union, Beirne said, is to safeguard its membership. Even so, he estimated that by 1965 there would remain only "60 or 65 per cent at most" of the present 340,000-member union.

Beirne recalled that Cleo Craig, president of A.T.&T. Co., had estimated that by that time the telephone industry would be 95 per cent mechanized, including both local and long distance facilities.

Describing effects of mechanization on employment, Beirne said that last year 17,779 switchboard operators lost their jobs, despite installation of about 1,967,000 new telephones and a greater over-all use of telephones. About 1,000,000 telephones, he added, were converted from manual to dial operation. Only about 1000 new maintenance and manufacturing jobs were created, Beirne said.

Reviewing progress of the industry since once-scarce war materials became available, Beirne said he had concluded that until 1953 expansion took up the employment slack occasioned by automatic devices. Since then, he said, unemployment has become greater. He saw no reason why the trend would not continue.

No Answer to Problem.

Telling of the problem of mechanization as it affects his union, fifth largest in the CIO, Beirne said, "We have lived with it, we have studied it—and we have no pat answer."

Beirne said he felt the union was part of an industry in which employment both in the operating and manufacturing end was declining steadily.

The union's "cushioning" methods, Beirne said, include contractural arrangements so that the union learns a year ahead of time when an exchange is to be converted to dial operation and makes an agreement that employes hired in the interim are engaged on a temporary basis, protecting the seniority of older employes. When jobs are lost, he said, arrangements are made for early retirement benefits, and if jobs open elsewhere, those with seniority have preference.

As an example of job-turnover, Beirne said that last April 14 of 21 operators were dismissed at Dundee, Ill., when dial instruments were introduced. The other seven were transferred to Elgin, Ill., he said.

'White Collar' Pioneer.

Beirne, whose union pioneered in the "white collar" field, said that in accounting departments one IBM machine cuts a force of 100 persons to seven. He agreed with Walter P. Reuther, president of the CIO, that labor's next great organizational target would be so-called white collar workers but pointed out that such a campaign would require a new type of organizer.

Such terms as "the class struggle" are out, Beirne said, supplanted by objectives of better pay, better working conditions and security.

Approximately 1500 delegates attending the convention at Hotel Jefferson will honor former President Harry S. Truman at a dinner in the Gold Room tomorrow night. Truman was an unexpected visitor to the union's convention at Spokane, Wash., in 1948 at the start of his "whistle stop" campaign.

Charles Brannan, former Secretary of Agriculture, will address the Tuesday session. The convention will close late Friday.

THE REV. M. B. MARTIN S.J. ST. LOUIS U. STUDENT DEAN

The Rev. M. B. Martin S.J., dean of the College of Arts and Sciences at St. Louis University, has been appointed dean of students, a new post created to meet the need for more service for students and expanding activities, the Rev. Paul C. Reinert S.J., president of the university, announced yesterday.

The Rev. Jerome J. Marchetti S.J., who has served as Father Martin's assistant, will succeed him as dean of the College of Arts and Sciences. As his assistant, Father Marchetti will have the Rev. Carl A. Hangartner S.J., who recently completed doctoral studies at Yale University.

As dean of students, Father Martin will have charge of student housing, fraternities, organizations and other activities.

ARTHUR COMPTON GETS BONN'S TOP CULTURAL AWARD

BONN, June 18 (AP)—American atomic scientist Dr. Arthur H. Compton today received West Germany's highest cultural award, membership of the exclusive "Pour le Merite" order.

In a ceremony at the residence of President Theodor Heuss, he was presented with the insignia of the order to which he was elected last January.

The order was established by Frederick the Great in 1740 and extended in 1842 to include outstanding achievement in natural sciences, medicine, the humanities and fine arts.

Dr. Compton, a former chancellor of Washington university, St. Louis, Mo., received the Nobel prize for physics in 1927 and in 1942 was in charge of the project which produced the first sustained atomic chain reaction.

After the private ceremony he attended a public meeting of the order in Bonn university. He is to speak on "The Birth and Future of Atomic Power" in Cologne on Monday.

$92,046 RAISED IN KETC CAMPAIGN FOR $150,000

The campaign to raise $150,000 from the public at large for operation of educational station KETC for the year ending June 30, 1956, reached $92,046 yesterday with reports of $4200 in contributions during the week.

Of the amount raised to date, $19,046 came from door-to-door solicitors and $73,000 in special gifts. The door-to-door drive ends next Friday.

Among the solicitors represented in last week's collections was 12-year-old Sanford Rederer Jr., 450 Melville avenue, University City, who collected $92 from the residents of his neighborhood after learning no solicitor had been assigned to the area.

STERETOYPERS' DELEGATES

Frank Clark, president of St. Louis Stereotypers Union No. 8 and John Cronin Sr. have been elected delegates to the fifty-second annual convention of the International Stereotypers and Electrotypers Union to be held Sept. 12 through 16 at Milwaukee, Wis., it was announced yesterday.

Both men are employed at the Post-Dispatch. They were elected at a union meeting held last Wednesday.

EFFORT TO SELECT PUBLIC MEMBER OF P.S. CO. PANEL

The State Board of Mediation, considering a wage dispute between Public Service Co. and its union employes, decided yesterday to attempt completion of a three-member panel for a public fact-finding hearing this week.

Daniel C. Rogers, chairman, said the board would submit three or five names tomorrow or Tuesday to the company and the union, in hope of agreement on the public member.

Two members have been agreed upon. They are Malcolm Bartley, for Local 788, Amalgamated Association of Street, Electric Railway and Motor Coach Operators, and O. W. Rexford for the company.

U.S. AND GUATEMALA SIGN MUTUAL ASSISTANCE PACT

GUATEMALA CITY, June 18 (AP)—Guatemala and the United States signed a mutual aid pact today.

BOY, 11, WITH ARM CUT OFF TRIES TO WALK TO HOSPITAL

NEW YORK, June 18 (UP)—An 11-year-old boy, who strode stoically along the street toward the hospital with his arm cut off at the shoulder, was in satisfactory condition today but weak from his ordeal.

William Busweiler was playing in the New York Central's west side freight yards yesterday and tried to hop a moving freight, a long-time sport of Hell's Kitchen youngsters.

He fell. Wheels of the freight ran over his arm, severing it at the shoulder. He picked himself up and started for St. Clare's hospital. Two radio patrol car policemen saw young Busweiler as he strode desperately toward help. They picked him up, wrapped him in a blanket and sped him to the hospital in time to save his life.

Anniversary of United Nations Marked by Russia's 'New Look'

Statesmen to Confer on 'Meeting at Summit' of Big Four — Seek Clues to Soviet Intentions.

Shift in U.S.S.R. Policy Noted Since Stalin's Death — Real Meaning Is Still in Doubt.

By GEORGE H. HALL

A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 18.

STATESMEN from many countries gathering to celebrate the tenth anniversary of the United Nations appear today to have more hope of a period of world peace than at almost any time in the last jittery decade.

This feeling of optimism is prompted by the new conciliatory posture of Soviet Russia, an attitude that reflects, diplomats say, pressures within the Soviet Union rather than a fundamental change on the part of Russian leaders.

No one expects, of course, the sudden descent of permanent peace on a complex and troubled world. The hope is rather for a time of relative quiet in which settlements can be negotiated at the bargaining table, not by force of arms.

The period of East-West bargaining may continue for a long time. Guesses as to its length are rare. The Russians are not caving in—they are patient and hard traders. Negotiations are expected to continue at least into next year, with ups and downs, advances and setbacks. There have always been wars and whether another world conflict can be averted indefinitely may become apparent as time passes. The hope is that the folly of another war will become increasingly evident.

UNITED NATIONS delegates can point with a good deal of pride to various specific successes of the world organization since it was founded here in 1945, but it is perhaps a commentary that the present world outlook has come about less through any good offices of the U.N. than through a policy change by the Soviet Union, the U.N. bad boy.

Although President Eisenhower, former President Harry S. Truman, the Big Four foreign ministers and other notables will address the seven-day U.N. birthday conclave starting Monday, the center of public attention will not be on the main tent but on a sideshow.

This will be the conferences between the Western Big Three foreign ministers and Soviet Foreign Minister Vyacheslav M. Molotov in preparation for the Big Four "summit" meeting in Geneva starting July 18. The Geneva meeting of the heads of state is expected to be the first milestone on the long road of negotiation.

Intensive preparations for the summit meeting already are under way. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles met this week in New York with Harold Macmillan, British Foreign Secretary, and Antoine Pinay, French Foreign Minister, to work out a united approach to Molotov. The three also met with Dr. Konrad Adenauer, Chancellor of the West German Federal Republic, in a conference which served to underline the importance the German question will assume at the Geneva talks.

The principal matters the Western ministers are expected to discuss with Molotov are the issues that are to be brought up for discussion at Geneva, the question of how far the heads of government should go toward trying to reach settlements of issues and how much should be left for later consideration at lower levels, and the length of the Geneva meeting.

The West has proposed three or four days. Mr. Eisenhower has said he would consent to an additional day or so, but the President is insisting on a firm limit so that, as he puts it, the charge cannot be made that he is trying to wreck the conference if he should be required to leave the Swiss city.

There is a possibility Soviet long-range intentions may become clearer in the coming week. Molotov came to the United States last Wednesday with a retinue of 47 persons, in an apparently expansive mood. Aboard the liner, Queen Elizabeth, he spoke to a New York Times reporter of "a calmer sea." Shortly after disembarking at New York he went on a tourist-type sightseeing trip. He agreed to star on a television interview show June 26. Molotov will address the U.N. Wednesday.

Just what the Russians are up to is a question Western diplomats are studying intensively. Following are some of the happenings making up the Russians' new look in foreign policy. These events prompted President Eisenhower to remark at his press conference June 8 that "there is something that is different in the world—there is a change going on." In these events may lie clues to the true Soviet purposes.

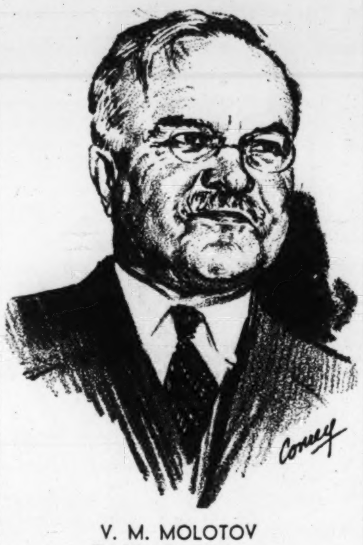
THE SHIFT in Russian policy probably began with the death of Premier Stalin March 5, 1953. Stalin was succeeded by Georgi M. Malenkov, who subsequently admitted publicly he was not up to the demands of the job. Malenkov was replaced by Marshal Nikolai A. Bulganin, but it has become apparent that the top man in Russia really is Nikita S. Khrushchev, head of the Communist party.

Under the Bulganin-Khrushchev regime the Russians began to veer toward a chummy approach to the rest of the world. After more than seven years of delay they agreed to sign the treaty granting Austria independence. They made what Dulles has called a "humble pilgrimage" to the apostate President Tito of Yugoslavia. They invited Adenauer to Moscow to discuss regularization of Russian-German relations; he probably will go after Geneva. They are entertaining Prime Minister Nehru of India handsomely.



V. M. MOLOTOV
The West is curious . . .

In addition to recent Russian moves there have been other efforts at peacemaking. In April, Premier Chou En-lai of Communist China went to the 29-nation Asian-African Conference at Bandung, Indonesia, and expressed willingness to talk about easing tension in the Formosa strait. India's V. K. Krishna Menon is visiting the United States and Canada after a trip to Red China; he was the first to announce the release by the Chinese Communists of four imprisoned United States flyers. There have been hints 11 additional airmen are to be released soon.

Possibly the most impressive Russian about-face occurred when the Kremlin leaders, including Bulganin and Khrushchev, paid court to Tito in Belgrade toward the end of May. James W. Riddleberger, United States Ambassador to Yugoslavia, described the Russian visit as "public groveling" and said it might lead to defections in Soviet satellite states. Yugoslavia, which is receiving extensive United States aid, is the only former Soviet satellite to break away from the Russian grip.

Because Yugoslavia was closely allied with Russia, and remains a Communist state, its leaders are in a peculiarly advantageous position with respect to analyzing Soviet motives. Here is the way they look at the picture:

For the last six or eight months Yugoslavs have been predicting big changes in Soviet policy, asserting there would be zigzags between hard and soft words but in the end some concessions.

Their reasoning was that the Soviet system is "in a fix," that the Russian people, faced with food shortages, would not go along happily with further armament drains. Present Soviet leaders realized mistakes were being made under Stalin but were unable to rectify them as long as the old dictator lived. Now the bills for past mistakes are coming due.

Because of the internal Russian situation the world must now take a more careful look at Soviet proposals, realizing that any changes in apparent objectives are forced by circumstances and not occasioned by an alteration in Russian philosophy, the Yugoslavs think.

There is no proof yet that apostasy is brewing among the satellites, but the Yugoslavs hold that the Soviets could not try to make peace with Tito, who was denounced by Russia as an arch criminal in the late '40s, without setting off a chain reaction. The process the Soviets have set in motion can be reversed only with great difficulty, it is said; concessions to the satellites will be made.

One American view is that the Russians do not intend to make real concessions to the satellites and that they would not have fawned on Tito as they did if they had not been fairly certain their controls in the satellites were so effective that there would be little danger of Tito-like defections.

Yugoslavs think the Russians visited Belgrade because they wanted a platform outside their own orbit and that they will follow-up the visit with other approaches. The Russians also wanted to cause as much friction as possible in Yugoslav relations with the West and to stop any incipient Yugoslav move toward Western orientation, it is thought. In addition they were seeking to promote their idea of neutrality for border states, and perhaps to revive cordial relationships between the Russian and Yugoslav Communist parties.

The Russians were tremendously impressed with last fall's settlement of the Trieste issue to the satisfaction of both Italy and Yugoslavia. The Soviets apparently did not think a compromise of the rival Yugoslav-Italian claims was possible. The Russians also were concerned over the signing of the Yugoslav-Turkish-Greek alliance last summer. This gave Yugoslavia a sort of cousinly relationship to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, of which it is not actually a member.

THE INVITATION to Dr. Adenauer to journey to Moscow is thought part of the current Soviet Policy that looks toward the neutralization of a unified Germany on a pattern completely unacceptable to the West. West Germany became a sovereign state and a member of NATO last month. The signing of the Austrian Treaty is interpreted as in part a hint by the Russians that Germany's East and West zones could be brought together if a pattern of neutrality were followed. The United States opposes neutral Germany, whether divided or united.

Under the Austrian Treaty all foreign troops are to be withdrawn and no military bases are to be maintained in Austria by the Western powers or by the Russians. President Eisenhower has said that this "neutralization" does not mean Austria will become a vacuum; that Austria is in effect committed to maintaining its neutrality by arms if necessary. The West rejects a similar role for Germany.

There is expected to be no let-up in the drive of the German people toward unification of their country and East will be competing with West in trying to channel that drive.

A divided Germany has been described as a time-bomb in the heart of the Continent; a united Germany, if armed, might control the European power balance, in favor of either East or West, as the case might be. The West is fearful, of course, of another German-Russian alliance.

Prime Minister Nehru is the leader of the Asian nations that seek a positive neutrality with respect to the East-West power struggle. He is in Russia, now, and the unprecedented welcome given him is a further indication of the Russian desire to encourage neutrality. Nehru has been greeted by great crowds wherever he has traveled in the Soviet Union; presumably some of the enthusiasm has been generated by Communist propagandists. There is every indica-

Twenty St. Louisans Leading the Way

Non-Profit Organization Dedicated to Community Improvement — Already Has Accomplished Much.

Works With Other Groups When Possible — Bond Issue and Earnings Tax Vigorously Promoted.

By HARRY WILENSKY

Of the Post-Dispatch Staff.

TWENTY men are leading St. Louis into a new era. Working quietly, without headlines or fanfare of any kind, they are devoting a great deal of time, effort and their own money to the task of lifting this community out of the doldrums. It has been only two years since they first got together, but what they already have accomplished is making other cities sit up and take notice.

St. Louis was heading down hill when the late Mayor Joseph M. Darst created Civic Progress, Inc., in 1953. Municipal finances were shaky; the city's buildings and equipment were dilapidated; public services were suffering from lack of funds; slums were spreading, and more and more people, business and industry were moving out.

In a plea for help, the Mayor asked a number of leading citizens to study the city's problems and try to work out some lasting solutions. He wanted not just recommendations as to what should be done, but the follow-through to carry plans to completion—in short, public service on a permanent basis.

THE MEN who agreed to serve have gone about the job in a remarkable way, and have developed an organization so unusual it may well be unique. Civic Progress has no office. It has no staff. It has no agenda. It follows no prescribed method of operation. Yet it is proving most effective in helping to revitalize St. Louis.

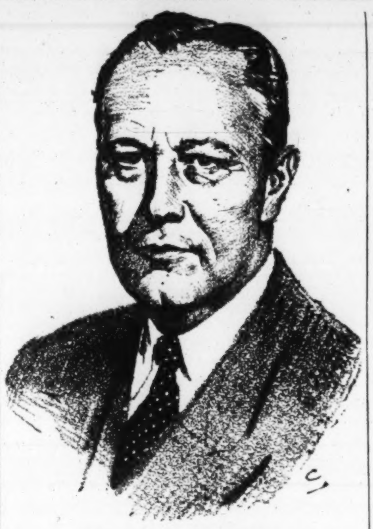
Under its charter as a non-profit organization dedicated to community improvement, Civic Progress is not permitted to engage in political activity. But its members, acting as individuals, supported the Mayor when he appealed to the State Legislature for authority to continue the tax on earnings.

Stabilization of municipal finances has been one of the city's biggest needs. This was accomplished last fall when Powell B. McHaney, president of Civic Progress, led the campaign which gave St. Louis home rule on the earnings tax through amendment of the city charter.

With its finances put in order, St. Louis could undertake a big bond issue for expressways, parks, hospitals, slum clearance and other long-needed improvements. Sidney Maestre headed the citizens' committee which drew up a $110,639,000 program of public works, and David R. Calhoun Jr., still another member of Civic Progress, directed the drive which won approval for every proposal when the program was submitted to the voters in May.

Before this program was drafted, Civic Progress suggested that it might be a good idea to get outside opinion on some of the community's problems. The Urban Land Institute, a national fact-finding agency, was commissioned to make a study of the downtown section, transportation, parking and other aspects of the city's economy.

Sponsored jointly by Civic Progress, the St. Louis Real Estate Board, the Building Owners' & Managers' Association and the Chamber of Commerce of Metropolitan St. Louis, the study cost $25,000. More than $20,000 was contributed by members of Civic Progress.



POWELL B. McHANEY
Home rule . . .

When acquisition of right-of-way for the Mark Twain Expressway was lagging because the city lacked funds to pay its share, Civic Progress stepped in and persuaded the State Highway Commission to advance the money. As a result, construction will begin three months sooner.

For years contractors have complained that the city's building code was out of date and needed modernization to permit use of new construction methods and materials. A bill amending the code to allow use of metal panels in the outside walls of large buildings was bogged down in the Board of Aldermen last winter until Civic Progress went to bat for it. Then the measure was passed by unanimous vote.

As a result, Brown Shoe Co. will put up a $6,000,000 warehouse here instead of in some outlying area.

The movement to organize a United Fund to reduce the number of separate charity appeals in St. Louis was started by Civic Progress, and one of its members, William A. McDonnell, will head the first drive this fall.

There might be no St. Louis Symphony Orchestra today if it were not for Civic Progress.

The symphony has been confronted by a financial crisis year after year. Because it always managed somehow to make ends meet in the past, most people assumed that it would pull through once more when the 1954-55 season rolled around. But the situation this time was different.

To make up the difference between ticket sales and operating costs, $200,000 had to be guaranteed, but after seven months of continuous appeal the maintenance fund drive had raised only $134,000.

What to do? There was talk of shortening the season. The possibility of cutting expenses by reducing the size of the orchestra and letting 20 or 30 players go was discussed. Some contended that it would be better to disband the symphony rather than let it degenerate from a major orchestra of top rank into a third-rate aggregation.

The situation came up for discussion at a meeting of Civic Progress.

"I don't know if this is the kind of thing we want to get into," one of the members said, "but the symphony is about to go under."

Some of the Civic Progress members are concert-goers, others are not. But after talking it over all agreed that St. Louis could not afford to lose the orchestra. With this decision the symphony became a civic issue.

A committee appointed to study the problem reported that two things would have to be done: (1) Raise an emergency fund of at least $60,000 to assure the 1954-55 season; (2) reorganize the basis of support to eliminate the annual crisis and put the orchestra on a sound financial footing.

On being assured that other members of Civic Progress would back him all the way, Edwin J. Spiegel agreed to head a citizens' committee to tackle the double-barreled problem.

The $60,000 was speedily raised, a large part of the emergency fund being subscribed by members of Civic Progress themselves. Then Spiegel set to work with Irving Edison and others to line up permanent support. Last spring the maintenance fund drive went over the top for the first time in the 75-year history of the orchestra. On the urging of Civic Progress, a number of firms have pledged support for a three-year period.

AUGUST A. BUSCH JR., president of Anheuser-Busch, Inc., is chairman of the board of Civic Progress. The other members are:

Howard F. Baer, president, A. S. Aloe Co.; Sidney R. Baer, vice chairman of the board and treasurer, Stix, Baer & Fuller Co.; Arthur A. Blumeyer, president, Bank of St. Louis; Calhoun, president, St. Louis Union Trust Co.; Edwin M. Clark, president, Southwestern Bell Telephone Co.; Donald Danforth, president, Ralston Purina Co.; James M. Douglas, attorney; Aloys P. Kaufmann, president, Chamber of Commerce; Maestre, chairman of the board, Mercantile Trust Co.

Morton D. May, president, May Department Stores Co.; J. W. McAfee, president, Union Electric Co.; McDonnell, president, First National Bank in St. Louis; McHaney, president, General American Life Insurance Co.; Edgar M. Queeny, chairman of the board, Monsanto Chemical Co.; Edgar E. Rand, president, International Shoe Co.; Ethan A. H. Shepley, chancellor, Washington University; Tom K. Smith, chairman of the board, Boatmen's National Bank; Spiegel, president, Gaylord Container Corp.; and Clarence M. Turley, president of the real estate firm, Clarence M. Turley, Inc.

Civic Progress is modeled after the Allegheny Conference on Community Development in Pittsburgh, but with St. Louis variations. When the organization was being set up here, a group of the members made a trip to Pittsburgh, paying their own way, to see what had been accomplished in the steel center.

Accompanied by Mayor Raymond A. Tucker, they viewed the rebuilding of the Golden Triangle business district, rode new highways, tramped through slums, inspected garages built for shoppers, studied plans for new projects.

The group was impressed by the huge sums that Richard Mellon, the multi-millionaire, and his associates had provided in philanthropic gifts to the community. Commenting on this, Busch remarked:

"We don't have a big Mellon in St. Louis, but we have a lot of little seeds."

The St. Louisans returned from Pittsburgh with the intention of following the Allegheny Conference setup of a sizable membership and a professional staff of planners.

Later, however, they changed their minds. The small, informal group was working well, providing a personal touch that no staff of employes could supply. It is able to mobilize the leading forces of St. Louis and channel their influence into civic causes speedily, without red tape.

The meetings, strictly informal, are held once a month unless a special session is required. They start at 4 p.m. and last two or three hours. Since Civic Progress has no office of its own, the meetings were held first at one hotel and then another. Now the members get together at McHaney's office.

Such a tight-knit organization might be handicapped in matters requiring wide public support if Civic Progress took on the entire job of campaigning for objectives. But it doesn't. One of its first decisions formulated the policy of working with established civic agencies rather than trying to supplant them.

Civic Progress is more interested in results than methods. If another organization is in position to achieve something the community needs, it will get behind it and help. This is the way it prefers. On the other hand, if a new organization—such as the United Fund—is required to cope with a problem, it stands ready to set it up and see that it gets proper support.

Some of the members live in the city, some in St. Louis county. Their work together reflects the community of interest and the realization that when it comes to public welfare, city and county are one.

Although it seeks no glory, Civic Progress is becoming known far and wide. Tulsa, Okla., sent a representative to St. Louis to follow the bond issue campaign and study the way Civic Progress laid the foundation for it. Newark, N.J., asked for printed material describing the organization. (There isn't any.)

Requests for information have come from as far away as Melbourne, Australia.

In one form or another all the letters ask the same question: Is it true that St. Louis has a group of business leaders who are devoting to public affairs the same kind of thought and effort they put into their private affairs?

The answer is Yes.

What India Wants---In Moscow, Peiping and Washington

By DONALD GRANT

Of the Post-Dispatch Staff.

THE Government of India is housed in New Delhi in the red stone buildings constructed by the British in the nineteenth century; India's current foreign policy is an attempt to return to the "great tradition" of nineteenth century diplomacy.

India's policy is based on the assumption that diplomacy, by working quietly in the background, can discover common ground between antagonists in world politics, and on such common ground the foundations for world peace can be constructed.

This assumption is powerfully reinforced by the great and continuing influence of Mahatma Gandhi. Gandhi demonstrated to the satisfaction of most Indians that moral force can be more potent than physical force—by achieving Indian independence. Indian leaders believe they can see a kind of "Gandhiism" at work in the whole world today.

Furthermore, Indians, along with the rest of the majority of mankind which lives in the underdeveloped areas of the world, believe that the first necessary condition for their own economic development is a world at peace.

So Indian leaders, notably Prime Minister Nehru, and his chief foreign policy adviser, V. K. Krishna Menon, are traveling around the world seeking common ground between World Communism and the anti-Communist countries under the leadership of the United States. As of today, Nehru is in Russia and Menon is in the United States.

Nehru's objective is of a more general nature—simply finding out more about Russia, and using his influence on Russia in the direction of tolerance and understanding. Menon has the harder task: finding a basis for the peaceful solution to the problem of the Formosa strait.

Menon's immediate objective is to get the United States and Red China in negotiation. The first step was taken at the Asian-African Conference, last April, when China's Prime Minister Chou En-lai offered to negotiate; the second step was taken when the United States accepted the offer—with qualifications.

The third step was taken when Red China released the four American flyers. Menon just now is trying to convince United States leaders that they should take a fourth step—should make a gesture toward Red China that would result in a fifth step, the release of the other 11 American flyers being held inside China.

As Menon approaches the problem, he believes the questions involved in the Formosa strait issue can be divided into those on which negotiation is possible, and those on which negotiation—at present—probably is impossible. Presumably the withdrawal of Nationalist troops from Quemoy and Matsu is a negotiable question. Presumably the return of Formosa itself to Red China is not now negotiable: Red China does not seem likely to give up its claim and the United States does not seem likely to agree to the immediate return of Formosa to Red China.

As the Indian leaders see it, however, none of this constitutes a diplomatic impasse. In the first place, they believe that a single gesture on the part of the United States could do much to improve the atmosphere for negotiation. If the United States would cease opposing the entry of Red China into the United Nations, Indian leaders believe the attitude of Red Chinese leaders might change considerably.

And in the second place, they believe that (1) a cease-fire in the Formosa strait area can be achieved, (2) the question of Quemoy and Matsu can be negotiated, and (3) the question of Formosa itself can be postponed.

Indian leaders believe that the Formosa strait problem involves chiefly the United States and Red China, and that, furthermore, it also involves the public interest of the whole of the world, an interest in preserving world peace. Both of these propositions, they believe, have been pretty well established, despite continued United States insistence that Chiang Kai-shek's interests must be preserved, and despite continued Red Chinese propaganda to the effect that the return of Formosa is an internal Chinese question.

But Indian leaders take their greatest comfort from the currently improved world political atmosphere. As Krishna Menon puts it, "India would like to make some contribution toward keeping up the progress that has been made, so that the present moment will not be just a lull in a storm."

Which raises at least two important questions: What are the real sources of improvement in the world's political atmosphere that might lend weight to the belief that a liquidation of the cold war is possible? Is India, in its quest for world peace, trying to weaken the forces of anti-Communism?

The Indian answer to the first question is that it may be exactly the impact of Red China on World Communism that is changing the whole nature of the great Communist protagonist which has caused the United States so much blood, sweat and tears in the last decade. They are not absolutely sure of this judgment, yet, but they believe it is worth exploring: that, in a sense, is what is going on today. Indian reasoning goes something like this:

Mao made his own Communist revolution, largely independent of Soviet Russia. Russia now may realize that any attempt to enforce a monolithic control over China might result in a complete rupture, as a similar effort resulted in the schism with Tito of Yugoslavia.

Russia, therefore, seems to be making great efforts—including the recent visit by Soviet leaders to Belgrade—to prove to all the world, and especially to the Chinese, that there is plenty of room for dissent among Communists. Indian leaders would like to see the interaction between such countries as Russia, Yugoslavia and China increased, and they would like to see increased interaction between such countries and others which enjoy close relations with the anti-Communist countries. They see a hope that a chain-reaction kind of continuing influences may in the end result in a new kind of World Communism—internally more liberal, externally less rigid.

They would prefer to see this happen rather than to see the break-up of World Communism: such an event, they fear, might serve simply to isolate Russia from further influences and increase the danger of Russian aggression.

As to the second question, is India trying to weaken the power of anti-Communism in the world, the Indian answer is a qualified "yes." It is the purpose of Indian foreign policy to weaken physical force on all sides—another word is "disarmament"—and so far as possible to liquidate the whole power struggle, the cold war, now going on.

India's present leaders are deeply influenced by the British tradition of parliamentary democracy and liberalism. They want no part of Communist police states, or of any other kind, and they are determined not to be satellites of Russia, China or of any other nation.

As an Asian country, however, India finds much in common with China. Some Indian leaders believe they already know more about what goes on in Peiping than Russia knows. India is trying to use this familiarity to facilitate the movement of events toward the hoped-for day when China will be a respectable, peaceful member of the world community of nations.

Krishna Menon tends to put it in a typical Menonism: "We would like to see China be more Asian than Communist."

Meanwhile, India's leaders are trying to use their considerable familiarity with the West to mitigate what they believe is a tendency in the United States to depend upon sheer physical power. To a great many Asians, as more than one American ambassador has reported to Washington, the United States appears to be throwing its weight around in the world, making enemies of "neutrals" in the process.

To quote another Menonism:

"We would like to see the United States gain prestige in Asia—by reducing its power."

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

There Are No Fish!

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I have just returned from a so-called "fishing trip" in Bollinger county. I did not catch anything.

I have been fishing for years and I have never caught anything. I have fished every place in the world there is to fish and I have never caught anything. I have never seen anyone else catch anything.

I have, after profound and lengthy meditation, come to a conclusion that will confound and amaze the multitudinous unthinking idiots who persist in "fishing." It will also cause great consternation in the advertising fraternity and bankrupt the sporting goods industry. There are no fish.

There is no such thing as a fish —at least in the commonly accepted sense. They are a manufactured product propagandized for the profit of the sporting goods manufacturers. Whenever a "fish" is allegedly caught it is a plant.

This is a perfect set-up for the ad people and other vested interests because of the gullibility and inherent dishonesty of so many of us. As a result, millions are spent on "fishing" equipment which never catches anything.

I could have sold my silence to the "vested interests" for millions of dollars. My love of man exceeds my desire for gold. JOHN SLATON.

History's Turning Point

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

This month shall not go by without my sending a greeting to my American friends.

Austria is free now and Western Germany is accepted by the Western world as a fellow-nation. This is the result of 10 years of uninterrupted work and sacrifices made by the United States of America in the endeavor to build up a better world. God bless you!

To me it seems that those two political events are a symbol of the fact that history has arrived at a turning-point: instead of violence, co-operation; instead of fear, confidence. ELIZABETH BEYME.

The Doctors' Petition

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

The article that appeared in last Sunday's Post-Dispatch concerning the 1500 physicians who signed a petition backing Dr. John Peters, Professor of Medicine at Yale University, justifies a bit of explanation.

The 53 names mentioned as having signed the petition, or even the 1500 who were alleged to have signed the petition, after all represent a very small segment of the well over 150,000 physicians in the United States. Furthermore, the majority of the 53 names mentioned are men engaged in full-time medical school activities, a group not directly concerned with the responsibility of medical care of the public.

There has always been a fundamental line of cleavage between the philosophy as well as the experience of the full-time teacher and the physician engaged in actual practice. In this particular matter the general profession has not been approached for either approval or opinion of the issue at stake.

Challenging Articles

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

To the avalanche of praise and gratitude doubtless rushing to the Post-Dispatch for the series on the "Struggle for Peace," now appearing, I add my personal share.

To the suggestion of Reader Kenneth C. Walker, I add my hopeful plea for reprints for widespread distribution.

Besides the Friends Service Committee and the Unitarian Fellowship for Social Justice, I am confident organizations such as the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom, the Fellowship of Reconciliation, United World Federalists, countless discussion groups on world affairs—and churchmen and women of all religions—would eagerly promote the circulation of these challenging articles. ROSE T. JONAS.

Warning in Argentina

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

The clash between Peron and the Catholic Church in Argentina is just another example of why it is so important to erect a wall of separation between the church and the state. Wherever the government subsidizes the church, and in turn the church becomes a major factor in government, eventually there is difficulty.

The Argentine situation is indeed a paradox. Actually the Peron government has not become any less democratic in recent months. It is and has been a Fascist dictatorship. The only change in policy is that toward the church. Previously the church was subsidized by the government, and even was a power in the government. Evidently Peron decided he no longer wanted to share that power, and the obvious course was to purge the government and country of his only major rival for control.

Without saying that either side is right or wrong, the American people should view this situation for its political significance, and resolve that no such situation be allowed to occur in this country. The best way to assure this is to steer all governmental activities away from any church connections or subsidization.
CONSISTENT.

'A Solid Structure'

Writers of historical footnotes may protest that the week of June 20-26 is really not the right time to be celebrating the tenth anniversary of the United Nations. They may say that the U.N. name was first used on New Year's day of 1942 when 26 nations at war against the Axis accepted the Atlantic Charter.

Or they may recall that in Moscow in October of 1943 the Big Four decided to establish "a general international organization . . . of all peace-loving states and open to membership by all such states large and small."

Or they may point to the Dumbarton Oaks conference of 1944 where this proposal was made more specific, or to the Yalta conference of February 1945, where Roosevelt, Stalin and Churchill worked it out in even more detail, and called for a great conference to open in San Francisco on April 25, 1945.

Yet when the delegates met, there was something prayerfully new and thrillingly hopeful in the great mass of quite ordinary people which struggled—for the most part in vain—to get into the powder-blue, flag-decorated Opera House on opening day.

And there was a genuine feeling of historical accomplishment when the final draft of the Charter was read and approved, not by monarchs, governments, plenipotentiaries or high contracting parties, but in the name of "We, the People of the United Nations, determined to save succeeding generations from the scourge of war . . . to reaffirm faith in fundamental human rights . . . to establish justice . . . to promote better standards of life in larger freedom . . ."

That day's high enthusiasm is gone. But despite all criticism, the U.N.—which began with a membership of 50 nations and raised this to 60 in the following 10 years—has proved worthy of it. True, the organization did not avert the political tragedy of the decade—the break-up of the grand alliance of World War II into the hostilties of the cold war. But what would be man's fate today if this international forum had not kept the separation from becoming total and final? What if it had not enabled the adversaries to meet, if only for recrimination?

Is this a U.N. failure? Or is it the failure of those directly involved to act in the spirit of the U.N.? Should it obscure the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, the accomplishments of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration, the International Refugee Organization, the Technical Assistance Administration, the World Health Organization, the Food and Agriculture Administration, UNESCO, and the Children's Emergency Fund? Have ever so many done so much for each other?

What of the armistice achieved in the Israeli-Arab war? The truce in the bloody clash of India and Pakistan over Kashmir? Resistance to aggression in Korea?

Disputes? Compromises? Unsettled issues? But does not this international organization exist for the purpose of enabling its members to deal with disagreements? Is not discord its very reason for being?

Surely former President Truman spoke truly when at the conclusion of the work of San Francisco he said that it had not produced a perfect instrument, but "a solid structure on which we can build a better world." May the anniversary celebration help the world to recapture some of the spirit of 1945, and this time to be more loyal to it. Members of the U.N. can make of it—and of the world—what they will. If it is peace that we all want, we have a strong help to its achievement.

Can Words Spot a Red?

The First Army, with headquarters in New York, has issued a pamphlet on "How to Spot a Communist" for guidance of intelligence officers. While the New England states in the First Army area contain many installations which must be protected, this pamphlet is no fortress for intelligence or parapet of thought.

Just how is a Communist to be spotted? According to the pamphlet, the suspect's language must be carefully noted and studied. The suspect, of course, probably is too clever to quote Lenin or Stalin. But he will reveal his Moscow mind by use of certain words: progressive, reactionary, demagogy, colonialism, book-burning, chauvinism. The pamphlet concedes that use of these words does not prove subversion but they "might well be considered as a danger signal."

A little research shows that one widely known citizen who is absolutely beyond suspicion made the following remarks at the following places on the following dates:

"If we take the road to the right we become 'reactionaries.'" Boise, Idaho., Aug. 20, 1952.

"Don't join the book-burners." Hanover, N.H., June 14, 1953.

"You have seen war in Indochina described variously as an outgrowth of French colonialism and the French refusal to treat indigenous populations decently." Seattle, Wash., Aug. 4, 1953.

"We will drive from the temple of freedom all who seek to establish over us thought control—whether they be agents of a foreign state or demagogues that try for personal power and public notice." New York City, May 31, 1954.

"From the beginning I have tried to stand for something that is positive and progressive." Washington, Dec. 8, 1954.

Yes, the man who used these "suspect" words is Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Wrong Choice in the House

The Tennessee Valley region will face a power shortage unless new generating facilities are soon added to those with which the TVA now supplies its market.

The simplest, fastest, cheapest, most direct way to supply those facilities is for TVA to build its long-planned steam plant at Fulton, Tenn., with funds appropriated by Congress and to be repaid out of power revenues.

The least satisfactory way to supply the needed new capacity, for many reasons which we have argued at length, is by authorizing construction of a privately-owned Dixon-Yates plant in Arkansas, building Government transmission lines to move its power into the TVA system, and making the Atomic Energy Commission a dummy broker and the TVA its unwilling customer.

A clear choice between these two methods of meeting TVA area power needs was offered to the House of Representatives after its Appropriations Committee had voted to adopt the first alternative.

Reversing its committee, the House by a margin of 29 votes rejected funds for a start on the Fulton plant and approved funds for the Dixon-Yates transmission lines. The decision, in our opinion, is deplorable, and every effort should be made to overturn it in the Senate.

Since the Democrats enjoy a 29-vote margin in the House, it is obvious that Democratic votes helped to put over this victory for Dixon-Yates. As Senator Gore of Tennessee says, "It is very difficult to defeat a combination of the power of the presidency and the private power trust." Yet the attempt to defeat it must be made. As each passing month finds the Dixon-Yates project as far from realization as ever, the case for clinging to such a thoroughly objectionable response to the TVA problem gets worse. Now more than ever, the only satisfactory solution is the expansion of TVA's own capacity.

For a Security Review

One more voice has been added to the chorus of demands for a comprehensive, nonpolitical review of the Government's loyalty-security program. The Senate Government Operations Committee, wisely refraining from criticism which might have been construed as partisan, recommends setting up a 12-member commission to make such a study. Under this proposal, the President, Vice President and Speaker each would name four members of the commission, and each could select only two from a single party. The commission would be instructed to report at the end of 1956—that is, after the presidential election. Altogether, Senator McClellan's committee appears to have gone as far as possible to lift the proposed survey above the political arena.

The Post-Dispatch from the very beginning of the national controversy over security tests for Government employes has strongly urged a thorough canvass of the problem by a presidential commission. That the Government has a right and a duty to insist on loyalty and trustworthiness among its employes has never been at issue. The problem has always been how to exercise that right while also protecting the historic rights of all citizens, Government employes included.

Unfortunately there have been cases at every stage in the development of the Government's security program which clearly indicated that individual rights were being sacrificed to government expediency. It is to analyze such cases, and to lay down the basic principles of a sound and effective security program, that a nonpolitical study is needed.

President Eisenhower would reassure many Americans if he announced his support of the McClellan committee's plan.

Not According to Walton

Psychiatrists say that the stresses of the times have deeply wounded the psyche of many a contemporary man. No doubt they are right. But does any wound run half so deep as that cut by old-fashioned frustration? Consider the anguished yet humanitarian outcry of John Slaton in today's letter column. Here is a man who has suffered: suffered as he would have no other suffer.

We understand. And we sympathize. After more than one day of wading a cold, swift-flowing, slippery-bottomed trout stream or baking, broiling and cooking on a lake which seemed to have no other purpose than to make the sun burn doubly hot, we also have been tempted to cry: There are no fish! There never will be fish!

But to give way to such all-denying despair is to forget the great Master Walton's first precept, to-wit, that angling is the contemplative art. Psychic trauma comes to those who go "catching," rather than those who go "fishing." Those intent on a monster fish-fry for kin, kith, friends, colleagues and neighbors had better go to the fish market.

The man with an appraising and appreciating eye for sky, woods and especially water, however, will find his fish and feel his line go taught. It may be minutes, or hours or even a day or two before he feels that first fine strike. Yet patience brings no more wonderful reward than running line, singing reel, leaping fish and that nice judgment which finally brings a lunker to net on the lightest of leaders.

Mr. Slaton will be going fishing again, we are sure, and he will be agreeing with us. Meanwhile we understand just how he feels.

Pioneering in the Schools

While the operating philosophy of the St. Louis public school system is to permit each child the opportunity to develop his individual abilities to the fullest, in practice the system has done too little for the exceptionally able child.

Beginning next fall the system will be moving into high gear to meet this important need. In the elementary schools about 300 gifted youngsters entering the sixth grade will be assigned to nine special classes throughout the city. In the high schools bright pupils will continue with their regular classes, but they will be permitted to take on more work. The aim is to enrich the child's education, not speed it.

The St. Louis program grows out of studies by a committee of teachers who have been working since October 1953, partly in their free time.

The teachers who did this spade work, and the administrators who appointed them and then took their advice, have earned the community's commendation. Thanks to all of them, a good school system will be even better.

McCarthy Places His Bet

How very few Americans Senator McCarthy now speaks for is well demonstrated by the division between him and Senator Knowland on the issue of President Eisenhower's participation in the Big Four conference.

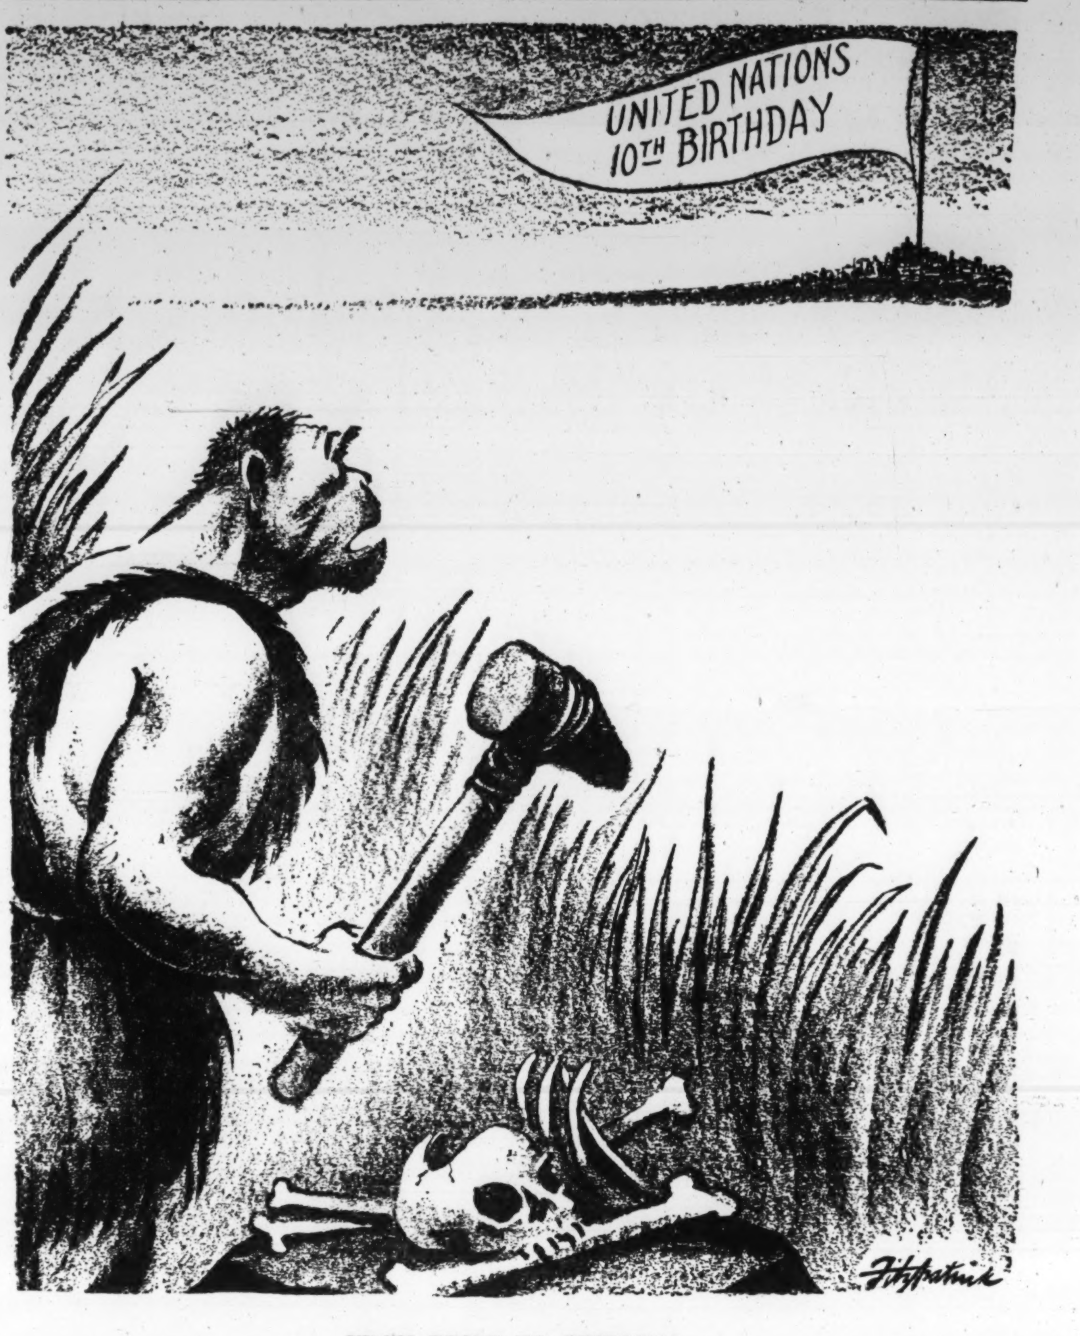
Senator Knowland has long made plain his antipathy to diplomatic negotiations with the Soviet powers. But once the decision to hold the Big Four conference had been taken—with obviously wide public support—he changed his tune. He now stands forth as a champion of the President's mission.

Senator McCarthy, however, has nothing to gain from association with the Eisenhower Administration. And so he makes another bitter attack on the President, picturing him as a Communist dupe for even daring to negotiate, and predicting a free world "defeat" as the inevitable outcome of the Big Four conference.

In these views Senator McCarthy speaks for so few Americans that he would not be worth noticing had he not once spoken for so many more. It is the memory of how high he was riding in 1951 and 1952 that gives one pause.

Those were the years of maximum tension between the Soviet and the free worlds, and Senator McCarthy became the expression of a great many Americans' fears and hatreds. Conceivably he could regain that status if relations between the Soviets and the West once more broke down. It might even be said that he has no chance of regaining any status at all unless present peaceful trends are disrupted.

Consciously or otherwise, he seems to recognize this when he places his bet on a "free world defeat" at Geneva. If the outcome were success instead—that is, if relations between East and West continued to improve, and the prospects for peace continued to strengthen—Senator McCarthy would have no place to go in politics. Of him it can truly be said that he has a vested interest in international turmoil.



FROM TRIBE TO TRIBUNAL

Politics for Everybody: In Cash

From an Address by Philip L. Graham, Publisher, The Washington Post

We face problems that involve life and death for all of us; yet we insist on having the lowest sort of opinion of the very people we entrust with those problems; and we force them to operate under conditions which do everything to repel decent men.

Who are these people who bear this great responsibility, and whom we treat so stupidly? They are, of course, the politicians. They include Dwight D. Eisenhower, Adlai Stevenson, 96 Senators, 435 Congressmen, 48 Governors, the 750,000 other elective officials, and the Cabinet officers and tens of thousands of appointive officials and political workers who must live under our existing system of politics.

Philip Graham

These are the people whose day-by-day actions will very largely determine the greatest conflict in the history of the world. Yet how do we tell them we regard them? We tell them that we consider them just a little above outlaws. Thus this spring in a nationwide Gallup poll, seven out of ten people with an opinion stated that they would not like to see their children enter politics as a life's work.

Let us suppose that instead of running a great nation we were running a pickle works and that our pickle sales were dropping every month.

Clearly we would not begin by telling our sales department that all salesmen were stupid and crooked and unnecessary. Yet we do treat problems which are rather more urgent than pickle sales in just that fashion. And if we continue to do so we probably have as much chance of survival as the buggy manufacturers had of licking Henry Ford.

System's Fundamental Defect

It will do us no good at all to resolve that for the next thirty days we shall never place the word "dirty" directly next to the word "politician." It will do us no good to make speeches or to write editorials saying we need better men and women in politics and a higher public regard for politicians.

Yet there is something that can be done about the present situation. It is possible; it is urgently necessary; and it is eminently practical.

Moreover it should constitute the single most important political reform of our times.

The fundamental defect in our present system of politics—as is so often the case in life—has something to do with money. It has specifically to do with our habits regarding contributions for political campaigns. Even putting the best possible face on the situation, it can only be described as morally squalid, ethically shocking, and spiritually revolting.

As of 1955 the principal characteristics of our system of political finance can be accurately described in the following manner:

1. We maintain a bold-faced, official lie about the cost of political campaigns and the amounts of contributions.
2. We almost universally fail to respond to—or even to recognize—the duties of the individual citizen in a free society.
3. We consequently force politicians to live in close connection with the filthy power of gangsters and the acquisitive power of special interest groups and favor seekers.

First, let me briefly expand on the way we maintain an official lie about political expenditures. We do this by having a Federal law which limits expenditures by a candidate for Congress to a maximum of $5000, by a candidate for the Senate to $25,000, and by a national political committee to $3,000,000.

Now a Senator, even in a small state, cannot run for $25,000 and in a state like Illinois he cannot run for $250,000. But the law remains on the books, the myth is maintained by a series of long-practiced manipulations and evasions, and so we force the able man entering politics to launch his career with an initial act of blatant hypocrisy. And to endure this indignity every time he runs.

In fact, few if any people actually know what modern political campaigns do cost. One of the most respected members of the Senate has told me that in his state (about the size of Illinois) over $3,000,000 was spent in a recent gubernatorial election.

The Average Citizen's Default

But the existing system perpetuates the fraudulent impression that political expenditures are but a fraction of what they are. Thus in the 1952 presidential campaign a total of $17,500,000 was reported by the national committees of the two major parties. Some students of the matter estimate that actual expenditures came closer to $100,000,000.

Next, let us look at how seriously the average person defaults in his duties as an individual citizen.

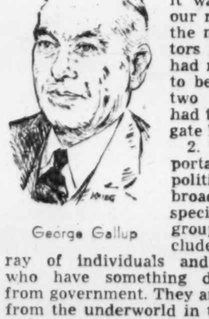
In the 1954 congressional elections, there were 1054 congressional candidates. Expenditures officially reported totaled $13,700,000, and we can be sure that actual expenditures were higher.

After that campaign the Gallup Poll asked people whether they had made a political contribution. The answers showed that only one family out of 20 had made any political contribution. If the answers were computed in terms of individual citizens, this would mean that only about 2 out of every 100 citizens made any contribution.

Since the default of the individual is so obvious, let us see what forces have rushed in to fill the vacuum.

No tidy compilation of statistics is available, but anyone at all familiar with politics can document the situation for you. There are three major sources of political funds:

1. The underworld. The sums raised by the gangsters are much larger than anyone imagines. In 1948, for example, it was reported to our newspaper that the numbers operators in Washington had raised $100,000 to be spent against two Senators who had tried to investigate local gambling.



George Gallup

2. The second important source of political funds can broadly be called special-interest groups. This includes the vast array of individuals and organizations who have something direct to gain from government. They are far different from the underworld in that their aims and purposes are wholly legitimate, if sometimes a bit acquisitive or selfish. So important is this source of funds that it is practically impossible to find any Congressman or Senator, however high-minded, who has not lost his freedom of decision in some particular area.

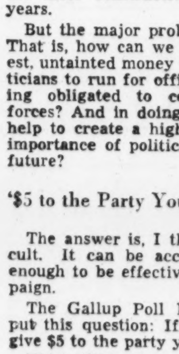
A recent, but natural and understandable, addition to this group can probably be found among some few foreign governments which are dependent upon us for monetary or political assistance. While difficult of precise proof, it seems probable that in some few cases a small part of our foreign aid has come back in the form of political contributions.

3. The third group of established political contributors probably contributes the least in total amount, though their contributions are still important. They can be described as "the hopefuls." They are people who contribute in the expectation of receiving high public office. Their existence explains to a large extent why in the 1954 election less than 1000 people contributed more than one fifth of the total amount reported by both national political committees.

Their total gifts represented $1,850,000. And although the law—that same unenforced, hypocritical law—limits individual contributions to $5000 to any one candidate or committee, it is believed that some resourceful contributors have managed to locate or create enough committees to permit contributions of over $100,000 in one campaign.

So dominating is the need for political money, that this form of outright sale of positions of public trust is universally accepted. It had to be practiced by that old professional, President Truman, and it has also had to be practiced by that idealistic amateur, President Eisenhower.

The over-all problem, I would like to repeat, is both serious and simple. We need the highest possible sort of people in politics because of the awesome decisions they must make. And we shall not have this until we get rid of the rotten financial foundation upon which our political system now rests, and thus begin to demonstrate toward politicians some of that decent concern which practitioners of free government deserve.



Thomas C. Hennings, Jr.

There is one step toward reform now being studied by the Senate which deserves support and encouragement. That is the effort by a committee, headed by Senator Hennings of Missouri, to write more realistic laws about political contributions. The work of Senator Hennings and his colleagues represents some of the most constructive work in many years.

But the major problem still remains. That is, how can we raise enough honest, untainted money to permit our politicians to run for office without becoming obligated to corrupt or selfish forces? And in doing this, how can we help to create a higher regard for the importance of politics in the American future?

'$5 to the Party You Prefer'

The answer is, I think, not too difficult. It can be accomplished quickly enough to be effective in the 1956 campaign.

The Gallup Poll I referred to also put this question: If asked, would you give $5 to the party you prefer?

Thirty-three per cent of the families—about 16,000,000 families—said yes. A little over half said no, while some 13 per cent had no views. Now $5 from 16,000,000 families equals $80,000,000, and even a fraction of that amount of new, untainted money would revolutionize American politics. Moreover, it is ridiculously defeatist to assume that the other 66 per cent of our families cannot be convinced of their proper obligations of good citizenship.

The problem then is how to convince millions of Americans of an obvious fact—that good citizenship requires political contributions by each individual to the party or candidates of his choice. Good citizenship requires this just as much as it requires contributions to one's church, one's community fund, the Red Cross, or other causes.

One does not have to be an Einstein to see how great a function public service advertising could perform in helping to build a new and decent foundation under our system of political finance. Through television, magazines, radio, newspapers, billboards, car cards —even match boxes—the average decent American could be reminded and reminded again of how good government depends on each citizen's supporting, as he can, the party or candidate of his choice. And by doing this, we can gain the larger objective of giving public recognition to the fact that there should be no more noble calling in a free society than that of public life.

Operation Alert Creates Doubt About U.S. Civil Defense Setup In a Real Hydrogen Bomb Attack

Breaches of Security, Even by President, Confusion in Communications, Lack of Co-operation and Materials Were Among Main Weaknesses.

By EDWARD F. WOODS
A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, June 18.

THE PRIMARY result of Operation Alert is a fallout of uncertainty as to just how effectively civil defense authorities could deal with the problems presented by a real attack without a drastic sharpening up of its existing program.

President Eisenhower, while describing the results of the exercise as "encouraging," also conceded that the simulated nuclear attack of Wednesday had confronted the Government with "serious complications."

It will be weeks or even months before formal and final evaluation of the exercise will be available through using it to measure the faults of the civil defense setup.

However, it may be said now that it is readily apparent that the nation is a long way from being fully prepared to cope with a hydrogen bomb attack.

Points the Way.

The best that may be said for the exercise is that it pointed the way toward more effective civil defense planning for the future.

Civil defense officials, with headquarters at Battle Creek, Mich., will use the results of the exercise to sift their program for heretofore uncovered weaknesses and attempt to institute prompt reforms. If this is accomplished the alert may well have proven itself to have been worthwhile.

The exercise was highlighted by confusion and uncertainty at various steps on the ladder of authority.

Newsmen attempting to keep the public informed were beset by frustration in trying to get straight facts and figures from civil defense sources.

On top of this, reporters, carefully guarding the "secret" of where the President was installed in a hide-away White House, were appalled when the President, himself, breached the "security" rules by appearing at his farm at Gettysburg, Pa., Thursday night, thereby making it clear that the "secret" White House was located not far away.

This breach was so serious that sightseeing bus drivers—within a few hours after the President made his trip to the farm to dine with Mrs. Eisenhower and his mother-in-law, Mrs. John S. Doud—were pointing out the area in which the secret White House was located and also the site of the secret underground Pentagon in which most of the nation's top brass were assembled at one time or another as refugees from the theoretical attacker who had driven them out of Washington.

CDA officials will concede now that their agency had neither the personal resources nor the time to meet all of the problems presented by the simulated attacks. They believe, however, that they had on hand a skeleton setup of considerable efficiency which they can use as a foundation for a bigger and presumably better system.

Civil defense hereafter will concentrate largely on the necessity for evacuation of populations from urban centers threatened with nuclear attack. This was an important lesson of the exercise.

In many cities hit in the attack, civil defense authorities tempered their casualty reports with an assumption that a measure of evacuation had taken place. They assumed a capability for evacuation which the cities did not have.

Millions Saved on Paper.

Nevertheless, their estimates of dead and injured based upon theoretical evacuation were considerably below the figures which would have piled up in the absence of the assumed evacuation. Millions of lives were saved, on paper, through evacuation.

It will be the goal of civil defense now to provide the actual avenues and facilities for evacuation which were employed on paper in this exercise so that in the event of real bombing the slaughter of civilians may be held down.

Perhaps the most vexing aspect of the exercise was in communications. Communications were fairly good between regions, states and CDA headquarters. But staffs at the lower levels of civil defense were so small that their effective participation was nullified. Then there were delays in each of the offices through which information on damage and casualties were circulated that some reports were more than tardy in getting in.

The ball-up on communications seemed to be caused by the complicated process which called for reports from attacked areas being sent first to the Battle Creek headquarters of CDA, thence to the brass situated in relocation centers outside Washington and—finally—the emergency news dissemination headquarters about 100 miles from Washington, where more than 75 special correspondents and representatives of the wire services—plus batteries of radio and television reporters—were twiddling their thumbs while city after city theoretically went up in flames. Killing about 8,000,000 persons and injuring 5,000,000.

In some cases reports that cities were on the alert and evacuating or actually were under "attack" reach the emergency news center as much as three hours after the supposed attacks took place.

This — and other similar frustrations — led many correspondents to conclude, perhaps cynically, that the make-believe exercise was in fact a make-believe, make-believe exercise.

In one instance, at least, the summary of nation-wide casualties went completely off the track somewhere along the line and hadn't yet reached the emergency press headquarters when it closed up shop late yesterday.

There was confusion also for at least 24 hours at press headquarters as to exactly how many cities actually had been attacked.

Officials Didn't Know.

It was not regarded by newsmen as too important that they did not know exactly how many cities were victims of the attack, but it did seem important to them that the officials of the United States Government ought to know—which they didn't.

The "attack" occurred on Wednesday. The number of cities supposed to have been hit was announced as ranging in the upper 50s, depending upon what time correspondents read the latest reports from CDA.

Then Val Peterson, CDA director, visited press headquarters from his hide-out relocation point, and explained that the figure really was 61—including five points outside of the continental United States. The confusion, he said, was caused by CDA officials counting St. Paul and Minneapolis, Minn., as one city, which they are not.

Yesterday, CDA apparently decided that after all only 58 cities in all had been actually hit.

What may come of this confusing operation is that emergency press headquarters in future alert exercises, and most certainly in the event of a real attack, will be located as close as possible to the CDA report clearing house, not more than 1000 miles away as in this case.

Headquarters May Move.

It may also happen that the CDA headquarters will be moved to a more logical location. The agency headquarters, it is reliably reported, was moved from Washington to Battle Creek as part of the Republican campaign to assure the re-election of Senator Homer Ferguson, Republican. Ferguson was beaten anyway, in the 1952 election.

At the local level, in many cases, there were breakdowns in the exercise because CDA organizations failed to understand that the exercise presented a nation-wide problem in which they were expected to participate even if not among the bombed cities.

One such instance was cited as involving Iowa, which at the height of the alert reported that it had not been attacked and the situation was under control.

However, Chicago and Milwaukee, located in adjoining states, had theoretically undergone such severe attack that Iowa and other nearby areas which were not hit should have gone to the assistance of the hypothetically attacked cities with offers of food, medical aid and the like, along with provisions for housing of supposed refugees from the supposedly burning cities.

Cities Didn't Seek Aid.

Iowa did not do this. It is presumed that Iowa did not because the cities, failing properly to appraise the extent of the casualties and damage they had undergone, simply didn't ask for assistance.

The dispersal of responsibility to other agencies by CDA in event of attack was regarded as one of the more satisfactory aspects of the exercise which could be counted upon to prevail in the event of real attack.

It has placed the responsibility of feeding evacuees on the Department of Agriculture. Under Secretary of Agriculture True D. Morse, formerly of St. Louis, turned up at emergency press headquarters Thursday with a ready-made plan for carrying out this responsibility.

Seizure of Crops.

Basically the blueprint called for virtual seizure of the Agriculture Department of the nation's food resources, including, growing crops, plus transportation facilities, so that food could be shifted quickly from undamaged to devastated areas for relief of the suffering.

The Department of Interior would exercise corresponding authority over distribution of fuel. To the Department of Health, Welfare and Education would go the job of combatting the effects of biological warfare and the spread of disease.

There is clearly a lack of CDA personnel both at the Battle Creek headquarters and at state levels.

Lack of Resources.

There also is evident a distressing lack of vital emergency resources which would be required in case of attack. As can be best estimated the federal stockpile of medical supplies is sufficient to treat only 2,500,000 casualties a week. At the close of Wednesday's make-believe attack there were available only 1,000,000 beds for the 4,500,000 persons who would require hospital treatment.

The drastic shortage of doctors and nurses has not yet been adequately explored.

Some have said the alert operation was a "show" intended to impress the people rather than a serious exercise. They cite the President's closing talk by radio yesterday in which he used his presence in the operation as a vehicle for going over the heads of Congress to the people, urging them to establish a lobby to force Congress to enact his favorite plan for building up the military reserve from its present total of approximately 700,000 to an estimated 2,900,000, in four years.

The plan now is stymied by a demand—in the form of a rider to the reserves bill—calling for elimination of racial segregation in National Guard reserve units in all states.

The extent of the public's realization that one of the main purposes of this exercise was to demonstrate that the executives of the United States Government could be moved out of Washington under attack and still, from their hideouts, maintain the cohesiveness of the peoples' determination that this nation shall not be taken, was as yet un-measured.

tion, however, that Nehru is touring Russia with his eyes wide open.

The Russians also reportedly are seeking the neutralization of Japan, the greatest industrial power in the Orient and a nation as important to Soviet Far East policy as Germany is to Russia's European policy. Russians and Japanese are discussing a peace treaty at the present time in London and there have been reports the Soviets are urging the withdrawal of American forces from Japan.

Far Eastern Questions.

Far Eastern questions may be raised by the Russians at Geneva, particularly the problem of admitting Red China to the United Nations. Dulles has said the United States will not bring up Far East matters.

In the opinion of United States diplomats, one of the over-all reasons behind the recent Soviet conciliatory moves is the realization that Russian belligerency has served to unite and strengthen Russia's enemies and that Soviet tactics in foreign affairs have failed. Hence, sweetness and light tactics have replaced saber-rattling although the underlying Russian purpose of dividing America from its allies has not changed.

The Russians are credited with being generally sincere at the moment in their current claims they desire to relax tensions. They have not abandoned their long-range objectives and are willing to take a step backward in order to move two steps forward later on. Their external policy has not worked out, their internal affairs are in some disorder, the possibility of atomic warfare may pose a danger to their system of government, they are deeply concerned over the possibility of a re-armed Germany on the side of the West, and the expense of keeping up with the West in armaments is proving a heavy burden.

Diplomats who mention these factors also stress that there is no new crisis facing the Russians but that there is, perhaps, a greater awareness of what they are up against and a faltering faith in the efficacy of certain cures.

Soviet Motivations.

In examining Soviet motivations President Eisenhower has stressed that this country is looking for deeds indicating peaceful intent, rather than words. The Russians apparently regard the signing of the Austrian Treaty and the visit to Belgrade as deeds tending to prove their intentions; the United States would be more impressed if the Russians took some action that really hurt them.

It is felt the Soviet concessions on disarmament represent a definite retreat. Last May 10 in London the Russians proposed to a U.N. Commission that armaments be reduced and nuclear weapons outlawed. The Soviet proposal contained many of the features of earlier Western plans and while it contained some Soviet "gimmicks" it also contained some concessions.

Before the Russians presented this proposal there seemed little hope for disarmament. Now it is held to be conceivable that a genuine disarmament acceptable to the West could be worked out with the Russian plan as a beginning.

For many years the Russians have been hoping for a disastrous depression in the United States and that is one end toward which their policies have been directed. They think that a depression would be more likely if our arms factories could be closed down.

Observers point to one curious aspect of Russia's economy as possibly explaining some seemingly conflicting moves. The Russian people have been persuaded to forego civilian goods to cope militarily with the often-alleged "capitalist encirclement." The Soviet economy is not geared to produce civilian goods. If disarmament reduces the danger from "encirclement," what new excuse will the Soviets invent for failing to turn out butter rather than guns?

Aggression Less Likely.

While open aggressive moves by Russia now seem less likely in the near future, the Soviets are not expected to reduce pressures of one kind or another and, indeed, may act differently in different parts of the world.

Just what Molotov will do next week is a matter of speculation. He will be the guest of Dulles at a dinner Monday night and will participate in subsequent conferences of the Big Four foreign ministers; the conference schedule was not certain today.

Molotov will have a sounding board in his address to the United Nations Wednesday and in the unprecedented television interview set for the following Sunday, and will have ample opportunity to be affable to other delegates at the numerous formal functions of the commemorative session. It is expected that 40 nations will be represented by their foreign ministers; this will be the largest number of foreign ministers to attend a U.N. meeting.

There is no reason to suppose an aspect of general harmony will not prevail at the conferences during the week. Almost certainly there will be less tension than might have been expected last fall when the U.N. General Assembly voted to commemorate the tenth anniversary of the signing of the charter here in San Francisco.

Wilson's About-Face on Research For Defense Shows Willingness To Recognize His Own Mistakes

G.M. Executives' Unbounded Confidence in Rightness of Their Decisions Made It Difficult Job to Convince Him Program Wasn't Boondoggling.

By BRIG. GEN. THOMAS R. PHILLIPS, U.S.A. (Ret.)
Military Analyst of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, June 18.

IN a major reversal of form, Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson asked the Senate to amend the Defense Department appropriation bill to permit him to transfer up to about $300,000,000 from unobligated procurement funds to research and development.

One needs to be familiar with the Secretary's initial feeling about research and development when he took his post almost two and one-half years ago to understand the magnitude of the change. He then apparently had been convinced by Republican campaign charges that the research and development program in the Pentagon was one vast boondoggle.

He told associates that a billion dollars a year was plenty for research and even that was an awful lot of money. When the appropriation of $1,405,000,000 for research and development became available for the 1954 fiscal year - which commenced July 1, 1953, Wilson withheld 25 per cent or $350,000,000 from the services.

Research and development projects have always to be subject to examination, for many of them at some time in their life show that they will not succeed. This weeding out of non-productive effort is continuous. A cut of 25 per cent is one way really to shake them out.

It is doubtful that this method is worth the confusion and waste that it causes. At any rate, Wilson's new team of civilians who headed the R. & D. programs in the Defense Department and the three services were finding promptly that the R. & D. programs were excellent, were not boondoggles and were essential to defense. They tore their hair trying to get to Wilson and his then deputy, Roger M. Kyes, to convince them of their findings.

The G.M. Tradition.

General Motors has been such a phenomenal success in business that its officials, a banking friend tells me, have unique confidence in the rightness of their decisions, much as if they were revelations. This was the problem that confronted the new civilian heads of the R. & D. program.

To the credit of the Secretary of Defense, his new R. & D. team was able to convince him and he restored the withdrawn funds. Since then he has gone along with the recommendations of his assistant secretary for research and development, Donald A. Quarles, with the result that R. & D. has been going along with high efficiency on a stable program of expenditure of between $1,300,000,000 and $1,400,000,000 annually.

Quarles has testified that sharp ups and downs in a research and development program are more wasteful than in other fields. Wilson has maintained that we cannot increase the defense department's R. & D. program very greatly because it already uses about half the research personnel and facilities in the United States and "all we would do would be to bid up the cost of it."

Why, then is Wilson asking for an increase that will permit him to use up to 20 per cent more than is already appropriated for this year? When questioned at his last news conference, Wilson said: "I am trying to get some flexibility so I can move a little more money in there if I can find any place to do it."

This is a valid answer, but needs interpretation. The Soviet displays of new aircraft in practice flights before and after May Day have shown that Soviet research and development, and getting into production is more rapid than ours. They are beating us at a game at which we thought they were far behind.

One of the many reasons for our lag is the budget cycle. A success is made in one of the R. & D. projects and we have to wait until the next year's appropriations are in hand to exploit it. One piece of research may show that a new line is desirable and should be started at once. With a budget that is prepared up to a year before the money becomes available there is very little flexibility. The authority the Secretary requests would improve this aspect of our long lead times.

The official Defense Department explanation of the Secretary's request is that all three services have been coming up with fresh, and promising projects that should not be delayed for a year. It is probable, however, that what has jarred the Secretary out of his efficient level operation in R. & D. is primarily the Soviet demonstration of aircraft more advanced than anything we have in every field except medium and long-range bombers. Such supremacy depends upon research.

Jolted By Hoover Report.

Another shock to Wilson must have been the recommendation of the Hoover commission to increase the amount spent on basic research by the Defense Department. The Secretary has been fond of quoting his friend, the late Charles F. Kettering, to the effect that basic, or pure, research is only pure because even if it is successful it will not benefit the man who pays for it.

In Wilson's early campaign to save money on research and development he used a lot of horrible examples of what he considered unjustified research. He scoffed at the quartermaster corps for trying to find out what made potatoes turn brown when they were fried. This particular piece of research has saved the United States millions of dollars. Fun was made of a study of the Soviet social system. This was, however, an important contribution to psychological warfare. Oddly enough, of the horrible examples furnished Wilson in his campaign by the Comptroller's office, almost all, when analyzed, turned out to be worthy projects.

It may have been some such things that the Hoover commission task force discovered that induced them to criticize the Defense Department for not spending more than $20,000,000 annually on basic research out of a research budget of $1,400,000,000. They contrasted this with the Atomic Energy Commission which was spending $40,000,000 on basic research out of a total budget of $240,000,000.

SOUTH KOREA'S ASSEMBLY PAYS TRIBUTE TO U.N.

SEOUL, June 18 (AP)—The South Korean government today paid tribute to the United Nations on its tenth anniversary.

"In a letter sent to Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold today, the national assembly said:

"The United Nations made immortal accomplishments toward world peace and defense of freedom. We hope the United Nations will be further strengthened. We hope all possible measures will be taken to bring about unification of Korea under the Republic of Korea flag through free, U.N.-supervised elections in North Korea."

South Korea, meanwhile served notice it will not be bound by any decision on any Korean problem by any meeting at which it is not represented.

The assembly unanimously passed a resolution to that effect—an obvious move to forestall any unfavorable decision which might come out of the July Big Four conference at Geneva.

Outstanding Novel About Atomic Bomb

THE ACCIDENT, by Dexter Masters. (Knopf, $4.)

Reviewed by
BEKA DOHERTY

ATOMIC scientists are invaluable national property in a number of ways. Their brains and training are indispensable instruments of military policy. The scientists themselves are indispensable as targets: first, for the ferocious, who suspect their every move and motive, and second, for the fearful, who prefer to cry shame at science instead of thinking for themselves. Even some scientists parade phony stigmata of "guilt" and "sin" and thus promote the pernicious notion that scientist and citizen belong in different worlds.

More rational views inform this novel, which also inspires in its central scenes, the classic emotions of pity and terror.

The accident of the title was real. It took the life of Louis Slotin, a young physicist of great promise, at Los Alamos several months after the war was over. What happened was that a dangerous experiment Slotin had performed successfully many times before got out of control. The materials he was working with became fatally radioactive. Slotin knocked the apparatus apart with his hands; his action saved the lives of seven other men who were present, but subjected him to a fantastic amount of radiation.

Slotin was a dead man. The only questions were how long he would take to die and how dreadful (for death by radiation is the most horrible yet devised by man for his fellows) his death would be. News of Slotin's fate was so effectively muffled that a medical report was not released until four years later.

This novel explores the meanings and consequences of such an accident. Its victim, Louis Saxl, lies dying for eight long days, without illusion. As he dies, he and those around him try to find whatever meaning there may be in his life and in the manner of his death.

THE crux of the novel is a question that Saxl dismisses—he has other concerns and his hour is late—but that gnaws at his scientific friends: was he, in fact, a hero? No one answers finally. The question itself reveals a new area of ethics; it contains a challenge as to how much of heroism or of service can be asked of any man who must expose himself to an opponent at once unhuman and unbeatable. Can we expect a man to charge the forces of the sun as if he were charging a machine-gun nest?

In the end, Saxl pleads for peace. He hates the mindless men who make war; he wants to destroy the stupidity which makes war possible even as a threat. His own disintegrating body is his best argument.

"The Accident" is more than a compelling story of a personal tragedy. It is the best novel about the atom bomb and the men who made it yet produced by an American author. Those who read it seriously will have no taste for the current fantasies about its subject, nor any love for the sloganeers who so smugly conceal the truth.

Master of Line

THE casual rhythm of Matisses' drawing can easily escape notice in his flamboyant printings done in colors right out of the tube, but the freshness of line, that distinguishes these Matisse etchings, demands attention and will delight almost everyone. The simple form seen here is pure and calm, with emphasis on the subject. As William S. Lieberman, curator of prints for the Museum of Modern Art, has written in introduction, these etchings are "quick and informal statements."

The 24 in the collection include portraits of Matisse's friends, sketches of his children, nude studies, and the familiar odalisque. The frontispiece is a self-portrait (1903) from a private collection. The remainder of the expressive etchings, done in the years 1903 to 1929, are from the Abby Aldrich Rockefeller Collection of the Museum of Modern Art, and they are all reproduced in their original size.

READING AND WRITING

Joyce Cary Writes Strong, Absorbing Novel

By THOMAS B. SHERMAN
Book Editor of the Post-Dispatch

NOT HONOUR MORE, by Joyce Cary. (Harper, 309 pgs., $3.50.)

JOYCE CARY'S latest novel proves, among other things, that he is one of the most versatile of living novelists. It is not his greatest quality nor his most engaging one, but the range of style, mood and texture that he has traversed is so remarkable that it should be mentioned, at once, as a good reason for reading his whole output.

I also suggest that "Not Honour More" will be better understood by those who have read "The Prisoner of Grace" and "Except the Lord," since the three together form a connected history of a single character though treated, in each instance, with a different emphasis. But whether it is read by itself or not, it is a work of singular force and vitality—a tragic work, in fact, and in the truest sense.

The story is told in the first person by Jim Latter and it is primarily his story although it completes the life record of Chester Nimmo, the British political leader whose gift for expediency amounts to genius. Nimmo has been married to Nina Latter and divorced from her by the time this third novel begins. But he cannot let her go even though she has now become the wife of Jim Latter.

Jim accepts, without exactly condoning, the continuing close relationship between Nina and Nimmo, even to the point of allowing Nimmo to share his cottage in Devonshire. When it becomes evident, however, that the aging and unnaturally virile Nimmo is also sharing his wife, Jim goes into action. Bursting unexpectedly into the cottage, he shoots at Nimmo but succeeds only in wounding him.

BY the time the resultant hurly-burly has died down and the police have taken Nimmo's word that the shooting was accidental Jim has allowed Nina to persuade him that his violent act was unjustified. At bottom he doesn't believe it. Moreover he despises Nimmo as a demagogic, political racketeer who uses one hand to dirty the other and "both of 'em to push the man in the ranks into the mud." Nimmo, to him, is the symbol and embodiment of everything that's wrong with modern England and the modern world.

Nevertheless he temporizes with the situation even though his wife continues a vague sort of relationship with the aging politician, described as "secretarial." Meanwhile all three are drawn into various aspects of the disturbed events leading up to the General Strike of 1926 and concerned with the strike itself. Nimmo heads an emergency national committee that's supposed to steer the nation through the crisis; Latter accepts duty as a chief constable in a kind of citizens police.

While so acting Latter orders the arrest of a Communist leader for making a seditious speech. The deputy who makes the arrest is attacked by other Communists and during the general melee the Communist leader is severely injured. Subsequently the deputy — a man named Maufe—is tried and convicted of using unnecessary force.

WHEN Latter discovers that Nimmo, in order to placate the Communist element, is responsible for Maufe's conviction and has used his wife in executing the maneuver, Latter goes berserk. He could forgive her infidelity and her vacillating conduct toward himself but the final act of inhumanity and injustice is too much. So he visits a stark and tragic punishment on both.

"Not Honour More" relates a fast-moving train of events while revealing a strange triangular relationship held together by deep and subtle attachments. Nina is obviously a bad woman in practically every sense but it appears before the end that she feels deeply attached to both men in her own way. It is also apparent that Nimmo's character is not accounted for merely by the labels of "demagogue" and "lecher."

Unquestionably he is spiritually dependent on Nina, as is Jim Latter. Jim—a former soldier with a background of service in Africa—is driven by two passions, his love for Nina and his devotion to his country which he believes is being exploited and degraded by a cheap, self-serving press and an equally unscrupulous set of public servants.

The author's stylistic flexibility is accommodated to the needs of this novel with extraordinary skill. The language is that of the bluff, plain speaking ex-soldier; but its freedom from literary flourish or subtlety makes it all the more powerful as a tale of action and does not prevent it from being an illuminating study of involved human motivations. So it is an absorbing story with breadth, depth and an uncommonly strong emotional tug.

JACK WEBB has produced another top ranking story featuring that unusual pair of sleuths, Father Shanley and Detective Sammy Golden. Pablo, a poor Mexican, who has been left more than a million dollars, is discussing his inheritance with a reporter in a neighborhood bar. At the same time Pablo's motherless daughter, Theresa, playing with her three dolls under a pepper tree at her home, is kidnapped. Jack Webb writes realistically of little Theresa and her captors and furnishes a dramatic ending as Father Shanley and Sammy Golden solve the case.

WHEN the telephone call comes to Scotland Yard Inspector Alleyn, he is amazed to hear the voice of his old friend, Lady Lacklander, reporting a murder at Sevenings. To Alleyn crime does not fit into his picture of this lovely English village where families have lived in their homes for generations; but the body of Col. Cartarette has been found on the banks of a trout stream. When the inspector reaches Sevenings he discovers that almost everyone in the village has been in the vicinity of the murder scene and that everyone has a different reason for being there. An ingenious plot and fine characterization. Highly recommended.

Week's Review Of Business And Finance

SUMMER JOBS

By WALTER BREEDE JR.
NEW YORK, June 18 (AP).

BIGGER factory payrolls in the months ahead—plenty of jobs this summer. That was probably the most significant of the many forecasts heard this week on the near-term outlook for the nation's business.

Jumping-off point for rosy predictions about summer employment prospects was the government's latest report on output of United States factories and mines. The yardstick was the federal reserve board's index of industrial production. After allowing for seasonal factors, the index for May stood at 138 per cent of the 1947-49 average—an all-time high. And, economists said, it should soon go higher.

Best news about summer jobs was provided by a United States labor department survey. It showed that companies in 75 per cent of the nation's major employment areas will need more workers by mid-July. Biggest increase in hiring, of course, will be in such seasonal lines as farming and construction. But producers of steel and manufacturers of electrical machinery will be adding workers too. Layoffs in the auto industry should be slight — despite production cutbacks.

Rising Business Trend.

Signs of a rising business trend were evident all along the line. Soft coal production was the highest in eight months; electric power output the second highest in history. With freight carloadings up 13 per cent from a year ago, railroads said they were planning to place "substantial orders" for new cars to replace wornout equipment.

Consumer confidence was buoyed up by wage settlements in the auto industry (General Motors signed a "Ford model" contract providing for company-financed layoff pay) and by prospects for labor peace in other basic lines. Merchants said shoppers today are more willing to take on installment debts than they were a year ago, and they're paying their bills more promptly. J. George Greenberg, executive manager of Associated Fur Manufacturers Inc., said American women will spend $400,000,000 on furs this year vs. $325,000,000 last year. Vast new markets for automobiles, washing machines and other durable goods bought "on time" were envisioned by president Arthur O. Dietz of C.I.T. Financial Corp. "The more consumers have," said Dietz, "the more they want."

Busier Summer Seen.

Indications were that summer would be busier than usual for most lines and that the final quarter of 1955 would be the biggest ever. But the cost of doing business would be higher, too. In addition to paying higher wages, many manufacturers could look forward to paying higher prices for such basic materials as aluminum, copper, rubber, zinc and steel. Zinc prices advanced half a cent a pound; commodity futures prices, on average, scored their sharpest one-day rise in more than a year. Wholesale food costs moved up slightly.

The cost squeeze, it became increasingly evident, would probably have its greatest impact on the auto industry, now in the midst of its greatest boom. There was some question whether consumers—long accustomed to big discounts and liberal trade-in deals—would take kindly to any increase in retail prices when 1956 models come out.

Detroit maintained a blistering production pace despite wildcat strikes at General Motors. Total output of 146,000 cars compared with 114,000 in like week last year. Strikes handicapped pace-setting Chevrolet, whose production fell to 17,000 cars vs. 38,000 for Ford.

4 Millionth Car.

By the end of this month, U. S. auto makers will have turned out 4¼ million cars. That's an all-time high for any six-month period and almost as many cars as the industry built in all of 1952. The four millionth passenger car of 1955 is due to leave the assembly line on Monday. In 1950, the previous record year, the four millionth car wasn't built until late in August.

U.S. BONDS SHARPLY OFF, OTHERS STEADY

Rumor of Treasury Plan to Offer Long-Term Issue Back of Selling.

NEW York, June 18 (AP)—United States Government bond prices were marked down sharply this week while the corporate bond market remained steady. Foreign liens continued to improve.

Rumors that the Treasury plans to publicly offer a long-term bond in July to raise needed cash prompted dealers of Government securities to lower prices on outstanding issues. In the thin over-the-counter markets, it took only a little selling to push prices down.

The usually stable 40-year 3 per cent Government bonds fell nearly a point at 100 14-32 bid. The 30-year 3¼s lost 20-32 at 106½ bid and victory loan 2½s of 1967-72 were down 10-32 at 96 10-32 bid.

The corporate bond market showed a selective pattern. Some convertible debentures were strong, particularly steel, oil, chemical and paper issues. Investment quality bonds fluctuated narrowly, but tended to favor the plus column.

Foreign liens reflected the improving international sentiment. For the fourth consecutive week, the Associated Press foreign bond average closed at its highest level since 1931. German, Japanese and Italian bonds gained ground. So did many South American and east European liens.

Whether or not the rumors prove to be true, the argument for a new long-term Government bond issue merits attention. About 40 per cent of the marketable debt matures in one year while nearly 65 per cent is due in less than five years. Americans also own about $40,000,000,000 of savings bonds, which are payable on demand.

The presence of such a large debt immediately overhanging the Government's money managers can hardly be comforting. A sudden demand for cash by holders of the Government debt might couse a financial situation.

The fact that the two most distantly maturing bonds outstanding command a premium indicates that the demand for them is larger than the supply. Issuance of a long term bond would also have the anti-inflationary effect of diverting funds that otherwise would enter the stock market or the mortgage market.

COTTON TEXTILE TONE STRONGER DURING THE WEEK

NEW YORK, June 18 (AP)—The cotton textile market developed a stronger tone during the past week as checking on cloth by converters increased. Moderate sales of print cloths developed on spot and through the balaance of the year deliveries. The popular 80-square print cloth advanced ¼ @ 19c a yard on spot as supplies of this key number tightened up. Top qualities brought 19¼c. Lawn prices moved up ½c a yard with the market pretty well cleared of offerings which have been curtailed by the strike at New England plants. Some southern pants were reported now sold up for the balance of the year on lawnss as a result of the shift in buying from the northern to southern sources of supply. The heavy goods division was steady, although business was off the recent brisk pace. Some buyers covered needs on broadcloths for the third and fourth quarters.

HOG TOP $22.50, BEST SINCE AUG. 1954, ON REDUCED RUN

NATIONAL STOCKYARDS, June 18 (USDA weekly review of livestock market)—Light cattle moved up and heavy cattle down for the week ending Friday, around 1100 lbs. being a dividing line. All steers under that weight including heifers and mixed yearlings, advanced 25 to fully 50c, while heavier steers declined mostly 25 @ 50c. Cows, bulls and stocker and feeder cattle showed no appreciable change. Vealers closed off, $2 lower. Receipts were moderately reduced, especially light cattle, but steers over 1100 lbs. increased.

Regularly advancing prices under reduced supplies closed hogs 180 lb. up mostly $2 above the previous Friday with 170 lb down $1.75 higher and sows $1 @ 1.25 up. Closing top at $22.50 was the highest since Aug. 25, 1954, when $22.75 was realized. Closing sales 180-220 lb. weights mostly $21.75 @ 22.25, 220-240 lb. $21.50 @ 22, and 240-265 lb. $21 @ 21.75. Sale of 140-170 lb. was effected at $20.25 @ 21.25, 100-130 lb. $18.25 @ 19.75. Sows 400 lb. and under went at $15.50 @ 17.25, over 400 lb. $13.75 @ 15.50, with boars $8.50 @ 13. One year ago this week hog tops varied from $23.50 @ 25.50, sows $18.50 @ 20.25.

Spring lambs recovered initial week declines to close steady with last Friday, limited numbers of shorn lambs selling early in the week at uneven losses. Aged slaughter sheep were unchanged. High choice and prime spring lambs closed at $25.50 after dropping to $24.50 Tuesday some demonstration grading lambs going at $27. Bulk choice and prime spring lambs for the week $24 @ 25.50, good and choice $22.50 @ 24, with utility and low good $17 @ 22. One load and a few lots of No. 1 and 2 pelt utility to good shorn lambs went at $12 @ 17. Shorn slaughter ewes, all grades, cleared at $3.50 @ 5. One year ago this week top spring lambs varied from $24 @ 25.50.

PRICE TRENDS IN GRAIN MARKET MIXED IN WEEK

CHICAGO, June 18 (AP)—Brokers developed a rock and roll rhythm all their own on the Board of Trade this week. Resultant trends were mixed. The market was generally higher on Monday and Wednesday, lower on Tuesday and Thursday and then split in the final session. Bad weather continued to be the leading buying stimulus in wheat, but toward the close it turned into a cause for selling.

Exports helped corn and soybeans, but the bean market was rocked temporarily with a Government announcement it would sell 1954 beans received on defaulted loans.

After the various influences had been taken into account, wheat was left 3¼c lower to ¼c higher than a week earlier, corn was unchanged to ½c higher, oats were ⅞ @ 1¼c lower, and rye was 1 @ 1½c off. Soybeans were 1¼ @ 3c higher and lard 18 @ 23c a hundred pounds higher.

Rain continued off and on all week to prevent harvesting of the winter wheat crop in many areas of the southwest. Reports of lodging and shattering grew. Receipts of new wheat at terminals ranged far below last year.

These were bullish influences on the market and served to underline the Government's monthly crop report issued the previous Friday fortelling the smallest wheat crop in a decade.

But as the week wore on and the wet continued, reports came out of the southwest that, even when the grain that is left after drouth and storms is harvested, it is likely to be too wet to store.

From this it was deduced unexpectedly large quantities of the crop would be thrown into cash channels. Cash strength from buying by mills had been one of the stronger props under the market.

Traders also were uncertain as to the outcome of next Saturday's farmer referendum on 1956 wheat quotas. If two-thirds approve them, prices will be supported at 76 per cent of parity. If the quotas lose, supports will be at 50 per cent.

Corn crops are considered to have excellent prospects, with ample surface and subsoil moisture. Ordinarily a market depressant, this was countered by a new source of export demand.

Oats and rye were weakened by favorable crop news.

Exports, actual and prospective, strengthened soybeans in spite of healthy crop prospects. Japan was the largest purchaser during the week, taking 1,000,000 bushels. Big gains in soyoil and meal prices also impelled beans upward much of the time.

Lard accompanied hogs higher. Live hogs gained as much as $2 a hundred pounds on scarce supplies to reach the highest prices since August.

FABULOUS SHANKS VILLAGE (FORMERLY CAMP SHANKS)

700 IMPROVED ACRES

30 MILES FROM NEW YORK CITY

LOCATION Shanks Village is in the Town of Orangetown, Rockland County, New York, just 30-miles from center New York City. With completion of Palisades Interstate Parkway, this fall, this area will be within easier reach than middle Westchester is today. Presently, the distance requires about one hour travel by automobile but new super-highways under construction will cut this time almost half!

AREA ECONOMICS Only the availability of housing and the completion of highways (now being built) retards the obvious flood of new families that will recognize the great advantages to be found in this wonderful new residential area. Shanks Village is the last improved large-tract area in the Greater New York zone. The potential is obviously tremendous since its future is so naturally linked to that of New York City.

INDUSTRY For industrial interest as well as for employment opportunities, some of the finest industrial plants of the nation are located in this immediate area. Ford, General Electric, Lederle, Gair, Dexter, Wilcox & Gibbs, etc., are just a few of the nationally-known firms with plants now operating or under construction here. The proximity of Shanks Village to the marketing, transportation and personnel advantages of New York City makes its industrial acreage much desired.

SITE FACTS There are about 691 actual usable acres (approx.) mostly improved (includes sewerage, water, gas, electricity, macadamized streets, graded plots, etc.). The topography is gently rolling. Palisades Interstate Parkway, opening this year, tranverses the area. The new Tappan Zee bridge, across the Hudson, just north of the Village, provides the link in the New York-Buffalo Thruway. George Washington Bridge and New Jersey Turnpike are just 15-miles from the village. Fine schools, churches, recreational areas and shopping centers are conveniently nearby.

POTENTIAL The success of several comparatively small developments in the area attest to the tremendous potential that exists for the able developer of the Shanks Village tract. Homes in the area are of the better, medium-income variety that sold for between $11,000 and $17,500. A more or less complete re-zoning of the area can be arranged with the Town officials who assure complete cooperation in the development.

INSPECTION BY INTERESTED BIDDERS IS INVITED. A registered survey of the acreage to be sold together with all utility plans are on file at the Shanks Village Project Office, Orangeburg Road & Western Highway, Shanks Village, Orangetown, N. Y. Mr. Howard Carey, general housing manager at the above address, will be available Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. to 12 noon and 1 p.m. to 5 p.m., June 14 to July 28th, 1955 . . . Telephone Piermont (N.Y.) 2-0010 • Sealed bids will be received as offers to purchase until 2 p.m. E.D.S.T., July 29, 1955. TERMS: CASH. However, financial assistance will be made available by the government, as follows: 25% cash, government will take back mortgage for balance at an interest rate of 5% per annum, amortized in a level amount sufficient to pay in full the entire indebtedness at interest within 10 years from date of settlement.

Typical of a street and residences at Shanks Village.

DEGREE OF SELECTIVITY DEVELOPS IN STOCK AREAS

Record-Breaking Rise Sees 8 New Peaks Scaled in 10-Session Period.

By RADER WINGET

NEW YORK, June 18 (AP)—The record breaking rise in the stock market continued this week. In the 10 sessions of the past two weeks, the market established eight new highs as measured by the Associated Press average of 60 stocks. The average finished the week at $171.30, highest level it ever has reached.

(Dow-Jones average of 30 industrial stocks were 6.36 points higher on the week, making a new record high of 444.08. The 20 rails were up to 161.85, a new high and closed 161.16 for a gain of .60. The 15 utilities were up .01 of a point to 64.22.)

Prices Climb Steadily.

Two weeks ago the market continued a consolidating reaction that started April 26, date of the previous record high. Since then it has been climbing steadily. Last week it went down only on Thursday. This week it declined only on Tuesday. On all of the other days the market advanced to new highs.

With the market so high, brokers noticed that a fine degree of selectivity was developing in many areas of the list. In other words, with prices so high, it takes a search to find something behind the market.

They noted, too, that the market is entering a high price area that in the past has been the breeding ground for a normal reaction. Such a reaction, if it should develop at this time, could only be regarded as normal, brokers said, and could not be viewed as a market break.

The Laging Rails.

Technicians who watch the movements of the various stock market averages closely have not been too pleased by the action of the railroads. They attained new highs early in the week and then subsided. Technicians would like to see more strength in the rails to give a firmer basis for the present swing ahead of the entire market.

On Monday the market was strong on the heels of the new pact between General Motors and the United Auto Workers. Railroads were at peak prices.

Tuesday's market developed into a reaction of a mild sort with rails under some selling pressure. Aircrafts, however, were higher.

On Wednesday the market marched ahead briskly until shortly after the start of the fifth hour. At that time civilian defense authorities sounded the sirens for a practice alert. The financial district suspended business for 10 minutes, and then the stock market resumed trading 20 minutes later. The pause was enough to brake the stride of the advance. Nevertheless, the market closed at another new high.

Thursday's market had a good test of its stability when the revolt broke out in Argentina. It is true that only a little progress was made that day, but brokers felt that stability in the face of the armed uprising was notable. The market quiet easily could have used the trouble as a selling excuse. It didn't.

Friday's market underscored that opinion by closing higher with a late rush of buying.

The five most active issues this week on the American Stock Exchange were Imperial Chemical Industries up 5-16 at 8 1-16 on 177,600 shares; Great Sweet Grass Oils up 3-16 at 3½; Devon Leduc Oils up 9-16 at 2; Reiter Foster up 7-16 at 1⅜, and Burma Mines off 1-16 at 7-16.

The five most active issues this week on the New York Stock Exchange were Ashland Oil up 2⅜ at 16¾ on 223,400 shares; Pennsylvania Railroad up ½ at 29⅞; Sunray Mid-Continent Oil up 1 at 26¾; U. S. Steel up 1¾ at 50, and Sperry Rand Corp. "when issued" up ⅜ at 27¾.

RETAILERS EXPECT SUMMER VOLUME ABOVE YEAR AGO

NEW YORK, June 18 (AP)—More than 80 per cent of retailers surveyed in 41 representative markets throughout the country expect sales volume this summer of from 5 to 10 per cent over the same period last year. Fifteen per cent expect to meet last year's figures.

This forecast of summer retail business was based on a survey just completed by the bureau of advertising, American Newspaper Publishers Assn.

Over 90 per cent of the merchandising executives queried reported plans to increase or maintain their summer advertising budgets. Twenty seven of the 60 executives surveyed said they would increase their budgets an average of 10 per cent for the next three months.

A significant number of merchants said they would not have the usual "general clearances" early in July but will mark down only slow moving items and will continue to maintain adequate stocks of top selling goods as long as consumer demand warrants.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE

NEW YORK, June 18 (AP)—Closing foreign exchange rates Friday follow (Great Britain in dollars, others in cents). Canadian dollar in New York open market 1 21-32 per cent premium or 101.65⅝ United States cents.

MILLIONAIRE'S OLD LACE, '23 CADILLAC TO BE AUCTIONED

WEST POINT, Miss., June 18 (AP)—The vast accumulation of personal effects and household goods left by an eccentric millionaire come up for public auction July 5-7. It was gathered by Clifton Rose, who died four months ago.

The collection ranges from a 1923 Cadillac to silver hip flasks, from old paintings to barrels of books, crystal, linen and old lace, from ornate bronze clocks to antique furniture. Before an evaluation could be made, dump trucks and wagons hauled away tons of yellowing papers, letters and photographs.

"Mr. Clifton never threw anything away," said handyman Mitch Humphreys. "He just had another room built to put it in."

Rose, while struggling with an irritating plumbing job, was felled by a stroke at the age of 62. He died a week later, Feb. 21. He left no will and about $1,500,000.

He had suddenly withdrawn from his normal social circles in the 1940s — no one seems to know why. He conducted his extensive investment business with postcards.

The decision to sell Rose's accumulations was made by his heirs.

A Million of Anything

Is an impressive figure, but a million Want Ads is particularly impressive because it represents the hundreds of ways the average family can use advertising. More than a million Want Ads have been published in the Post-Dispatch during the past year—the Want Ad section is packed with interest for both buyer and seller! Ask about the low 7-day rate. Phone MAin 1-1111, ask for an adtaker and say "Charge It"! Adtakers are on duty daily except Sunday from 8 a.m. to 9 p.m. Call now!

IN MEMORIAM 16

BALVEN, MARTIN H. (PAPPY); in loving memory for Father's day and his birthday; departed this life Dec. 21, 1954.
Not a day do we forget you;
In our hearts you are always near.
As we loved you, so we miss you.
Happy, smiling, always content.
Loved and respected wherever you went.
God give us strength to face it,
And courage to bear the blow;
But what it meant to lose you
No one will ever know.
Sadly missed by WIFE, SON, DAUGHTER-IN-LAW, GRANDCHILDREN and those who loved him.

BARTON, WESLEY (POP), in memory of our dear father, June 15, 1954. Sadly missed by MYRTLE BRUNSMANN, MABEL BENDER and loved ones.

BAUER, FRED, June 23, 1954. Sadly missed and fondly remembered by his CHILDREN and LOVED ONES.

BOERSCHIG, HARRY, in loving memory of our darling husband and father, who died 3 years ago June 16.
Sadly missed by WIFE, SON, DAUGHTER and SON-IN-LAW.

CHIVETTA, CARMELLA, in loving memory June 22, 1954.
Sadly missed by FAMILY.

FARR, JOHN, June 14, 1954.
Kind thoughts and sweet memories.
WIFE and FAMILY.

FARRIS, FLORENCE M., in loving memory, June 22, 1954.
HUSBAND and FAMILY.

FOERSTEL, CPL. MILTON J., June 23, 1943. A tribute of love to the memory of our darling son and father, who so gallantly placed his life upon the altar of man's freedom.
We love you and we miss you.
MOM, DAD and SON.

FRIEDLI, JOHN, in loving memory of my dear husband and our father who departed this life 9 years ago, June 15, 1946. Sadly missed by WIFE and CHILDREN.

GAMBINO, JOSEPH, in loving memory, June 17, 1953. Sadly missed by WIFE and CHILDREN.

LaFATA, PHILIP J.
"Father's Day," Remembered by CHILDREN and all who loved him.

McDONALD, CLARENCE F., in loving memory of dear husband and father, who passed away June 19, 1939.
Dear one, we often sit and think of you
When we are all alone.
For memory is the only thing
That grief can call its own.
Fondly remembered by SARAH, RUTH and RUDY.

McLAIRD, A3-C PAUL R., Tachikawa Air Base, Japan, June 18, 1953.
Sadly missed by MOTHER, FATHER, SISTERS, BROTHER, relatives.

MALONEY, POLICE SGT. JAMES, in memory, who died June 16, 1950. Lovingly remembered always by WIFE, CHILDREN, grandson DICK.

MARTINI, RUDOLPH; in loving memory of my dear husband who parted one year ago June 21, 1954.
The sun and moon are shining upon a silent grave
Beneath lies one I dearly love but but whom I could not save
Friends may think I have forgotten when at times they see me smile,
Little do they know the heartaches that my smile hides all the while.
Sadly missed by WIFE, ROSE, and all who loved him.

MEES, ROBERT P., July 12, 1954, in memory on "Father's Day."
Those whom we love go out of sight
But never out of mind
They are cherished in the hearts
Of those they leave behind.
Sadly missed by FAMILY.

MUELLER, RUDOLPH, June 21, 1952. Too dearly lovely loved ever to be forgotten. WIFE.

MOTHER, DAD, RICHARD, EDDIE

NICHOLAS, WILLIAM; in loving memory of my dear husband, who departed this life 5 years ago, June 20, 1950.
So many thoughts I have of you,
Nights are long and dreary too.
Five long years have passed and gone,
But my love lives on and on.
Sadly missed by wife MARGARET AND ALL WHO LOVED HIM.

NOLTE, MINNIE C., in loving memory of my dear sister, June 20, 1954
Not a day do I forget you,
In my heart you are always near.
As I love you so I miss you
At the end of one long year.
Sister EMMA and ALL WHO LOVED HER.

PENNINGTON, STEPHEN, Jan. 3, 1955; in memory on "Father's day."
Because you meant so much to us,
Because we loved you so,
You are in our thoughts and in our hearts
Much more than you could know.
Though on earth you are no more,
Still in memory you are with us
As you always were before.
There is never any time, nor any day or season
That we don't long and wish for you
For just this very reason.
Loving WIFE and CHILDREN.

PERRY, JAMES E., June 19, 1954, 2123 S. Twelfth st. A wonderful husband and father.
Sadly missed by WIFE, DAUGHTERS and FATHER.

A Million of Anything

Is an impressive figure, but a million Want Ads is particularly impressive because it represents the hundreds of ways the average family can use advertising. More than a million Want Ads have been published in the Post-Dispatch during the past year—the Want Ad section is packed with interest for both buyer and seller! Ask about the low 7-day rate. Phone MAin 1-1111, ask for an adtaker and say "Charge It"! Adtakers are on duty daily except Sunday from 8 a.m. to 9 p.m. Call now!

Announcing THE NEW LeJay Elec-TROLL
THE QUIET FISHING MOTOR

RELAX IN COMFORT . . .
Give yourself the thrill of a lifetime with the smooth, quiet, effortless performance of the NEW leJay ELEC-TROLL Fishing Motor. The motor that glides easily along—quietly assisting you in luring the b-i-g ones.

QUIET . . .
A motor so 'QUIET' even the fish can't hear it, because the motor is mounted above the water, to eliminate underwater noises. That's the "Trol-Wise" new Le-Jay Elec-Troll: the sweetest fishing motor that ever parted a ripple. To get 'em you have got to slip up on them—Q-U-I-E-T-L-Y!

EASY TO START
No trouble at all. Just turn the dial and you're off!

VARIABLE SPEED
Just turn control to desired speed—like dialing your radio!

LOW COST
Above water motor mounting eliminates damage from submerged obstructions.
Operates on 6- or 12-Volt battery.

DEMOCRATS SAVE UP BOMBSHELLS, SAYS REPUBLICAN

'Something Phony' About Calm, He Asserts — 'Morse Is Strangely Docile.'

WASHINGTON, June 18 (AP)—Senator Norris Cotton (Rep.), New Hampshire, said today there is "something phony" about the calm in Congress and he accused Democrats with storing up legislative "bombshells" for the 1956 election year session.

Without reference to Cotton's comments, Senator Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, the Democratic leader, said he has "no next session plans" and is only interested in seeing that Congress gets its job done in time for a July 31 adjournment.

Cotton asserted in a report to New Hampshire voters that the Democrats "have bottled up important measures like aid to school construction and the military reserve bill which would split their party on the rock of racial segregation."

Little Bombshells.

"They are keeping a few little bombshells like farm price supports and Taft-Hartley revision carefully up their sleeves so they can explode them next year just before election," he declared.

"Don't be fooled by all this talk about the Democrats supporting the President's program. There is something phony about both the mild weather and the congressional calm. They are too good to last."

Cotton said that in the Senate now "everybody seems filled with sweet reasonableness."

"The voice of the filibuster is heard no more in the land," he said. "Debate is limited without a whisper of dissent. The firebrands in the Senate seem to have burned to embers, for the Morses and the Humphreys, who were often objecting, are strangely docile."

This was an allusion to Senators Wayne Morse (Dem.), Oregon, former Republican, and Hubert Humphrey (Dem.), Minnesota.

Johnson Indefinite.

Johnson said in an interview he does not know yet whether the Senate will act on a school aid bill or a proposed expansion of Social Security benefits or changes President Eisenhower asked for in the refugee act. He said he was "not aware of" any activity toward revision of the Taft-Hartley labor law.

The Senate Agriculture Committee is holding hearings on farm price supports, with clear indication there will be no action in this session on a House bill restoring the rigid, high supports Mr. Eisenhower opposes.

Johnson said he expects the Senate to act next week on a $31,836,000,000 defense appropriations bill and some other less important money measures. He said that whether the Senate considers Mr. Eisenhower's proposals for a bigger military reserve depends on whether the House can agree on such a measure.

No 'Must' Bills.

Johnson indicated a bill by Humphrey to set up a bipartisan commission to study the federal employes security program may be brought before the Senate. Emphasizing that he isn't going to draft any list of "must" bills, Johnson told reporters: "We are going to try to get away on July 31 if we can."

Cotton said that some might think "the legislative millennium has come" because of the "incredible speed" with which Congress had acted upon such measures as reciprocal trade, foreign aid and minimum wage.

But he said the Democrats must have 1956 in mind, adding: "The leopard hasn't changed his spots. Or as we New Hampshire Yankees say, 'the cat may have kittens in the oven but that don't make 'em biscuits'."

Mitchell Says Eisenhower Will Be Running Like Scared Jackrabbit.

FAR HILLS, N.J., June 18 (AP)—President Eisenhower will be running for office "like a scared jackrabbit" in 1956, former Democratic committee chairman Stephen A. Mitchell said today.

Any reported reluctance of Mr. Eisenhower to run again for the Presidency is just a "pose," Mitchell added. Mitchell made the statements at a press conference.

Asked if he thought the President would try to succeed himself, Mitchell said:

"Yes I do. The key to the man is that the part of public life he likes is running for office instead of running the office."

Mitchell added, "He'll be so eager for public favor that he'll even be courteous to ex-President Truman, the man who helped make him."

SHEPLEY AT CONFERENCE

Chancellor Ethan A. H. Shepley of Washington University is among a group of university and college presidents participating in the first annual Harvard University conference for university and college administrators which opens today at Harvard.

Mutual problems of the administrators will be discussed at the conference, which will continue through next Friday.

50TH WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. Alphonse J. Madden, 5875 Plymouth avenue, yesterday celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary at a reception at the home of relatives at 2958 Hatherly drive, Bel-Nor.

Madden, retired, was traffic representative in St. Louis for Mid-Continent Petroleum Corp., Okla., for 37 years.

U.S. Weight-Lifters Are Lionized Everywhere They Go in Russia

15,000 Sit in Rain in Moscow to See Pinup Boys—Leningrad Show Sold Out in Two Hours.

MOSCOW, June 18 (AP)—The United States weight-lifting team, headed by Paul Anderson, a muscular man mountain from Tacoa, Ga., is receiving the velvet carpet treatment wherever it appears in Russia. Russian girls are nominating Anderson as their "pinup boy of 1955."

The weight lifters probably are the most popular Americans ever to visit the Soviet Union. In Moscow 15,000 Russians sat in rain and cold to watch Anderson, Tommy Kono and their teammates perform, applauding them wildly.

They were scheduled to appear tonight in Leningrad. The circus auditorium with 3000 capacity was sold out in less than two hours. The Leningraders hailed the Americans wherever they appeared on the streets. A special bus was put at their disposal for sightseeing and luncheons and receptions were given in their honor.

Russia's leading sports paper, Soviet Sport, devoted an unprecedented full page in its eight-page Saturday edition to the American weight lifters.

Mrs. Charles Bohlen, wife of the United States ambassador, is giving a cocktail party for the team at the Ambassador's residence Sunday evening.

Then Russia's top sports authority, the Committee for Physical Culture and Sport, is giving them a reception Sunday night at the downtown Metropol hotel, to which Western correspondents have been invited.

SAYS EXECUTIVES SHOULD GET PAID FOR THEIR ULCERS

LOS ANGELES, June 18 (AP)—A Catholic educator says business executives should get workmen's compensation for ulcers and heart trouble "because they are certainly occupational diseases."

The Rev. Andrew C. Boss, director of the labor-management school at the University of San Francisco, also told the annual conference of the American Society of Training Directors yesterday that better communication is needed between minor and top executives.

"Executives trying to climb over the backs of other executives to reach the top—this eternal scrambling to get ahead—breaks down both communications and the nervous system," he said.

TWO DEAD, 27 HURT IN FIRE ON CHARLESTON WATERFRONT

CHARLESTON, S.C., June 18 (UP)—Authorities today cleared debris left by a $4,000,000 fire in which two persons died, 27 were injured and six structures along the historic waterfront destroyed.

Dead were Lew Henninger, vice president of the Charleston Tidewater Terminal which was destroyed, and Policeman Lawrence Aytes.

Twenty-seven fire fighters were overcome by smoke in battling the blaze, the worst in Charleston history. In addition three seamen from the naval base here and an airman were admitted to the Navy hospital after being overcome by smoke.

1234 CHEST AILMENTS FOUND IN 70,000 PERSONS X-RAYED

A total of 1234 chest disorders were discovered in the 70,000 persons X-rayed by the Tuberculosis and Health Society of St. Louis during the past 12 months, it was announced yesterday.

Of the group, 618 X-rays were interpreted as indicating probable tuberculosis cases, while 616 suggested tumors, enlarged heart or other chest disorders.

Dr. Arthur E. Strauss, case finding chairman of the society, said that 621,213 examinations have been given by the group since it first inaugurated free chest X-rays in 1944.

JEWISH FEDERATION DRIVE FINAL REPORT TUESDAY

A final report on the 1955 Jewish Federation Welfare Fund campaign will be made at 8 p.m. Tuesday when drive workers hold a final meeting at Hotel Chase, it was announced yesterday.

Awards will be made to campaign volunteers, who also will see a performance of an amateur musical, "Hit the High C."

Goal of the drive, which opened April 27, is $1,650,000. Funds are used to support 40 health and welfare agencies engaged in relief work.

3 NEGROES SUE UNIVERSITY IN SOUTH FOR ADMITTANCE

DURHAM, N.C., June 18 (AP)—Three Negro youths recently refused admittance to the University of North Carolina have filed suit against the university trustees.

The suit, filed yesterday for the Negroes by the state chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, charges the trustees with violating the Fourteenth Amendment to the Constitution. It will be considered by United States District Court in Greensboro.

The plaintiffs are Leroy Frazier, 17 years old; his brother, Ralph, 16, and John Lewis Brandon, 18, all of Durham.

DEFEATED MAYOR CANDIDATE NAMED TO FORD FOUNDATION

CHICAGO, June 18 (AP)—Robert E. Merriam, defeated Republican candidate for mayor in the April election, has been appointed a consultant with the Ford Foundation in New York City.

Merriam was beaten for Mayor of Chicago by Richard J. Daley, Democrat. He since has conferred with Republican Gov. William G. Stratton and has been mentioned for a state job. Merriam said yesterday his new job would be to assist in a study of metropolitan problems.

ST. LOUIS U. FACULTY SHIFTS

The Rev. Thomas J. Stemper, S.J., dean of men at St. Louis University, is being transferred to Marquette University, Milwaukee, and succeeded by the Rev. Charles A. Sanderson, S.J., it was announced yesterday.

In another faculty change, the Rev. Bakewell Morrison, head of the department of religion, is joining the staff of the Queen's Work, and is succeeded by the Rev. Leo A. Coressel, S.J., of the university's School of Divinity at St. Mary's, Kan., as acting head of the department.

60,000 PERSONS HEAR GRAHAM PREACH IN SWITZERLAND

ZURICH, Switzerland, June 18 (UP)—American evangelist Billy Graham today addressed the biggest prayer meeting ever held in Switzerland.

More than 60,000 persons assembled in two stadiums, 200 yards apart to hear the North Carolina preacher.

Graham was to speak in the Hardturm football stadium, but so many persons arrived to hear him that the overflow was packed into nearby Foerrlibuck stadium, which was equipped with a public address system tied to the Hardtrum rostrum.

Graham addressed the two packed stadiums through an interpreter, pausing after every sentence to let the interpreter tell the crowd in German what he had said.

The evangelist goes to Geneva for another one night stand tomorrow and then to Frankfurt to preach to United States service men in Germany. Then he plans to go to Scandinavia and back to Britain.

INDIRECT ELECTION IN FRANCE TODAY FOR 153 SENATORS

PARIS, June 18 (AP)—Half of the French Senate, the advisory upper house of Parliament, will be picked tomorrow in a series of indirect elections.

The Council of the Republic, or Senate, has 320 members elected for six-year terms with half of the body coming up for re-election each three years. In tomorrow's voting only 153 seats will be at stake. Of these, 128 will be from metropolitan France including Algeria, and the rest from overseas territories.

The campaign has gone almost unnoticed outside of political circles. There is no popular vote. Municipal councillors, regional councillors, deputies in the National Assembly and some supplementary electors for larger cities do the voting. In the smaller departments, two rounds of voting are scheduled. If no candidate gets a first-round majority, an afternoon ballot is cast with a plurality sufficient for election.

RICHARD KLUCKHOHN GETS 5 TO 10 YEARS IN KILLING

RALEIGH, N. C., June 18 (AP)—Richard Kluckhohn, son of Harvard faculty members, today was found guilty of involuntary manslaughter and sentenced to 5 to 10 years in prison for the fatal shooting of a woman from a hotel window.

Kluckhohn, 21 years old, described by police as a gun fancier and brilliant graduate of the University of Chicago, was accused in the shooting of Miss Bernice Seawell.

Kluckhohn testified that his German Luger pistol was accidentally discharged when he picked it up in his room.

NAVY JET PLANE CRASHES AND BURNS, PILOT KILLED

COLUMBUS, O., June 18 (AP)—A Navy Panther jet plane crashed and burned near here today, killing the pilot, Lt. Col. Herbert A. Bonner, Urhichsville, O.

Witnesses said the pilot made every effort to miss homes in the area as he skimmed over treetops and sheared off utility poles. The plane came to rest within 500 yards of the nearest house in a wooded area.

PENSACOLA, Fla., June (AP)—Two naval flyers were killed near Pensacola yesterday on a training flight. Navy officials identified them as Lt. Robert G. Jansen, whose parents live in New Bedford, Mass., and Lt. Howard E. Phifer, of Cleveland Heights, O.

SENDS FRENCH FLAG TO QUEEN TO PAY RENT FOR 1955

LONDON, June 18 (AP)—The seventh Duke of Wellington today sent a small French flag to Queen Elizabeth II and thereby paid up his rent for 1955.

He is a descendant of the original Iron Duke, who was presented with a house and several thousand acres for defeating the French in the Battle of Waterloo.

Parliament made one stipulation. Every year on Waterloo day (June 18) the Duke of Wellington must pay his annual rent by presenting the reigning sovereign with a silken miniature of Napoleon's captured flag—and it should be on a six-foot pole.

The Duke's magnificent country seat, Stratfieldsaye House, near Reading, sits majestically amid several thousand acres and is one of the nation's more stately homes.

Two times previously the present duke, on bended knee, has handed over the French flag personally to Queen Elizabeth II. Today he sent it around by a messenger.

ANTI-AIRCRAFT BATTERY HOLDS FIRST REUNION HERE

Twenty-two World War II veterans, members of Battery D of the 161st Anti-aircraft Gun Battalion, had their first postwar reunion last night when they met for a banquet at Hotel York. The veterans came from Missouri and seven other states, and many brought along their wives.

Reaching Australia in 1943, Battery D saw action in New Guinea and in the Philippines, where it participated in a landing at the northern tip of Luzon. The organization returned to the United States in 1946. Thomas Vennemann, 4532A Pennsylvania avenue, and Leonard Holmes, Carrier Mills, Ill., were cochairmen for the reunion.

Veterans gathering at St. Louis included a former staff sergeant, two gun commanders, and three other sergeants, Vennemann said. John Penovich, 1824 Kenneth place, a former ammunition handler in Battery D, presided at the banquet.

CITY, RED CROSS SPONSOR LEARN-TO-SWIM PROGRAM

A "Learn-to-Swim" program, jointly sponsored by the city and the St. Louis Chapter of the American Red Cross, has been scheduled for three of the municipally-operated pools from June 29 through Sept. 2, it was announced yesterday.

Classes will be under supervision of Carl O. Bauer, Red Cross chairman for water safety, and will be taught by trained instructors. Classes will be conducted from 10 a.m. to noon at the following pools: Marquette, Compton and Osage avenues; Fairgrounds, North Grand boulevard and Natural Bridge avenue and Vashon, Compton and Market street. Classes will be for 30-minute periods, two days a week.

Persons from 8 to 20 years of age are eligible. Registration must be made in person by parents, or older children, at the St. Louis chapter's office, 3414 Lindell boulevard. Registration began last Wednesday and will continue until Friday between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m.

TWO GET APPOINTMENTS TO ACADEMY AT ANNAPOLIS

William R. Henning, 6055 Westminster place, and Lawrence Pizinger, 427 East drive, East Alton, have been appointed to the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis, Md., it was announced yesterday.

Henning, 19 years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Henning, is a graduate of Christian Brother's College High School and is now attending St. Louis University. He was nominated for the Naval Academy by Representative Leonor K. Sullivan (Dem.), St. Louis.

Pizinger, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward L. Pizinger, is a graduate of the East Alton-Wood River Community High School. He was nominated by Representative Melvin Price (Dem.), East St. Louis.

Why All the Shooting At Our Gussie Busch?

ONE of the puzzling things in the baseball picture is the consistently bad press that Gussie Busch got when the abortive story broke that the Cardinals were about to be sold.

Red Smith in New York, Furman Bisher in Atlanta and columnists in other major and minor league cities blasted Busch and the brewery ownership.

Why?

Is it a crime against man and against baseball to have a lavish estate, complete with zoo? Is it detrimental to baseball to own a brewery as well as a ball club? Is it bad for baseball for a club to have owners who can afford to refurbish a ball park, to install better seats, better dressing rooms, better playing field, better lighting equipment, and still have enough money left to purchase available ball players?

What has Busch done that other club owners have not done? Jake Ruppert owned the Yankees and as we remember it, he had a brewery, too. The Wrigley family sells chewing gum, Crosley sells electronic devices, Del Webb gets big construction jobs. Lou Perini builds bridges and roads and has a huge fleet of bulldozers. The Briggs family made automobile bodies among other things and Walter O'Malley filed a lot of briefs before he started filing pennants.

The columnists in their bills of particulars cite the fact that Busch is an "estate man," a beer salesman, that he puts on a uniform and plays with the boys at spring training camps, that he traded away Enos Slaughter, eased Harry Brecheen out of a job and fired Terry Moore.

So what?

The Late Sam Breadon Fired a Few Men, Too.

WHAT, for instance, has Busch done that the late Sam Breadon didn't do? Sam had a country estate, too. Sam put on a uniform every spring and played at baseball with his cronies, as Martin Collins and George Vierheller can testify.

And if trading Enos Slaughter was a crime, how did Breadon rank? He and Branch Rickey traded away a few Sportsman's Park diamond heroes. Rogers Hornsby, Jim Bottomley, Chick Hafey, Joe Medwick, Mort Cooper and Walk Cooper, Dizzy Dean, Burleigh Grimes and Jess Haines, just to name a few. Breadon and Rickey, were they still doing business at the old stand, probably would have traded Stan Musial a season or two ago.

On the baseball side, Busch doesn't pretend to know the business. He lets the baseball men in the organization make the baseball decisions. It wasn't his idea to get rid of Slaughter. His baseball advisers told him about a young fellow named Bill Virdon, who would be made available by such a trade. The departure of Brecheen and Moore, popular Cardinals, was unfortunate. The Cardinals wanted Brecheen to stay on as a coach. It was just a bad break that when $1 waivers were sought, the Browns claimed Harry and offered him a player's salary. Moore departed because the manager at the moment wanted a coach of his own choice. Managers have been given that privilege through the years.

Busch must be a bit puzzled by it all. Perhaps the answer is that baseball is such an unusual business. No matter whose names are on the stock certificates, each individual fan believes profoundly that it is his business, his ball club. So they blast the club owner for not firing Eddie Stanky and then other volunteer stockholders blast him when he does fire Stanky.

Owners Have Changed And So Has Baseball.

IT is true that baseball, as a business, has changed materially, with the appearance of so many new owners. In the old days baseball was the life of most of the owners. Now it is a sideline and most of the duties that the club owners of the past assumed personally are delegated to hired hands.

In the old days if a baseball writer wanted to know about something he called Sam Breadon. Sam was at his office every day, in and out of season. Today you'd have a tough time getting Gussie Busch on the phone. You wouldn't even try, because you'd know he'd refer you to General Manager Dick Meyer, or call Al Fleishman to type out a statement.

During the last year of Breadon's ownership, a red hot rumor was in circulation that he was about to sell the ball club. Sam realized that the club might be demoralized by such rumors. He personally invaded the Cardinal clubhouse and told the boys in his own words that it just wasn't so.

The other night when such a message had to be carried to Garcia, it wasn't Gussie Busch who did the talking. No, Gussie was schlachfesting somewhere and so Fleishman made the clubhouse speech.

When Sam Breadon had something to tell the press he held forth at his modest but adequate office at Sportsman's Park, within easy access to phones. A guy named Eisenhower is of considerable importance and fairly busy. But when he holds a press conference he doesn't ask the boys to journey over to Gettysburg. He makes the trip to Washington.

However, when the Cardinals wanted to announce the firing of Stanky and the hiring of Harry Walker, 25 or 30 peasants had to fight the traffic for 12 or 15 miles so Gussie could keep his baronial posterior on the plush throne at Grant's Farm.

Nevertheless, we're glad that Busch bought the Cardinals. And we hope he never sells them. Because we fear that if he ever does, St. Louis will be out of both major leagues.

Hogan's Birdie Partly Squirrel

SAN FRANCISCO, June 18 (UP)

BEN HOGAN parlayed a squirrel into a birdie today in the third round of the U. S. National Open golf tournament.

Just as he started his backswing on the par three fifteen hole, a squirrel, unawed by the huge gallery, scampered out on the tee and sat up, about five feet in front of Hogan.

Ben stopped his swing while marshals chased the rodent away.

But just as soon as Hogan prepared to hit again, the squirrel jumped back on the tee. Ben went ahead and cracked an iron to within nine feet of the cup—and sank the putt for a birdie deuce.

PLAYOFF SET TODAY; IOWAN CATCHES BEN ON LAST HOLE

SAN FRANCISCO, June 18 (AP)—Jack Fleck, a hollow-cheeked unknown from Davenport, Iowa, scored a spectacular birdie on the final green today to tie four-time winner Ben Hogan for the National Open golf championship. They had 72-hole scores of 287.

The 32-year-old Midwesterner, who never has won a major tournament, strode in with a flock of birdies for a three-under-par 67 an hour after Hogan apparently had won the title.

The two leaders meet in an 18-hole playoff for the title tomorrow.

On the seventy-second hole, with a crowd of more than 10,000 straining for a peek from the natural amphitheater of the Olympic Club course and lining the fairways, Fleck poled his tee shot to the edge of the rough, then laced an iron approach to within seven feet of the pin.

While the crowd was tense, Fleck walked up briskly, gave the assignment one quick measurement and then sped the ball home.

There were only a few straggling spectators—no more than 25—with Fleck at the fourteenth hole when Hogan, with the entire gallery at his heels, finished with a 70—the only time he had matched par through the three-day test.

Crowd Gets Word.

Then word went out that the lean, hungry-looking Iowan, who has won only $2000-plus on the tour so far this year, was on a birdie binge.

The crowd stampeded on the course to pick up the challenger at the fifteenth where he needed two birdies to tie Hogan and three to win—an apparently hopeless task on some of the most treacherous finishing holes in golf.

Fleck picked up one stroke quickly on the 144-yard fifteenth. He flew his tee shot to within nine feet of the pin and sank a deuce. He got his par five on the 603-yard sixteenth, longest on the course, and at the seventeenth a 50-foot putt lipped the cup. The crowd let out a loud groan.

Then came the final hole, where Fleck whacked out of the rough, which killed the hopes of many of the sport's greatest stars, and made one of the most difficult pressure putts in this tournament's history.

The ball was flag-high to the right of the pin. It was partially side-hill.

Began in Tie, Too.

Fleck is an operator of two municipal courses in Davenport. In the past he has confined himself to playing the winter tour but this year he has made the entire circuit. His winnings, however, haven't been enough to pay his caddies' fees.

Fleck started the day at 145 tied with Hogan, Julius Boros and young Walker Inman Jr., behind Tommy Bolt and amateur Harvie Ward.

Ed Furgol of St. Louis, the defending champion, had an 80 in the morning round, a 77 in the afternoon round, and finished far down the list with a total of 312.

Ted Neist, pro at St. Louis Country Club, finished with a total of 311. He had rounds of 76 and 81 today.

The Iowan shot a 75 in the morning to fall off the pace as Hogan forged into the lead on a 72. But all other contenders soon folded, leaving the course first to Hogan and then to the unbelievable Mr. Fleck.

For the first time, Hogan didn't appear tired. He walked briskly despite his gimpy left knee and had a look of freshness and supreme confidence.

Tomorrow at 4 p.m. (St. Louis time), he will go after his fifth championship, more than any other man has ever won. Willie —Associated Press Wirephoto.

Just a Fleck of the Wrist

This is the final-hole putt that enabled JACK FLECK to tie Ben Hogan for first place in the United States Open golf tournament at the end of the scheduled 72 holes. The ball is at the brink, about to drop for a birdie that made Fleck's score for the final 18 holes a 67, tying him with Hogan at 287 for the four rounds. They meet in a playoff this afternoon.

White Sox Clip Yanks, 6-3, Take League Lead

NEW YORK, June 18 (UP)—The surging Chicago White Sox seized first place in the American League from the New York Yankees today by beating them, 6-3, with the help of 12 walks.

Husky Harry Byrd, who was traded away by the Yankees during the winter, gained credit for the victory in his pitching debut for the White Sox, although he needed relief from Sandy Consuegra in the ninth inning.

The Yankees, who had been in first place since May 21, received ineffective hurling from Starter Bob Turley and Relievers Tom Sturdivant and Bob Wiesler. Strikeout King Turley, failing in his fifth quest for his ninth victory, gave up seven walks and Wiesler issued five bases on balls. The three pitchers were tagged for 10 hits.

The Sox had difficulty in cashing their opportunities until they broke the scoring ice with two runs in the third. They added two more at Turley's expense in the seventh and their final two against Wiesler in the eighth.

In the second, Chico Carrasquel opened with a walk and Nellie Fox singled. Carrasquel took third as Minnie Minoso flied out and scored on George Kell's infield out. Sherman Lollar drove a ball in the left field stands for a ground-rule double, scoring Fox. The blow at first was ruled a homer and when the decision was changed, Sox Coach George Myatt was ejected from the game for protesting too long.

Turley left the game when he did not retire a batter in the seventh inning, Kell and Jim Rivera getting singles and Lollar walking to load the bases. Sturdivant relieved and retired Jim Busby on a pop but Pinch-Hitter Bob Nieman doubled to drive in two runs.

Jim Jackson in T-M Final With Baxter Again After 1-Up Win

By Robert Morrison
Of the Post-Dispatch Sports Staff.

DES MOINES, Ia., June 18—In the face of a bad putting streak that would have given an average player the yips, Jimmy Jackson maintained his confidence in the blade today and reached the final of the Trans-Mississippi amateur championship.

The Walker Cup player from St. Louis defending his T-M title in staunch fashion, holed out two 25-foot birdie putts on the sixteenth and eighteenth greens to turn back a challenging Orrie Goens of Des Moines, 1 up.

It was a measure of revenge for a Jackson, who three years ago was beaten by Goens in a Western Amateur match, and it put Jackson in Sunday's 36-hole final in which he will meet 19-year-old Rex Baxter jr. of Amarillo, Tex.

This is a repeat of the 1954 final at Cherry Hills in Denver where St. Louis's Jimmy came from a six-down deficit in the morning round to defeat Baxter by 4 and 3.

Baxter moved into the T-M final at Wakonda Golf Club here by trimming 42-year-old Rod Bliss of Des Moines, 1 up on the twentieth hole in a tight match in which neither had more than a one-up advantage at any time. Baxter was four over par.

Stands off Surge.

Jackson was one under par in his afternoon semifinal with Goens and he stood off the closing surge of the 36-year-old Des Moines player who shot the second nine in 33, three under.

On that back nine Jimmy missed putts from five feet or less on three straight holes, three-putting two of them and losing all three to dissipate by all but one hole what had been a four-up advantage with only six holes to go.

But earlier at the fifth hole he had demonstrated the extreme in his irregular putting when he three-putted from less than three feet.

There were other moments when the blade was true, however, the touch was right and the reading of the greens was brilliant. Jimmy had a seven-foot birdie putt at the second hole and a 20-footer for a similar deuce to win at No. 9.

Experience Helps.

So, he had reason to maintain his confidence, and the experience of his big-time play in Walker Cup matches and the British amateur recently began to tell the story. Jim holed out a 25-footer to win No. 16 and regain a two-up edge. He bowed to Goens' eight-foot birdie putt at No. 17, but still one up going to par four No. 18, he played like a champion.

His drive was a powerful shot up the steep fairway. His approach was almost as good as Goens's was and in the clutch on the green, Jimmy holed out from 25 feet for a birdie three, making it impossible for Goens to win the hole with his remaining 16-footer.

"Did you ever see such a putting round as that," Jackson grinned after he had finished. "Actually I was not going for those putts on No. 16 and No. 18. It's been my experience that you should never go for anything much over 15 feet and it's surprising how many you will make that way.

"But all I wanted to do in this instance was let that one-up situation wear him out."

Last Repeater in 1933.

That's what happened and now Jackson is in position to become the first repeat winner in the fifty-second Trans-Miss since Gus Moreland won his second conseutive title in 1933.

Baxter, a rising star who has won the Mexican amateur among other tournaments on the way to becoming a No. 1 alternate on this year's Walker Cup team, is a lanky, cool youngster who will be tough to beat.

Against the 42-year-old Bliss, an experienced amateur tournament player, Baxter came to No. 18 all even. He was slightly short with a six-foot birdie putt that would have won there and Rex had to go to No. 20 where Bliss bogied.

In the morning quarterfinals Baxter had beaten Kansas City's Bill Webb, 3 and 2, and Jackson advanced with a 6 and 5 triumph over 35-year-old George Lee, a one-time Kansas State player now from Humboldt, Ia.

An unusual break helped Jack-

—Associated Press Wirephotos.

SCHOENDIENST DRIVES IN WINNING TALLY; WHISENANT STARTS RALLY WITH DOUBLE

By Bob Broeg

They turned back the hands of time last night at Busch Stadium, where the kid Cardinals played like the Redbirds of old, permitting league-leading Brooklyn to break a tense tenth-inning tie with three runs and then breaking the Dodgers' hearts, in turn, with four tallies in the home half.

Beaten at the barrier so many times by the Brooks in recent seasons, after once upon a time having used the Dodgers as a springboard to better things in the National League, the Cardinals excited a handsome 27,569 crowd with their sensational finish.

Capt. Red Schoendienst, slapping a ground single in the hole between first and second bases, drove in the deciding run with the fourth hit of an overtime frame in which Brooklyn's Junior Gilliam first appeared to have won the game, then finally just about gave it away.

Fumbles Ground Ball.

Gilliam, author of a two-run double with the bases loaded in the first half of the extra inning, fumbled a ground ball that contributed heavily to the Cardinals' cause in the Redbirds' final thrilling effort.

The unexpected development took Larry Jackson off the hook of another hard-luck defeat, gave Paul La Palme a third straight victory in relief and, consequently, reversed things at the last minute for Johnny Podres, young Brooklyn southpaw who stood on the threshold of his eighth triumph before faltering. Then Clem Labine, an unhittable game saver against the Cardinals in the past, faced—and lost—two batters as Solly Hemus singled home the tying run and Schoendienst the winning tally.

The contest in which each side collected eight hits was actually two different ball games because for nine frames, with Jackson and Podres dueling in the still night air, the Dodgers managed only five safeties and didn't draw a walk and the Cardinals had only four blows and just one pass. Over that period the slender St. Louis righthander struck out seven and the sturdy Brooklyn southpaw six.

Dodgers Then Bat Around.

In the overtime, however, the pitching retreated to a neutral corner as the Dodgers, batting around, had the benefit of three bases on balls (one intentional) besides three hits, and the Cardinals, in addition to four key blows, drew a helpful walk as well as Gilliam's miscue.

Gilliam, who collected three hits, opened the game with a single and almost scored with two down when Roy Campanella, hitting to the opposite field, sliced a line drive on which, first base Umpire Larry Goetz ruled, a pavilion fan reached over the wall to santch for a souvenier. The hit, as a result, was a ground-rule double instead of a homer. And Sandy Amoros grounded out.

That threat, it developed, was the only one by either club until the sixth inning, when Duke Snider, the major league's home-run and RBI leader, drove in his sixty-seventh marker with his twenty-third circuit smash, a belt to the right-field pavilion roof.

In the home half Hemus, who hadn't had a hit in 22 previous trips against left-handed pitching this season, socked a two-out hit that skipped past Carl Furillo to the right field wall for a double, and when Schoendienst popped a single to short-center, Podres had yielded his first run in 24 innings and the game was tied.

CARDINALS—Zimmer played third base for the Dodgers. Whisenant doubled to right-center. Sarni lined to Amoros. Whisenant went to third unmolested. Boyer walked. Moon was safe on Gilliam's fumble, Whisenant scoring, Boyer stopping at second. Elliott batted for LaPalme and singled to right, scoring Boyer, Moon stopping at second. Labine replaced Podres on the mound for the Dodgers. Stephenson ran for Elliott. Hemus singled to center, scoring Moon with the tying run, Stephenson stopping at second. Schoendienst singled to right, scoring Stephenson with the winning run. FOUR RUNS.

Redbird Notes.

FLOYD (0-0) WOOLDRIDGE, voluble rookie righthander just recalled from Houston, probably will pitch for the Cardinals in this afternoon's 2-o'clock game. Carl (8-3) Erskine is due for the Dodgers in the final contest of the Busch Stadium series.

The last two or three days have been tough on St. Louis shortstops. First, Alex Grammas suffered a cracked right thumb in practice; then Bob Stephenson was struck in the right cheekbone and painfully bruised by a bad-hopping grounder.

Karl Spooner, young Brooklyn southpaw, made the mistake of lending his opinion from the Dodger bench when Manager Walt Alston contended Roy Campanella's first-inning ground-rule double should have been a homer. First Base Umpire Larry Goetz thumbed the kid to the clubhouse.

About 1000 persons attended in a group with the Retail Bakers' Association of the St. Louis area. The bakers had a pre-game program on the field and gave to each spectator a pamphlet good for a free loaf of bread.

Harvey Haddix, 29-year-old Redbird pitcher, verified a report that he had become engaged to Miss Marcia Williamson of Springfield, O., only a few miles from the Haddix family farm.

If He Wins Today, Hogan Plans to Quit, But Wife Has Doubts

SAN FRANCISCO, June 18 (AP).—Ben Hogon said tonight if he won his fifth National Open golf championship tomorrow afternoon he would retire from competitive golf.

Hogan will meet Jack Fleck of Davenport, Ia., in an 18-hole playoff on the Olympic Club course.

"If I win this one, I'll become just a week-end golfer," Hogan said. "I don't say I won't play any more—but if I do it will be just for the kicks."

Hogan indicated that if he failed ogainst Fleck he might still shoot for his fifth open at a future date. Hogan is known to be anxious to become the winningest of all Open champions.

Shortly before Hogan made his "retirement" statement, his wife, Valerie, said: "I don't think Ben ever will retire. I think he will play golf as long as he is able to pull himself out to a golf course."

Asked if these plans meant thot he never would play in another Open, Ben replied:

"Yes, it does."

Leads at Del-Mar.

Earl Gillman's 720 total, including 105-pin handicap, took an early lead in the three-out-of-four-game handicap bowling tournament last night at Del-Mar Lanes. The event started Thursday and continues until 400 bowlers have competed. Handicap is based on 70 per cent from 200.

Raschi Lifts Kansas City to Sixth Place; Staley Beats Pirates, 4-1

Shutouts by Maas and Sam Jones

NEW YORK, June 18 (UP)—Tight pitching featured the major-league baseball picture today aside from the big game at Yankee Stadium, where the White Sox took over the American League lead with a 6-3 decision over the Yankees.

Rookie Duke Maas of the Detroit Tigers hurled a two-hitter in shutting out the Orioles for the second time this season, 7-0. The only Baltimore batters to reach base were Gus Triandos, who doubled in the fifth, and Chuck Diering, who singled in the ninth. The Tigers got to Harry Dorish for three runs in the first inning on two walks and singles by Fred Hatfield, Al Kaline, Jim Delsing and Jack Phillips. Kaline, the league's leading hitter, collected four of Detroit's 12 hits, while Bill Tuttle hit the only homer of the game in the second.

Kansas City defeated Washington, 9-4, with former Cardinal Vic Raschi getting his second straight victory although he needed help from Tom Gorman in the eighth. The Athletics, moving to sixth place in the A.L. standings, collected 12 hits off loser Camilo Pascual and his successors, Ted Abernathy and Spec Shea. Jim Finigan of the A's drove in three runs with a pair of triples and a double.

Jackie Jensen's thirteenth homer broke a 2-all tie in the sixth inning and gave the Red Sox a 4-2 triumph over third-place Cleveland. Jensen also drove in an insurance run with a sacrifice fly in the Eighth. Sammy White hit his fifth homer in the second as Frank Sullivan scored his eighth victory.

Sam (No-Hit) Jones of the Cubs hurled a seven-hit shutout to beat the Phillies, 4-0. Gene Baker doubled and Ransom Jackson singled for Chicago's first run off Robin Roberts in the fourth inning and Rookie Jim King drove in two more runs with a triple in the sixth.

Gerry Staley's five-hit pitching and home runs by Wally Post and Stan Palys gave the Redlegs a 4-1 decision over Pittsburgh. It marked the first time in 11 starts that Staley, another former Cardinal, went the distance. Rookie southpaw Lino Donoso, purchased from Hollywood of the Pacific Coast league, helped beat himself with a pair of wild pickoff throws that figured in Cincinnati's other two runs.

Henry Aaron's sixth-inning single snapped a 4-4 tie and helped the Braves score their second straight victory over the Giants, 7-4. Aaron's single, off loser Johnny McCall, scored Johnny Logan from second and the Braves added their second run of the inning when George Crowe singled later. Ernie Johnson relieved Chet Nichols in the sixth and picked up his third triumph. Del Crandall and Sid Gordon hit home runs.

Honey's Alibi, 20-1 Shot, Wins Balmoral Race

CHICAGO, June 18 (UP)—Honey's Alibi, a 20-1 longshot owned by H. M. Warner, ran away from the field in the final quarter mile today to gain a length and a half victory in the first running of the $50,000 added Chicagoan at Balmoral race track.

Ridden by Jockey Don Scurlock, the bay colt, by Blue Swords out of Polemic, broke from post position 19 and quickly moved into fifth place in the huge field of 17 three-year-olds. Scurlock paced him well to move him into fourth as the field went into the far turn, and as they raced toward the home stretch, he turned him loose to quickly gain first place in the long homestretch.

Honey's Alibi picked up $39,400, more than his lifetime earnings previously, with the victory. The event grossed $62,500. The winner paid $43.80, $21.20 and $11.40.

Harvey C. Fruehauf's Blue Lem finished second and paid $11.20 and $6.60, while third money went to Dixiana Farm's Make Ready, who paid $4.

Far East Wins Air Force Meet

ROME, N.Y., June 18 (UP)—The Far East's Fred Faucett scored an unprecedented three-way victory today to lead his conference to victory in the annual Air Force world wide track and field meet.

Faucett set a record of 54.3 seconds in the 440-hurdles and also won the 120-yard high hurdles and the 220.

About 200 contestants were entered in the two-day meet which wound up in 90-degree weather.

Parry O'Brien, world shot-put record holder who tossed the weight 59 feet, two inches in opening day competition, returned to hurl the discus 164 feet, 10¾ inches. He represented the Pacific Coast Conference.

Another double winner was 2nd Lt. Leonard Truex, Great Lakes conference, who captured the three-mile run in 15:33.1. He previously won the mile in 4:18.6 previously won the mile in 4:18.6.

Lon Spurrier of the Southwest Conference won the 880-yard dash in 1:50 while 2nd Lt. James G. Lea, Jr., Pacific Coast Conference star, set a meet record of 48.2 for the 440-yard dash.

Jackson and Baxter In Trans-Miss Final

son. Lee blew up when he lost his ball on a tee shot that apparently had been well centered in the fourth fairway.

The finish of that tee shot was hidden from view because the fairway is one of Wakonda's many roller-coaster slopes.

Lee's search for his ball included digging down into several gopher holes but he couldn't find it.

So, taking a penalty shot, he lost that hole and five more in succession to make Jackson six up at the turn. The effect of the misfortune on Lee was noticeable almost immediately. On the par five fifth he hit two fine woods to the apron and appeared certain to win or at least tie the hole. But in the delicate job aroung the greens, he took four to get down and lost to Jackson's 5.

Lee's catastrophe was all the greater because Jackson had started poorly and lost the first hole and won the second only because Lee three-putted.

High Cost of Oats.

The cost of keeping and training the average race horse is approximately $5000 a year, reports the Monmouth Park Jockey Club.

Fleck Ties Hogan For U.S. Open Title

Anderson captured four Opens back in the early 1900s and the great Bobby Jones won four before retiring after his grand slam in 1930.

Sam Snead, still the runner-up, had a 70-74 today to finish five strokes back of the two leaders at 292, tied with Tommy Bolt, the early leader, who faded to 75-73.

Julius Boros, the sphynx-like 1952 Open champion, and young Bob Rosburg of San Francisco were tied at 295, followed by amateur Harvie Ward Jr., Doug Ford and Bud Holscher, together at 296.

Hogan's successive rounds were 72-73-72-70. He had only eight birdies for the four rounds.

Fleck, a soft-spoken fellow who says his greatest golf achievements have been a few local tournament victories back home, was not overly surprised at finding himself tied with Hogan.

Fair Warning.

"I wrote the sports editor back home that some sleeper might slip in," he said, "And I told him it might be me."

He said that final putt "looked mighty tough."

Hogan's golf rounds were almost forgotten in the late afternoon in the excitement over the darkest "dark horse" since Sam Parks came out of nowhere to win the Open at Oakmont, Pa., in 1935.

Ben, following the familiar formula of coldly playing the course and letting his foes beat themselves, never once cracked the par 70 of Olympic's 6700-yard cypress jungle. Only Fleck didn't get scared.

This is the first National Open title playoff since 1950 when Hogan, recovering from a near fatal automobile accident, tied Lloyd Mangrum and George Fazio, also at 287, and shot a 69 to win the following day.

Fleck played in that tournament, his first open, but failed to qualify for the last 36 holes. He played at Oakmont in 1953 but finished far out of the running.

No one else even threatened Hogan today after the tight-lipped Texan took charge with his string of steady pars.

Bolt, Snead Bow Out.

Bolt, the early front-runner, skyrocketed to a 75-73 for the final rounds. Snead took a 70 in the morning to go into the final round just a stroke back of Hogan, but his putter deserted him completely in the afternoon and he took a wild 74.

Boros jumped to a 77 after a morning 73, unable to keep his tee shots out of the rough. Rosburg, after a brilliant 67, slacked off to a 76.

Ward, co-leader at the halfway mark with Bolt, took a pair of 76's yet wound up as the leading amateur at 296. Holscher, far back after the first two days, rallied with 71-73, while Ford shot 74-71.

Defending Furgol, who barely qualified for the final day's play, was 25 strokes off the pace with his 312. Another disappointment was Gene Littler, acclaimed the brightest newcomer to golf, who finished at 300 with final rounds of 73-78.

BEN HOGAN getting out of a little trouble on the fourth hole of the last round in the National Open golf tournament at San Francisco. His 287 was matched by Jack Fleck of Davenport, Ia. They will play off for the title (18 holes) Sunday.

Furgol Coaches Fleck in First Bout With Fame and Flashbulbs

SAN FRANCISCO, June 18 (UP)—Jack Fleck, a public course pro from Davenport, Ia., said today he had a hunch he would sink a difficult seven-foot putt on the eighteenth hole to give him a tie for the U. S. National Open golf championship.

"I felt it would go in," the smiling but very tired 32-year-old Navy veteran said. "I just putted it . . . it went in . . . and all I can say is I was very fortunate."

Fleck, just after tying mighty Ben Hogan for the crown with a 72-hole total of 287, showed up in the Olympic Club press room arm-in-arm with the dethroned champion, Ed Furgol of St. Louis.

Furgol coached him through the ordeal of an interview with scores of reporters and a horde of cameramen.

"I hope they run out of film pretty soon," Fleck said, blinking his eyes in the glare of the flash bulbs.

Scorns Caution.

Fleck said he learned on the 14th hole that Hogan already was sitting in the clubhouse with what appeared to be a winning total of 217. Fleck was one under par at that time and needed two more birdies to tie.

"Somebody said, 'Just play it safe, Jack,'" Fleck said. "But I said I was going to play as hard as I could—and not play it safe."

Fleck has been a pro since the day he got out of high school in 1939 but almost a non-winner in his years of tournament golf. He is an ex-caddy who never won an amateur tournament and never did much as a pro. He has played in two other National Opens, but never finished high up.

No Moneybags Year.

His biggest success this year was eighth place in the Celebrities' Tournament in Washington. He won $1200 there. His total earnings for the year are $2700.

Fleck never has played a round with Hogan, the man he must meet tomorrow for a prize worth $6000, plus another possible $50,000 that usually goes to the champion in personal appearances and endorsements.

"But one thing," he said, "I'm using Ben Hogan clubs."

Southern Cal Takes NCAA Track Title Seventh Year In Row

BETWEEN ROUNDS

by W. J. McGoogan

Olson Faces Big Task In Moore Bout.

CARL (BOBO) OLSON is the middleweight champion of the world and a worthy successor to the long line of really good men who have held the 160-pound championship. And like some of his predecessors, he is going to try to win the light-heavyweight title to go with his present crown. This he will attempt to do at the Polo Grounds, New York, next Wednesday night in a 15-round bout with Archie Moore, now of San Diego, Calif., but who grew up in St. Louis, after having been born in Collinsville, Ill.

Boxing history is dotted with matches between middleweight titleholders and kings of the light-heavyweight division and sometimes the smaller man was successful.

In Moore, however, Olson will be meeting a master boxer who can also hit and while nobody is inclined to take anything away from Bobo, particularly after his 21 straight victories, it is believed that Moore will prove too much for him.

Moore will prove too much for him unless getting down to 175 pounds from the 196½ he weighed only a month ago when he defeated Nino Valdes in Las Vegas, Nev., proves too much for Archie.

Joe Maxim, a former light-heavyweight champion from whom Moore won the title, then defeated twice more, had something to say about that the other day when he scoffed at the thought of Moore being weakened by weight reduction.

"Archie was supposed to be so weak from making weight for our last match (in Miami, Fla., last January) that it appeared they might have to carry him into the ring. Instead of that they darn near had to carry me out."

In his title defense against Harold Johnson last August, Moore also had some difficulty in getting down to 175 pounds but he did it and stopped Johnson in the fourteenth round, actually getting better as the fight progressed.

Moore is, of course, getting no younger and constant weight reduction may take something out of him, take enough out of him, perhaps, to permit Olson to beat him because Olson is a busy boxer in that ring. You fight him three minutes every round you're in there with him and Moore is one who has liked to pace himself and not travel at too strenuous a gait.

It is generally conceded, however, that Sugar Ray Robinson, in his prime when he held the middleweight title, was a better man than Olson is today. In fact, Robinson knocked out Olson once in the twelfth round and beat him in 15 rounds on another occasion.

Also, it has been proven conclusively that Moore is a better man than Maxim. Still Robinson was unable to defeat Maxim when they tangled in New York. Robinson failed to answer the bell for the fourteenth round and Maxim won on a technical knockout.

It was a very hot night and the heat was blamed by Robinson's backers for his failure to defeat Maxim, but the fact remains that Robinson was not bothered by making weight while Maxim had to shed pounds and twice because the fight was postponed because of rain.

Walker Failed, Too.

MICKEY WALKER was a great middleweight champion during his reign but he failed in an effort to lift the light-heavyweight crown from the brow of Tommy Loughran, losing a 10-round decision in Chicago.

Walker later tangled with heavyweights with more or less success.

Harry Greb defeated Bryan Downey in a middleweight championship match on Dec. 3, 1923, then fought Gene Tunney just a week later, Dec. 10, for the light-heavyweigth title but Tunney won in 15 rounds.

Stanley Ketchel, one of the greatest, if not the greatest of all middleweight kings, went a step further than some of the others when he took on Jack Johnson when Johnson was the heavyweight champion of the world.

Ketchel made Johnson go 12 rounds, too, but after Ketchel floored Johnson, Jack got up and knocked out Ketchel with a punch.

The hackneyed phrase about a good little man not being able to beat a good big man still applies, however, and it is peculiarly true of the coming match between Olson and Moore.

There are other circumstances besides weight making which cast something of a doubt over Moore's ability to defeat Olson. Archie, after all, is nearing 39 years of age while Olson is only 26. Boxers as old as Moore, and particularly after 20 years in the ring such as Moore has spent, sometimes go quickly. They appear to be all right before a fight while they're training, but in the ring age catches up with them all of a sudden and it's all over.

So Olson is definitely not without hope as he looks forward to the bout, but Moore should prove more than Bobo can handle.

Wins Three N.C.A.A. Titles.

Michigan State gymnast Carl Rintz won six major titles in 1955, including three N.C.A.A. championships.

Five Marks Bettered, One Tied

LOS ANGELES, June 18 (AP)—Five N.C.A.A meet records fell and one was tied as the University of Southern California came from behind today to capture the National Collegiate track and field championships for the seventh straight year.

Competition was so keen that the winning Trojans trailed neighboring U.C.L.A. by a point until the final event—the pole vault—which continued long after the other events finished. However, few persons in the crowd of 14,005 left Memorial Coliseum. They cheered each time a vaulter cleared the bar.

U.S.C.'s heavenly twins, vaulters Ron Morris and Walt Levack, came through to produce 10 points for the victory. They were in a four-way tie for second.

U.S.C. scored 42 points to win, U.C.L.A. collected 35 points for second. Kansas won a surprise third with 30. Oregon had 29, Northwestern 20, Manhattan 18, Duke 16 and Penn State 14.

Ernie Shelton of Southern California broke the meet high jump record as he cleared 6 feet 11⅛ inches without missing to that point. But he failed again in three tries to become the first man ever to clear seven feet.

Les Bitner of Kansas smashed the brittle javelin mark with a throw of 246 feet 1 inch and Tom Courtney of Fordham broke the 18-year-old half-mile record when he won in 1:49.5.

The old 880-yard standard of 1:50.3 was set in 1937 by John Woodruff of Pittsburgh and equalled in 1949 by Mal Whitfield of Ohio State. Today's second place winner, Pete Gray of Michigan, also was under that at 1:50.1.

Milt Campbell of Indiana, runner-up in the 1952 Olympic decathlon, tied the 120-yard high hurdle record of 13.9 seconds. Defending champion Willard Thomson of Illinois couldn't run today after pulling a muscle in low hurdle preliminaries yesterday.

Jim Golliday of Northwestern became the meet's double winner as he copped both the 100 and 220-yard dashes. He took the 100 in 9.6 and the furlong in 21.1. That wasn't quite as fast as the 20.9 of yesterday with which the flyer from Evanston broke the meet record for the race around a turn. Second went to Art Pollard of Penn State.

Bill Watson of Florida pressed Golliday in the century but missed by a step.

In the javelin Bitner needed a record throw since Al Cantello of La Salle had thrown 245-3½ just a minute before. Jerry Church of Oregon State, whose throw of 232-6 had set a new record yesterday in preliminaries, found that effort good only for third. In field events preliminary results count if not bettered in finals.

The final N.C.A.A. mark of the day fell when Don Bragg of Villanova cleared 15 feet 1 inch to erase the old N.C.A.A. record of 14-9¾ set by Don Laz, Illinois, in 1951.

Des Koch became the first University of Southern California winner when he threw the discus 176 feet ⅜ inch. Ron Drummong of UCLA took second at 163-7¾.

An Oregon man also won the two-mile as Ken Reiser of Oregon took the long event in 9:04.5. The big surprise was failure of USC's Fernando Ledesma to place. He had the fastest time of any collegian going into the event but took only seventh. Jim Beatty of North Carolina was the runner-up.

Charley Pratt of Manhattan College captured the 220-yard low hurdles in 23.1, with Jack Mathews of Iowa second.

Performances by midwest athletes included a fourth by Dick Blair of Kansas in the 220; a first by J. W. Mashburn of Oklahoma A&M in the 440; a fifth by Les Stevens of Iowa in the high hurdles; a third by Al Frame of Kansas and a sixth by Karl Jonsson of Illinois in the two-mile; a first by Bill Nieber of Kansas in the shot put; a fifth by Erwin Cook of Oklahoma in the broad jump and a fourth by Henry Cryer of Illinois in the 880-yard run.

Alton Golfer In Lead With Sub-Par 65

Robert Mitchell of Alton came through with a seven-under-par 65 to take the lead at the end of the first eighteen of the 36-hole medal amateur invitational tournament yesterday at the Municipal golf course in Alton. Mitchell had a two-under 34 on the first nine and was four strokes under the par figures on the back nine.

Two golfers, Joe Evans of St. Louis and Walter Calvey of Alton, were tied for second place with a 66 each. The defending titleholder, Carl Colborn, who won last year with 139, tallied a 72 at the halfway mark.

The field of 89 golfers will begin today's final round at 8:52 a.m.

Cornell Crews Sweep College Rowing Races

SYRACUSE, N. Y., June 18. (UP)—Cornell's powerful oarsmen rewarded Coach Stork Sanford's confidence in them today by sweeping all three races of the 53rd annual Intercollegiate Rowing Association regatta.

More than making up for a disappointing early season record which brought disappointing defeats by Pennsylvania and Navy, Cornell's sophomore-laden varsity stroked to a two and one-half length victory over the same rivals on mirror-like Lake Onondaga, just north of Syracuse.

The Big Red also won both the freshmen and junior varsity races for a total of 20 points which earned them the Jim Ten Eyck team trophy for the second year in a row.

This was the first time in 41 years that the Big Red oarsmen swept all three races. The Washington Huskies were the last previous crew to perform the feat, in 1950.

Pennsylvania, a redhot crew which beat everything in sight this spring (including Cornell twice), had been the big favorite for this most gruelling of all college rowing events. But Sanford refused to believe it. He maintained throughout the past week that his Cornell varsity boat was just reaching its peak after being held back by inclement weather on Lake Cayuga.

"We'll win," he told reporters last night. And that's just what Cornell did.

Cornell's winning time in the varsity race was 15:49.9. Penn was clocked in 15:49.9 and Navy third in 16:04 flat.

The rest of the order of finish and the times:

Washington, 16:09.9; Stanford, 16:14.8; California, 16:18.9; Boston University, 16:24.7; Princeton, 16:25.1; Wisconsin, 16:30.6; MIT, 16:36.7; Columbia, 16:39.4; and Syracuse, 16:39.7.

Fay's Reaper Wins 3d Time At Fairmount

Fay's Reaper, a horse accustomed to long races, caught the bettors by surprise at Fairmount last night and won a six-furlong dash, paying $11.60 for a $2 win ticket.

A good crowd, announced as 9689 paid, evidently felt Fay's Reaper would not win at the shorter distance but it came up strong at the head of the stretch to win in 1:11 3/5, beating out Harry Lou and Gus Fan.

It was the third victory of the meeting for Fay's Reaper, ridden by Billy Gummow, who scored with Hatchet Man in the first race. Fay's Reaper is owned by Mrs. T. M. Pruett.

Go Jeep Go won the fifth race and thereby posted its third victory of the meeting.

Gold Box Wins Shevlin Stakes

NEW YORK, June 18 (AP)—The Greentree Stable's Gold Box captured the twenty-eighth running of the $30,150 Shevlin Stakes today at Aqueduct.

The Wheatley Stable's Dark Ruler finished second in a photo finish over the Woodley Lane Farm's Blue Quest in a field of ten 3-year-olds.

Jockey Ted Atkinson rode the winner, bringing him his sixth victory in the Stakes. The winner took charge near the head of the stretch and romped the seven-furlong distance in 1:23 2-5 on a fast track. Gold Box earned $21,100 by his victory.

Third choice in the betting, Gold Box returned $14.70, $7.40 and $5.60, while Dark Ruler paid $9.50 and $6 and Blue Quest $5.30 to show.

E. P. Bixer's Bunny's Babe, the 8-5 favorite, finished fifth.

Commission Report On the Week's Fishing

JEFFERSON CITY, June 18 (AP)—Fishing was just fair in most of Missouri's major lakes and streams during the last week, the State Conservation Commission reported.

Most waters were clear but a few were either dingy or muddy in the wake of local rains.

Best fishing of the week, the commission said, was for bass and goggle-eye on the Eleven Point river, bass and perch on the Meramec and perch at lake Taneycomo.

Elk Hunting Report.

A total of 2985 hunters bought Arizona elk licenses this season. But reports reveal that 142 of them did not hunt. The kill of 629 elk by 2843 hunters produced a hunter success of 22.1 per cent.

Dick Savitt Gains Oklahoma Final

TULSA, Okla., June 18 (AP)—Dick Savitt, Corpus Christi, and John Been, Shawnee, Okla., today won the Oklahoma Open tennis tournament's doubles championship by trimming the Los Angeles team of Robin Willner and Ed Kauder, 6-4, 9-7.

Savitt, the singles favorite, and his second-seeded Texas rival, Bernard (Tut) Bartzen, won their way with comparative ease to Sunday's championship match.

Savitt, former Wimbledon winner, defeated Houston's Sammy Giammalva, 9-7, 6-0. Bartzen, from San Angelo, Tex., easily polished off Ronaldo Moreira, Brazilian Davis Cupper, 6-2, 6-2.

Miss Brough Enters Eastern Tennis Meet

HAVERFORD, Pa., June 18 (AP)—Louise Brough, former United States and Wimbledon tennis champion, will try for the Pennsylvania and Eastern States women's grass court tennis championship in the fifty-fifth annual tournament at the Merion Cricket Club July 18-24.

She lost the final last year in three sets to Mrs. Beverly Baker Fleitz. An entry also has been received from Karol Fageros, Miami, eighteenth ranking women's player in the United States.

20-Year-Old Dash Record Is Shattered in Church Track Carnival

Mitchell Timed at 9.8 in 100

Edward Mitchell, a 27-year-old night school student at Washington University, broke a 20-year-old 100-yard dash mark in the St. Louis Church Association track and field meet at Clayton High's bowl yesterday afternoon.

Mitchell, a student at Vashon High from 1942-1945 who later attended Virginia Union University, ran the century in 9.8 seconds. The old mark, 9.9 seconds, was set by Ed Waite of Kingshighway Presbyterian in 1935.

Mitchell also won the senior 220-yard dash in 22.5 seconds.

Berea Presbyterian retained the team championship by accumulating 65 points on the 33-event program. Ladue Chapel, tied with Berea at 52-52 with three events remaining, ended second with 59. Ladue won the midget division trophy with 23 points and also took the junior division honors with 14. Berea captured the intermediate division with 25 and tallied 29 for No. 1 spot in the senior division.

There were 12 records broken and two additional marks tied in the meet postponed from a week ago because of rain.

Bill Bangert, one of the district's best weights throwers, heaved his chromium-plated 16-pound ball for a new record. Chuck Batch of St. Wenceslaus broke a 1936 mark in the senior 440 and the Berea 880-yard relay team had a record breaking 1:33.7 mark.

Karl Kramer of Pilgrim E. & R. was a double winner in the intermediates. He won the 12-pound shot put and ran the 180-yard hurdles in 22 seconds for a new record. Kramer, a recent Roosevelt graduate, tied for second in the broad jump. Jim Green of Ferguson's First Baptist Church, leaped 5 feet 10 7-8 inches for a record. Green won the University City and Little Six high jump events this year and tied for first in the Junior Olympics.

A 1932 record was broken by Don Becker in the junior 75-yard dash prelims. Carl Challgren of Kirkwood's First Presbyterian bettered the 1934 record in the junior high jump.

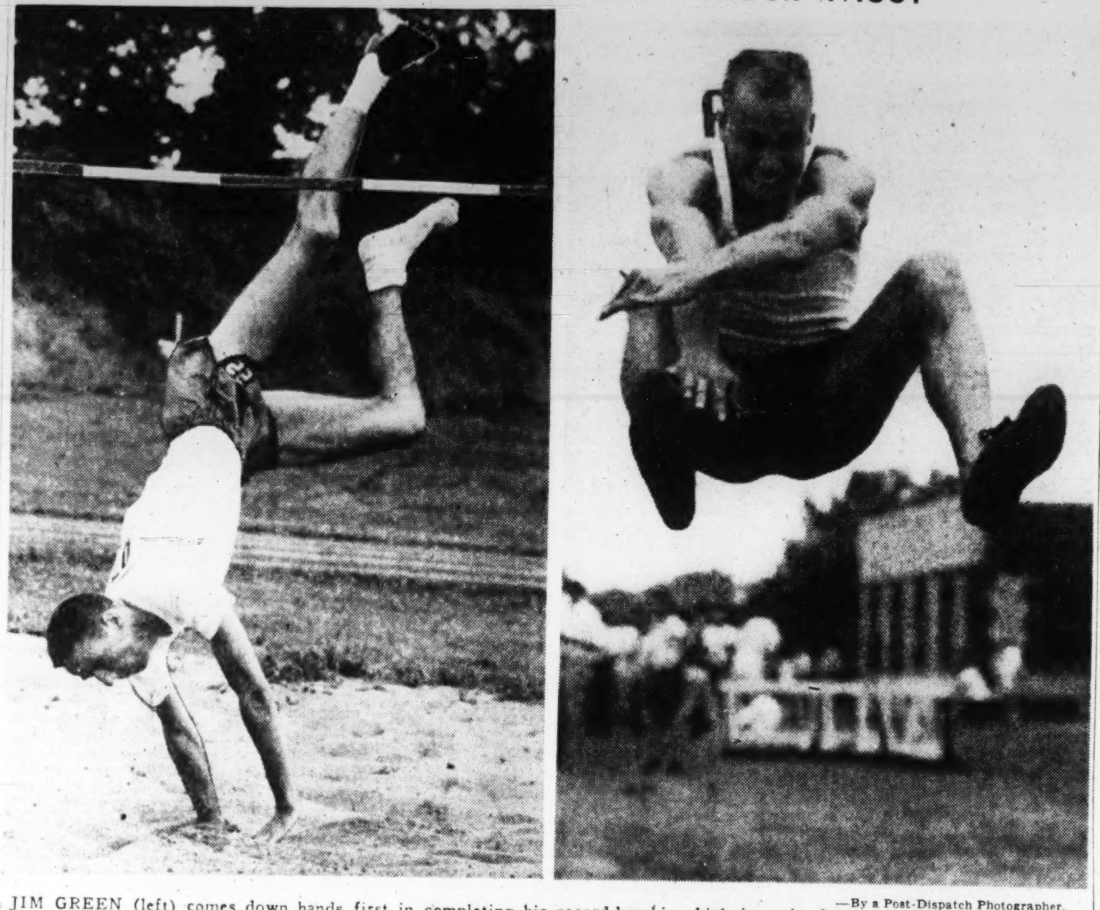
Point Winners in Church Track Meet



—By a Post-Dispatch Photographer.

JIM GREEN (left) comes down hands first in completing his record-breaking high jump in the annual Church Association track and field meet at Clayton High bowl. He leaped 5 feet 10⅞ inches. At right, KARL KRAMER, winner of the 180-yard low hurdles and 12-pound shot events, tries a preliminary effort in the broad jump. Both competed in the Intermediate class. Kramer set a meet record in the hurdles.

Scholarships at Missouri U. to District Stars

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

COLUMBIA, Mo., June 18—The University of Missouri has awarded athletic scholarships to five of the state's top-flight basketball players and four track performers as well as seven football players. Among them are three from the St. Louis district.

Included are brothers of two Tiger athletes, Clinton V. Kelly of Kansas City, Class A high school half-mile indoor and outdoor champion, and a brother of Duane Kelly of the varsity track team, and Robert L. Davis, Kansas City track and baseball performer and a brother of Jack Davis who lettered in the same sports as a sophomore this year.

Among the basketball players are Robert A. Cooper of Brentwood, Jerrald D. Bucksath of Dalton, Kent D. Hall of Versailles, and Donald W. Hymer of Kansas City.

Other track awards went to James W. Sanders of Kansas City, Class A indoor mile champion, and Joe H. Fristoe of Lee's Summit, second in the Class B outdoor mile.

The football scholarships went to Robert Beck, 255-pound St. Louis Ritenour tackle; Jerry Burl Galloway, 200-pound Unionville tackle; Thomas G. Swaney, 193-pound Platte City fullback; Edward J. Perniciaro, 185-pound St. Mary's of St. Louis halfback; Phillip E. Brown, 190-pound Aurora halfback; Joseph M. McKinney, 200-pound Moberly center, and Albert E. McCravy, 170-pound Kansas City, Kan., halfback.

Swaney doubles in basketball and track, Perniciaro in track and baseball, Brown in basketball and track, and McCravy in track. Beck was the Class A high school champion in the shotput.

McCravy is the third graduate of Shawnee Mission High School in Kansas City, Kan., to accept a Missouri scholarship.

Fats, Leans Play Today.

The forty-ninth annual baseball game between the Maplewood Fats and Leans will be played at 1 p.m. today at 3200 Laclede Station road. All proceeds go to charity.

Mark Christman, formerly of the Browns, will manage the Leans, and Windy Helms will direct the Fats. Former professional players who will appear include Emmett Mueller, Heine Meine, Milt Burns and Boris Martin.

Mays Goes Ahead of Duke Snider in Poll

CHICAGO, June 18 (AP)—Willie Mays of the New York Giants today took first place in the balloting for the center field spot on the National League team in the All-Star baseball game.

Mays, who was voted the most valuable player in his league last year, moved ahead of Duke Snider of the Brooklyn Dodgers and Richie Ashburn of the Philadephia Phillies.

The annual game between the selectees of the American and National Leagues will be on July 12 in Milwaukee.

By Harold Tuthill

"Did the Cardinals ever have a Knothole Gang at old Robinson Field, at Vandeventer avenue and Natural Bridge road?" Ernest Meissner, 3719A Wisconsin.

Yes. James C. Jones created the Knothole Gang in 1917 while the Cardinals still played their games at Robinson Field. They moved to Sportsman's Park in 1920.

"What are the lifetime major league batting averages of Jim Bottomley, former Cardinal first baseman, and Gil Hodges, Brooklyn first sacker?" Lackland Blossom, 506 Olive.

Bottomley's average was .310, while that of Hodges is .276, not including games this season.

Charleston Club Owner Wants to Sell

CHARLESTON, W. Va., June 18 (AP)—The struggling Charleston Senators baseball club, mired in the American Association cellar for the fourth straight season and losing money steadily, was put up for sale today.

President Danny Menendez told a news conference he was ready to sell the 95 per cent of the Senators stock which he controls. He declined to name a price, saying that would be a matter to be negotiated with a prospective purchaser.

Menendez said he has no definite buyer in sight, either locally or elsewhere.

"Negotiations with a local group have been going on for a week, but that has fallen through now," Menendez said.

Two recent "inquiries" have come from out of town, but they did not amount to offers, Menendez added.

The club president said the Senators were in the red for this season to the tune of $26,600 as of June 1.

He said it looks as if the loss for this season will be between $35,000 and $40,000, unless attendance at city-owned Watt Powell Park takes a turn for the better.

The Senators formerly were the Toledo Mudhens. Menendez moved the franchise to Charleston midway in the 1952 season. The Senators finished eighth that season and the next two, and that's where they are in the standings today.

"Charleston is one of the most fertile baseball towns in the country, but it will take more money than I've got to make a go of it," he continued. "A ball club in the first division here could make $75,000."

Last December a local group headed by Attorney Walter Crichton took an option to buy the Senators for $135,000. But the deal collapsed because the group failed to raise the money. It is believed Menendez has come down from that price.

Wimbledon Shapes Up as U.S.-Australian Duel; Trabert Favorite

Champion Drobny Not Expected To Repeat

WIMBLEDON, England, June 18 (UP)—Tony Trabert, top-seeded for the second straight year, will be favored to give the United States its seventh Wimbledon men's crown since World War II when the two-week tennis classic starts Monday.

Trabert, a 24-year-old power hitter from Cincinnati, is a 7 to 4 choice to receive the world's most coveted tennis trophy from the Duchess of Kent on the famed center court July 1.

But form fails frequently in this ivy-clad home of tennis. Trabert, a former U.S. champion, was favored last year. He developed painful blisters on his racket hand and lost to Australia's Ken Rosewall in the semi-finals.

Jaroslav Drobny, the former Czech Davis Cupper who now plays for Egypt and lives in England, then achieved a lifelong ambition by beating Rosewall for the title. As the defending champion, the 33-year-old Drobny will open the 1955 turnament in a center court match against Switzerland's Rene Buser at 8 a.m. St. Louis time Monday.

But Drobny, who has been troubled by a grumbling appendix and muscle strains in recent tournaments, is seeded sixth and rated only a 14 to 1 shot to retain the title.

Tony's Fingers Sore.

Trabert will open against Australia's Mal Anderson when 128 players from 30 countries clash in 64 first round men's singles matches. Tony again developed sore fingers on his racket hand while winning the French title at Paris. He played only in doubles this week during the London grass court tournament and said today his fingers were "coming along alright."

Vic Seixas, the United States titleholder from Philadelphia who won the Wimbledon crown in 1953, is seeded third behind Rosewall and meets A. J. Clayton in the first round. Vic is the fourth choice in the betting at 6 to 1.

Nineteen United States players have entered the men's singles but the only other seeded yank is Budge Patty of Los Angeles, the 1950 winner. Patty is seeded sixth and meets George Druliner of Los Angeles in the first round.

The Australians, trained by Harry Hopman and eager to avenge their loss of the Davis Cup to Trabert and Seixas last December, figure to provide the stiffest competition against the Yanks in the men's division.

The 20-year-old Rosewall is rated second in the betting at 4 to 1, while Lew Hoad, his Davis Cup team mate, is seeded fourth and is third in the wagering at 5 to 1. Rex Hartwig is seeded fifth and is fifth in the betting at 8 to 1, while Mervyn Rose, another good Aussie player, is 16 to 1 in the wagering. Patty also is a 16 to 1 shot. Art Larsen of San Leandro, Calif., and Ham Richardson of Baton Rouge, La., are 20 to 1 and Herb Flam of Beverly Hills, Calif., is 25 to 1 in the betting.

Rose Looks Toughest.

Rose appears to be the toughest rival in Trabert's quarter of the draw which is set up to produce a Trabert-Rosewall final.

Maureen Connolly (now Mrs. Norman Brinker), the San Diego, Calif., star who won the women's title the past three years, has announced her retirement. But either Doris Hart of Miami, Fla., or Louise Brough of Beverly Hills, Calif., probably will give the United States the crown for the twelfth straight time. The women's play will begin Tuesday. The United States has 10 entries among the 96 in the women's singles.

Miss Connolly, who will cover the matches as a reporter, will be the most notable absentee from the 78-year-old tournament. Tennis experts who have watched Wimbledon championships since the turn of the century considered her the equal of Helen (poker face) Wills and France's Subanne Lenglen among the all-time greats of women's tennis.

Competing for Titles in National Sokol Meet Here

—By a Post-Dispatch Photographer.

Pitchers Lead The Hitters in C.Y.C. League

Pitchers can hit in C.Y.C. senior baseball. Bob Horas (.500) of St. Raphael, Dick Gangloff (.473) of St. Pius and Nick Rallo (.461) of St. John's, all hurlers, are the top three hitters in the 16-club senior division.

Horas and Gangloff are their teams' No. 1 pitchers, but both play regularly even when not on the mound. Next come Mike Holway (.350), St. John's; Don Burrus (.350), St. John's; Bob Dredel (.320), St. Pius, and Tom Vorst (.320), also St. Pius.

Dick Rosenthal, former C.Y.C. athlete who went from Notre Dame's basketball team to the professional Fort Wayne club, is scheduled to umpire the doubleheader at Sherman Park No. 2 today. He is in the Army, stationed at Fort Leonard Wood, and plans to umpire every weekend he is able to get off.

St. Pius remains the only unbeaten senior team, boasting five victories and a 6-6 tie with St. Raphael.

Brother Act Meets Khoury Leaders Today

The Schmersahls will try to add to their first-place margin in the Khoury Central County senior baseball league today when they oppose the Orlando Brothers at Berkeley. The 11-brother Orlando team has a 2-2 record; Schmersahls' is 3-0.

Stockham Post, one of several Legion teams competing as a unit to prepare for possible Legion playoffs, goes for its third victory in as many starts in the University City League at Heman Park. Bartmer A.C., 1-2, is the opponent.

Veterans A.C. and Second Ward Democrats, sharing the lead in the league at Fairground No. 6, match 2-1 records at 3:30.

Soccer Notes

Eight clubs have filed entries for the summer soccer league to be conducted at Fee Fee Gardens in St. Louis county, starting July 11. Walter Giesler, league promoter, announced yesterday the following clubs are in: Jones, Richmond Heights, Overland, St. Louis County A.C., St. Philip Neri, Tabacchis, Pastures and Dogtown. Others are expected, but none of them will be from the Kutis club. Manager Nick Jost has given his players permission to play with any of the teams entered. Former star player Joe Phelan will manage the Dogtown team.

Final of the Meramec Sport Club soccer tournament, postponed from last Sunday because of wet grounds, is reset for this afternoon. Finalists Mike Brehenys and Meramec will meet at 1 p.m., on the Sport Club grounds.

Chicago Necaxa club has invited the Occidental club of Guadalajara to the Illinois city for an exhibition match.

Missouri Soccer Commission's delegate to the United States Association annual convention will be Harry Luecke, the alternate Walter Giesler. The convention will be at Atlantic City, July 8-9-10. Nick Jost will attend as an observer.

'Double' Pays $1254.

CHESTER, W.Va., June 18 (AP)—Dreist and Casita, in the 1-9 spots, paid daily double ticket holders a whopping $1254.60 today at Waterford Park.

Dreist won the first race paying $54.80. Casita paid $45.60. The track record for daily doubles is $3939.40 in 1952.

Amling Is Football Coach In Lutheran High Shifts

By Harold Tuthill

Lutheran High will get a new football coach, Arol F. Amling, and several changes will be effected in the Crusaders' coaching staff, it was announced yesterday.

Amling, a resident of Pana, Ill., is 27 years old and a graduate of Valparaiso (Ind.) University, where he played football for four years, being named to the first team of the Indiana Collegiate Conference all-star team in 1951. He received all-state basketball mention in Illinois in 1946. From 1952 to 1954 Amling was in the Army. After his discharge he returned to Valpo as assistant coach.

Amling succeeds Bob Bishop, who left the school. Bishop's place as athletic director will be taken over by Herb Moldenhauer, assistant principal and baseball coach.

Louis Schroer, former B team basketball coach was elevated to the varsity post and Amling was designated Schroer's replacement in the sport. David Rohde will continue to coach freshman basketball.

Robert Klink will assist in football and Donald Mundinger, with the help of Gerald Visser, will coach B team football. Visser will replace Moldenhauer as baseball coach and Robert Wendt will be the B team baseball coach.

Carl Napier will continue to coach tennis, assisted by Schroer.

More coaching changes in the city high school ranks are impending, judging by an informal poll taken the past week, the final one of the school year.

Earlier it was indicated that Cleveland High which has lost Bob Sweeney to the insurance business probably would get Ray Cliffe from Central, in which case a vacancy would be created there. That probably would be filled by H. Max Carlisle, Redwing basketball coach, who was a strong candidate for the gridiron job when Cliffe got it.

An informed source said Central also was losing its principal, Ben H. Barr, who was moving to the downtown office of the Board of Education. It was understood a former coach who turned to administrative work and has served as assistant principal at several high schools would be promoted into Barr's vacated post.

Southwest head coach Jim Kenny had hoped to keep Merrill (Butch) Rogers as Longhorn assistant to help out if J. T. McArtor is unable to coach this fall, but Rogers took the assistant's job at St. Mary's when Bob Burnette moved to McBride.

McArtor, who was injured in a fall from a tree in his backyard early this spring, has been recuperating at home. If possible, he will return to Southwest. If he is unable to assist Kenny, though, it is likely that Frank Merchant, B team coach, would be promoted.

With Burnette moving to McBride, the Irish were expected to make several changes in their personnel because Al Lindahl, the football coach, had a draft classification of 1-A and was scheduled for military training soon.

Burnette most likely will become head basketball coach and George Bauer, presently coach of the winter sport, will take over Lindahl's football job.

The Irish were sure to lose their athletic director, Bro. William Whiteman, who said he was leaving McBride to complete his work for the priesthood.

Lindahl was told that if he was not called up, he would be given another job with a member of the Catholic Athletic Conference.

In any event, this could be the lineup of Public High League coaches next fall:

Coach.	School.
Irvin L. Obermark	Beaumont
H. Max Carlisle	Central
Raymond C. Cliffe Jr.	Cleveland
Julius D. Blanke	McKinley
George V. Hasser	Roosevelt
Anthony F. De Filio	Soldan
James D. Kenny	Southwest
Wilburt O. Sanders	Sumner
Carl J. Granberry	Vashon
Otis E. Finley	Washington Tech.

Adios Harry First In Match Race

WESTBURY, N. Y., June 18 (UP)—Adios Harry, leading from start to finish, won his heralded match race with Adios Boy tonight at Roosevelt Raceway in 1:59 2-5.

In taking the first match race in harness racing since the turn of the century, Adios Harry scored by two lengths over his greatest rival and only threat to top pacing honors. The winner's return in the winner-take-all test was $3.30.

The 1:59 2-5 clocking, second fastest in harness race history and a record clocking for four-year-olds, enabled Adios Harry, owned by J. Howard Lyons of Greenwood, Del., to score his first victory over Adios Boy. As a two and three year-old, Adios Boy beat Harry five-for-five.

C.Y.C. Pitcher Fans 20 in 7-Inning Game

Bob Mayer struck out 20 batters in a seven-inning C.Y.C. midget baseball game yesterday as he pitched Resurrection to a 14-2 victory over St. Agatha at Cherokee Park. The twenty-first putout resulted from a pickoff by Mayer. He had a no-hitter until the seventh when the first two batters singled.

In a free-scoring bantam contest, Christ the King beat Our Lady of Fatima, 19-18. In the seventh and last inning, the winners scored six runs, the losers eight.

Mickey and Stan.

Only two active players in the major leagues have hit more than 400 doubles. They are Mickey Vernon of the Senators and Stan Musial of the Cardinals.

Going Camping? Missouri Has Many Sites.

THE BEST FUN a father and son can have is to find a somewhat isolated place in the outdoors, pitch a camp and go fishing.

Missouri offers many opportunities for doing just that. Scattered throughout the state are numerous public camping sites close to good fishing waters but remote from crowds.

One of these is the Goose Neck public camping grounds along the Current river between Van Buren and Doniphan. To get there, one must take Carter County Highway C off Highway 60 to the south, then follow forest routes.

A camp site is available to the public at Loggers lake on United States Forest Service land out of Bunker, Mo. This lake has bass and sunfish.

Opened to the public for the first time this year is McCormack lake, in the old Eleven Point game refuge off Highway 19 in Oregon county. Because it had been used as an experimental station by the Missouri Conservation Commission, the lake probably has more smallmouth bass in it than any other similar body of water in the state. Camping also is permitted there.

Beautiful scenery, good camping grounds and at times excellent fishing are to be found at Alley Spring State Park, west of Eminence.

The spring branch runs into Jacks Fork river. This site is a favorite with some anglers who consider themselves right at the top in smallmouth bass fishing. It also produces many bluegill and green sunfish.

Increase in Camping.

Public camping grounds have been established on the Missouri side of Bull Shoals lake. Far less private than some of the other sites is the public camp in Lake of the Ozarks State Park, south of Bagnell dam. To visit this park, turn onto State Highway 42 off Highway 54 a short distance south of the dam.

Some of the public camp sites in the state are accessible by roads which permit trailers to be towed in. Others are not.

Dan Saults, editor of the Missouri Conservationist, said there is an increasing interest in camping. One reason is the continued reduction in working hours in industry, giving men more time for recreation. More persons have weekends to devote to fishing now than in former years. Vacations also are much longer.

Another factor is the great improvement in economic conditions since the major depressions in the 1930s. Today many persons have the time to go camping as well as the money to buy tents and other necessary equipment.

As a result, men who never in their lives had an opportunity to see much of the outdoors, unless they happened to be reared in the country, are finding a chance to do so now. It's a great experience for both father and son.

Setting up a tent, gathering firewood and toting water from a nearby lake or stream are part of the fun of camping. And, a man and a boy can find nothing to excel the pleasure of cooking freshly-caught fish over a camp fire.

At Lake of the Ozarks a jack salmon that goes more than six pounds is now called a john salmon. It's sort of a dignified title given to the fish because of its above-average size.

Ladue Men Catch Marlins.

Julius and Jack Leventhal, 17 Godwin lane, Ladue, caught three marlin in one day last month while fishing in the Pacific ocean off LaPaz, Baja California, Mexico.

The fish weighed 169, 158 and 108 pounds. Julius Leventhal required two hours and 10 minutes to land the 169-pounder. Jack got his 158-pound marlin in one hour and 50 minutes.

In addition, Julius also brought in a 40-pound dolphin.

The "Ballad of Davy Crockett" has given Missouri's fur trade a shot in the arm, the Missouri Conservation Commission says. Fur pelts are needed to make coonskin caps for youngsters who fancy themselves budding Davy Crocketts.

Bills to Play Kentucky Here Again

Two New Foes From Louisiana

Another tough 24-game schedule for the St. Louis University basketball team was announced today by Athletic Director and Basketball Coach Eddie Hickey. Among the nation's leading teams on the Billikens' 13-game schedule at Kiel Auditorium are Kentucky, Ohio State, DePaul, University of Washington, and Cincinnati, in addition to the Missouri Valley Conference opponents.

The Bills have a Dec. 10 date with St. John's in Madison Square Garden, and on their return from New York the St. Louisans will play the University of Indiana at Bloomington. The Kentucky game here will be on Thursday, Dec. 29.

Additional non-league road opponents for St. Louis U. include Louisiana State, Drake and Arkansas.

The Missouri Valley Conference, in which the Billikens were co-champions with Tulsa last season, will be strenghtened by the return of Bradley University. Other conference teams are Oklahoma A. & M., Detroit, and Wichita.

Detroit will open the Billikens' conference play with a New Year's Eve game at Kiel Auditorium.

Two new opponents will open the season. Louisiana Tech will play at Kiel on Dec. 3 and Centenary College of Shreveport, La., will be here Dec. 7.

Three men from the Bills' starting lineup will be available for the coming season. They are Captain-elect Jim McLaughlin, Grady Smith and Joe Todd. Gone are Dick Boushka and Jerry Koch. Hickey's team won 20 and lost 8 last season.

The scheduel:

Dec. 3, Sat., Louisiana Tech, Kiel; 7, Wed., Centenary, Kiel; 10, Sat., St. John's, Madison Square Garden; 12, Mon, Indiana; Bloomington; 17, Sat., Ohio State, Kiel; 20, Tues., Washington (Seattle), Kiel; 29, Thurs., Kentucky, Kiel; 31, Sat., Detroit, Kiel.

Jan. 5, Thurs., Louisiana State, Baton Rouge; 7, Sat., Houston, Houston; 11, Wed., Bradley, Kiel; 14, Sat., Detroit, Detroit; 18, Wed., DePaul, Kiel; 28, Sat., Cincinnati, Kiel.

Feb. 2, Thurs., Wichita, Wichita; 4, Sat., Tulsa, Tulsa; 6, Mon., Oklahoma A. & M., Kiel; 11, Sat., Houston, Kiel; 15, Wed., Bradley, Peoria; 18, Sat., Wichita, Kiel; 21, Tues., Drake, Des Moines; 25, Sat., Tulsa, Kiel.

March 3, Sat., Oklahoma A. & M., Stillwater; 5, Mon., Arkansas, Fayetteville.

'LUCKY TO BE HERE,' SAYS KELLERT, EX-BROWNIE RIDING DODGERS' BENCH

FRANK KELLERT

By Jack Rice

Supose you are Frank Kellert. Age, 31. Occupation, baseball player. Ambitions, thwarted. You are a first baseman and your efforts to become a major leaguer include two training-camp experiences with the late Browns, when they led the league in first basemen—five present one year, six the other, in 1952 and 1953.

You were the right age to get almost four years of varsity competition in World War II. You came out of the service telling yourself baseball is fun but a college diploma is a necessity so it wasn't until 1949 you tried professional baseball. Still talking to yourself, you decide that if you're not playing Class AA in two years, go home to father and begin improving your knowledge of the meat-packing business.

The Cardinals hire you, and two years later you still look like a Piedmont Leaguer to them. They listen to the tale of the self-set deadline and oblige by selling you to Oklahoma City. That's the Texas League, and it's also the home town. The world is not yet ready for another meat-packer.

Two Moves as a Brownie.

Four years later, the Browns have moved you twice, and they've moved themselves, and as the Baltimore Orioles they've moved $40,000 out of their kitty to get Eddie Waitkus, a first baseman. Then they move some more good money and a large piece of box office named Bob Turley, and they get Gus Triandos. He's a first baseman. It begins to seem a great year for meat-packing.

The Orioles sell you to Brooklyn. This, you know, is a two-league move. You are a pull hitter, and there is a short left field fence at St. Paul, Brooklyn's American Association farm club. You send the Dodgers your regrets. You won't be there. Their Red Patterson, a man to make Eskimos trade in their ice boxes for an air-conditioning unit, sells you on the nothing-to-lose theory, by telephone.

"This club doesn't buy a man without a purpose," says club executive Patterson. "Maybe you can make a home for yourself as its righthanded pinch-hitter."

That you've done. You are batting .342 at it, and you've scored eight runs and driven in seven in 19 games, 38 times at bat. You are part of one of baseball's most remarkable early-season runaways. You're closer than one of the fans you had intended to be, but not as close as you would like to be. You're not playing every day.

So, a man asks you, "What do you think as you watch the regulars on your team come to bat?"

"Make it an association test, like the psychologists do—you know, 'I say home, you say run'," the man says. Being Kellert, and being agreeable, you do so and it goes like this:

Junior Gilliam — "The hard luck hitter. He makes stars of the fielders. But he strikes out seldom and as a defensive marvel he's worth his weight in gold."

Peewee Reese—"He's the daddy of the shortstops, and his hits are a big factor."

Duke Snider—"He sizes it up for himself, hitting the long ball or catching someone else's."

Roy Campanella—"There's the fellow who made the terrific comeback. You've got to rate him tops among catchers in both leagues. Clutch hit? He pulled me out of a hole after I drop that pop-fly against the Cardinals. My 5-year-old coulda caught it."

Gil Hodges—"Looks like he's coming into the form I've always heard about. He's the one reason I thought I shouldn't come to his organization. You don't drive out a star like him."

Sandy Amoros—"One of the most-improved ballplayers I've ever seen. His key throws, throwing out runners at the plate when we had to have it—and pull the ball like he does, it's great for first-to-thirding the runners."

Jackie Robinson — "The best base-runner, best hustler I've ever seen. He's proved to me he's a money ballplayer. No spring chicken. It's a marvel the way he can go out day after day with the will to win."

Carl Furillo—It's amazing how he knows every nick and chip in a wall, and the way it will make the ball bounce."

Frank Kellert — "Man, I'm lucky to be here." Few benches, after all, ever have offered so good a view of a pennant.

Foe to See if Printers Are True to Type

Borbein-Young, whose title hopes were jolted in a double loss to Union Printers three weeks ago, run into their tormentors again today in the 3:30 o'clock Muny North Side baseball league game at Fairground No. 1 diamond.

Both teams have 3-3 records, two games behind Kutis North, defending league and Muny titleholder, which is expected to coast past the Polish Falcons (1-5) in the 1 o'clock opener.

The Falcons, behind Pitcher Pat Drury, broke into the victory column in their last start by walloping the Printers. However, Kutis, too, has been on a hitting rampage in recent weeks with Jack Cheatham pacing the club with a .565 average. Others over .400 are Bob Burrichter .458 and Jack Caito .455. Vern Stout has a fat .400 mark.

In the South Side loop at Carondelet No. 1, the first-place Kimacks meet Kutis South before Carondelet Suiday Morning Club, a game off the pace, plays Gravois.

McNearys, one game in front in the Heine Meine league, oppose Luigis, formerly the Rebels, at Porky's Field. Hoffmeisters, in second place, meet the Carondelet Advertisers at Meine Field. Both games start at 2:30.

DOWN THE STRETCH
by Herman Wecke

"Shampoo? Tonic?"

"SHAVE! HAIRCUT!" If you should hear that while walking through the barn area at Fairmount Park you won't have to go away shaking your head thinking that maybe something is wrong with your hearing. . . . It will only be that one of the trainers has forgotten that he is now a conditioner of horses and no longer is in the barber business at Morrisonville, Ill. . . .

It will be Fielder Sperry, who trains Mr. Swank for E. E. Pershall. . . . Mr. Swank, incidentally, is a son of The Dude and a brother of Simmy, which has run in some of the bigger Eastern stakes. . . .

Sperry opened a barber shop in Morrisonville after serving a hitch in the Army in World War II. . . . However, he was bitten by the racing bug and sold his shop. . . . But not his tools. . . . He always carries his kit and only recently was called upon to give Ralph W. Choisser, state steward, a haircut and Racing Secretary Jack Klucina a shave. . . . Helps make up the overhead. . . .

And then there's G. A. Hodges, who would rather talk fishing than racing. . . . Comes from Simon, Idaho, and says "the best fishing in the world takes place near Simon." Hodges, who was a rancher for 25 years, says he knows because he did his share of fishing in those parts—or until he put together a thoroughbred stable and hit the road. . . . He owns San Andres, which ran second Friday night; Ricco and Grandlaris. . . . The trainer teams up with Roy Bratcher of Phoenix, Ariz., who says he has Tony's Last and King Air ready to go in this week's races. . . .

Trainers from many points in the country are at the Collinsville track. . . . A. S. Moore is from Walterboro, S.C., while C. H. Springs, the track's top conditioner, comes from San Antonio, Tex. . . .

Springs is the trainer for the strings now managed by Fred Roenigke. . . . Included in the five "walkers" who cool out the horses is Mrs. Roenigke, while the stable employs five grooms. . . . Rafael Sanabria, Joe Dyer, Clarence Meaux and Willie Brinson handle the horses in the morning workouts. . . . It's one of the busiest stables at the track. . . . Now boasts 15 wins. . . .

A former polo playing St. Louisan, George Manley, is ready to resume activities at the Collinsville track. . . . He came from Ascot, O., with 12 horses. . . . Manley was a member of one of St. Louis's top polo teams 25 years ago. . . . It included August A. Busch, Jack Krey, Henry Griesedieck, Adelbert von Gontard and Lou Scharr. . . .

IF the bill which would cut the state's take from 6 to 4 per cent passes the Illinois House and is signed by Gov. Stratton next week, it will help Fairmount for the last 14 days of its meeting and Cahokia Downs throughout its 60 days. . . . The bill is figured on a $300,000 daily handle and not an average. . . .

"Should we handle $300,000, the state would get 4 per cent or $12,000," said Managing Director Ray Bennigsen. "But if we handle $300,001, it would mean we would have to pay better than $18,000. So you see that on extra dollar wagered would cost the track $6000." . . .

Bennigsen also said that the law would apply to the larger tracks in the Chicako area should something unforeseen happen to the mutuel handle at those courses.

Cahokia Racing Begins July 23

Cahokia Downs will open its second thoroughbred racing season July 23 and run through Oct. 1, it was announced today by George Edw. Day, the track's new managing director. The directors, at a meeting last week, decided to race six nights a week. Races will start at 8:15 o'clock instead of 8:30 as was the case last year.

There will be one afternoon program, Labor day, with the following night dark. Although no date has been set for the second renewal of the $12,000 St. Louis Derby, it is probable that the event will be run Sept. 17, two weeks before the close.

Jack Klucina, who again will serve as racing secretary, said that applications for more than 400 horses had already been approved and that others were expected from Nebraska, Chicago and Ohio.

With the track resurfaced since the close of last year's meeting, it was announced that the course would be opened and horses received beginning June 27. A new barn is nearing completion at the track and according to officials, when it is finished, Cahokia will be able to accommodate 926 horses on the grounds.

O'Fallon 5-1 Winner In Inter-Park Tennis

Bev Tolan of Maplewood High won the only match for the Jefferson Memorial team as O'Fallon won the other five and romped to an easy victory in a Muny inter-park tennis series yesterday at O'Fallon. The first-round play was postponed from last Sunday.

Bev Tolan (J) defeated Mary Beth Bonkrud (O), 6-2, 6-1.

Ray Wiese (O) defeated Bill Roeder (J), 6-3, 6-3.

Don Dippold (O) defeated Fred Varner (J), 6-2, 6-1.

Janina Rahubka and Elsie Bonkrud (O) defeated Lydia Wieberg and Mary Ann Kramer (J), 7-5, 6-3.

Harry Roberts and Gene Lindeman (O) defeated Bob Friedman and Fred Arnstein Jr., 14-12, 6-2.

Jean Zacny and Joel Bonkrud (O) defeated Marilyn Mueller and Gus Pfeifer (J), 10-8, 6-3.

OAKLAND-SUBLETTE

Women's Singles: Carol Klima, Oakland, defeated Lynette Beall, Sublette, 6-4, 7-5.

Mixed Doubles: Florence Probert and Harold Igeler, Oakland, defeated LaRaine Benecke and Humphrey Cook, Sublette, 6-4, 6-3.

Women's Doubles: Oakland wins on default.

2 Tourneys on Week's Tennis Schedule Here

A busy tennis week is in prospect for St. Louis, with two tournaments on the schedule in addition to the city's instruction program in 11 parks and Muny Inter-Park play this afternoon.

Out-of-town players are expected to compete in Washington University's college girls' championship starting Wednesday at the Hilltop courts. Miss Janet Hopps of Seattle University is defending champion and is expected to be on the court when the final round is played Saturday.

The St. Louis District junior tournament will begin Tuesday morning at Tower Grove courts, with all junior boys and girls 18 and under expected to report at 9 a.m. Boys and small girls 15 and under are to report Wednesday at 9 a.m. Neil Drury, winner of the city and state jaycee singles titles, is one of the junior boy favorites.

Free lessons under the supervision of the city's Parks and Recreation department will get under way in nine of the 11 parks or playgrounds tomorrow, at two other spots Tuesday. Some of the lessons, in which players must furnish their own racquets, tennis balls and suitable shoes, are in the morning, some in the afternoon and evening classes for adults are slated at Fairgrounds, Carondelet Park and Kingshighway courts in Forest Park.

The Muny Inter-Park schedule for this afternoon will be featured by a meeting of the Tower Grove and O'Fallon squads at Tower Grove. In other matches Jefferson Memorial will visit Francis Park, Oakland plays at Carondelet and Tandy at Sublette. Matches will start at all four places at 2 o'clock and include two men's singles, one men's doubles, one women's singles, one women's doubles and one mixed doubles event.

Following are the locations and time schedule of the Parks and Recreation Department's tennis instruction program:

FAIRGROUNDS—9 to 11 a.m. Monday, Wednesday and Friday and 6 to 8 p.m. Tuesday and Thursday.

O'FALLON—3 to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

An Explosive Issue

Movie Sex, Brutality Stir Church Criticism

By James Bacon

HOLLYWOOD, June 18 (AP).

IS Hollywood injecting needless smut into its handling of such themes as sex and brutality? Or is it that the movies are simply becoming more realistic and grown-up?

The powerful Roman Catholic Legion of Decency has blasted what it calls movie material "gravely offensive to the moral law." Similar sentiment is sounded in Protestant church councils.

LILI ST. CYR . . . HER DANCING BROUGHT OBJECTIONS.

But the movie industry, as reflected by its own Production Code, maintains that the recent relaxing of restrictions was done with a keen ear to public opinion. Some top industry figures hold that the movies are still too timid.

The Legion of Decency and the Production Code are the most powerful censorship groups in the field, and an explosive crisis may result from the divergence of their views. There are some indications that a crisis has already arrived.

For example: Howard Hughes got Code approval for "Son of Sinbad" while the Legion condemned it, even after re-editing. Much of the Legion's objection is directed at the dancing of Lili St. Cyr, burlesque and night-club strip-teaser.

The Legion's threatened boycott caused a downtown Los Angeles theater to cancel the picture before a scheduled June opening. Four recent pictures which got Code okay were recut after Legion protests. They were: "Battle Cry," "Three for the Show," "Kiss Me Deadly" and "The Prodigal," the latter based on a Bibical parable.

● PRODUCERS RESPECT the Legion's effect on the box office. Hollywood gets most of its money from a picture in the big city first runs. That's where Catholic population is heaviest.

Protestant groups, which may differ with the Catholics on theological issues, generally agree with the Legion's moral policing of movies. The Legion of Decency represents more than 30,000,000 churchgoers while the Protestant Motion Picture Council represents another 48,000,000. That's a lot of ticket sales—or rejections.

Nevertheless, few will argue with the fact that the movies today are undertaking—and getting away with—scenes and themes they would not have been permitted to handle a few years ago.

A sample is "Mr. Roberts." The movie version loses little of the bawdy humor that made it a best selling book and stage hit. In "Love Me or Leave Me," the story of singer Ruth Etting, there is a bedroom scene the movies wouldn't have tried a few years back.

Rivalling sex as a target of movie criticism is a current cycle of movies stressing brutality. Probably the most shockingly brutal movie ever made is the current "Blackboard Jungle." It has such scenes as a classroom knife fight between a dope-crazed student and the teacher; a poison-pen campaign intended to break up the teacher's marriage, this done by a pupil, too; the brutal beating of two teachers by their pupils and a complete breakdown of classroom discipline.

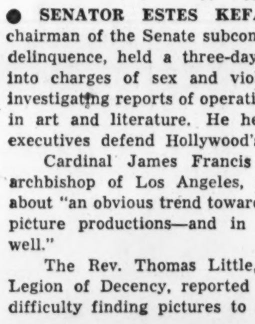
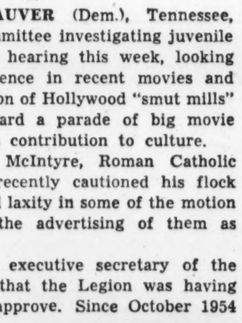
● SENATOR ESTES KEFAUVER (Dem.), Tennessee, chairman of the Senate subcommittee investigating juvenile delinquence, held a three-day hearing this week, looking into charges of sex and violence in recent movies and investigating reports of operation of Hollywood "smut mills" in art and literature. He heard a parade of big movie executives defend Hollywood's contribution to culture.

Cardinal James Francis McIntyre, Roman Catholic archbishop of Los Angeles, recently cautioned his flock about "an obvious trend toward laxity in some of the motion picture productions—and in the advertising of them as well."

The Rev. Thomas Little, executive secretary of the Legion of Decency, reported that the Legion was having difficulty finding pictures to approve. Since October 1954 he reported, the Legion had reviewed 196 pictures and had given objectionable ratings to 78 of them.



CARDINAL McINTYRE . . . CAUTIONED CATHOLICS.



ERIC JOHNSTON . . . DEFENDS THE MOVIES.

In rebuttal, Eric Johnston, head of the Motion Picture Association, said: "We feel we are doing an excellent job with an ear to public opinion."

He added that Hollywood pictures couldn't hold 60 per cent of the world's playing time if the Code were not conscious of public opinion.

● DORE SCHARY, production boss of M.G.M., has made the same speech several times in recent months—since the completion of his studio's "Blackboard Jungle."

"The film industry is too timid," says Schary. "There is a tendency in the picture business to be frightened by controversy."

Schary recently bought the Broadway hit "Tea and Sympathy," one of the most delicate themes ever contemplated for screen treatment. It deals with a boy of suspected homosexual tendencies in a private school and how the headmaster's wife proves the gossip wrong.

That may have been what Father Little had in mind when he said: "Producers as a matter of deliberate policy have been contracting for a considerable amount of literary material which is gravely offensive to the moral law."

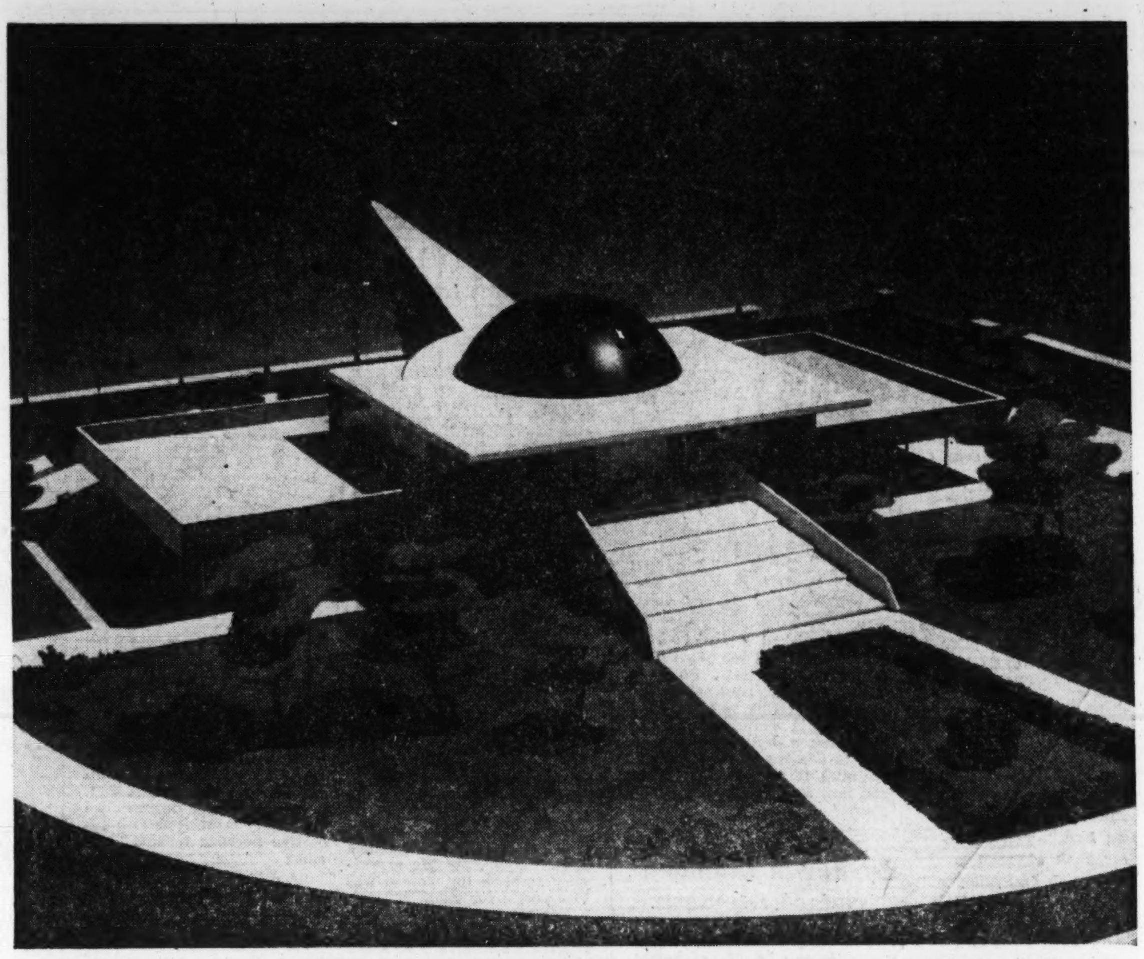
How Backers Planned Planetarium for St. Louis, Got It Included and Passed in Bond Issue

By Dickson Terry



ARCHITECT'S MODEL OF THE SUGGESTED PLANETARIUM FOR ST. LOUIS. VOTERS APPROVED $1,000,000 IN THE RECENT BOND ISSUE ELECTION FOR ITS FUTURE CONSTRUCTION.

A STORY going around City Hall these days concerns a city worker who, on the day after the recent bond issue election, announced that he had voted for everything but that planetarium.

Asked why he had singled out the planetarium for his disfavor, he said sternly, "I think we already got enough greenhouses around St. Louis."

How funny that strikes you will depend on how much you know about a planetarium. To the backers of the project, known as the Planetarium Forming Group, it isn't very funny. One of their biggest jobs, during the weeks of their intensive campaign to get the project included in the bond issue, had been that of trying to make it clear to people that a planetarium is not: (a) a place where plants are grown; (b) a fish house where exotic fish are on display, and (c) an observatory where you pay a dime to look through a telescope at the stars.

This then brings up the question of just what is a planetarium. As a matter of fact a lot of St. Louisans, after having voted to spend $1,000,000 to build one here, have found themselves asking just that question. Aside from the fact it has something to do with the stars, these people, including the writer, have had a pretty foggy notion of just what it is and what it does.

To put it scientifically, explains Howard Ohlendorf, chairman of the Planetarium Forming Group, the modern planetarium consists of a room with a hemispherical domed ceiling, the inside surface of which is coated white and serves as a projection screen. In the center of the room is a unique mechanism containing many electrical devices, gears, motors and projectors known as a planetarium projector.

The projector, to all intents and purposes, is a time and space machine, since it carries audiences up into the heavens and shows the progress of the stars through hours, days, months and even centuries in a matter of minutes and seconds.

BUT it's much more than that, explains Ohlendorf, switching from the scientific to the lyrical. The audience sits in the normally-lighted dome room, facing the center. Around the perimeter of the dome is a silhouette of the familiar local skyline. This begins to fade as the lights slowly dim, simulating nightfall, and soft music is heard in the background.

As it grows dark, the stars come out, and the lecturer tells about the stars as they become visible, one by one and in groups. When the sky becomes pitch black, the star-studded heavens appear as though the spectators were out of doors on a remarkably clear and starry night.

The events that occur in the firmament in the course of a day are made to happen in the planetarium in as short a time as one minute. A whole year may be reviewed in a couple of minutes. The spectator is taken on a journey from the North Pole to the South Pole, and at any point the journey may be interrupted to give the audience a chance to see the heavens as they would appear from different spots on the globe.

The planetarium reproduces all the fixed stars, Ohlendorf explains, numbering about 9000, and including all the known constellations, such as the Milky Way. One sees the moon and its changing phases, and the planets Mercury, Venus, Mars, Jupiter and Saturn as they move through the sky. Also reproduced for the spectators are such things as the zodiacal light, solar and lunar eclipses, shooting stars and comets.

Observers may even go backward and forward in time, may see the heavens as Confucius or Ptolemy saw them, or as their own descendants will see them hundreds of years from now. And like a modern Joshua, it can cause the sun to stand still and the moon to stay.

AT present there are seven planetaria in as many large cities in the United States, but the St. Louis planetarium will be unique in that it will be the first one in the country to be ordered by a vote of the people and to be built at public expense. All the others in the United States have resulted from gifts by wealthy citizens.

The story of how the planetarium got on the bond issue is also unique. It was brought about by a group of ordinary citizens, none of them well known, and all of them amateurs. The story began a year ago when Ohlendorf, who operates a dental laboratory, decided that St. Louis needed something in the way of a science center.

Ohlendorf is interested in science, but he has had no scientific training. As chairman of the membership committee of the Academy of Science, he started the ball rolling by inviting representatives of other cultural groups around town to meet and discuss the idea of a science center.

A number of meetings were held, but no agreements were reached, mainly because they were unable to agree on exactly what they wanted to build. Finally representatives of seven different groups broke away from the original body and agreed that the thing to do would be to concentrate on one segment of a science center to begin with. They also agreed that they would go all out for a planetarium.

They named themselves the Planetarium Forming Group, and it consisted of representatives of the St. Louis Amateur Astronomical Society, the Meteorological Society, the Audubon Club, the Archaelogical Society, the Amateur Aquarius Society, the Webster Groves Nature Study Club and the Antique Automobile Club.

They met and discussed what kind of a planetarium they would like to see built in St. Louis, but they didn't have much idea of just how it was going to get built, until the proposed bond issue was announced.

"We decided," said Ohlendorf, "that here was our big chance." There were a lot of other groups eager to get their projects included, and some of them were represented by citizens far more prominent and influential than the Planetarium Forming Group. But there was one thing the group had which none of the others had when they appeared before the bond issue screening committee.

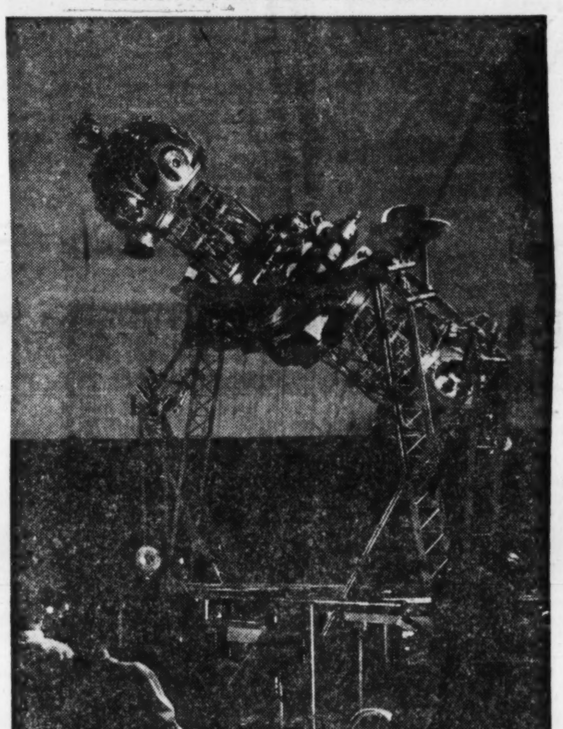
THEY had plans, facts and figures. They had made a nation-wide survey of planetaria. They knew exactly how to build one, what it would cost, and how much it would take to maintain it. Based on experiences in other cities, they showed the committee how it could be made virtually self-supporting at a nominal admission fee. They had even had an architect draw plans of the sort of planetarium they thought St. Louis should have. It was impressive, and the committee was impressed.

When the project was accepted by the screening committee, the forming group realized that it would be up to them as much as any one else to sell the public on it. It isn't easy to sell the public on something that few people know anything about.

One of the things they did was hold public star-gazing parties. The parties consisted of having several telescopes set up at places like Forest Park, and inviting people to come and look at the stars and listen to talks by members of the meteorological and astronomical societies. Some 3000 persons showed up at two such parties, but the group quickly discovered they were people already interested in stars and probably would vote right anyway.

The members of the group tried setting up telescopes at prominent corners around town and inviting passersby to take a look at the stars, during which they would give them a quick pitch about the planetarium and hand them one of the four-page folders they had printed telling about it. A lot of people looked at the stars, a lot of others thought there was a catch to it and shied away. And then, of course, there was the usual quota of wandering drunks, one of whom kept insisting he saw several moons and couldn't be talked out of it.



A PROJECTOR WHICH SHINES THE SOLAR SYSTEM ON A DOMED CEILING IS THE NUCLEUS OF A PLANETARIUM. IT COSTS ABOUT $150,000. THIS ONE IS SHOWN IN OPERATION IN THE PLANETARIUM IN CHICAGO.

They mailed literature to science instructors in all the schools, to church groups, civic organizations and scientific and cultural organizations. They had several radio disc jockeys tell people about the planetarium, and they set up a model of it in a downtown store window.

Although it ran behind most of the other 23 propositions, it got a healthy majority. The vote was 105,715 for the planetarium, 34,202 against it.

The planetarium as planned and suggested by the group, after a study of other planetaria around the country, would have a projection dome of between 50 and 60 feet and would seat 500 persons. It is difficult, they explain, to maintain the illusions with larger crowds than that. The planetarium, they hope, will be the nucleus of a considerably larger science center, toward which the group will continue to strive.

General construction of the building is estimated at close to $550,000. The projection dome screen would cost $50,000 and the projector would be somewhere in the neighborhood of $150,000. There are only two makers of projectors in the world, the Zeiss Co. in Germany and the Spitz Co. in Elkton, Md. Other items would bring the total cost up to an estimated $950,000.

IT would require an operating budget of about $75,000 a year, but experience of other cities indicate it could be virtually self-supporting. Chicago has an annual attendance at its planetarium of 4,500,000 persons. In Milwaukee last year well over 1,000,000 persons attended the planetarium there.

The question which naturally arises at this point is, when will it be built? Now that the people have voted to spend $1,000,000 to build it, it goes, as the next step, to the bond issue supervisory committee, a 20-member group with Sidney Maestre as chairman.

HOWARD OHLENDORF, CHAIRMAN OF THE PLANETARIUM FORMING GROUP WHICH WORKED TO GET THE PROJECT INCLUDED IN THE BOND ISSUE.

IT will be one of the jobs of this committee to give priority to each of the propositions according to how badly they are needed. This may mean, according to spokemen at City Hall, that the planetarium may find itself pretty far down the line. Only about $10,000,000 in bonds will be sold each year. If, on the other hand, projects planned for the first year should come to, say, only $9,000,000, the planetarium might be squeezed in then, it was explained.

Another question arises—where will it be situated? Several sites have been suggested, such as the riverfront, the Plaza area, and Forest Park. The Planetarium Forming Group favors Forest Park, and has even had plans drawn up for an area in the corner of the park at Kingshighway and Oakland avenue. However, its final location will be decided by the City Plan Commission, and its actual construction, once it gets the green light, will be under the supervision of the Board of Public Service.

The Planetarium Forming Group has done its job and done it well, so far as getting the project included in the bond issue is concerned. But they're only just begun, says Ohlendorf. For one thing, they hope to work with and advise the city in the building of the planetarium, and they plan to reorganize and go to work on the rest of the science center, which they hope, will someday be built around the planetarium and which will include a natural history building, an aquarium, a science and industry building and an auditorium. People who have had contact with the forming group are betting they'll do it, too.

But at least, says Ohlendorf, they won't have to explain to people what an aquarium is. He was thinking of the man who called the Mayor's office during the recent campaign to argue at great length about the planetarium. Asked what he had against a planetarium, he said he didn't have anything against it.

"It's just that I don't think we're taking very good care of the patients in the one we got now," he said.

He's Just A Poison Oak Fan

By Stan Delaplane

SAN FRANCISCO.

THE roses are busting out all over my neighborhood. Everywhere but in my garden. Weeds are busting out all over my garden. But not roses.

I think I put my roses in too late. Too late for roses, just early enough for thorns.

My roses are right alongside the doorway, just out of the overhead light. One branch loops out where you put the key in the keyhole. I could get a Purple Heart for the way my right arm is lacerated.

With all these thorns, people go right on talking about roses and considering them in Congress.

"The rose looks fair,
But fairer we it deem,
For that sweet odor
Which doth in it live."

There is joint resolution in Congress to make the rose America's national flower.

Let us this proposition examine. Before it as law doth become.

I find one of the reasons for nationalizing the rose is that 75,000,000 roses are sold to Americans each year.

What about all the people who get rose fever? Has this been examined? I do not get rose or hay fever. I get poison oak. Boy, do I get poison oak! Itching and scratching!

If Congress would like to nationalize something, nationalize poison oak. It is extremely hardy. It looks pretty. It doesn't scratch you like roses. You scratch yourself.

I THINK POISON OAK would be a very good national shrub. "Don't tread on me." "Remember the Maine!" Especially the summer in Maine when my eyes swelled shut.

It ties in with national slogans.

It is very democratic. It attacks man, woman and child. Even dogs. My boxer named Mike gets a distressing itch every summer. He is the delight of veterinary science. They have finally come to the conclusion that this dog is the ONLY dog in the world who gets poison oak.

I will contribute an heroic statue of this dog with one hind foot at his ear. Each year we can have a National Poison Oak Week. Little children can lay wreaths of poison oak at the foot of this statue.

Then they can go home and itch the rest of the week. It is a noble thought.

Unlike roses, poison oak does not have to be cultivated. It likes to grow right around roses so that you get it when you are weeding.

It is not susceptible to black spot or mildew. Nor do you have to feed it expensive dishes of Plant-Gro or spray it for aphids, thrips, leaf hoppers or gall midges.

It has no commercial uses. But it helps support the drug industry with big summer sales of calamine lotion which doesn't do a bit of good but makes you feel like you are doing SOMETHING anyway.

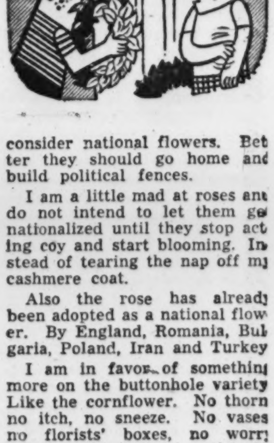
THE ONLY REASON I mention this at all is to show how foolish it is for Congress to consider national flowers. Better they should go home and build political fences.



I am a little mad at roses and do not intend to let them get nationalized until they stop acting coy and start blooming. Instead of tearing the nap off my cashmere coat.

Also the rose has already been adopted as a national flower. By England, Romania, Bulgaria, Poland, Iran and Turkey.

I am in favor of something more on the buttonhole variety. Like the cornflower. No thorns, no itch, no sneeze. No vases, no florists' boxes, no worry about slipping them aspirin to keep them fresh.

I think even on my land cornflowers would grow. Roses, now. All big talk and nothing.

On Current River

Filming Answers To 'Why Go Fishing?'

By Leonard Hall

IN CAMP AT THE LOG YARD HOLE,
CURRENT RIVER, CARTER COUNTY, MO.

"BUT WHY do you go fishing?" asks Mayo Simon, the Sol Speigel (better known as S. P. Eagle) of Washington University's Station KETC and Champion Indoorsman of the Western World. As he puts the question, he twirls his half-smoked cigar. One of the answers comes in the pleasant rhythm of raindrops falling on taut canvas, although this is not the best of all weathers for making outdoor movies. We have been in camp here at the Log Yard Hole for several days, nevertheless, filming some of the answers to Mayo's question. And after a couple of days it is plain that there is a lot more to fishing than "just fishing." Right now in our forest-green tent, Ginnie is curled up with a copy of Bromfield's latest book, "Out of My Experience." Rain comes down steadily and she seems quite content to have shed for a few days the cares and responsibilities of a farmer's busy wife. In another tent nearby, Mayo and Marty Snyder struggle with a shooting script, making the inevitable adjustments from studio to field conditions. Dan Lovins, our photographer, takes advantage of the rain to stretch out and rest his weary muscles. Most of the morning he has been standing waist deep in chilly water with his heavy Cine Special balanced to catch the boats as we run a swift rapid, or climbing a nearly vertical cliff for a long shot.

Just outside the tents, pulled well up on the gravel bar, is Ray Moss's "john boat." The river slides by, dark green at the far bank where it is very deep, and picks up the reflection of leaning sycamores and cottonwoods, toning to brown as it reaches the near shallows where clean gravel shows through the clear water. Our gravel bar rises to a good height above the river so there's little danger of being drowned out by a sudden rise; and behind the camp, raindrops drip from more giant cottonwoods. On the far side, downstream 100 yards, rises one of the beautiful limestone bluffs which characterize the Current river valley.

● THE BIRDS seem not to mind the rain. Brown bank swallows swirl past, close above the water's surface, picking up insects on the wing to carry home to their youngsters. We've seen their nesting holes in a high clay bank, a half mile or so upstream. Now and then a band of killdeer fly past and, despite their constant calling, Mayo refuses to believe that their Latin name is "vociferous vociferous." Even the evidence of Peterson's "Field Guide to the Birds" fails to convince him. In the woods across the stream we can identify a dozen species by their calls—indigo bunting, brown thrasher, wood pewee, white eyed vireo and the rest. A yellow billed cuckoo crosses the stream on graceful wings and from the highest branch of a dead tree a phoebe darts out to capture an insect. As soon as the rain stops, which we're hoping won't be long, Ginnie and photographer Lovins and I will push off to shoot more fly fishing sequences, with Ray Moss for guide. Whether or not the fish will strike is a matter which lies in the lap of the Red Gods who rule the destinies of fishermen and their quarry.

We came down at mid-week to make our Current river movies which will become part of our series of programs on KETC's summer "Almanac." Our company wouldn't quite equal those which trek out from Hollywood to film "Mogambo" and "The African Queen"—yet it made up quite a safari. There were producer Simon and Snyder, his director, and Lovins with his cameras. Ginnie and I and Ann Remmert and John Korty serve as "actors" for our river trip, carrying out a role which Ginnie and I, at least, have acted a hundred times before. Camp gear, duffle bags, tents, bed rolls, fishing tackle, grub boxes and camera equipment are enough to pretty well fill two station wagons and the small trailer behind our car.

● AT ELLINGTON WE STOPPED to crowd in all the ice our boxes would hold and pick up what odds and ends had been forgotten, then turned westward on Highway 108. Some eight miles out of town the Carr's creek road turns off into the hills and from here on one must watch sharply to keep the heavily loaded vehicles from dragging. Cardereva Mountain comes next: a tremendously steep grade which seems to climb upward forever. Once at the top, however, vistas of Current river valley open up. Then the road drops sharply down and soon we reached the Moss farm which was our destination. Ray and his dad, Tom, were down in the bottom fields plowing corn, so we drove on up the river road to our camp-site. It was late afternoon, by now, and the sun had dropped down behind the bluff across the stream. But the river ran green and clear beside the high gravel bar and it didn't take long to select a spot to pitch the tents. The mountain of duffle was moved down from the cars, the tents went up, firewood was gathered and well before dark camp was in order and the coffee pot boiling on the fire. After supper came Ray Moss and his young nephew, Philip, who will serve as our guides and companions as we head downstream, to talk over plans for the trip.

Once the dishes were washed, we piled wood on the fire so that it sent flickering shafts of light across the water. On all sides the Whippoorwills started their ceaseless calling and from the deep timber behind camp came the rolling "Who-who, who-who, who-who, who-o-o-ah-h" of Old Eight Hooter, the barred owl. Then everyone unrolled his bedroll under the stars and we lay back to study the slow-circling constellations. And Mayo Simon began to get the answer to his question, "Why go fishing?"

IT TAKES PLANNING FOR A HAPPY "LATER MATURITY," BUT SCIENTISTS NOW VIEW A 100-YEAR LIFE AS A REASONABLE BIOLOGICAL GOAL.

Distinguished scientists say that living to be 100 years old is a reasonable goal. Following is the first of two articles giving you the experts' hints and formulas on achieving a long, full life—how to live day by day, to plan for such things as retirement and how to enjoy your "senior years."

By Edwin Diamond

CHICAGO, June 18 (INS).

YOU can live to be 100 years old. This "king-sized" span of life can be full of happy and useful later years, too.

Achieving "100 happy years" involves understanding yourself and your body, planning ahead on financial arrangements, housing accommodations, leisure activities and retirement steps.

What is the evidence that you can live to be 100?

One in every 33,000 Americans will make it this year, and distinguished scientists like 80-year-old Prof. A. J. Carlson say a 100-year life is a reasonable biological goal.

Thanks to the increasingly good health parents pass on to children and to the conquest or curbing of scores of childhood and other diseases, the baby born today has a life expectancy almost double that of children born when George Washington was President in 1789. In 1952, the latest year for which Government statistics are available, the average life expectancy at birth was 68.6 years—65.9 for men and 71.8 for women.

Statisticians of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. have prepared a tentative table showing that the average life expectancy continues to rise, and reached 69.7 years in 1954.

As a result of this progress, medicine now recognizes as a distinct period of human life "later maturity"—the name used instead of the negative-sounding "old age." To cope with the period, usually defined as beginning between 60 and 65, a medical specialty known as gerontology has grown up in the last decade.

With the diseases of early life largely conquered, medical research is now setting its sights on the ills of later life—the so-called chronic or degenerative diseases like heart conditions, hardening of the arteries, arthritis, diabetes and rheumatism. Even here the picture is bright. Latest information on chronic ailments underlines two points—they are not inevitable and they can be treated and controlled.

Dr. Solomon L. Pearlman, specialist in internal medicine at Michael Reese Hospital in Chicago, declared:

"Illness is not an inevitable part of aging—there is no such thing as a specific disease of age. You do not get sick because you are old."

But there's one stumbling block in the path of a 100-year life—your attitudes towards old age and towards your body.

Dr. Carlson, the dean of American biologists and one of the world's foremost experts on aging, says that our bodies can make it to 100—if we'll only let them. Hale and hearty at 80, Dr. Carlson maintains that ignorance of biological facts, overeating, improper diet and laziness are depriving millions of a long and happy life.

Dr. Carlson estimates that as many as 35,000,000 Americans are cutting short their lives by over-eating—"digging their own graves with their teeth."

Here are their pointers on how to live 100 years—happily. First, Dr. Carlson's four-point program:

"1. Don't overeat, but be sure all the essentials are in your diet. We know from 50 years of nutrition research what should be in your diet. (The 'seven daily essentials'—milk, fruit, vegetables, meat, fish or poultry; cereals and bread; butter or oleo); any competent and up-to-date doctor can tell you what a good diet is. Overeating to the point of obesity shortens the life span and spoils the pleasures of our senior years.

"2. Initiate a program of continuous physical work. We know that when work stops, the human organism begins to degenerate. Work — and by this I do not mean just hobbies or crafts—is necessary to the good life. Retirement should be based on physiological age and not the chronological age.

"3. Keep alive your human curiosity. Have a system of continuous and real, that is factual, education throughout your adult life.

"4. Support and understand medical research aimed at advancing knowledge of preventive diseases. Our ideal should be cure, not merely control, of disease. The middle years from 35 to 50, is the time when millions of adult citizens should look forward to aging with greater interest and a factual understanding of the ways we can add life to our years."

HERE is Dr. Schindler's formula, adopted from his recently published book, "How to Live 365 Days a Year" (Copyright, 1954, by Prentice-Hall, Inc., New York, $3.95):

1. Keep life simple — keep yourself responsive to the simple things that are always at hand.

2. Avoid watching for a knock in your motor—look for illness and it will be sure to come via the psychosomatic route.

3. Learn to like work—since you have to work, you may as well learn to like it and avoid emotional trouble for yourself.

4. Have a good hobby—something which turns part of your existence into pleasure and pleasurable expectancy.

5. Learn to be satisfied—it is just as easy under most conditions to be satisfied as it is to be dissatisfied.

6. Like people — join the human enterprise.

7. Say the cheerful, pleasant thing—and get up on the right side of the bed.

8. Meet adversity by turning defeat into victory—age is often beset by adversity; when it comes, get up and go on.

9. Meet your problems with decision—don't keep mulling them over in your mind.

10. Make the present moment an emotional success—keep your attitude and thinking as cheerful as possible.

11. Always be planning something—a basic psychological need in every person is need for new experiences.

12. Don't let irritating things get your goat—say "nuts" to irritations.

The secret to 100 happy years is perhaps best expressed in this formula—add years to your life by adding life to your years. Despite its simplicity, that formula is a distillation of some profound truths about the mind and body.

THE formula is based on Dr. Carlson's personal prescription for longevity-with-health. He says:

"Stay slim, stay trim, stay curious, stay active and know yourself and your body—don't abuse it."

He maintains mental fitness will pay off in added years, just as physical fitness will.

"A continued lively mental curiosity," he says, "would add more life to our later years."

Keeping alert and curious, Dr. Carlson argues, actually retards the aging impairments of our bodies. Some popular notions that old age should be a "long period of quiescence relieved by death" cause Dr. Carlson to explode.

He is a subscriber to the theory of aging which holds mind and body machinery must be used—not disused or abused—or they will cease functioning.

Dr. Edward J. Stieglitz, editor of the classic text on aging, "geriatric medicine," persuasively argues that as much as 75 per cent of chronic diseases centering around the circulatory and nervous systems are stress-induced—have their beginnings in emotional tensions.

In his view, the poor health associated with later years may be caused in many cases by "immature" emotional tensions of middle age.

To overcome these unhealthy emotional reactions, Dr. Stieglitz suggests an "education for maturity"—preparation to face and solve the manifold problems created by the extra years science has given us.

But the saying goes: "You can't teach an old dog new tricks." Whenever middle-aged or older adults are told to learn new activities, hobbies or leisure-time pursuits, the line about the "old dog" who can't be taught is trotted out.

What are the facts? The work of psychologists shows that you can teach an old dog new tricks and that in some cases he learns better than young ones. A comparative study of academic achievement between college students and a group of middle-aged adults was made recently at Brooklyn College, Brooklyn, N.Y.

When the test results were in, they showed the Brooklyn adults were superior to college sophomores in social science and humanities, superior to seniors in humanities and equal to seniors in social science. They were inferior to both sophomores and seniors in the natural sciences (mathematics and physics).

Psychologist Peter Siegle of the Center, evaluating these results, declares they do not show any great decline in learning ability.

THE classic curve of adult learning ability, based on the work of Prof. Louis T. Thurstone and others, shows a steep upward climb to a peak in the late 20s, and then a plateau of learning with a gradual decline beginning in the late 50s. But this decline in ability is compensated, in Dr. Siegle's opinion, by an increase in depth and breadth of knowledge.

If the "old dog" is teachable, what should he learn?

Dr. Carlson says "not hobbies but a continuous, factual study of the nature of man and his universe."

At Brooklyn College, in the experimental degree program, a 49-year-old man employed as a telephone company switchman is preparing himself for ordination—he wants to work in "church welfare, a rescue mission or a rural pastorate after retirement."

A fellow classmate, a self-taught electrician who started as an apprentice 30 years ago without finishing high school, is studying for a degree because he is "interested in graduate work in physics and in teaching at the college level."

Dr. Jack Weinberg, psychiatrist at the University of Illinois, who is interested in mental health for older adults, offers this four-point program:

1. Cultivate and maintain active interests. Retire to something, not from something. To prepare for the day when you give up your job, learn some skill or vocation suited to your capacities and tastes.

2. Increase your participation in civic and community affairs.

3. Explore your new recreation pursuits; don't let television and radio replace the pleasure of parties, good conversation and dancing — activities that bring us together with others.

4. Start developing the potentialities hidden in you—those that have not been expressed during a busy life; with the greater leisure that comes with age, you have your opportunity.

(Tomorrow—Should you retire at 65?)

Why Women Live Longer

CHICAGO, June 18 (INS).

WOMEN live longer than men, and the reasons for it may offer some tips to men seeking to lengthen their lives.

In 1952, the latest year for which Government statistics are available, the life expectancy at birth for women was 71.8 years; for men, 65.9.

Experts say, first, that there is evidence the female of the species is biologically stronger than the male — more male babies die than female. But the American Medical Association says there's more to it than that. Its statisticians made a study of male-female death rates in the last 35 years and came up with some interesting conclusions.

Since 1920, male death rates, the A.M.A. reports, have gone up fast from heart disease and peptic ulcer, while female deaths have decreased from these causes in the same period. The A.M.A. points out "these diseases are commonly associated with excessive nervous tension" and adds:

"A difference in attitude of women towards their employment as compared to that of men may be a factor.

"A tendency for women to escape the consequences of worry by being more vocal or more tearful than men may be a factor."

The A.M.A. adds that the relatively higher death rates for men from various diseases—alcoholism, homicide and accidents — "may be due to their greater aggressiveness and lack of caution."

Some Ways to Get Work Done

By Mary Margaret McBride

ROGER EDMISTON, magazine writer of Portland, Ore., gathering material for an article, sends a little questionnaire to ask: (1) my formula for getting things done; (2) my motto to keep from procrastinating, and (3) how I manage to make myself do the tasks I most dislike.

I'll begin by saying that I doubt if any motto such as "never put off until tomorrow what you can do today" would help me at all. Mottoes irritate me both because they always sound smug and because they intimate that somebody somewhere (maybe the one who thought the mottoes up) is able to live by them when I can't.

I HAVE, as a matter of fact, a very childish system of forcing myself to plow through uninteresting, dull chores. I promise myself a lovely reward for my virtue in putting them behind me. If, for instance, I must buckle down to hours of proofreading (a job I detest) I decide that as soon as the drudgery is ended, I will treat myself to a lovely hot fudge sundae with almonds or order from the florist a handsome bunch of the little red Garnette roses that are so long-lasting and satisfactory.

Once in awhile I go furiously at unpleasant work as a means of getting rid of animosities. I remember one occasion years ago when I was irked at a sloppy wallpapering job for which I was paying an excessive price. I nearly pounded the keys off my typewriter knocking out an article which I had been avoiding for six months. Every time I hit a key I was aming a blow at the paper-hanger. The article turned out to have a good deal of zing, too. Maybe I ought to try that method oftener.

When something really disagreeable comes along, like having to fire an employe or complain over shabby service, my tendency is to put off the horrid task until I am overwhelmed by the injustice of it all, and then I wade in angrily. I realize this is not the best approach, for I'm inclined to say things I regret later. So usually I wait around trying to wheedle somebody else into doing my dirty work for me. Luckily, most of the people I know well are much braver than I am.

BUT FOR the ordinary situation, there is nothing to equal a deadline for getting things done. I've often wondered how people who work in fields unrelated to mine manage without an editor. My columns, for instance, MUST be in the editor's hands at a certain time. In radio, if the hour arrives and I'm not at the microphone, the result can only be silence, or after a pause, a bit of Sigmund Romberg, maybe. I even pay my bills by deadline, because after a certain date they send you a second notice and that I don't like.

One of the nicest feelings in the world is to wake up the day after an unpleasant job has been accomplished and know that it's behind you. Come to think of it, a perennially pleasant moment is that fine pause just after one deadline has been met, before the next one looms.

Marriage

On 'Going Home to Mother'

By Dr. Paul Popenoe

MANY brides actually make good the traditional threat to "go home to mother" after quarrels with their husbands. Usually this solves no problems and only creates a new one for the mother. The mother of the runaway bride is really on the horns of a dilemma. What should she do — believe the bride's angry or hysterical accusations against the "brute" that is her husband, or order her back home? Mrs. McA. is baffled.

"My daughter is back home with me after less than a year of marriage," she informs me. "She came in this morning, tearful and defiant. She said her husband is a selfish brute and she won't live another day with him. I have known that things were not going too well with them, but took great pains to keep out of it. Now I'm brought into it.

"Probably her husband is selfish. Probably he is ignorant. I'm sure he's no brute. He's a very fine young man. Probably my daughter is also selfish and ignorant.

"If I phone her husband, my daughter will blow up. If I cross-examine her, I'll not get the whole story. I'd like to be a peacemaker but not a meddler. What next?"

Actually, it is probable that neither your daughter nor her husband could really tell what the matter is. They need help from outside. A member of the family is not an outsider and is not the best one to help. I'm sending you the name of a competent marriage counselor near you.

THE WORST THING you could do would be to order the girl back to her own home. The problem from which she is running away would still be there. If the problem is inside her it would still be there, too.

A mother in your position is always safe in asking her daughter to look over one of the modern books on marriage and see if she can identify the real difficulty. If the clergyman who performed the wedding ceremony is near at hand and you have confidence in his ability to help, it is safe to send the young people to him. Many clergymen are excellent marriage counselors.

In short, the first thing to do is to find the cause of the trouble. The next thing is to remove it. The third thing is to go back to the marriage and make it successful.

Answers to Questions.

Q. My fiancee and I are each 20 years old. How long do the statistics say our marriage would be expected to last?

A. Barring divorce, you can expect to live together for more than 40 years.

Q. Why does a wife lavish so much affection on a dog and treat her husband as if he were a piece of furniture?

Schweitzer

A. Maybe the dog is more affectionate and responsive than the husband. Write me (enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope and a dime) for my booklet, "Success in Marriage."

Q. You talk a good deal about the need for improving husbands and wives. Isn't it about time to improve marriage, too?

A. Marriage is mainly the agreement of two persons to live together and to accept the responsibilities of living together. On the whole, then, the way to improve marriage is to improve married people. Of course, they are the ones who have to do this — they must improve themselves.

Q. HAVE TWO PERSONS any right to marry, if they do not want to have children?

A. Much depends on their reasons; and their religious convictions may need to be taken into account. Some people do not want children because of heredity too heavily loaded with serious defects. Sociologists Burgess and Cottrell, studying happiness in marriage, found that "the desire for children is markedly associated with good marital adjustment; the absence of this desire is found in a very high proportion of poorly adjusted couples."

Woman Manager of Airport

Mrs. Sally Lathrop, Who Fixed Her Plane With a Bobby Pin, Making Things Hum at Centralia Field

By John Keasler

A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch

CENTRALIA, Ill., June 18.

A GREAT deal of new activity is going on out at the airport here, to the delight of air-minded citizens. The reason is the new manager, Mrs. Sally Lathrop, a reddish-haired woman with a lot of plans. Now, if anyone feels that airport managing is a strange thing for a woman to be doing, kindly sit in on the following paragraph.

Mrs. Lathrop was flying along over Wisconsin once when her engine began to go sputter-sputter and otherwise become delinquent in its function of keeping Mrs. Lathrop in the wild blue yonder. She landed in a field, avoiding cows and the like, and eyed the faulty ignition system sternly. Then she fixed it with a bobby pin and took off again.

Somebody someday — perhaps the Ford Foundation?—will inaugurate research to discover what goes on with this woman-plus-bobby-pin mystery. Meantime, Mrs. Lathrop may feel free to number the ability to repair an airplane with a bobby pin among several of her qualifications which are unusual, to say the least, among airport managers.

A sewing teacher, she can alternate between the sewing machine and flying machine with equal professional skill; she's an accomplished oil painter, a weather expert, an efficient business woman, and once she had a cat named Josephine which she took with her in her flying machine. The cat did not like it. However, Centralia in general likes her views on flying, heartily.

The Centralia airport had been inoperative, or run on a now-and-then basis, until Mrs. Lathrop took it over the first week in April.

Well, it's not inoperative anymore.

THE new manager runs it from sunrise to sunset. Business is on the upgrade. New flying services have been, and are being, inaugurated. Flyers are sitting up and taking notice. Definite plans for a bigger and better airport are underway. The aviation-interested folk of Centralia (Pop. 13,863, 1950 Census) have been moved to enthusiastic applause for the work of this woman who flew in and made a going concern of a hit-and-miss operation.

She took the job over all by herself. It's hard work but she likes it because she's all wrapped up in airplanes and because she's a flyer, a breed no non-flyer ever quite comprehends fully.

Her work ranges from keeping office records to refueling planes to flying her own charter and passenger services, plus drumming up business, doing a skillful job of public relations, dealing in new and used airplanes, filling up the soft drink machine and sweeping out the administration building. Then, of course, there's miscellaneous.

It's her own business, meaning there is no salary to fall back on and it is soar or sink, on her own efforts. To date she is gliding nicely and gaining altitude, thank you.

She was chosen for the job over several male applicants. Centralia Airport, Inc., looked at her qualifications and decided she was the one for the position. (And they didn't even know about the bobby pin.)

Centralia Airport, Inc., is a seven-member, non-profit corporation formed through the efforts of the Airport Committee of the Chamber of Commerce which has long been interested in Centralia's air future. The corporation leases the airport land from the city for $1 per year.

When the corporation gave Mrs. Lathrop a year's contract they also gave her a year's free rent, a grace period to get over the initial rugged hurdles.

"In these few short weeks it has been obvious we made a good choice," said John Page Wham, local attorney and chairman of the Airport Committee. "This woman really gets things done."

WHAM, a director of the airport corporation (and president of the board of the Southern Illinois University) is a pilot himself, like most of the others active in the airport project, and he is highly interested in protecting and adding to the $100,000 investment in airport improvement work here.

The qualifications which got Mrs. Lathrop the job had a model airplane beginning. Back in the early 1940s her two sons contracted the model airplane addiction, then began to insist on trips to the airport. The addiction was contagious; Mrs. Housewife Lathrop caught the flying bug.

"I washed airplanes for my training," Mrs. Lathrop said. "For washing one airplane I got one-half hour dual training."

Sixteen clean airplanes later she soloed and got her private license at the field in her home state of Wisconsin in Waukesha.

After 200 hours came her commercial license. Now she has about 1500 hours, flies single and multi-engine, approaches plans for a transcontinental flight almost as casually as most women would a jaunt to the super-market.

The young Lathrops also kept up their interest in flying. John Lathrop, 24 years old, is an aeronautical engineer. Sgt. Lawrence Lathrop is in the Air Force. They will be watching with pride and interest when their mother takes off from Long Beach, Calif., next month for a Powder Puff Derby jaunt coast-to-coast to Springfield, Mass.

MRS. SALLY LATHROP AT THE CONTROLS OF ONE OF HER PLANES. SHE WAS CHOSEN OVER SEVERAL MALE APPLICANTS FOR THE JOB AS MANAGER OF THE AIRPORT AT CENTRALIA, ILL.

Back in Waukesha, Mrs. Lathrop became office manager at the local airport, and also taught ground school. She is an expert seamstress, who has conducted sewing centers, and she paid for her twin-engine instruction by re-upholstering planes.

Commenting on changing times, and the more frequent shekels around these days for aspiring pilots, she laughed, "Try and get somebody to wash planes in return for instruction now! I've made the offer since I've been here, and only one youngster showed up."

By 1949 she was conducting charter trips. Later, she put in a year as manager of Sky Lane Airport in Evansville, Ind., then heard about the opening in Centralia. She applied, nailed down the job.

MRS. LATHROP, who has been separated from her husband for several years, moved to her new job and her new town and liked it immediately.

"The reaction of everyone here has been, 'What can I do for you?'" she said, appreciatively, seated in her tidy, new administration building, which was erected last year by the local Jaycees.

A refrigerator and booths have been donated for a snack bar she is planning so weary pilots can always land themselves a sandwich and hot coffee. An electric range, also donated, was expected momentarily.

Julius Osterholtz, a disabled veteran who enjoys spending time out at the airport, is a big help to her because he volunteers to answer the telephone and man the gas pump when she has to leave the field. Long hours—12 hours a day seven days a week—are her biggest problem right now, although a local commercial pilot, Herb Copple, soon will take over the instruction and passenger flying duties.

REFUELING A PLANE IS JUST ONE OF THE MANY TASKS FOR MRS. LATHROP, WHO WORKS ON A 12-HOUR DAY, 7-DAY-A-WEEK SCHEDULE AT HER NEW JOB.

As a charter pilot, Mrs. Lathrop is on tap during good-weather daylight hours. For instance, she got a hurry-up call to fly into St. Louis the other day to pick up equipment for an oil company. St. Louis trips promise to be a daily thing for her—she plans a shuttle service for passengers, to start soon. Centralia is 65 miles east of St. Louis.

Around the airport, Mrs. Lathrop wears a blouse and pedal-pushers, a white sailor-type hat and an easy-going air. In her rare spare moments she might get in a little drapery stitching on the sewing machine in her office. The day we were there she alternated between map work, refueling, and greeting a pilot who dropped in because of low ceiling. Then, pausing only to do her nails, she disappeared for a quick-change act into a chic light gray dress set off with a light blue scarf around her neck and a fashionable little hat, to go to the Rotary Club.

WE trotted along, making book (16 to 5) English peas would be on the menu. They were. After lunch and a few choruses of Boola-Boola by the members, the club listened with interest as Mrs. Lathrop explained what was happening out at the airport.

One of her main points: Executive flying is increasing rapidly—Centralia should encourage this business to come to its door.

Members applauded. Centralia is now a "Class Three" airport. To become "Class Two" it must have general maintenance and full service. Mrs. Lathrop sees that in the near future. The long-range hope is for Federal funds, which must come through establishment of an airport authority.

Listening, it was hard to remember that the soft-spoken, well-dressed woman speaking to the Rotarians was an official Air Search and Rescue Pilot, with an Air Force Citation for flying search over Lake Michigan in bad weather. She is.

And back at the airport it was difficult to remember the trim, casually-dressed woman in the sailor hat was a grandmother. (Her son John has a new baby daughter.) We are going to have to expand our mental picture of grandmothers to include them refueling Cessna 180s at their own airports.

Her administration building is a friendly place, where folks drop in and out. (Not literally.) The bulletin board is laden with notices of functions for flyers hither and yon. A listing of used planes for sale is also posted.

MRS. LATHROP'S revenue comes from gas sales, taking sight-seers flying, the charter flight service, commission on plane sales, storage charge for planes, and the like.

She has three planes herself, a Cessna 180 for charter work, a Cessna 170 for use as a demonstrator, and a Piper Super Cruiser for passengers and students. She looks fondly toward the day—soon—when she will get two-way radio equipment.

Her hobby—oil painting—has been abandoned for the time being. Not enough time. She is listed as one of Wisconsin's Rural Artists, and her paintings have taken prizes.

But she will find time to squeeze in a weather report program on the local radio station, and Centralia residents will be hearing more from their new airport manager.

"Things really look different at that airport since she came here," said Wham.

And Mrs. Lathrop, the woman who scrubbed down airplanes to learn to fly and ended up running her own airport, said things will look a lot more different if she has anything to do with it. One gets the impression she will.

She might even get around to finishing the new draperies before she takes off for her cross-country race. Meantime, she is, according to an independent survey, the only airport manager around with a sewing machine next to the administration desk. And a master mechanic's classification in the bobby pin.

From Paris

How to Write a Hit Song

By Art Buchwald

PARIS, June 18.

SAMMY CAHN, the man who wrote the lyrics to "Three Coins In Fountain," stopped off in Paris to tell us he couldn't get a hotel room in Rome. The song, an Academy Award winner which has probably done more for Rome than any other song in the last decade, was written with Julie Styne.

"Why don't you go back to the same hotel you stayed in the last time you were in Rome?"

"I've never been there," he said.

"How could you write a song about a place you've never been?"

"It's easy. If any of the East Side writers had ever seen the South, it's debatable that they would have ever written a note about it. You don't have to go to a place to write a song about it. You write a much better song if you use your imagination."

Cahn, who has also written the lyrics for "I Walk Alone," "Give Me Five Minutes More," "Be My Love," "Because You're Mine," and "It's Been a Long, Long Time," said he was working on a film, "Pink Tights," when a producer asked Styne and him to write a song for the picture "Three Coins in the Fountain."

"Can we see the picture?" they asked.

"You don't have time," the producer said.

"What's it about?"

"There's a fountain in Rome and three girls throw coins in it. Now go, boys, go."

The boys went and the song became a hit. Cahn said this was the first time he had been to Paris, although he had written "That's What Makes Paris Paree." While here he's working on a song about Cuba, and when he goes to Rome he said he'd probably do one about the South Pacific.

"You can't get too close to those places or you'll never write anything about them," he said.

AFTER SAMMY LEFT, a man came in wearing a big yellow cap on his head and a big yellow button on his lapel which said, "Relax." Said he was Emanuel Ress of New York, who manufactures campaign buttons for elections, and other buttons to take up the slack when there is no political talk in the air.

Told us he was the first man to manufacture "I Like Ike" buttons and also made "We Need Adlai Badly" souvenirs.

Ress said he wanted people to relax, and brought out that he had handed out 6000 buttons in Europe urging people to do the same. Finally we wangled the real reason for the stunt.

"Some day they'll be using campaign buttons over here for politics and I want them to remember me when they do," he said. "I'm doing missionary work now. Trying to find out what the button needs of the Continent are.

"I can't sell them on the idea overnight. I made some suggestions over in Britain for slogans for the election. Didn't get any orders, but I had a favorable reception."

"What were some of the slogans?"

"I suggested 'I'm pleading for Eden.' That was for the Conservatives. For Labor, Attlee is very hard to do anything with. I pulled a switch on Adlai: 'We Need Attlee Badly.' It's not very good."

We agreed.

"I HAD ANOTHER one for the Conservatives: 'Don't have Labour Pains—Vote Conservative'; and for Labor: 'Put the Conservatives in Preservatives.' But I'm more interested in my relaxing campaign. It's hard to sell in France. The people relax too much here already.

RELAX
AMADEE

"I've been having trouble because I've been so busy trying to get other people to relax that I haven't had time to relax myself.

"I have an epitaph for my grave, if I drop dead."

"How does it go?" we asked.

"Here lies Ress
He died in his tracks
Running a campaign
On how to relax."

"It sounds great," we told him.

"I thought you'd like it," he said. "Well I guess that's all I wanted to tell you."

"I guess so."

"See you around."

"You bet. Thanks for stopping in."

"Think nothing of it. It was my pleasure. And don't forget to . . ."

"Relax?"

"You said it, boy."

Program to Feature Visit to Jet Base

A visit to a jet fighter command—Westover Air Base, Massachusetts — will be a feature of "Defense by Air" on the New England Regional Survey program on KSD at 8:30 Tuesday night.

Ruth Millett, syndicated columnist, and Helen Worden Erskine, magazine writer, will be interviewed by Louise Munsch on her Just For Women program on WEW at 11:30 tomorrow morning. Both are members of Theta Sigma Phi, women's national journalism sorority which is holding its convention here this week.

Summer in St. Louis, a Muny Opera program on KMOX at 5:30 Tuesday afternoons, this week will feature soprano Betty Gillette and baritone George Gaynes.

'Ad Lib' for Godfrey

The last of Arthur Godfrey's four writers, Andrew A. Rooney, has resigned and Godfrey will become exclusively an "ad lib" entertainer on radio and television. Godfrey earlier had dismissed his three other writers, who now are working for Garry Moore. Godfrey paid his writers between $25,000 and $35,000 a year.

President's U.N. Talk On Major Networks

PRESIDENT EISENHOWER'S address of welcome to the United Nations delegates at the opening of their tenth anniversary session in San Francisco tomorrow will be telecast by two St. Louis television stations — KSD-TV and KWK-TV — from 5 to 5:30 in the afternoon. For the next four days, at 2:30 in the afternoon Tuesday through Friday, KSD-TV will telecast the addresses by foreign ministers of Great Britain, France, Russia and the United States. This afternoon at 4 on KTVI, Eric Sevareid will devote his entire American Week program to the San Francisco meeting. Tomorrow's talk by the President will be carried by radio also, on KSD and KMOX at the time of delivery, 5 o'clock, on KWK at 9:30 and on KXOK at 10:30. Tomorrow through Friday KSD at 2:05 each afternoon will carry broadcasts from the session.

ETHEL BARRYMORE . . . ONE OF STARS ON "REMEMBER 1938" ON KSD-TV TONIGHT.

What radio and television fans heard and saw 17 years ago will be recalled in "Remember . . . 1938" on KSD-TV from 6:30 to 8 tonight. The program, in black and white only, will feature personalities and events of 1938, and guests will include "Wrong Way" Corrigan and "Double No-Hit" Vandermeer. Stars of the production will include Ethel Barrymore, Groucho Marx, Oscar Levant and Jonathan Winter.

Almanac, a program about the natural world, will begin on KETC at 10 tomorrow night, on a Monday-through-Friday basis at that hour. Features will be talks about Missouri animal life by Charles Schwartz on Wednesday nights, and talks by Leonard Hall on Friday nights.

Rodeo on KSD-TV Tuesday

A "western extravaganza" will be seen on KSD-TV from 7 to 8 Tuesday night with telecasting of the Roy Rogers World Championship Rodeo from the Coliseum in San Antonio, Tex. With Rogers and his wife Dale Evans will be comedian Pat Brady and Nellybelle, Trigger, Trigger Jr., and 300 or more cowboys, including world champions.

PAUL WHITEMAN . . . HOST OF GREAT BANDS PROGRAM STARTING ON KWK-TV.

A new program, America's Greatest Bands, will start on KWK-TV at 7 Saturday night as the summer replacement for Jackie Gleason. Four different nationally famous orchestras will be heard each week. Paul Whiteman, "dean of modern music," will be master of ceremonies.

Ethel and Albert, the domestic situation comedy starring Peg Lynch and Alan Bunce, will be back on television for the summer months, as a replacement for December Bride on KWK-TV at 8:30 Monday nights.

Medic on KSD-TV at 8 tomorrow night will dramatize the techniques for fighting hemophilia.

Faulk Replaces Paar

A new personality will be seen as host of The Morning Show on KWK-TV beginning tomorrow. John Henry Faulk will replace Jack Paar, who will be given an afternoon show on CBS-TV shortly.

Your Hit Parade is off for the summer and as a replacement at 11 Saturday nights KSD-TV will carry Your Play Time, a series of dramatic shows.

The Broadway musical hit, "3 for Tonight," will be presented on KWK-TV from 9 to 10 Wednesday night. Stars of the production will be dancers Marge and Gower Champion, singer Henry Belafonte, and The Voices of Walter Schumann.

Spotlight Playhouse, a series of dramatic shows, will replace the Red Skelton Show on KWK-TV at 8:30 Tuesday nights for the summer.

Radio Highlights

National Fan Club Extended on KSD

NATIONAL RADIO FAN CLUB, a new series of programs for young people interested in popular music, musicians and singers, is being extended to nearly an hour on KSD Friday nights, from 8 to 8:55. Bill Silbert, who made a name for himself as a disc jockey in New York, is the program host. His guest stars Friday will include Les Paul and Mary Ford.

BILL SILBERT . . . HOST OF NEW KSD PROGRAM, NATIONAL RADIO FAN CLUB.

An NBC news program, Bill Henry and the News, will be heard on KSD at 8:55 Tuesday nights. The NBC Travel Bureau will have that time on Friday nights.

Guy Lombardo will be the guest of the Make Up Your Mind panel on KMOX at 10:30 tomorrow morning. Other guests this week will be Charles P. Taft, Tuesday; Mrs. Paul Muni, Wednesday; fashion designer Pauline Trigere, Thursday, and actor Jerome Cowan, Friday.

At 8 Tuesday night, KSD will carry a program entitled "Ten Troubled Years," a review of the 10 years since the signing of the United Nations Charter.

Program Changes

Several changes in KSD programming, Monday through Friday, go into effect tomorrow. The Joyce Jordan, M.D., serial will be heard at 9:15 a.m.; Doctor's Wife serial at 9:30; the Kay Lorraine Show from 11:10 to noon, and the Nelson Eddy Show replacing Nancy Dixon at 1:30 p.m.

At 10:40 p.m., Monday through Friday, KMOX is adding Starlight Salute, 15 minutes of chatter by Phil Stevens. Ozark Varieties will be heard on KMOX from 6:30 to 6:55 a.m., Monday through Saturday, starting tomorrow.

A recording of festivities at the twenty-third anniversary of The Breakfast Club will be heard on KXOK at 8 Wednesday morning.

Grew Up With Television

Actor Richard Kiley Now in Demand as Leading Man in All Mediums

By Jack Gaver

NEW YORK, June 11 (UP).

ANYONE who still doubts the ability of television to do things for a dramatic actor besides providing money to pay the bills has only to consider the case of Richard Kiley.

This over-six-foot, rugged actor is one of the most in-demand leading men around today in all mediums, and, for all practical purposes, television can claim him for its own.

"I had stage training and stock company work out around Chicago, along with radio experience and some early TV work," before coming to New York about seven years ago," Kiley said, "but for economic reasons I had to stick pretty much to television those first years."

The result was that as Kiley and TV grew up together he became tabbed as a television actor in a time where there wasn't the present easy exchange of actors among TV, stage and movies.

"After a few years I felt I was in a financial position to take a chance on trying a stage play," Kiley continued, "but it wasn't easy to break in. Producers and directors had heard favorably of my work—but as a television actor."

FINALLY, early in 1953, he made a sort of back-door entrance to Broadway by getting hired as leading man for Bernard Shaw's "Misalliance" in the two-week revival of the play at the City Center where minimum salaries were paid.

RICHARD KILEY . . . CHANGES PLANES AND SUITCASES BETWEEN JOBS.

"Fortunately, that was such a success that the play was moved to a Broadway theater for a run," Kiley said, "so I finally had my foot in the door."

A short time later someone discovered he could sing, and in the fall of 1953 he took over the important role of the caliph in the Broadway-bound musical "Kismet." Last fall he was back on the drama beat as the leading man in "Sing Me No Lullaby."

He had a little minor movie work off and on, but it wasn't until early this year that he won the leading part in a film, "Phenix City Story," made in the Alabama town where the cleanup of crime conditions is still in progress. Kiley plays John Patterson, present Alabama attorney general. Patterson is the son of A. L. Paterson, Democratic nominee for attorney general whose murder last June 18 touched off the cleanup campaign.

"OUR company didn't run into any incidents in Phenix City," Kiley said, "but it wasn't the most comfortable feeling in the world to be working there using actual names and locations while trials were going on and people were stirred up about the whole affair."

Television claimed Kiley again as soon as he did the last take of the movie four weeks ago. He flew in from the south, changed planes and suitcases at an airfield here and the next day was in Munich getting ready to make the first three films of a half-hour TV series called "Brother Mark," being made by Guilt Films. He returned here last week for a breather.

"I'll take the family—my wife and our four children — back with me in July when we plan to make the rest of the series," Kiley said. "We expect to be in Europe until early next year."

Asked why he wanted to take himself out of American circulation for such a long period when he's "hot," Kiley replied:

"This is the chance of a lifetime for all of us to spend six months or so in Europe while I get well paid for it."

Panel Talks, Discussions On Radio, TV

AFTER 24 years of continuous broadcasting, the University of Chicago Round Table is being replaced today by a new program, called New World, as part of NBC's weekend Monitor service. New World, on KSD at 10:35 Sunday mornings, will be produced in co-operation with the University of Chicago. Its purpose will be to "illustrate the dual role of universities in contributing to the rapidly changing pattern of modern civilization and in solving the problems scientists and scholars have helped to create."

Today's Meet the Press, on KSD and KSD-TV at 5 p.m., will originate in San Francisco on the eve of the tenth anniversary of the birth of the United Nations. United Nations Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge Jr., will be the guest.

THE LETTERS of Horace Walpole, eighteenth century Earl of Oxford, will be discussed on Invitation to Learning on KMOX at 10:30 this morning. The more than 3500 letters of Walpole reflect observations about leading personalities, fashions and happenings of his time, both in Europe and America.

"Do We Face a Water Problem?" is the question to be discussed on Northwestern University Reviewing Stand on KWK at 10:30 this morning. Among panel members will be Robert B. Banks of Northwestern, Clarence W. Klassen of the Illinois Department of Health, Professor Abel Wolman of Johns Hopkins University, and Morrison B. Cunningham, Oklahoma City water department head.

Konrad Adenauer, Chancellor of West Germany, will be the Youth Wants to Know guest on KSD-TV at 11:30 this morning.

Two Democratic legislators, Senator Paul Douglas of Illinois and Representative Francis E. Walter of Pennsylvania, will be heard discussing "Should We Revise Our Immigration Laws" on American Forum on KSD-TV at 12 noon today.

The Leading Question, on KMOX at 11:05 this morning, will originate in San Francisco and will deal with the United Nations anniversary observance.

TV Studio Gossip

Personalities, Programs

SUE CARSON, who will be seen in "Remember . . . 1938" on KSD-TV tonight, is being hailed as "the female George Gobel." . . . So far, more than 600 applicants have been interviewed for the television role of "Baby Snooks," made famous in radio by the late Fanny Brice. Among candidates are Portland Mason, daughter of James and Pamela Mason, Groucho Marx's Melinda and Ben Hecht's daughter, Ginny. . . . Beginning tomorrow, parts of Dave Garroway's Today show will come from San Francisco where the United Nations is observing its tenth anniversary. . . . Phyllis Kirk and Everett Sloane will be starred in "Heart Song," about a Hollywood "has-been" on KWK-TV's Studio One at 9 tomorrow night.

Sue Carson

NEW YORK REPORTS say it will cost $50,000 to remodel Yankee Stadium for the coming one-night stand by Liberace. . . . The fall series of the Loretta Young show is scheduled to start filming tomorrow, but Loretta is reported not in condition yet after her long illness. . . . Doctors have ordered her to put on at least 10 pounds before returning to the grind. . . . NBC-TV is planning a telecast, "Meeting on the Summit," July 17 as a prelude to the Big Four meeting in Geneva. . . . Robert Preston will be seen as a rugged frontier pastor beset by his enemies on "Drop on the Devil," on TV theater on KSD-TV at 8 Wednesday night. . . . The dog star Lassie has a price of $2000 a day for personal appearances.

"EVER NOTICE," asks TV columnist Jack O'Brian, "how few male stars give their ladies first mention. F'r instance, Burns and Allen, Peter Lind Hayes and Mary Healey, Goodman and Jane Ace, Tex and Jinx, etc." . . . NBC's Howdy Doody and Pinky Lee Show have been commended by the General Federation of Women's Clubs which concludes that "children's programs are improving each year." . . . A former fight champion, Tony Canzoneri, will have an acting part in Star Tonight on KWK-TV at 2 this afternoon. . . . Otto Kruger, John Howard and Vera Miles will be starred in "No Food for Thought" on Science Fiction Theater on KSD-TV at 10 Tuesday night. . . . Bandstand Revue on KSD-TV is moving to 3:30 this afternoon. . . . KWK-TV's Passport to Danger is moving to 10 p.m. Fridays.

Summer on TV

Many Changes Due In Next Four Weeks

NEW YORK, June 18 (UP).

THE SUMMER pattern of television programming will take shape rapidly in the next four weeks as the networks come up with new and old stop-gap shows while some of the regulars take a vacation.

Jackie Gleason and his troupe are among those vacationing on CBS. Beginning next Saturday night and until fall his spot will be filled by a production of his own called "America's Greatest Bands" in which four top orchestras will be featured each week.

Sid Caesar is through at NBC for the summer after Monday's program. He also will supply his own relief show, "Caesar Presents," with Comedian Phil Foster, Singer Bill (Davy Crockett) Hayes, and Barbara Nichols. This will be three out of four Mondays at the usual time, the first being on July 4.

STILL A THIRD comic who is protecting his interests by doing his own replacement production is George Gobel. His finale is June 25; thereafter in his time period Saturday nights on NBC you'll see his "Here's the Show," a variety program.

Imogene Coca leaves the NBC Saturday air after the June 25 show. It will be replaced July 9 by a new panel-type program called "Musical Chairs" in which Johnny Mercer, Mel Blanc and Bobby Troup will be featured.

The Saturday night spot on NBC in which Jimmy Durante and Donald O'Connor alternate will be filled with repeats of their filmed programs through the summer, beginning June 25.

"Studio One Summer Theater" replaces the regular "Studio One" on CBS Monday nights beginning Monday.

ROBERT MONTGOMERY will make the shift of his Monday night NBC dramatic program to its usual summer stock status on July 4. Regulars in the company until fall will be Charles Drake, Augusta Dabney, Eric Sinclair, Dorothy Blackburn and House Jameson.

NBC replaces Mickey Rooney's Saturday night show on June 25 with a new one called "The Soldiers," starring Hal March and Tom D'Andrea. This is an expansion of the sketches they have done on several variety programs in recent years. The two produce and write as well as act in the series.

March, who is just winding up a season as Coca's TV husband, will spend the summer air-commuting since "The Soldiers" originates live in Hollywood and he has to be in New York each Tuesday night as master of ceremonies for "the $64,000 Question."

BILL HAYES . . . SINGER ON SUMMER REPLACEMENT FOR CAESAR'S HOUR.

"THE ARTHUR MURRAY PARTY" will return to NBC June 28.

CBS gives one of its new young comics, Johnny Carson, a summer fling starting June 30. He'll be on with a variety setup for a half hour each Thursday night.

Sam Levenson replaces Herb Shriner in charge of "Two for the Money" on CBS-TV and radio for 10 weeks beginning July 2.

ABC-TV will offer a one-hour program featuring the music of Lawrence Welk and his orchestra beginning July 2. It will be on each Saturday night.

The CBS replacement for "I Love Lucy" Monday night, beginning July 4, will be a new filmed situation series, "Those Whiting Girls," starring the singing sisters, Margaret and Barbara Whiting.

NBC presents Jan Murray's "Dollar a Second" quiz program Tuesday nights beginning July 5.

The "U. S. Steel Hour" moves from ABC to CBS on July 6 and will be seen on alternate Wednesdays.

Television Letter Box

I'M writing in behalf of about 30 people who were at my home when Dixie in St. Louis was shown on KSD-TV Saturday night, I want to tell you how much we enjoyed Mary Norleen. She has a very good voice and knows how to put a song over. The band also did a very good job, so it turned out to be a real good program. Please keep up with the good work.

MRS. GEORGE THOMAS.

I saw the Science Fiction Theater on KSD-TV Tuesday night and enjoyed it very much. Please give us more of these shows.

A LISTENER.

Wrestling was the only all men's program on television. Why can't KSD-TV give them a break after a hard day's work and put it back on? And I hope KWK-TV keeps "Life With Father." It is one of the few clean plays on television.

MRS. O. R. ECK,
Madison, Ill.

"The Incredible World of Horace Ford" on KWK-TV Monday night was incredible indeed. True there was some fine acting by Art Carney and the other principals, but the fantastic ending left me gasping at the vagaries of television drama. Now, I'm not one who likes his drama all tied up in a neat package at the end, but I do think the Mickey Mouse watch in the closing scene only served to confuse a confusing plot, but then perhaps it was only a symbol indicating that it was time to end the play. I will say, though, that the characterizations were excellent. Carney's drama is up to his comedy, which is tops. For the best in Gleason, see Carney.

Enjoyed "Midwestern Hayride" very much. Give us more programs like this—happy people having fun.

KSD-TV VIEWER.

Keep "What's Your Bid" on the air. It's a friendly and homey program. Enjoy it very much.

CECILIA CRACCHIOLA.

Monitor last Sunday was such a fine show. I do hope we can have more of it on television as well as on radio.

MRS. L. MARTIN,
Ste. Genevieve, Mo.

(Monitor is a radio service only. NBC put a portion of it on television last Sunday to help introduce it—Editor.)

* * *

Thank you so much, KSD-TV, for the Laurel and Hardy films, also Charlie Chan. Our whole family of five stops everything on Saturday afternoons to see Oliver and Stanley. I was a fan of theirs and now my children can enjoy their antics, too. Thanks again.

MRS. LEO FICHT,
Defiance, Mo.

Our thanks to KSD for having The Catholic Hour on at 1 p.m. Sundays instead of 10:15. At the new time everyone can enjoy it.

'Wonderful Town' Next at Municipal Opera

At the Movies

By Myles Standish

THE COBWEB—Lucid, literate and absorbing drama about turmoil in an expensive psychiatric clinic both among patients and the staff, who also have their maladjustments. A close reproduction of William Gibson's novel, but which also suffers from lack of dramatic punch in the ending. Richard Widmark, Gloria Grahame, Charles Boyer and Lauren Bacall head an excellent cast. LOEW'S STATE.

SOLDIER OF FORTUNE—At 54, Clark Gable is still tops as the he-man hero type. He has a lively vehicle here from the Ernest K. Gann's novel and script, which gives some interesting CinemaScope views of Hong Kong and enables Clark to be his old sardonic dare-devil self, even to rescuing Susan Hayward's husband out of a Red China jail. ST. LOUIS.

TO PARIS WITH LOVE—Alec Guinness in a comedy about a middle-aged British aristocrat seeking to recapture the flame of romance in Paris with a 20-year-old girl, which has its chuckles and some pretty pastel Technicolor views of Paris, but is not top-drawer Guinness. It is much too dryly underplayed, its comic invention runs dry, it does not develop a promising racy farcical situation, a couple of pieces of slapstick don't come off, and it doesn't realize the poignancy it could. PAGEANT, RICHMOND.

DOWN 3 DARK STREETS—The F.B.I. melodrama returns, with Broderick Crawford tracking down the killer of another agent and the extortionist threatening Ruth Roman. Fair, with its measure of suspense. ORPHEUM.

THE BRIDGES AT TOKO-RI—A thoughtful and searching exposition of why men feel compelled to fight and die with bitter courage in wars they never wanted to be in. Authentically impressive shots of a carrier and a terrifically exciting Naval air raid over Korea. With fine performances by William Holden, Fredric March, Grace Kelly and Mickey Rooney. One of the year's best. FOX.

DOCTOR IN THE HOUSE—Seventh week—and deservedly—for the merry, whacky British romp about five years in a London medical school. Dirk Bogarde, Kenneth More head an adroit cast. SHADY OAK.

CINERAMA HOLIDAY—The startling depth process has sights and sounds of America, Paris and Switzerland. AMBASSADOR.

IN CASE YOU HAVE BEEN ISOLATED FROM SMALL BOYS AND TV, THIS IS FESS PARKER AS DAVY CROCKETT, WHO SEEMS TO HAVE BEEN KING OF SOMETHING OR OTHER. THE WIDE-SCREEN, TECHNICOLOR FILM, FASHIONED FOR THEATER MOVIES BY WALT DISNEY FROM HIS THREE-PART TELEVISION SERIAL AND ALSO CALLED "DAVY CROCKETT," OPENS FRIDAY AT THE ORPHEUM.

ODILE VERSOIS AND ALEX GUINNESS ARE HAVING FUN IN "TO PARIS WITH LOVE," ENGLISH COMEDY AT THE PAGEANT AND RICHMOND.

Glenn Ford

HOLLYWOOD — Glenn Ford will star in Columbia's "Jubal Troop." The picture, a Technicolor, CinemaScope version of Paul Wellman's novel, will be filmed on location in Wyoming, Colorado and Arizona this summer.

'Pompey's Head'

HOLLYWOOD—Dorothy Patrick will play Richard Egan's wife in "The View From Pompey's Head," a best-seller by Hamilton Basso, for 20th Century-Fox.

"WONDERFUL TOWN," Broadway hit musical comedy which ran 559 performances in New York before it closed last summer, and 20 weeks in Chicago, will be brought to St. Louis for the first time by Municipal Opera for its third production of the season, starting at 8:30 p.m. tomorrow for a week.

Five of the Municipal Opera cast have played in "Wonderful Town" on Broadway. They are George Gaynes, Betty Gillett, Joan Kibrig, Jordan Bentley and Cris Alexander. Audrey Christie was standby for the star on Broadway. Others in the cast will be Frank Maxwell, Robert Eckles, Susan Steell, Michael Pollock, Norman MacKaye, William MacCully, Oliver Cliff, Joe Cusanelli, Christine Palmer, Lewis Bolyard and Eugene Dorian.

When it opened in New York, Feb. 25, 1953, at the Winter Garden, "Wonderful Town" received rave notices, with great acclaim going to Rosalind Russell as the star. Miss Russell was succeeded late in the run by Carol Channing. It was voted best musical of the 1952-53 season by the New York Drama Critics Circle.

The musical is based on the hit comedy play, "My Sister Eileen," which was based on short stories by Ruth McKenney. Joseph Fields and Jerome Chodorov, authors of the play, did the book for the musical. Betty Comden and Adolph Green, who wrote the screen musical, "Singin' in the Rain," did the lyrics. Leonard Berstein, composer of "On the Town," wrote the score.

Among the songs are the mock hillbilly duet, "Ohio," the comedy ditties "One Hundred Easy Ways (to Lose a Man)" and "Pass the Football," and the love numbers, "A Quiet Girl," "It's Love," and "A Little Bit in Love." On a spectacular production scale are the first act conga and the "Wrong Note Rag," set in the Village Vortex in the second act. Eldon Elder's settings have a basic street set of Greenwich Village life surrounding the smaller scenes, such as the sisters' basement apartment, the jail, and the Vortex night club. The settings are done in a loose cartoon style.

MISS CHRISTIE, who will play Ruth Sherwood, the older of the two sisters and the one who can't get a man, was once leading comedienne at Muny Opera, and has since starred in 15 or more Broadway and London hits, including "The Voice of the Turtle," "Of Thee I Sing," and "My Sister Eileen."

Gaynes will be playing his Broadway role of Robert Baker. A European operatic bass-baritone, he made his Muny Opera debut in the opening production, "The Merry Widow."

Miss Gillett, a native St. Louisan who sang in the Muny Opera chorus in 1943 and 1944, will have her original Broadway role of Eileen.

The final performance of "Brigadoon" with David Atkinson, Virginia Oswald and Earl William, will be given tonight at the Forest Park Theater.

Leo Sirota to Be Piano Soloist With Little Symphony

LEO SIROTA, head of the piano department of the St. Louis Institute of Music, will be soloist in the third Little Symphony concert of the season at 8:45 p.m. Friday in Washington University Quadrangle. Jascha Horenstein, who made his debut with the orchestra last week, and who happens to be Sirota's brother-in-law, will continue as conductor.

Sirota and the orchestra will play Von Weber's "Konzertstuck" for piano and orchestra. Orchestral offerings will be Mozart's Divertimento in B Major (K.334) for strings and two French horns, a suite in four movements, in which pairs and trios of instruments play, Jean Rivier's Symphony No. 3 for Strings, and Suite No. 1 for small orchestra by Igor Stravinsky.

Born in Russia, Sirota studied at the St. Petersburg Conservatory and the University of Vienna. He taught at the Imperial Academy of Music in Tokyo and was on a concert tour in Japan at the time of Pearl Harbor. He made his United States debut in 1947 at Carnegie Hall. He is married to Horenstein's sister.

Bach Orchestral Works

By Thomas B. Sherman

BACH'S FOUR SUITES FOR ORCHESTRA are presented strongly and cleanly by the Philharmonia Orchestra of London under the direction of the veteran conductor Otto Klemperer. (Angel, two 12-inch LPs in album.) Klemperer uses only three degrees of volume—piano, mezzo-forte and forte—and goes from one to the other without crescendo or diminuendo. The linear beauty of the music is such that it has no need of nuance or sensual coloring to be compelling. Superior tone quality is evident throughout. The flutist, Gareth Morris, plays with an affecting beauty of tone and with fine articulation in the B Minor suite.

OPERA: "Amelia al Ballo" or "Amelia Goes to the Ball" was the first of Gian-Carlo Menotti's operas and it is still one of his best. A crisp performance by principals, orchestra and chorus from La Scala Opera gives it the impact and penetration of an opera buffa in the true Italian tradition. An excellent cast is headed by Margherita Carosio as Amelia, Rolando Paneri as The Husband and Giacinto Prandelli as The Lover. Nino Sansogno is the conductor. (Angel; one 12-inch LP in album with Italian and English text.) Sound reproduction is first rate. This is one of the rare instances of an opera being translated from English to Italian. . . . Two scenes from Acts II and III of Wagner's "Die Meistersinger" offer close to ideal performances by Paul Schoeffler as Hans Sachs and Hilda Gueden as Eva. They really bring fluency and suppleness to their singing. Gunther Treptow is the usual tight-voiced Wagnerian tenor. The orchestra involved is the Vienna Philharmonic conducted by Hans Knappertsbusch. Sound is excellent. (London, 12-inch LP.)

ORCHESTRAL: Sir John Barbirolli, conducting the Halle Orchestra of Manchester, England, produces an aggressive, big-scaled recording of Schubert's big C Major Symphony. The performance lacks refinement at critical points as in the trio of the third movement. Sound is good but not up to Victor's best. (RCA-Victor, Bluebird, one 12-inch LP.) . . . "A Concert of English Music" is made up of orchestral pieces by Arnold Bax ("Tintagel"), Vaughan Williams and George Butterworth. All are distinguished by soft, fluid orchestral coloring, gracious lyricism and a generally sensitive feeling. The perceptive performances are by the London Philharmonic Orchestra, Sir Adrian Boult conducting. Excellent reproduction. (London, one 12-inch LP.) . . . Herman Scherchen leads the Philharmonic Symphony Orchestra in dashing, muscular statements of Beethoven's Fourth and Fifth Symphonies. Tempos are fast, but clean articulation enables them to stand up under close examination. Reproduction is first rate. (Westminster, one 12-inch LP.)

CONCERTO: Andre Navarra, French 'cellist, is the soloist in a recorded performance of Dvorak's 'cello concerto with the New Symphony Orchestra conducted by Rudolf Schwartz. (Capitol. One 12-inch LP.) Navarra is eloquent and does not spare the vibrato. Accompaniment is often rough.

CHAMBER WORKS: Mozart's quartet in D (K. 575) and Quintet in D (K.593) are played with stylistic authority by the Barylli Quartet. William Huebner is the second viola for the quintet. An evident deep feeling is maturely controlled. These are superb works in every respect. The second viola is used in a masterly way to enrich the texture and to extend, in general, the musical expression. Reproduction is excellent. (Westminster; One 12-inch LP.) . . . Walter Barylli, the first violin of the Barylli quartet, joins Paul Badura-Skoda in three Mozart sonatas for Piano and Violin: F Major (K.376), A Major (K.402) and E Flat Major (K.481). Three different stages of the composer's career are thus represented by compositions that are worked here for their facile charm. The piano reproduction is uncommonly good. (Westminster, One 12-inch LP.)

VOCAL: Cesar Siepl, a basso of impressive artistic range with a warm, virile and flexible voice sings a group of none too interesting operatic excerpts with the Orchestra of Saint Cecilia Academy, Rome, Alberto Erede conducting. Arias from "Salvator Rosa" by Gomes and Verdi's "Simone Boccanegra" are good enough but not as much can be said for the extract from Meyerbeer's "Robert Le Diable" and "Les Huguenots" and Halevy's "La Juive." But if you want to hear a stirring voice this is it. (London, One 10-inch LP.)

Best Sellers

GIAN-CARLO MENOTTI: Violin Concerto, played by Tossy Spivakovsky with the Boston Symphony Orchestra under Charles Munch (RCA-Victor, One 12-inch LP.)

RESPIGHI: "Church Windows of Rome" and "Roman Festivals," played by the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra, Antal Dorati conducting. (Mercury, One 12-inch LP.)

A CONCERT OF ENGLISH MUSIC: See review in this column. (London, One 12-inch LP.)

He's Tired of It

His Wife Never Gets The Housework Done

By Martha Carr

Dear Martha:

MY wife and I have been fighting because she never gets the housework done. I come home after work and find the dirty dishes in the sink, the beds not made and no plans for dinner. She's usually sitting down reading a silly magazine and always gives the excuse that she didn't know it was so late. She thinks I'm a tyrant because I ask her to do some work. I'm about at the end of my rope.

WEARY HUSBAND.

I'm afraid you have a pretty tough problem there. If she isn't bothered by dirty dishes and unmade beds and a haphazard meal planning schedule, I honestly don't know how you can force her to take pride in her home. Your only course may be to get a little tough and tell her that keeping the house in some semblance of order is as much her responsibility as bringing home a pay check is yours. However, she may be incapable of planning her work and a schedule which you and she can make up together might help. Don't expect miracles in a moment. Let her work it out gradually, and depend more on praise than nagging criticism.

Dear Martha:

● A FRIEND AND I have grown up together, gone through high school and college together and now are both working in downtown offices. A man our same age who works in her office has been dating her some and she is crazy about him. The other day she asked me to have lunch with them and, Martha, you can guess what happened. I fell for him and I know he liked me a great deal, too. He called me at my office the next afternoon and asked for a date. I refused him because of my friend but then he called again and that time I accepted. I have seen him three times since then and I haven't told her because I know it would hurt her feelings. I don't want to lose her friendship yet I'm falling in love with her boy friend. What can I do?

WORRIED.

If it's just a friendship as far as she's concerned, she might be happy for you. But if she really loves him, you'll have to decide whether you want to step aside or hurt her. Of course, the man has something to say about it, but both you and he should be honest with your friend. If he wants to break with her, let him be frank and forthright instead of sneaking around to date someone else behind her back.

Dear Martha:

● I AM A DIVORCEE of 38 working in an office where I have to meet a number of salesmen. One of them is very attractive and has been paying special attention to me. I've gone out with him several times and he seems like a real nice fellow. But one of the other men in the office said he was sure this man is married. He said he might be separated from his wife but he didn't know. What should I do? Ask him? I hate to appear that I don't trust him.

MARGIE.

For the sake of your own reputation, ask him right away. If he is, the only thing to do is to break off immediately. You'll have to take a chance on offending him. No matter how much you like him, remember that if he is married and is treating his wife like this, he wouldn't be much of a catch for anyone who could take him away from her.

Dear Martha:

● WE KNOW it is not proper for relatives of the bride to give a shower. Our problem is not that, but our daughter is to be married soon and her boy cousin is to be married two months later. Although no shower has been mentioned for our daughter, my sister-in-law is giving a shower for the cousin's bride-elect. That is proper and thoughtful but she is giving it before our daughter's wedding which to us seems rather like a slap in the face. Also, is it not the custom for the bridesmaid to give a shower for the bride?

TROUBLED.

You are right in that close relatives of the bride do not give showers at which guests are asked to bring gifts. I can understand why you feel hurt in this instance, but I think you are wrong to become involved in a family quarrel that could only make everyone unhappy. In other words, by making an issue of it, you would lose more than you could gain. In answer to your last question, each member of the wedding party usually entertains for the bride or the couple.

Dear Martha:

● I AM ENGAGED to a wonderful boy in the Marines. I haven't heard from him in more than four months. I write him all the time and I told him if he wanted to break our engagement I would understand. I still love him very much and don't know what to do.

ROSE.

Unless he is ill, I'm afraid he's trying to break the engagement himself by ignoring you. It's a cruel thing to do, and I can understand why you'd be terribly hurt, but if he's the kind who can't face up to a situation and tell you outright why he doesn't keep in touch with you, then I don't think he's the right kind of boy for you to marry. You might try to write his chaplain or commanding officer, if only to make sure he is receiving your letters and knows you want to hear from h

Dear Martha:

● I AM a 15-year-old girl and I like a boy who is 19. He's very cute but also jealous of anything I do. One day we were walking down the street when I happened to meet a boy I hadn't seen in years. We greeted each other warmly and started to talk about old times when my boy friend got jealous and rudely pulled me away. My other friend was very hurt by this and I haven't seen him since. I'm not so sure now whether my boy friend and I are right for each other. What shall I do? I'm afraid to break up with him.

UNDECIDED.

Why are you afraid? If he's terribly jealous, you aren't going to be happy with him. But frankly, I think you might have overdone it when you started talking over old times with this former friend. Your date just felt left out and naturally wanted to get you away from the other boy—even though he was pretty crude about it. Make sure he's included in the conversation the next time.

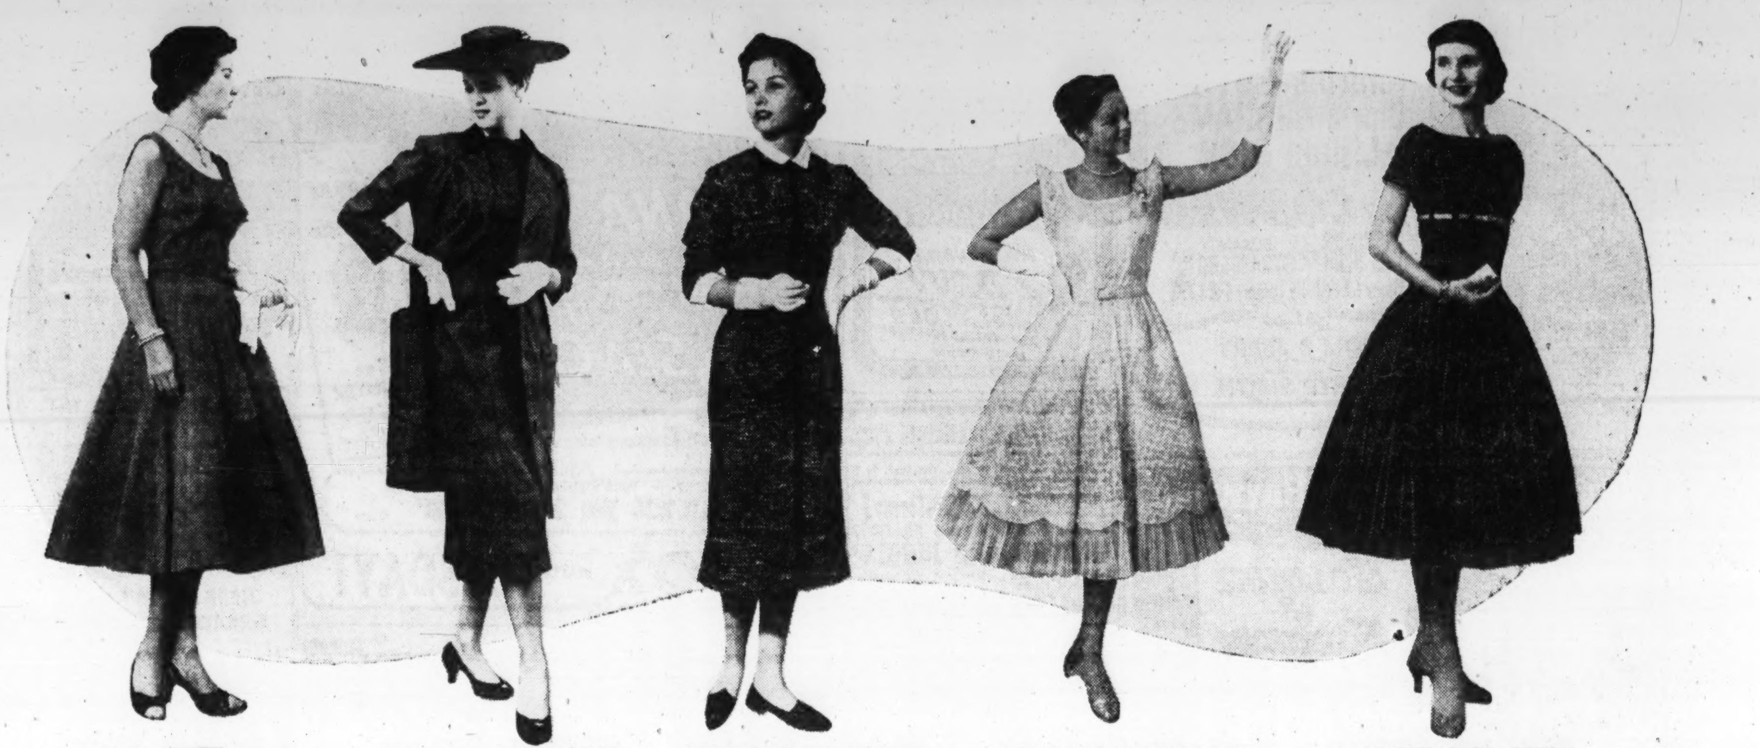
'Washability' Is the Word for Coming Fashions

Late Summer and Fall Styles That Can Be Laundered to Feature Show for Theta Sigma Phi Wednesday



CORDUROY, RECOGNIZED AS A WASHABLE MATERIAL, IS USED BY DORIS DODSON FOR A FLARED JUMPER WHICH IS WORN WITHOUT A BLOUSE FOR EVENING. SHADE IS BRIGHT RED.

ELLEN KAYE CREATED THIS DRESS AND TUNIC COAT ENSEMBLE OF A BROWN AND BLACK COTTON MATERIAL. BIG POCKETS ARE TRIMMED WITH BLACK VELVET. WIDE-BRIMMED HAT IS A DORIS DESIGN.

A PALE BLUE WASHABLE EMBROIDERED NYLON PARTY DRESS BY IRENE KAROL HAS A PLEATED RUFFLE AND YOKE OF PLAIN BLUE NYLON. PLEATING IS TREATED TO HOLD SHAPE IN LAUNDERING.

A NOVELTY DARK COTTON DARYL DRESS WITH FITTED MIDRIFF SECTION AND NARROW BELT HIGH ON THE BODICE PASSED THE WASHABILITY TEST. BLUE PUMPS BY WESTPORT MATCH BELT.

By Sylvia Stiles

COLLEGE girls will go back to school next fall with clothes that have new practicality. Career girls will be spending less time and money in keeping their wardrobes in order. One word—"washability"—provides the explanation.

The fabric designers and the laundering experts have gotten their heads together, with the result that some of the prettiest and most colorful fabrics for late summer and fall will survive numerous tubbings and still look like new.

Those interesting dark cottons and synthetics that resemble wool are the ones which will offer the most surprises from the laundering standpoint. Party dresses made of gossamer sheer pastel fabrics also are significant, and if they have pleated flounces or other intricate accents these need not deter an ambitious laundress from giving them a whirl in the washing machine.

To prove that many more fabrics are washable than the casual observer would believe, an experiment in washability has been conducted during the last few months with apparel designed by members of the St. Louis Fashion Creators. Both summer costumes and some of the advance autumn themes were sent to the headquarters of the Procter and Gamble Co. in Cincinnati where tests were conducted under the supervision of Miss Anne L. Lyng, laundry specialist of the home economics department. In addition to the finished garments, many of the new fabrics being used by the St. Louis designers also were tested.

The results of these experiments will be presented on Wednesday at a fashion luncheon around the swimming pool patio of the Chase Hotel. Dresses that haven't been laundered will be shown side by side with those that have been laundered as a feature of a special demonstration. Spectators and critics of the experiment will be several hundred members of Theta Sigma Phi, honorary and professional organization for women in journalism who will be in the city to attend the forty-sixth anniversary convention. Miss Joan Gardner, fashion director of the St. Louis Fashion Creators, will be in charge of the show.

Divided into two parts—one concerned with summer fashions and the other looking ahead to autumn with special emphasis upon clothes for college girls who will be among the guests—the emphasis will be upon clothes that are serviceable as well as pretty.

While not all of the St. Louis creations to go on display will be washable, there will be sufficient of these to show the importance of the trend. Outstanding among the examples is a novelty dark cotton combining blue with brown and black that has been made into a long torso, full-skirted dress by Daryl. The fitted midriff section is banded in an Empire effect with a narrow blue belt placed unusually high on the bodice. In laundering the dress the belt was removed.

Another fabric which is being used extensively for back-to-school fashions is corduroy, and several dresses made of this material are included in the show. Honey beige corduroy is attractive for a "separates" costume in alliance with a novelty printed cotton. Skirt and one side of a detachable bib top are of the corduroy while the other side of the bib and a tailored shirt are of the lighter, printed cotton. Wildman has contributed a shirtwaist dress of winter cotton in shades of gold, silver and black.

A silk and cotton sheer fabric dress in navy blue shade by Paul Sachs was among those successfully tubbed. This dress has a large cape-like collar and white lace applique motifs on the front of the bodice. Noteworthy among other materials is imported knitted rayon that is especially attractive in black and white combination for one-piece dresses. This fabric has the appearance of a wool tweed. Embroidered nylon and cotton satin party dresses are among other examples of the washable feature of today's fashions. One pale blue nylon dress has a pleated flounce, the pleating being especially treated to hold its shape in spite of laundering.

In testing fabrics for washability, washing machine rather than hand washing was the process used. All unwashable or questionable trimming was removed from the garments before washing. Each garment was then washed separately in an automatic washer using fine fabric procedures. The final spin period was eliminated on polished cottons and durably pleated garments. All garments were then hung on plastic hangers to dry. Each garment was measured in at least four places before the first washing, after the fifth washing and after ironing.

It's a fact not a boast and women who know a good haircut are flocking to the Ragsdale Shops from all over St. Louis. Now is the time you most want your hair to look naturally curly. Our Snap Curl Cold Wave gives you the perfect base for casual but lasting curls.

Gracefully shaped to your head . . . Delightfully easy to manage. All eyes turn to the coiffure—sleek, short and beautifully groomed. The secret of that well-groomed look is expert cutting and styling by Ragsdale's hair stylists . . . Then a Ragsdale Permanent . . . that's just right in tightness of curl.

This Feather-Cut Creme Oil Cold-Wave Permanent (with Lanolin) is desirable and flattering on any lady or child.

For a lovelier wave—a longer-lasting wave—a fail-proof wave—go to Ragsdale Beauty Shops. Little girls want lovely curls, too, and a Ragsdale Snap Curl Cold Wave (with Lanolin) is so pretty—soft and natural looking, it will last from 3 to 6 months. Only $3.95. ONE PRICE ONLY—$3.95, includes all tonic shampoo, haircut and test curls.

PRICE LIST

EXPERT HAIRCUTTING _ _ $1.00
EVERY KIND OF STYLE FROM THE FEATHER CUT TO THE BRUSH CUT
THE SHINGLE TO THE NEW DEEP WAVE CUT

To get the best haircut in town spend only 10-15 minutes at Ragsdale's . . . If your hair-do doesn't stay in or doesn't comb out right it isn't always the fault of the hair styling technique. In many cases improper hair shaping is the cause. The purpose of professional hair shaping is to keep your hair at the length that is best for you. Shaping will give you maximum satisfaction with your particular hair style. A finished hair dress no matter how skillfully styled; can be no better than its foundation and the foundation, of course, is correct hair shaping and expert permanent waving. Let Ragsdale's highly experienced operators shape and style your hair to your individual personality.

We have pleased thousands—we will please you.

EXPERT SHAMPOO & SET, $1.00
THE BEST SHAMPOO AND SET IN TOWN . . .
Using OIL TONIC SHAMPOO helps prevent and relieves all normal cases of dandruff.
Your hair is priceless. Protect it with Oil Tonic Shampoo

It takes only 40 minutes to an hour to get expert hair styling at Ragsdale's . . . We guarantee to use the best shampoo soaps obtainable for your particular type of hair and one of our expert hair stylists.

Most beauty shops sell exactly the same quality cold wave permanent for $10 to $20 . . . Our price: $3.95, $5.95, $6.95. No better waves at any price. Why pay more? All permanents guaranteed.
To give each lady better and more equal service, no tipping or sales talk permitted.

EXPERT OIL BLEACHING _ $3.95
Will add new life and highlights to your hair.
EXPERT HAIR TINTING _ _ $3.95
any shade

You can depend on Ragsdale's Hair Tinting for perfect results.

We treasure your confidence. The reason Ragsdale's have gained such a widespread reputation for excellent beauty shops is that our main concern is seeing that you are perfectly pleased with every detail of our service. This means that you are always sure of complete satisfaction on each visit and every service.

No Tipping or Sales Talk Permitted
Free Manicure Self-Service to All Customers

Your hair is carefully cut, tapered and shaped to conform to your head—a soft, smart definitely becoming effect, not too short—not too long, but just right, and so easy to manage. Try it, you'll find your hair a joy to look at—a joy to look after with a Ragsdale cold wave permanent.

PROPER HAIR CARE:

Almost every lady has had difficult problems . . . Ragsdale's has these suggestions for normal hair care:

Brushing . . . your hair should be brushed thoroughly at least once daily, preferably twice. Use long, firm strokes with a stiff brush.

Shampooing . . . One GOOD shampoo a week with all of the soap completely rinsed out of the hair is normal. If your hair is oily or inclined to have dandruff, a good shampoo every five days is better.

Dandruff . . . Most cases of dandruff is simple scalp shedding of dry, dead skin. A good shampoo will remove this type of dandruff and more frequent shampoos often cure it.

The two important things to watch in all shampoos . . . first, be certain that only top quality soaps are used, and second, have all soap rinsed out of the hair. Ragsdale guarantees to use the best shampoo soaps obtainable.

Permanent Waves . . . The best permanent wave will grow out in three to six months, depending upon how fast your hair grows. For best results your permanent should be shampooed and styled every week. If it is impossible for you to get a professional shampoo and style weekly and you do your own hair, then we suggest the following:

You will get better service from your permanent if you pin up your hair after each shampoo. Normally you will need one or two light hair shapings between each permanent. This will keep your hair at the proper length.

A Snap Curl Cold Wave is the best for all types of hair because there is no heat to dry your hair. The curls are one to one and one-half inches closer to scalp than many types of permanents and the final result can hardly be told from naturally curly hair. Your hair, like your skin, requires proper care and treatment if you wish it to look its glistening best. If you want your hair to look right, and be easily managed, it should receive proper hair shaping. If your hair is tinted or bleached it takes only a little extra care to keep it looking natural.

It takes 3 to 10 years of practical beauty work to become an expert hair dresser. Our average operator has between 8 and 9 years' experience. For the last 15 years we have given many, many thousands of permanents each year, so it is just natural that we would have more knowledge of permanent waving than someone who gives one or two permanents a week—Got a hair problem? Go to Ragsdale Beauty Shop.

P.S.: For the best hair results get Professional treatment as often as you can, and give yourself the best possible home care. . . . . A professional permanent wave or hair style will improve your appearance and morale more than any other one thing can possibly do . . . When you do get a professional permanent wave (and you will) go to a Ragsdale Beauty Shop.

All the softened flattery and graceful lines of the latest hair fashions. You will love that "extra-something" in this fashionable hair-do. A hair style that can have a "brushed look" for casual hours or the dressed-up look for party-going. Our SNAP CURL Creme Oil Cold Wave is the secret of its success. And remember, all of our permanents are guaranteed.

ONE OF OUR LARGE MODERN SHOPS — No appointment necessary

Yes, it's true—we sell as we advertise

Always courteous and efficient operators to serve you . . . Why bother at home—take no chances—get your next wave at Ragsdale. Yes, we have over 90% repeat business—there must be a reason.

60 of St. Louis' leading hair stylists to serve you.

You get a lot of pride and pleasure, of course, out of any good permanent any time, but see how Ragsdale's permanents keep you happier longer—and right now is an especially good time to get your Ragsdale permanent.

Six good, honest reasons why Ragsdale's should always care for your hair.

1. Always thoroughly experienced, and courteous operators to serve you.
2. Convenient location with no appointment necessary.
3. A money-back guarantee that we always use the best material obtainable anywhere.
4. Ragsdale's offer you honest, fair service with no sales talk permitted.
5. You can always depend on our quality and results.
6. We really follow the Golden Rule because we want to serve you for many future years.

All permanents include a special Oil Tonic Shampoo, Expert Haircut, Test Curl and a Written Guarantee. Every lady gets the Very Best.

How to Clean Film From Glass Vases

By Dorothy Brainerd

MRS. A. M. has two questions, both concerning glass. She writes: "Is there any way to remove discoloration or cloudiness from vases?

"Also, I would appreciate any information you might have on removing plaster, paint and other foreign matter from the windows of a new home. Razor blades are apt to scratch and it is difficult to see the very small spots."

The question of removing the film from glass vases was raised in the column about two years ago, and readers sent in a number of suggestions. Since we are just entering the season when most of us keep garden flowers in the house, we are repeating these possible solutions.

1. Mix one of the commercial products for fruitade drinks in the same strength you would drink it; let stand in the vase for 24 hours, and then wash thoroughly.

2. Fill the vase with sweet milk and allow it to stand until the milk sours or sets "clabber." It may be necessary to repeat.

3. Fill the vase with water and add a generous amount of a commercial product widely sold for cleaning toilet bowls. Allow to stand about 24 hours, then wash with hot soapsuds.

4. Put about one-half cup of vinegar in the vase, then fill with water. Let stand about one day, then wash with hot suds.

You are quite right about the possibility of the razor scratching the glass, but I know of no other way to go about this irksome task. Does anyone else have a solution?

"HOUSEWIFE" shares a problem with many a homemaker at this time of year, she wants to know what to do about silverfish. And she is also having trouble with clover mites.

Here is what Stirling Kyd, extension entomologist of the Agricultural Extension Service, Missouri College of Agriculture, has to say about the silverfish:

"These insects feed on rayon, cotton, silk, nylon, paper, book bindings and starchy materials. Spray surfaces over which silverfish crawl with 2 per cent chlordane household spray or 5 per cent DDT household spray. Spray floors and walls of all closets, store rooms, underside of book shelves and around door and window frames."

Sorry, but I can't help you with the clover mites. When you get out of the house (even into the garden) you get outside of the bailiwick of this column which deals only with homemaking problems.

THANK YOU, Mrs. P. J. of Olney, Ill., for the following suggestion:

"Sometime ago a reader asked how to keep baked pie shells from puffing up in the center. I have found the following method most satisfactory:

"Line pie pan with pie crust. Line unbaked crust with waxed paper. Fill with three-fourths to one pound barley or rice. Bake as usual. When browned, lift waxed paper and barley from pie shell and you will find no bubbles or puffiness. Save barley or rice for next pie shell; it can be used over and over again.

"I hope some others will be as pleased to know this as I was."

I am sure they will be; you are mighty nice to pass along this bit of advice.

"COULD YOU PLEASE help us decide how to clean hand-painted draperies?" asks Miss A.B.C. "Would washing them in mild suds be advisable? The cleaners don't seem to get them really clean."

Afraid I can't help you, Miss C., since I do not know what kind of paint was used, or the type of fabric. I wouldn't want to guess and possibly advise you to do something which might ruin your draperies.

FORTUNATELY, Mrs. J.'s question is one which can be answered more positively. She asks:

"How can old asbestos covered furnace pipes be made to look clean outside? They are so discolored from wiping off the dust. Can they be painted?"

Very easily; with any kind of flat wall paint.

Any homemaking problems bothering you? If so, write to Dorothy Brainerd in care of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. She will answer your questions or publish them and see if other readers have the answers for you.

Martin-Lewis Friction Due to 'Second Fiddle-itis'

HOLLYWOOD, June 18 (UP).

WHAT'S wrong between Dean Martin and Jerry Lewis? Their friends agreed today it's a case of Martin having that old team ailment—second fiddle-itis.

Martin's fear that he's being nudged into a minor role is the major reason, their pals say, for their recent friction.

The comedian and the singer have three years to go on their NBC contract and another five with Paramount, so it's certain they'll work together next fall in TV and movies.

But a long unhappiness erupted this week when Jerry took off alone for a premiere of "You're Never Too Young" at a Catskill mountain hotel where he got his start. Dean turned down the junket because he felt he'd be left out of the limelight.

It wasn't the first discord between the two. Martin decided he didn't have enough to do in the script of "Three Ring Circus" nearly two years ago.

"It isn't Jerry's fault. Producers, directors and writers often favor Jerry more and Jerry doesn't like that any more than Dean," friends of the team say.

During filming of the same picture Dean discovered he'd been cut out of magazine photographs that he and Jerry had posed for with Sheree North. Martin also heard Jerry had done a newspaper interview without him. The singer walked off the set, and shooting was suspended for a day until Producer Hal Wallis patched up the tiff.

Later the boys agreed, at Jerry's suggestion, to be interviewed and photographed only together.

Martin complained he was a fifth wheel in their last N.B.C. TV script. He didn't show up for many rehearsals, shrugging, "Why should I? I got nothin' to do."

Dean practiced his golf swing on the N.B.C. set and, observers report, "needled Jerry about his trying to direct the show."

The final touch came when Lewis failed to send Martin a birthday card recently.

"Another reason for the trouble is that Jerry is young and full of energy and wants to work," one associate of the team says. "Dean is 10 years older and likes to play golf and take it easy. Jerry also is very ambitious and wants to be a director."

Virginia Mayo to Visit St. Louis To Exploit Film

VIRGINIA MAYO, St. Louis girl who became a Hollywood movie star noted for beauty, will arrive in St. Louis Wednesday evening by airliner from Hollywood to take part in the exploitation of the world premiere of her picture, "Pearl of the South Pacific," at the Fox Theater June 28.

Miss Mayo will be given a welcoming reception, open to the public, at the Famous-Barr auditorium at 12:30 p.m. Thursday. This will be followed at 1:30 o'clock by a private luncheon at the department store at which some old friends and associates will be present, among them her aunt, Alice Jones Wientge, who was her dramatic teacher, Alice Hannegan Gorman, who taught her dancing, and Paul Beisman, manager of Municipal Opera, where she was in the dancing chorus in 1938 and played several small parts.

She will make radio and television appearances, visit the Municipal Opera cast at rehearsal Friday, and see a performance of "Wonderful Town" there Friday night. On the opening day of the picture she will appear on the Fox stage at each performance.

Miss Mayo, whose real name was Virginia Jones, was graduated from Soldan High School. She is married to Michael O'Shea, screen and TV comedian.

Star Coming

VIRGINIA MAYO, ST. LOUIS GIRL WHO BECAME A MOVIE STAR, WILL ARRIVE HERE WEDNESDAY FOR PERSONAL APPEARANCES IN CONNECTION WITH THE WORLD PREMIERE OF HER MOVIE, "PEARL OF THE SOUTH PACIFIC" AT THE FOX JUNE 28.

'It Happened One Night' in New Musical Version

HOLLYWOOD, June 18 (UP)

DICK POWELL and June Allyson are starting one of Hollywood's most ticklish projects: the remake of that favorite screen classic, "It Happened One Night."

The Powells, as further denial of those recent separation rumors, are working together for the first time in their 10-year marriage.

The ex-crooner is producing and directing a musical version of the old picture, with June taking Claudette Colbert's role and Jack Lemmon in the old Clark Gable part.

Powell admits he'll have the fans on the 1934 version to answer to. "If my picture's good they'll say I had a good picture to copy," he said. "If it's bad, they'll say what's that idiot trying to prove?"

The two most famous scenes of "It Happened One Night"—when Miss Colbert hitched a ride from Gable, and when they hung a "walls of Jericho" blanket between their beds—will be kept in the musical version. Tunesmith Johnny Mercer is composing songs for those scenes.

But producer-director Powell is altering the story in other ways.

"In the original, the heroine's rich father was a New York banker. That's kind of tired now. In my movie he's a cattle and oil man from Houston, Tex.," he explained.

"Then the bus ride in the old picture was from Miami to New York. But that scenery's been filmed before. I scouted locations in the south—took an actual bus ride—and our camera will show the route from Miami to Houston."

Some movie-makers try to cover up remakes. But Powell bravely says he'd like "to spend all my life remaking those good old movies."

"They have a new audience today," he said.

"I ran 'It Happened One Night' the other day and it's great. Except acting styles have changed. Claudette was so coy and Gable talked as if he had glue in his teeth."

'Diane'

HOLLYWOOD — Jeffrey Toome, British actor, who came here on a world tour to see Roger Moore, fellow Britisher now at M-G-M, has been signed by that studio for "Diane," in which Moore co-stars. Toome starred for four years on the London stage in "The Man Between," and Moore was his understudy.

Tony Curtis to Co-star in 'Trapeze'

HOLLYWOOD, June 18—Tony Curtis, Universal-International star, is being traded to Hecht-Lancaster for a top role in "Trapeze." As part payment, U-I will get the services of Ernest Borgnine, who is in considerable demand here now following the release of "Marty," and who has a multiple-picture contract with Hecht-Lancaster, its producers. Borgnine will star in at least one picture for U-I and will be required to do another if the studio wants him. Probably before he makes either, however, he will co-star with Glenn Ford in "Jubal Troop."

The casting of Curtis in "Trapeze," which has a circus background, completes a romantic triangle among the co-stars, of whom the other two are Burt Lancaster and Gina Lollobrigida, Italian actress. All three play aerialists, Lancaster as a veteran of the big top who has lost a leg, Curtis as his young pupil, and the shapely Lollobrigida as the cause of rivalry between them which culminates in violence and tragedy.

With Sir Carol Reed of British films directing, the picture will go before the cameras in Paris, Aug. 1.

Flowered Voile

Flowered voile in lilac tones is among the popular materials for summer dresses. This material drapes easily and is especially attractive for dresses which have full skirts. One dress with a cowl drapery at the low, rounded shoulders has brief sleeves and a wide, crushed waistband.

V-Necklines

V-necklines are featured among the newest models arriving in the stores. This neckline also is scheduled for popularity during the autumn. Some models are sleeveless. All have deep armholes, and are quite long.

Egan to Star

HOLLYWOOD—Richard Egan has been selected to star in "Great Day in the Morning," an Edmund Grainger production for RKO. The picture will be based on a novel by Robert Hardy Andrew.

Scrambled Eggs

Ingredients: Six eggs, one-half teaspoon salt, pepper, one-half cup undiluted evaporated milk, two tablespoons butter.

Method: Beat egg enough to combine yolks and whites. Add salt, pepper to taste and undiluted evaporated milk; beat enough to blend. Melt butter over low heat in a skillet (nine or 10 inch size). When butter is foamy but not brown, add egg mixture. When eggs begin to set on bottom and sides, lift cooked portions with a large spoon and fold over, lifting and folding until all egg mixture is cooked evenly. Serve at once. Makes four servings.

Knitted Dresses

Knitted dresses that have long and loose-fitting overblouses will go into many travel wardrobes. Most of the overblouses are buttoned at the front so that the costume has the appearance of a two-piece suit. An occasional dress has a middy type of blouse with a large collar. Some skirts are pleated but slim lines predominate.

'Long Chance'

HOLLYWOOD—Screen rights to "The Long Chance," a new novel by David Mark, about a race track gambler, have been acquired by Columbia.

ORPHANS TO ATTEND SHRINE CIRCUS FREE

4000 to Be Guests at Opening Performance Night of June 29.

About 4000 children from orphans' homes in the St. Louis area will be guests of Moolah Shrine Temple on opening night of its annual circus and fireworks display Wednesday, June 29, at Public Schools Stadium, it was announced yesterday.

The Shriners also will provide free transportation and refreshments for the children.

Among the featured performers will be lion trainer Pat Anthony, World War II paratrooper, whose act—put on in a 36-foot steel cage—features lions and tigers. Harold Schulenburg, general chairman of the circus, said animals ranging from pigs to elephants will be included in other acts.

Performances will be given by aerialists, horseback riders, acrobats, tight-rope walkers and clowns. To climax the show, the two Zacchini sisters will be shot from a cannon.

Proceeds of the annual circus go to Shriners' Hospital for Crippled Children, 700 South Kingshighway, and 24 other child welfare agencies. Nightly performances will be given through July 4. Tickets are on sale in the Arcade building and at Moolah Temple, 3821 Lindell boulevard. General admission is $1.50; reserved seats $2.25 and box seats $2.75.

The show will be heralded by 2000 uniformed marchers in a parade through downtown streets Monday, June 27, starting at 8:30 p.m.

Tourist Boom For Italy.

ROME, June 18 (AP)—Italy's state tourist agency reported today that foreign travelers contributed 209,000,000,000 lire ($334,400,000) to the Italian economy last year. A record total of 9,327,512 tourists entered Italy.

4000 PUPILS WILL JOIN VACATION READING CLUB

About 4000 St. Louis elementary school children are participating in the Read-Away Vacation Club, sponsored by the St. Louis Public Library, it was announced yesterday. The program, which is now in operation, will continue until Aug. 31.

"Quality, not quantity of reading, is to be stressed this year," emphasized Mrs. Ruth Overman Bostwick, supervisor of the library's work with children.

"Treasure for the taking" is the theme for the summer project. Membership buttons, book marks and certificates will be given to those children who have found the "treasure" hidden in books, Mrs. Bostwick said.

BOY SCOUT CAMPING SEASON OPENS TODAY

500 Going to Two Sites — Total for Summer Set at 6500.

More than 500 Boy Scouts and Explorers were to be at Camp May and Irondale Scout Reservation today for the opening of the 1955 summer camp season of the St. Louis Boy Scout Council.

More than 6500 Scouts, Explorers and leaders will attend council camps this summer, a Scout spokesman said. Irondale reservation is a 150-acre camp about 70 miles south of St. Louis between Missouri Highway 21 and United States Highway 67, near Irondale. It will be open until Aug. 21.

Fifteen troops of Midland District and three from other districts will attend the reservation this week. They are Troops 21, 30, 45, 49, 90, 113, 127, 282, 344, 372, 489, 493, 498, 545 and 589, all of Midland; Troop 491, Suburban District, and Troops 31 and 497 of West District.

Eight Bourbeuse District units, four Taum Sauk units and Troop 495 of Midland District will camp this week at Camp May, Beaumont Scout Reservation, Antire road and United States Highway 66, St. Louis county. Bourbeuse units are Troops 329, 439, 441, 442, 443, 444, 448 and 453. Those of Taum Sauk District are Troops 409, 427, 435 and 478.

Camp May is part of a 2400-acre site at the Beaumont reservation. Visitors will be welcome to inspect either reservation today or on any other Sunday during the camping season, a Scout official said.

A total of 80 new Cub, Boy Scout and Explorer units have been organized in the council this year, bringing total membership to 33,025 boys and 9688 leaders, it was announced yesterday.

Nine new units completed organization last week. They are Troop 621, Ballwin; 492, sponsored by the New Hope Baptist Church, Brentwood; 622, the Men's Club of the Kirkwood Methodist Church; 475, of Potosi, Mo.; Explorer Post 23, St. Ann Catholic Church; 301, the First Congregational Church of Webster Groves; 523, the Ellisville School Parent-Teachers Association; 345, the Home Heights Presbyterian Church, and 427, the American Legion Post 522, of Cuba, Mo.

James L. Glover, 30 years old, former Scoutmaster of Troop 358, Wentzville, has been appointed to the staff of the council here, it was announced yesterday.

Glover, released from the United States Navy last week, will attend the National Training School for Scout Executives at Mendham, N.J., July 26.

Representatives of 18 districts will meet at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday at Medart's Restaurant, 7036 Clayton road, Richmond Heights, to organize an attendance committee for the 1955 Boy Scout Circus, scheduled to be held next November.

A junior leaders training course for Scouts and Explorers of Northwest District will be held next weekend at Beaumont Scout Reservation.

Eagle rank, Scouting's highest advancement honor, will be awarded Scout James Baremore, 4105 Shrewsbury avenue, Shrewsbury, at a ceremony to be held at 7:30 p.m. today at Lockwood School, 426 Page avenue, Webster Groves.

Others who will receive Eagle badges in ceremonies this week include Explorer Paul C. Siebel, 901 Noah drive, Ferguson, and Explorer Peter V. Lockwood, 185 North Berry road, Glendale. Scout Calvin Owens, 3624 Navajo street, Gardenville, and Scout Douglas Reiner, 17 Granada way, Ladue, received Eagle badges last week.

GIRL SCOUT NEWS

Eleven day camps operated by the St. Louis Girl Scout Council will open this week. A total of 23 camps will be in operation this summer. Each camp is operated by a district within the council in co-ordination with the day camp committee.

Ninety girls have registered for the opening tomorrow of the Blackburn Park Intermediate camp at Webster Groves. The Brownie Camp in Tower Grove Park will open Tuesday. Some 125 girls are expected to attend.

Hampton Hill Intermediate Camp at Willmore Park will open Wednesday. The Twin Oaks Brownie Day Camp, O'Fallon Park, also will open tomorrow. Nor-Co Brownie and Intermediate camp also will open Tuesday, along with Carondelet Brownie and Intermediate Camp.

Families of persons registered with the council will be allowed to use camping facilities for the first time during Labor day weekend, it was announced yesterday.

Fee will be $4 for adults and children over 12 years and $2.50 for children under 12. A doctor's certificate will be required of those planning to swim. Further information can be obtained by calling the camp secretary, CE 1-9320.

Thirteen Senior Scouts who will attend the Senior Roundup near Denver, Colo., Aug. 2, were spending this weekend at Camp Cedarledge, near Pevely, Mo., preparing a complete unit similar to one they will set up at Denver.

GOLDEN WEDDING RECEPTION

Mr. and Mrs. Meyer Solomon, 4017A Castleman avenue, celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary yesterday at a reception at the home of a daughter, Mrs. Hubert Sandefur, 4017 Castleman.

Solomon, a tailor, is 72 years old. His wife is 71 years old.

INDUSTRY LEADERS HIT AT PAY RISES FOR PUERTO RICO

SAN JUAN, June 18 (AP)—Mandatory blanket wage increases for all industry in Puerto Rico could be a blow at this island's embryonic industrial program, aroused industry leaders said today.

The Puerto Rican Economic Development Administration charges that special legislation, already passed by the Senate in Washington, would bring about additional unemployment and create an economic crisis.

The bill provides for a one-third blanket increase in current wages, effective Jan. 1, and authorizes another boost of at least 25 cents an hour, mandatory not later than Jan. 1, 1958.

The Puerto Rican government has opposed the measure. Leaders of the statehood and independence parties, however, favor it.

Heriberto Alonso, acting director of EDA, termed the Senate action "a fatal blow against the normal growth of our economy." The bill, he said, would increase wages 100 per cent in many new industries. He estimated about 113,000 persons would be affected.

While some industries might be able to afford these increases, Alonso said many others would be forced to shut down, especially in the needlework and tobacco industries.

Puerto Rican hourly wages range from 75 cents in the chemical industry to 22½ cents in supplementary home needlework.

MUSIC LECTURE AT MUSEUM

Horenstein has recently returned to the United States after having conducted leading symphony orchestras throughout Europe. The public is invited.

SUMMER CLASSES TO OPEN THIS WEEK

Universities, College and Public High Schools Offering Courses.

Summer session classes at St. Louis University, Washington University, Fontbonne College, and at three public high schools in the city will begin this week.

Both universities will hold two summer sessions. The first session at St. Louis University begins tomorrow and runs until July 29, with the second running from July 30 to Sept. 2. Washington University will conduct classes tomorrow through July 22 and again July 25 through Aug. 26.

Most courses at Fontbonne College start Tuesday and run until July 28, although some began last week and run until Aug. 4. Summer courses for high school credit will be offered by the St. Louis Board of Education starting tomorrow at Beaumont, Roosevelt, and Vashon high schools.

The final day of registration for the first six-weeks session at St. Louis University will be tomorrow, in the men's lounge, DuBourg Hall, 221 North Grand boulevard from 8 a.m. to noon and from 1 to 4 p.m.

Over 300 undergraduate and graduate courses will be conducted in the two summer sessions at Washington University.

Fontbonne College will offer a complete program of liberal arts subjects, with emphasis on education courses.

The St. Louis Board of Education courses, which run until August 12, meet five days a week from 8 a.m. until noon. They are offered on a self-sustaining, non-profit basis, with tuition set at $20 for two courses and $12.50 for one. A different selection of courses is available at each of the three high schools where the classes will meet.

FARMERS DEBATE WHEAT QUOTAS, VOTE ON JUNE 25

Outcome of Referendum Could Affect Economy of Nation and Even 1956 Campaign.

CHICAGO, June 18 (AP)—"Im going to vote for quotas. Turning down quotas and letting the bottom drop out of the wheat market will break the whole Government farm price support program."

"I'm going to vote against quotas. If quotas are abolished, I'll be able to sell all the wheat I can raise without having to pay a price penalty to the Government."

All over the country farmers are debating whether to vote for or against wheat marketing quotas in a June 25 referendum. They are talking much as Lawrence Baumler and John Roberts.

Baumler, 64 years old, is going to vote for quotas. He farms nearly three square miles in North Dakota, which has been the state most emphatically for quotas in two previous elections.

Roberts, 37, will vote the other way. He farms 335 acres, of which 47 are in hard winter wheat, in Illinois—the state which has been the strongest against quotas.

Effect of Referendum.

The outcome of the referendum could influence the nation's economy and echo through the 1956 presidential election campaign. If quotas are turned down, adjournment of Congress may be postponed while legislators wrestle with a substitute farm program.

"I don't want to gamble with what I've got. A man should have some security and we need price protection for that," Baumler says.

Baumler has been farming in the northern great plains since 1915. He has seen prices boom and he's seen them sink to levels where it was better to burn grain as fuel than sell it.

The marketing quotas for which Baumler will vote limit the amount of wheat a farmer can sell to that produced on whatever acreage is allotted him by the Government. If he grows more acreage than his allotment, he must pay a cash penalty to the Government when he sells the wheat from the excess acreage.

Purpose of Quotas.

The purpose of the allotments and the quotas is to reduce production. The country has an enormous surplus of wheat.

For quotas to become effective, two-thirds of those voting must approve them. If they do, the government will support 1956 crop wheat at about 78 per cent of parity. If farmers don't approve, the support will drop to 50 per cent of parity.

Parity is a standard set by law, seeking fairly to measure the price of farm products in relation to prices farmers must pay for other goods.

To support such prices, the government gives farmers loans at the going percentage of parity. Grains covered by such loans are put in storage.

If the market value of the grain goes above the value of the loan, the farmer can redeem his crop from the government and sell it. If the market falls short of the loan value, the farmer keeps the money and the government takes over the grain.

Baumler thinks wheat should be supported at 100 per cent of parity, but he'll take 78 per cent because "I don't want to take a chance on wrecking the whole support program and going back to the old days." Before the New Deal administrations, there were no supports.

Wheat is Baumler's livelihood, but he doesn't think farmers to the East are much concerned.

"Farmers in the East don't care about the price of wheat as long as it's low, because they use it for feed," he says. "We raise good bread wheat and depend upon it."

Roberts's View.

One of those farmers to the East is Roberts. He hasn't had as much personal experience with farming as Baumler, but what he has had has been pretty good.

Roberts, a husky, black-haired, serious man, spent four years in the army in World War II.

"I have 47 acres in wheat," he says, "and my acreage allotment is 42. I'll have to pay a penalty. Last year I paid $26 an acre for exceeding my allotment."

Roberts bought his farm near Pekin, Ill., in 1947.

"I can't store wheat under the Government loan because there isn't enough storage room around Pekin. I don't want to store it on my farm because of risk of damage I want to sell my wheat and I don't want to pay a penalty," Roberts says.

Roberts says he and other corn belt farmers have to take an acreage cut on corn as well as on wheat, but that North Dakota farmers don't have to take the corn cut.

Only one county in North Dakota is included in the commercial corn growing area designated by the Government. Farmers outside this area are not required to take acreage cuts on corn.

"I know the land in the Dakotas," says Roberts. "They can grow 40 bushels of corn to an acre. Let them hit once, with rains at the right time, and they could hurt the corn belt farmers bad. The same is true of the South."

He doesn't like the practice of arbitrarily designating commercial corn and commercial wheat areas.

In the decline in farm prices the past few years, Roberts says he has been hurt particularly because prices for the things he buys either have held steady or gone up.

'Pappy' Boyington, Terror as Ace In Marine Corps, Has Mellowed

It Has Been Four Years Since an Escapade of Former Black Sheep Squadron Commander Has Made Headlines.

LOS ANGELES, June 18 (AP)—He was a fighting terror as a Marine ace before being shot down and imprisoned, but the post-World War II period has mellowed Gregory (Pappy) Boyington.

It has been four years since a Boyington fracas made headlines. He has now joined the do-it-yourself home fixing brigade and says he will leave flying to the younger generation.

In particular he hopes his 20-year-old son will be in the first class at the new Air Force Academy. Young Gregory automatically gets an appointment to a service school because his father wears the Medal of Honor.

Boyington, now 42, says he hasn't "done any flying to speak of" in recent years. He's a salesman for a brewery and until recently a part-time wrestling referee.

With Flying Tigers.

As commanding officer of the Marines' Black Sheep Squadron, Boyington wrote a fiery chapter in aerial combat over the Solomons. The barrel-chested flyer had quit the Marines once to go with the Flying Tigers and then returned to the service after the Tigers disbanded.

His squadron was formed of replacements and extras from other units, hence the Black Sheep title. Boyington molded the group into one of the war's most effective units.

Boyington loved a fight and a party. In three months he knocked 19 Japanese planes out of the skies. Then on Jan. 3, 1944, after shooting down his twenty-sixth Japanese plane, Boyington was hit. Severely wounded, he managed to parachute before his plane hit the water. A Japanese submarine picked him up and the fighting was over for Pappy. Twenty months later he was freed from a prison camp and returned home to receive the Navy Cross and the Medal of Honor.

Boyington had a tough time settling down. His marriage to the former Actress Frances Baker after he jilted another woman was widely publicized; two traffic accidents cost him heavily; and he was arrested a couple of times for intoxication.

Missed Flying.

Boyington says he missed flying right after the war, but "as time went on and interest in my job increased I didn't miss it so much."

He tried his hand at refereeing.

"I could spend about three evenings a week at it, have a hobby, get exercise, fun and pick up some dough. The arenas began closing and they'd chase you from San Diego to Bakersfield for jobs and there wasn't much money so I quit."

He became a do-it-yourself enthusiast and says:

"I've owned two homes since the war and I've fixed them both up, even added rooms. I'm getting a kick out of that. Might even become a contractor after I get the kids through school."

In addition to his son, Boyington has two daughters. He and his first wife were divorced in 1941 and he gained custody of the children.

REDS NOW GONE IN GUATEMALA, LATIN AMERICA

Communism No Longer Regarded a Serious Factor—Barely Alive in Honduras.

By CARLOS ESCUDERO

GUATEMALA CITY, June 18 (AP)—One year ago Guatemala was a red blot on the face of Central America and Communism was spreading to its neighbors. Today, although the government and some groups keep harping on fighting Communism to death, and just about everybody stresses "anti-Communism," the Reds are gone.

Communism in Central America, in the opinion of many observers, is no longer a serious factor. It stays barely alive in Honduras, under wraps, and it is resting on its sickles in the other Central American states.

The man who erased it in Guatemala, with a timely and determined push from Honduras, is President Carlos Castillo Armas.

"Communism in Guatemala is on the downgrade," he said in an interview, "but I shall not rest until it is completely exterminated."

Red Sheets Distributed.

Occasionally the Communists quietly distribute copies of a little sheet called Verdad (Truth, as in Pravda) or send them through the mails. On such occasions as national holidays and Labor day leaflets appear, probably printed in Mexico.

Recently, the Reds have taken to needling Castillo by changing his liberation movement motto, Dios, patria y libertad (God, country and freedom) to "Adios, patria y libertad." That A on Dios makes it goodby.

The Communists under the previous administration influenced the government from President Jacobo Arbenz Guzman down, controlled the biggest unions and had a vociferous press. Castillo credits himself with having purged the government payrolls, the unions and just about everything that showed red or pink. The Communist papers Tribuna Popular and Octubre are gone.

The Communist party was outlawed by Castillo and he has not allowed political activity by parties in the full meaning of the term. The so-called political parties now extant are dehydrated copies. The unions, trying to get reorganization going fully, are by decree non-political.

The party in Guatemala did not derive its strength from numbers. Thousands on thousands who were "Communists" then are anti-Communists now. They never really knew what the score was. The show was run from the presidential palace, because Arbenz allowed the Reds to take over just about all key positions they wanted. The party was a small, well-trained cadre.

Middle Road.

Castillo is bumping into more solid things right and left as he moves, grimly and earnestly, down the middle road. The lunatics of the left, as he calls them, and the "petrified brains of the extreme right" are giving him trouble.

The liberals and leftist, still uncertain of their future lead the growing clamor for quick return to a constitutional rule with full antonomy of the courts and the right to strike, now in abeyance, together with agrarian reform. Rightists pull the other way. Clericals want to give the Roman Catholic Church the pre-eminence it once had, materially as well as spiritually.

The country, still under a de facto government regulated by a political statute, may get a new constitution in a few months.

El Salvador, Honduras, Nicaragua, Costa Rica and Panama, Castillo's immediate friends and neighbors, all have definitely anti-Communist governments.

The Reds were well entrenched in El Salvador more than 10 years ago. They lost ground steadily. Under President Oscar Osorio the party has to work underground.

El Salvador does not have even a federation of labor unions to have international affiliations.

In Honduras Communists are quietly trying to sneak back into the struggling young unions. The new chief of state, Julio Lozano, aware of the damage caused last year by the Communist - supported strike of banana workers on the north coast of Honduras, rules by decree. It is believed he would not allow labor disturbances that could upset his five-year economic reconstruction plan.

Double Fight.

The unions have a double fight on their hands in the north coast. On one side, the Communists are trying to take over from labor leaders who are inexperienced but are advised by United States and international labor groups. On the other side, there is the uphill fight to organize the unions and negotiate with the bosses. Biggest bosses there are the fruit companies, Standard and United. In Guatemala United Fruit has signed an agreement which gives about 5000 workers the highest wages and the best living conditions of any in the country. The pattern my be followed in Honduras.

In Nicaragua there is no climate for Communists. Anastasio Somoza is the boss, and that is that.

Costa Rica has had a democratic clime for a long time, but the Reds did manage to wangle their way in. At one time it was frequently asserted that President Jose Figueres was bent too far to the left. At any rate, figures has the Reds under control.

LAURENT TORNO TO BE ON KETC LIBRARY PROGRAM

Laurent Torno, director of the Kirkwood Symphony Orchestra, will appear on the Public Library's television program, "St. Louis Album," on KETC, Channel 9, at 10:15 p.m. tomorrow.

Torno will be interviewed by J. J. Leonard of the KETC staff. A number of rare music scores and programs in the Public Library's collection will be discussed. The program is a second in a series of interviews with interesting St. Louisans produced by the library and KETC.

WASHINGTON U. OPENS $1500 WUERPEL PORTRAIT DRIVE

A drive for $1500 for purchase of an oil portrait of Edmund H. Wuerpel, director of the Washington University School of Fine Arts from 1905 to 1938, will open today with exhibition of the painting at City Art Museum, the university announced yesterday.

The picture, 16 by 45 inches, was painted in 1928 by J. Scott MacNutt, a leading St. Louis portarit artist. Wuerpel, 89 years old, now lives in Wellesley Hills, Mass., with a daughter, Mrs. Edward L. Bowles. He was a university faculty member for 53 years.

Chancellor Ethan A. H. Shepley is serving as honorary chairman of the campaign committee, with Henry F. Chadeayne as chairman and Miss Eileen Wolff as secretary-treasurer. Aim of the drive, the university stated, is to obtain many small contributions, instead of a few large gifts, in order to permit participation of as many of Wuerpel's friends and former students as possible.

MANILA, June 18 — Unemployed workers in the Philippines soon may number 2,000,000. They present the administration of President Ramon Magsaysay with its most immediate and thorny national problem.

Unless early and large-scale employment is provided all the promises of democracy that won Filipinos away from the Communist-run Huk guerrillas during the past three years may have a bitter aftertaste.

Today almost one out of every four Filipino workers is unemployed. The most conservative official statistics counted 1,850,000 without jobs in a total labor force of 8,500,000.

Other official and private estimates indicate the number of unemployed in the new republic the United States helped found may exceed 2,000,000 in a total population of 21,000,000.

Graduates Seek Work.

Young college graduates are prominent among the many thousands vainly seeking jobs. Figures compiled recently by the Department of Education indicate there are 65,000 normal college graduates with teaching certificates who are idle.

Young lawyers, architects and students of the humanities compete fiercely for jobs as clerks, taxicab drivers and waiters. Some of them are competently trained and others are graduates of colleges run for a profit. They all share a great tradition that American administration brought to these islands—the proposition that a young man could rise in life through his own efforts and that education is a means to this end.

The signs of spreading unemployment can be seen throughout the Philippines. In some provinces, such as heavily populated Batangas south of Manila, simple banditry is becoming common in areas that formerly were peaceful. Although the remnant Huk guerrillas hiding in the mountains are blamed, idle and desperate young men are among those organizing these gangs and kidnaping rich persons in the towns for ransom.

Competition for Beggars.

Placards announcing "no vacancies" are commonly posted before government offices and now are seen before an increasing number of private firms. On the streets of Manila professional beggars are encountering competition from amateurs who are willing to work when given a chance.

Stagnation in the Philippine economy is partly responsible for these unemployed. The population increases by roughly 500,000 annually without a comparable growth in opportunities for work. During the early postwar period large United States payments for war damages, veterans benefits and guerrilla back pay gave an artificial boost to business and personal incomes. But only a small fraction of this wealth was invested in industries that could provide employment.

The Philippines also is troubled with great discrepancies in wealth that severely restrict the market for goods and services. Available figures indicate that 90 per cent of the wealth is owned by less than 10 per cent of the population. Few rich Filipinos are willing to invest their money in starting new factories. But through political pressure they are forcing the Philippine Congress to outlaw more and more business by Chinese who have controlled much of the economy.

Income Taxes Evaded.

Wealthy persons in the Philippines are subject to lighter income taxes than in the United States and often evade payment. Also, the Philippine government collects very little in inheritance taxes. Most public revenues result from levies made directly and indirectly upon consumer goods needed by ordinary citizens.

All this tends to encourage a concentration of wealth and is reflected in unemployment.

Growing public dissatisfaction now is compelling attention to the need for jobs by the Philippine Congress. Characteristically, many of the politicians who also are landowners have begun by attacking the minimum wage law. This was enacted in 1951 as a condition for continued American economic aid. The act requires that industrial workers be paid a minimum daily wage of $2 and that agricultural laborers receive $1.25 per day.

The Magsaysay administration is forcing industrial compliance with the law. Many of the politically powerful hacienderos are not paying the minimum wage to their farm laborers. They now argue the minimum wage should be abolished or amended to spread employment.

No Economic Engine.

President Magsaysay and his advisers, meanwhile, are looking for a dynamic formula that can jolt the Philippines out of its economic doldrums and start large scale national development. They have considered trying some of the early measures of Franklin D. Roosevelt and the New Deal, including large scale work projects and deficit financing. But experienced economists discouraged this, arguing the Philippines did not have a stalled engine but hardly any modern economic engine at all—and the task is to build one.

That is the dilemma today and the American stake is very real. Without a rapid increase in productive employment the most promising democracy in this part of the world is in trouble and the great United States political and military investment here endangered.

Resolution of the problem will require more creative American assistance than has recently been available.

Art Museum's Education Work Is Termed Among World's Best

Fulbright Fellow From Rome Praises Efficient Organization of Supervisor Mary Powell.

City Art Museum boasts one of the world's best educational departments, Miss Angela Rava of Rome, Italy, declared yesterday on completion of seven months' study of educational work of American museums. As holder of a current Fulbright fellowship, she left St. Louis yesterday to report to Washington, D.C.

"In art museum educational work generally, America is far ahead of Europe," Miss Rava said. "St. Louis has long been recognized in the museum world for the high caliber of the work done here.

"That's the reason I've spent almost all my time since last November here, making only short trips to museums of the West Coast and other parts of the country and reading about the work of other museums active in this field.

"Your department is remarkable for its efficient organization and the wide variety of its extension activities co-ordinated with schools, clubs and art societies.

"To me, the most surprising aspect of American education has been the warm, close, friendly relationship between superiors, such as Miss Mary Powell, the museum's supervisor of education, and the six other members of the department and all the students and visitors.

"In Europe, the entrenched educational tradition is that the superior must be stern, aloof, severe, demanding. I certainly prefer the American way. It's beautiful. It made me so happy. This never happens in Italy, but in my work in art education back in Italy, I plan to try as hard as I can to make it happen, to transplant your system to Italy's soil."

Miss Rava is a niece of Paul B. Rava, St. Louis attorney, 510 Overhill drive, University City.

She was awarded her degree in art history by the University of Rome with highest honors in 1952 after specializing in study of fourteenth century Sienese art, particularly illuminated manuscripts.

TRUCK OPERATORS' SPEAKER

Walter W. Belson, Washington, D.C., assistant to the president of American Trucking Association, Inc., will be principal speaker at a meeting of truck operators and shippers Tuesday night at Hotel Kings-Way.

He will discuss the effect on shippers and truck operators of bills pending in Congress affecting the Interstate Commerce Act.

THETA SIGMA PHI BUFFET SUPPER

Annual Convention of Organization of Women in Journalism Opens.

The annual convention of Theta Sigma Phi, national fraternal organization for women in journalism, will get under way this evening at Hotel Chase with a buffet supper given by the editors of the Ladies' Home Journal.

Miss Margaret Hickey, a member of the St. Louis chapter of Theta Sigma Phi and editor of the public affairs department of the Ladies' Home Journal, will preside at the traditional Matrix Table closing the convention Wednesday evening.

At that time, the Headliners Awards, given to three women recognized for their national contribution to journalism during the past year, will be announced. Miss Hickey will speak on "The Near Look and the Far Vision."

Esther Van Wagoner Tufty, head of tthe Tufty News Bureau, Washington, will speak at the business session on Tuesday morning.

Professional workshops and social affairs will occupy the delegates for the remainder of the convention. The official close will be followed by a breakfast Thursday for the Headliners announced the previous evening. It will be held at the home of Mrs. Thomas M. Sayman, 5399 Lindell boulevard.

DAVY CROCKETT IS SUBJECT OF HISTORICAL SOCIETY TALK

Davy Crockett, "King of the Wild Frontier," will be the subject of a talk opening the sixth summer program for boys and girls at the Missouri Historical Society at Jefferson Memorial in Forest Park tomorrow at 10:30 a.m. and at 1:30 p.m.

Children between 7 and 12 years of age are admitted free to the series which is given through a grant by Famous-Barr Co. On succeeding Mondays there will be similar programs on the theme of frontier days.

The six Wednesdays in the series will be devoted to historical adventures while the Friday programs will be centered on Indians. Mrs. Frank Groom Kirtz and Mrs. Jack Carpenter, assisted by volunteers from the Junior League, will conduct the classes.

Eleanor Chouteau Johnson Bride of Thomas M. Moore At Afternoon Ceremony

Fashionable Wedding In Elaborate Garden Setting at Huntleigh Village Home of Mr. and Mrs. James Lee Johnson.

AN ELABORATE garden setting, pretty girls carrying parasols and an assemblage of well-dressed guests combined to make the wedding late yesterday of Miss Eleanor Chouteau Johnson and Thomas Milliken Moore one of the most attractive of the June season.

The marriage took place at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Lee Johnson, in Huntleigh Village. A large bridal party descended the circular stairway, proceeded through the center hall of the house and emerged on the pillared veranda from which extended a long, chintz-lined marquee. A white canvas aisle led to a 30-foot pergola, the enclosure bordered with a wrought iron railing to which had been secured stylized huckleberry trees studded with white chrysanthemums. At the back, facing the guests, wrought iron candelabra were pyramided to a peak before which stood one large arrangement of all-white flowers. There the ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. W. Sherman Skinner, new pastor of Second Presbyterian Church.

The bride was attended by three young children, her nieces and nephew, flower girls and ring bearer; her sister, Mrs. Richard Simrall Hawes III (Christy Johnson), matron of honor, and the following bridesmaids: Miss Marye Dodge Baldwin, Miss Julia Terry, Miss Blakeslee Cook, Mrs. John J. O'Fallon Jr., and four of the bride's former Vassar College classmates, Miss Lorraine Goodrich, Charlotte, N. C.; Miss Barrie Landauer, San Antonio, Tex.; Miss Sally Newcomb, New York, and Miss Beverly Wortham, Lufkin, Tex.

Mr. Moore, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Gillespie Moore, 20 Wydown terrace, Clayton, had his brother, John Wooten Moore, Ashtabula, O., as best man. The ushers, leading the procession, were William G. Moore Jr., his other brother; James Lee Johnson Jr., William H. and Robert E. Otto, Stephen Garnett, Louisville, Ky.; Dixon F. Spivy, Louis S. Dennig Jr., William C. Schock, Martin Lammert IV, Randolph Churchill Wohltman Jr., John H. Ford, Mr. Hawes and Mr.

Miss Schlueter Introduced at Garden Dance

MISS JOAN SCHLUETER had her second coming-out party, a garden dance, last night at the home of her parents, Dr. and Mrs. Newell Schlueter, 2 Litzsinger road, Ladue. Guests were this seasons debutantes and their escorts. Miss Schlueter was introduced to her parents' friends at a Christmas holiday reception.

The dance floor, adjoining the house, was covered by a canopy and surrounded by small tables holding hurricane lights circled with garden flowers. At midnight supper was served at a long table, also adorned with garden flowers, on the inclosed terrace.

The debutante wore a short apple green tulle gown made with a strapless bodice and trimmed at the waist with an appliqued cadet blue velvet bow. Blue flowers caught in the bow spread into the bouffant skirt. Mrs. Schlueter chose a beige and gold knitted dinner dress.

Miss Schlueter will be guest of honor tomorrow at a luncheon to be given by Mrs. Warren C. Bruce and Mrs. John C. Gross at the University Club and on July 3 will be feted at a garden breakfast with Mrs. Otto S. Conrades,

Julie Beauchamp Becomes Bride At Cathedral

MISS JULIE BEAUCHAMP, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Theodore Beauchamp of Geneseo, N. Y., became the bride of Robert Day Carter Jr., of Park Forest, Ill., yesterday afternoon at Christ Church Cathedral. Dr. Edgar Curtis Taylor, uncle of the bride, performed the ceremony which was followed by a small reception at Dr. and Mrs. Taylor's home, 7 Briarcliff, Ladue.

Decorations at the cathedral were limited to altar bouquets of white flowers and clusters of lighted candles. Given in marriage by her father, the bride had as her only attendant, Miss Nancy Snell, Evanston, Ill. Mr. Carter, son of Dr. and Mrs. Robert D. Carter, who came from their home in Birmingham, Mich., for the wedding, had the bride's brother, William T. Beauchamp Jr., Walla Walla, Wash., as best man. Ushers were the bridegroom's brother, Charles Carter, Ann Arbor, Mich., and Robert Hicks, Oak Park, Ill.

The bride wore a white or-

Chapel Wedding For Alma Furlow, E. V. Stephenson

MISS ALMA CRADDOCK FURLOW and Ens. Edmond Vernon Stephenson, U.S.N.R., who were graduated earlier this month from Duke University, were married Tuesday night in Ladue Chapel. A candlelighted aisle led to a setting of stephanotis and greenery arranged back of the candlelighted altar.

There were two officiating clergymen, the Rev. Dr. W. Davidson McDowell, pastor, and the bride's uncle, Dr. Thomas H. Wheelis of Bremen, Ga.

The bride, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Leonard Thompson Furlow, 21 Fair Oaks, Ladue, was attended by Miss Elizabeth Truitt, Madison, Ga., maid of honor, and Miss Sally and Miss Susan Carr and Miss Virginia Warren, whose home is in New Jersey, bridesmaids.

The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Glenn T. Randol of Mountain Lake Park, Md., who with Mr. Randol was here for the wedding as were numerous other out-of-town guests. Best man was Charles Seager of Huntington, W. Va. Ushers were the bride's brother, Leonard T. Furlow Jr.; Donald Scott, Baltimore; Hazen Pingree, Grosse Pointe, Mich., and the bridegroom's brother-in-law, Charles McIntire, Washington.

Light green chiffon dresses were worn by the bride's attendants who circled their hair with green flower bandeaux and carried French bouquets of red roses. The shirred bodices were complemented with shoulder drapery and the skirts were full.

The bride wore gardenia white taffeta with a snug bodice, wide scoop neckline and brief sleeves. The full skirt terminated in a short train. Her veil, of rose point lace which she bought in Europe last summer, was held in place by a pearl bandeau. She carried white roses and stephanotis.

The wedding reception was the first to be held at Old Warson Country Club. Two hundred and fifty guests were entertained at candlelighted tables for supper on the terrace where an orchestra played for dancing.

Mr. Stephenson and his bride drove to Moraine-on-the-Lake, Highland Park, Ill. They will return here before continuing to San Diego, Calif., where they will have an apartment while he is on duty on the U.S.S. Braine.

The bride's grandmother, Mrs. Charles M. Furlow, and her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. William W. Baldwin, were here from Madison, Ga., and Mrs. Wheelis accompanied her husband from Bremen.

Autumn Wedding For Mrs. Tucker, Whipple Jones

MR. AND MRS. MALCOLM H. FROST of Greenwich, Conn., announce the engagement of her daughter, Mrs. Penelope Etnier Tucker, to Whipple Van Ness Jones of St. Louis and Aspen, Colo. The wedding will take place in the fall.

Mrs. Tucker, a graduate of Ethel Walker School, Simsbury, Conn., and a former student at Vassar College, is the granddaughter of Mrs. Carey Etnier of York, Pa., and the late Mr. Etnier, and of Mrs. John Lathrop Gray of Greenwich and the late Mr. Gray. Her father is Stephen Etnier, South Harpswell, Me.

Mr. Jones is the son of Mrs. Frank W. Jones of Milwaukee and the late Mr. Jones, and is the father of four children, Miss Diane, Miss Daphne, Richard McCulloch and Whipple Van Ness Jones Jr., who live in Spring Lake, N.J., with their mother, Mrs. James Lowell Oakes.

A graduate of Harvard University, Mr. Jones served as a lieutenant colonel in the Air Force in World War II. He is a member of the St. Louis Country Club and Noonday Club here and the Denver Club in Denver.

Emily Anne Byrne Becomes Bride

MISS EMILY ANNE BYRNE and Raymond Anthony Newsham were married by her uncle, Bishop Leo C. Byrne, yesterday morning at All Saints Church. Decorations were white summer flower and greenery illuminated with candlelight. After the ceremony, the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William J. Byrne, 6845 Bartmer avenue, University City, gave a family breakfast at LeChateau and early in the afternoon entertained additional guests at a reception there.

The bride wore a white tulle and French lace gown over satin. The molded lace bodice was styled with a high neckline and short sleeves and the bouffant skirt, which fell into a short train, was decorated with lace scrolls. The former Miss Byrne wore a cathedral-length veil gathered to a small tulle cap bound with white satin. She carried white orchids and stephanotis.

The center aisle was marked with clusters of pink and white flowers tied to alternate pews with white satin ribbon. Escorted by her father, who gave her in marriage, the bride was attended by her sister, Mrs. Raymond E. Watts, matron of honor; another sister, Miss Kathleen Byrne; the bridegroom's sister, Miss Ruth Coff, and Miss Mary Knoll, bridesmaids. The young women were in pale pink pique dresses made with bateau necklines, appliqued with lace sprinkled with brilliants, and circular ballerina skirts. They wore pink veils fastened to matching hair bands and carried shower bouquets of pink and white daisy chrysanthemums.

Mr. Newsham, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Coff, 8755 East Bridgeport avenue, Brentwood, had his brother, Donald Newsham, as best man. Ushers were Donald N. Goehausen, Evansville, Ind., David B. Ferrenback, Lawrence Etzkorn and Irving R. Ohlsen.

Mr. and Mrs. Newsham will spend their honeymoon in Florida. They will live in Louisville, Ky.

Heads Stenotype Club.

THEIR WEDDINGS IN JUNE

Marilyn Swett Is Married to J. A. Porteous

THE marriage of Miss Marilyn Jean Swett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Grant Swett, 106 Manlyn drive, Kirkwood, to James Allan Porteous was performed yesterday evening at Webster Groves Presbyterian Church by the Rev. Dr. Harry T. Scherer. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Waterman Porteous, 445 Algonquin place, Webster Groves.

The bride's gown of white satin over nylon tulle featured a chantilly lace bodice and lace insets in the skirt. Her bouquet was composed of white orchids and stephanotis, and her veil fell from a lace crown. Mrs. John Gibson III served as matron of honor with Miss Shelley Brooks, Miss Helen Richter and Miss Virginia Wilson as bridesmaids. The young women were dressed identically in yellow ballerina gowns and held spray bouquets.

Mr. Gibson was best man; ushers were Thomas E. Killeen, Donald Frith and Richard Jackson. After the ceremony a reception was held in Fellowship Hall of the church.

Mr. Porteous, a Washington University graduate and a member of Beta Theta Pi fraternity, took his bride to Crystal Lake, Mich., on their wedding trip. The bride, whose father is a well-known examiner of questioned documents, is a former student at William Woods College, Fulton, Mo.

Wedding at Home For Lucy Ambler

MISS LUCY KING AMBLER, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wyllys King Ambler, became the bride of of Albertus Jacobus Johannes van Lutsenburg Maas Thursday night, June 9, at her parents' home, 525 East Argonne drive, Kirkwood. The candlelight ceremony was performed by the Rev. Donald H. Stewart, pastor of Kirkwood Presbyterian Church.

A full-length gown of ice blue organdy trimmed in white lace was worn by the bride whose veil was of ice blue illusion. The former Miss Ambler carried a cluster of white blossoms with touches of blue and yellow flowers. Her sister, Mrs. George M. Greer (Jean Cary Ambler), served as matron of honor wearing a summery frock of yellow cotton with a hair band of matching yellow petals. Blue and white spring flowers were combined for her bouquet. Two of the bridegroom's sisters, Miss Petronella and Miss Sophia Antoinette van Lutsenburg Maas, both of Mountain Lakes, N.J., were bridesmaids. They were dressed in robin's-egg blue cotton and held yellow and blue spring flowers.

Richard J. Ambler of Kirkwood was best man for the bridegroom, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert A. van Lutsenburg Maas of Mountain Lakes. Mr. and Mrs. Maas were here for the wedding with several other out-of-town visitors. The ushers, Theodore Munnecke of Plandome, N.Y., and Gleason McBane of Cleveland, seated the guests for the marriage service which was followed by a reception.

Mr. Maas and his bride will visit the Colorado Rockies and the Grand Tetons in Wyoming on their way to Sausalito, Calif., where they will make their home. Both are 1954 graduates of The Principia College, Elsah, Ill. The bridegroom, whose father is New York manager of Holland-America Lines was born in The Hague, Holland, and has traveled extensively in Europe and South Africa. He is currently employed with Holland-America Lines in San Francisco.

Phyllis Freschi Is Married to Lt. R. E. Dillon

EIGHTEEN attendants preceded Miss Phyllis Joan Freschi to the altar of the Church of the Annunziata for her marriage yesterday morning to Army Lt. Richard Emmett Dillon. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Joseph Freschi, 9757 Old Warson road, Ladue; Lt. Dillon is the son of John Charles Dillon, New York and Spring Lake, N.J., and the late Irene O'Hara Dillon.

Miss Joan Scott Gross was maid of honor and Miss Carol Gissy, Miss Carol Goessling, Miss Shirley Knupp, Miss Joan Macken and Miss Barbara Smith were bridesmaids. Susan Brent Freschi, young sister of the bride, and Christy Lynn Willis were flower girls and Francis Eugene Pennington III carried the ring.

Lt. Dillon, who was commissioned on his graduation from Princeton University last week, had Lt. Frederick Forrest Schock, Ayer, Mass., as best man. Ushers were his brother, John Charles Dillon III, Larchmont, N.Y.; his brother-in-law, John Sands Davis, and M. Bradley Steinthal, New York, and five Princeton classmates, Albert Yort Jr., Hinsdale, Ill.; Michael J. Duffy, Essex Falls, N.J.; Anthony Alexandre, New York, and McDonald Dozier Gardner and Daniel K. Kane, St. Louis.

Mr. Freschi escorted his daughter down an aisle which was illuminated with candles in hurricane lamps. Woodwardia fern was massed at the communion rail and white flowers in gold vases were arranged at the base of pillars at each side of the altar. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Joseph M. O'Toole, pastor of Mary Queen of Peace Church, Webster Groves.

The bride wore a swiss embroidered organdy gown with short sleeves and a scoop neckline edged with pleated organdy. The skirt, held wide by crinoline petticoats, fell into a brief train from a madonna blue taffeta sash. A small white organdy cap, trimmed in back with an organdy boy, secured the fingertip veil. The bridal bouquet was white garcia chrysanthemums and white marguerites.

The maid of honor and bridesmaids were in madonna blue cotton dresses made on princess lines. Square necks were marked with white embroidered banding which extended down the skirts in a panel and in bows above hemlines of ballerina skirts. The young women wore large white hats trimmed with blue grosgrain ribbon, and held bouquets of white marguerites and ivy leaves. The flower girls wore short white embroidered organdy frocks, tied with blue sashes. They hard garlands of daises in their hair and carried yellow and white nosegays.

After the ceremony, guests were entertained at a reception at Brenthaven, home of the bride's grandmother, Mrs. Henry Edward Billman, next door to the Freschi home. The entire lower floor was decorated with white spring flowers which also adorned the bridal table, in the living room, and small tables on the lawn. Among more than 50 out-of-town guests were the bridegroom's father and Mrs. Dillon.

Lt. and Mrs. Dillon flew to Mexico City for their honeymoon. They will live at Fort Sill, Okla., where the bridegroom is to be stationed.

Temple Wedding For Lois Sachar, Alva Moog Jr.

MISS LOIS JEAN SACHAR, who was graduated earlier this month from Smith College, was married last night to Alva Moog Jr. at Shaare Emeth Temple. Miss Sachar's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Morris M. Sachar, 8 Log Cabin drive, Ladue, gave the reception at Westwood Country Club.

Rabbi Joseph Rosenbloom and Dr. Abram L. Sachar, president of Brandeis University and an uncle of the bride, performed the ceremony. Decorations were provided by pink flowers, greenery and candlelight.

The former Miss Sachar wore a white taffeta gown, simply designed, with fagotting along the deeply cut neckline its only trimming. A pearl-trimmed cap held her veil and she carried white orchids and variegated ivy.

Miss Carol Sachar, sister of the bride, was maid of honor and Mrs. Joseph Arndt Jr., sister of the bridegroom, matron of honor. Bridesmaids were another sister of Mr. Moog, Miss Alice Tucker, and two of the bride's cousins, Miss Judy Kramer and Miss Nancy Brand. They were gowned in pink and held cascades of pale pink roses, stephanotis and ivy.

Mr. Moog, son of Mrs. Percy Tucker, Spoede road, Creve Coeur, and the late S. Alva Moog, had Mr. Tucker as best man. Ushers were Byron and Roger Sachar, brothers of the bride, Mr. Arndt, Paul Tucker, brother of the bridegroom, Howard Bennett, Charles Tober, Raymond Wittcoff and Ralph Treiman.

Mr. Moog and his bride will visit California on their wedding trip. They will live at 880 McKnight road, University City. He is an alumnus of St. Louis Country Day School and Amherst College. His bride's preparatory school was Mary Institute.

MISS JANE FREDERICK

Miss Jane Frederick Engaged to R. J. Uhle; Announced at Party

MR. AND MRS. GEORGE ACKERMAN FREDERICK announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Jane Louise Frederick, to Ronald J. Uhle of Chicago at a buffet supper recently at their home, 414 Yorkshire place, Webster Groves.

The party was in honor of Miss Carol Mullen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Mullen, 445 Woodlawn avenue, Webster Groves, whose engagement to Tom F. Atteberry of Springfield, Mo., was made known recently.

Miss Frederick and her fiance are both students at Monmouth College, Monmouth, Ill. The bride-to-be, who will be a senior in the fall, is a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority. She is the granddaughter of Mrs. Alice A. Frederick of University City and Mrs. George Beggs Gilmore of Webster Groves and the late Mr. Gilmore.

Mr. Uhle, son of Jacob Uhle of Chicago, will be graduated in January. His fraternity is Theta Chi.

Church Wedding For Miss Pauley, H. A. Broemmelsick

LADUE CHAPEL was the scene Friday night of the marriage of Miss Jeanne Macklin Pauley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Frederick Pauley, 33 Ridgetop drive, Richmond Heights, to Howard August Broemmelsick of Chesterfield, Mo. Stock, white gladiolas and chrysanthemums decorated the chancel for the ceremony performed by the Rev. Dr. W. Davidson McDowell.

Chantilly lace and tulle over white satin fashioned the bride's gown which was designed with a wide rounded neckline outlined by stiffened lace embroidered with seed pearls. Deep flounces of nylon tulle at the hemline distinguished the gathered lace skirt. The bride wore an illusion veil secured to a pearl-trimmed Juliet cap and carried moth orchids and stephanotis.

Miss Margaret Ward Pauley was maid of honor for her sister; bridesmaids were Miss Nancy Feldon of Winnetka, Ill., Miss Betty Breland, Miss Katharine Elder and Mrs. Frank A. Traylor Jr. (Claire Guthrie). With their summery frocks of white organdy, tied at the waist with blue sashes, the young women attendants carried white daisies combined with blue larkspur for the bridesmaids and white larkspur for the maid of honor.

The bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. August F. Broemmelsick of Chesterfield, had Milton Mill as best man. Ushers included the bride's brother, John Judson Large Jr.; Donald M. Hanson, Alden Rehnquist and Frank A. Traylor Jr.

After the ceremony guests gathered at the Old Warson Country Club for a reception. Mr. and Mrs. Broemmelsick, who have gone to Lake Placid, N.Y., on their wedding trip, will live at 214 Elm street, Glendale.

MISS JEANA DALE

Miss Jeana Dale Is Engaged to G. D. Bearce Jr.

ANNOUNCEMENT has been made of the engagement and forthcoming June 25 marriage of Miss Jeana Dale, daughter of Mrs. Clarence Russell Dale, 4560 Oakland avenue, and the late Mr. Dale, to George Donham Bearce Jr. of Brunswick, Me. After their wedding the pair will spend 10 weeks touring Europe.

Miss Dale, who has won many art awards and is represented in the permanent collection of the City Art Museum, is art supervisor at Central Institute for the Deaf. She is an honors graduate of Washington University School of Fine Arts and last August completed requirements for her master's degree at New Mexico Highlands University, Las Vegas, N. M., where she met her fiance. He was a member of the faculty and she was engaged in painting a Student Union building memorial mural. Miss Dale plans her second solo exhibition of paintings, drawings and prints at the St. Louis Artists' Guild next spring.

The bride-elect has taught at People's Art Center and twice was named winner of the center's Fannie Cook Memorial Scholarship. She is a member of Kappa Pi, national art, and Kappa Delta Pi, education, honorary societies. In 1951 her "Gypsy II," a color engraving, was added to the City Art Museum collection as winner of the Henry V. Putzel prize in the annual state-wide competition.

Mr. Bearce, son of Mr. and Mrs. George D. Bearce of Bucksport, Me., is assistant professor of history at Bowdoin College, Brunswick. His undergraduate work was done at the University of Maine, of which his father is a trustee, and he was awarded his M.A. and Ph.D. in modern history at the University of Wisconsin. The prospective bridegroom, a specialist in British-Indian relations, has also studied at Harvard University School of Law and done independent research in England. He is a member of Phi Beta Kappa scholastic society, and Beta Theta Pi fraternity. From 1943 to 1946 he served as an Army Captain in Europe. He has taught at the College of William and Mary, Williamsburg, Va., and at Kalamazoo (Mich.) College.

The wedding will take place at 11 o'clock in the morning at Park Avenue Christian Church, New York. Mrs. Oliver W. Harrison, Farmingdale, L. I., will be bridesmaid and W. Bradford Haskell, Concord, Mass., will be best man. Mr. Bearce and his bride will live in Brunswick after they return from Europe in September.

Chapel Wedding For Helen Mare, W. F. Dean Jr.

THE marriage of Miss Helen Claire Mare, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Mare, to William Foy Dean Jr. took place Friday afternoon in Childress Chapel at Central Presbyterian Church. The Rev. Dr. J. Layton Mauze Jr. performed the ceremony in a setting of white roses.

Honor attendants for the pair were the bride's twin, Miss Roberta Alice Mare, maid of honor, and her fiance, William Chipman Honey, best man. Miss Karen Dean, sister of the bridegroom, was bridesmaid and Jack Benzinger was usher.

The bride wore a white embroidered organdy gown with a waltz-length skirt, and a short tulle veil held by a halo of tiny flowers. She carried stephanotis and white orchids. Her attendants were in pale blue cotton dresses with elongated waistlines and full skirts. Their bouquets were composed of sweetheart roses and ivy.

The home of the bride's parents at 7060 Maryland avenue, University City, was the scene of the reception. Mr. Dean and his bride will spend their honeymoon in Michigan and will live in Chicago. He is serving in the Army and she is a kindergarten teacher.

Here from out of town for the wedding were John B. Mare, Pensacola, Fla.; Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Luhnow, Kansas City, Mo.; David H. McVey, Minneapolis; Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Mitchell and Bart McVey, Indianapolis, and Mr. and Mrs. Jean Schaefer, Louisville, Ky.

Reis-Alderson Engagement.

Announcement has been made by Mr. and Mrs. Dwight A. Alderson of East Alton, Ill., of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Kathleen Anne Alderson, to Val J. Reis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Val C. Reis, Yaeger road, Mehlville. Miss Alderson is a graduate of DePaul Hospital School of Nursing. Her fiance, an alumnus of Christian Brothers Military High School, served two years with the Air Force.

Summer Wedding At Alton Church

THE marriage of Miss Peggy MacPhee Maxwell-Ross, daughter of Robert J. Maxwell-Ross of Drynachan House, Invergarry, Inverness-shire, Scotland, to Dr. Franklin Hewit Pfeiffenberger, took place yesterday in Alton. The bridegroom is the youngest son of Dr. and Mrs. J. Mather Pfeiffenberger of Bluff street, Alton. The Rev. Edgar J. Vance performed the ceremony at First Presbyterian Church, which was decorated with white larkspur, stock and gladiolas.

The bride, who has lived in this country for two years, carried white heather, flown from Scotland, and stephanotis arranged on an heirloom fan. She wore a chantilly lace gown over satin and a lace cap to held her veil. She was given in marriage by an uncle of the bridegroom, Eben Rodgers.

Mrs. Robert Burnett McGandy, Staten Island, N.Y., was matron of honor, and Miss Mary Josephine Pfeiffenberger, sister of the bridegroom, was bridesmaid. They wore ice blue organza and white lace, respectively, and carried white daisies, larkspur and yellow roses. Jean Anschuetz and Dianne Pfeiffenberger, nieces of the bridegroom, were flower girls in white organdy tied with yellow sashes. They held bouquets of white daisies. William Luer was ring bearer.

Best man was Dr. Mather Pfeiffenberger Jr. and ushers were two other brothers, Lucas Edward Pfeiffenberger and Andrew Rodgers Pfeiffenberger, Denver; Robert Hilpert Anschuetz, a nephew; and Dr. McGandy.

A small reception was given at the Pfeiffenberger home. The bride and bridegroom, who have departed on a short wedding trip, will live in New York while Dr. Pfeiffenberger, who was graduated June 9 from Cornell University School of Medicine, serves his internship at New York Hospital.

MRS. SETH ERNST WISSNER

Miss Geraghty, Lt. Wayne F. Alch Are Married

MISS MARY ANNE GERAGHTY, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard J. Geraghty, 4458 Kinswood lane, St. Louis county, was married to First Lt. Wayne Faessler Alch yesterday morning at St. Francis of Assisi Church, Oakville. The bride's six brothers participated in the ceremony which was performed by the Rev. Viator Weissler.

White spring flowers adorned the altar. Candles were arranged before woodwardia fern in the sanctuary and in hurricane lamps along the aisle. Miss Claire Donnelly was maid of honor and Miss Janet Breece, Miss Jayne Merz, Miss Margaret Dusard and Miss Kathleen Mulligan, cousin of the bride, were bridesmaids. Another cousin, Barbara Ahner, was flower girl.

Donald Arthur Alch was best man for his brother. They are sons of Mr. and Mrs. W. Walter Alch, 8104 Stratford avenue, Clayton. Ushers were Lt. Wesley Harris, Atlanta, Ga.; Philip George, Knox, Ind.; Thomas T., Terrence and Timothy Geraghty. Tyrone and Ted Geraghty were acolytes and Tracy Geraghty carried the rings.

The bride's gown was fashioned with a fitted basque and elbow sleeves, made of bands of Valencinnes lace, and an organdy umbrella skirt, banded with the lace, ending in a train. The short veil was gathered to a pleated organdy chignon held in place by a wreath of orange blossoms. The bride carried her mother's wedding prayer book covered with white orchids and lilies of the valley. Her attendants were in short white embroidered organdy dresses and organdy caps and held white daisies tied with pink ribbon to match their slippers. The flower girl wore a white eyelet organdy frock over pink, and a pink bonnet. She carried a basket of pink and white garnet roses.

After the wedding Mr. and Mrs. Geraghty gave a breakfast in the Crystal room of the Missouri Athletic Club.

Lt. and Mrs. Alch will go to Fort Lauderdale, Fla., and Nassau on their wedding trip and will live in Rolla, Mo., while he is on duty at Fort Leonard Wood.

Wissner-Waters Church Wedding

MISS RUTH MARY WATERS, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl E. Waters, 7127 Northmoor drive, University City, became the bride yesterday of Dr. Seth Ernst Wissner. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. John P. Holland at Our Lady of Lourdes Church.

After a breakfast at the Waters home, the bride and bridegroom departed for a honeymoon in Florida. They will live at 54 Broadview drive, Clayton.

The former Miss Waters wore a white peau de soie gown with cap sleeves and a wide skirt. Belgian lace over tulle was arranged in madonna style over her hair, falling to her fingertips. She carried stephanotis and white orchids.

Mrs. Edwin Bartel served as matron of honor and Miss Jeannine and Miss Roberta Langenberg, nieces of the bridegroom, were junior bridesmaids. They were in periwinkle blue tulle over taffeta, and small matching hats. They carried casual bouquets of spring blossoms.

Dr. Wissner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry W. Wissner, 8109 Glen Echo drive, Normandy, had Gerald Compton as best man. Ushers were Ronald James Wylde, Washington, and H. James Miller Jr.

Janet Moore to Become Bride. Mrs. Blanche Moore, Rolla, Mo., announces the engagement of her daughter, Miss Janet Moore, to William Doyle Carter, son of Eugene Carter, 5312 Maple avenue, and the late Mrs. Carter. Miss Moore, whose father was the late Ray Moore, attended Rolla High School and was graduated from Ferguson High School in 1952. She is employed at Fort Leonard Wood. Her fiance, a graduate of Ellington (Mo.) High School, is with the St. Louis Board of Education in in the audio-visual department. The wedding will take place Sept. 25 at First Christian Church, Rolla, the Rev. Charles A. Willbanke officiating.

Miss Beal Bride Of E. P. Miller

A BRIDE of Wednesday afternoon was Miss Susan Lewis Beal, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Beal, whose marriage to Elliott Prentice Miller took place at Emmanuel Episcopal Church in Webster Groves. The Rev. Alfred B. Seccombe performed the ceremony.

The former Miss Beal chose a white embroidered Swiss organdy gown, the neckline edged in scalloped embroidery. The wide skirt had a pleated organdy front panel. Her veil fell to her fingertips from an organdy half-hat trimmed with seed pearls and her bouquet was a loose arrangement of white roses, stephanotis and lilies of the valley.

Miss Susan Pender was maid of honor and Miss Barbara Siepker, Miss Carol Von Hoffman and Miss Nancy Dahlkamp were bridesmaids. Their white dotted Swiss gowns were tied with Italian silk sashes extending into streamers over the full skirts. A color accent was provided by pale green silk half-hats and matching slippers and by nosegays of sweetheart roses.

Mr. Miller, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roland L. Miller, 916 Briarton drive, Webster Groves, had as best man his brother, James R. Miller. Ushers were Christopher Dalton, Robert Crowe, Daniel Kremer, John W. Beal Jr. and Frederick Weeks, Peoria, Ill.

The reception was given at the Beal home, 38 Algonquinwood, Webster Groves. Mr. Miller and the former Miss Beal will spend their honeymoon in Hazelhurst, Wis., at the summer home of her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Boyer.

Miller-McFarland Wedding at Church

MISS ALICE MARGUERITE McFARLAND, daughter of Mrs. John H. McFarland, of East St. Louis, and the late Mr. McFarland, was married last night to Warren Russell Miller, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert F. Miller, 314 Tulip drive, Webster Groves. The ceremony was performed at St. Paul's Methodist Church, East St. Louis, by the Rev. Edwin Grant and the Rev. Dr. Barney Ellis Maclean of Southampton Presbyterian Church.

Mrs. James L. Compton, sister of the bride, was matron of honor and Miss Betty Qualls and Mrs. James Thomas Ash were bridesmaids.

Robert E. Miller was his brother's best man and ushers were Robert H. Oliver, Robert Croak, Crawford A. King Jr. and Howard Elzemeyer.

A reception for 400 guests was given at the Hotel Broadview. Later the bride and bridegroom departed by motor for a tour of the South. After July 4 they will reside at 905 Diversey drive, Crestwood.

Fay Voelker Married To Pvt. W. J. Boyd Jr. At Ft. Smith, Ark.

MISS FAY COLLETTE VOELKER was married yesterday morning in the Church of the Immaculate Conception at Fort Smith, Ark., to Pvt. William John Boyd Jr., who is currently stationed with the Army at Camp Chaffee. After the ceremony the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Joseph Voelker, 224 Kingsville court, Webster Groves, gave a wedding breakfast in the Magnolia room of the Old South Restaurant for the families and close friends who went to Fort Smith for the event.

A ballerina gown of white cotton lace over pale blue taffeta was worn by the bride. The bodice, cut to a V neckline and edged with cording, was studded with rhinestones. A short circular veil completed her attire and she held gardenias and stephanotis. Miss Jane Allyn Voelker, who served as her sister's only attendant, was in a street-length dress of white lace over pink cotton with a pink hat and short veil attached. She carried deep pink carnations.

The bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. William John Boyd, 830 Melvin avenue, had his father as best man. Pvt. Boyd and his bride went to Tulsa, Okla., for the weekend, after which they plan to return to their home in Fort Smith.

The bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Orthwein of Kansas City, Mo., is a grandson of the late Max R. Orthwein and a great-grandson of the late Charles Frederick Orthwein, both St. Louisans. The elder Mr. Orthwein was the first of his family to come to this country.

After the ceremony the bride's parents gave a reception at the house of Delta Delta Delta, the bride's sorority. Later the newly married couple departed for a wedding trip to Minnesota and Canada. They will live in Kansas City while he completes his senior year at Kansas University School of Medicine. Mrs. Orthwein will teach in the Kansas City school system.

MRS. CHARLES F. ORTHWEIN JR.

Mrs. John E. Young was her sister's matron of honor and another sister, Mrs. Edward Roderick, Fort Knox, Ky., Mrs. Donald Wheelock, Miss Judy Kindred, Smithville, Mo., and Miss Barbara Breisch were bridesmaids. Mrs. Robert Lusk and Miss Barbara Newby, Moberly, lighted the tapers and Miss Mary Frances Drake, St. Louis, kept the guest book. Pamela Gist was flower girl.

Miss Sharon Souders, H. C. Torno Married

THE marriage of Miss Sharon Lynn Souders and Harry Crawford Torno took place, June 11, at Webster Groves Christian Church, a few days after he was graduated from Westminster College, Fulton, Mo., and commissioned a lieutenant in the Army. The Rev. Raymond McCallister officiated at the service which was followed by a reception on the lawn at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Earl H. Souders, 321 Quan avenue, Kirkwood.

The bride, given in marriage by her parents, was gowned in lace and tulle over satin. She carried a prayer book ornamented by small orchids. Miss Marjorie Sheperd was maid of honor; Miss Loralee Henderson and Miss Patricia King, bridesmaids. They wore silver embroidered pink tulle dresses and carried fan-shaped bouquets of pink daisies and roses.

Lt. Torno is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Laurent J. Torno, 4421 McPherson avenue. His father was formerly with the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra. His brother, Mr. Torno Jr., was best man while another brother, Paul Torno, Richard Mullins and Winfred Stringer were ushers.

After a honeymoon at Interlochen, Mich., Lt. Torno will report for duty at Ft. Sill, Okla. The bride is an alumna of William Woods College, also in Fulton.

Visiting in Florida.

Mr. and Mrs. Ashby T. Harper, 5600 Country Day lane, St. Louis County, motored to Santa Rose, Fla., Tuesday. They were accompanied by their three sons, Richard and David, twins, and Freddie, and Mrs. Harper's mother, Mrs. James H. Palmer of Rochester, Pa. Although the family will spend the summer there, Mr. Harper, headmaster of St. Louis Country Day School, plans to return to St. Louis in a few days, rejoining his family there in mid-July.

Phyllis Ann Berens Married at Church To Robert H. Throm

MISS PHYLLIS ANN BERENS, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robburt A. Berens, 635 Oakwood avenue, Webster Groves, was married June 14 to Robert Harrison Throm of Denver. The evening ceremony, which took place at Emmanuel Episcopal Church in Webster Groves, was performed by the Rev. Archie Cochrane, associate rector. Both the bride and bridegroom will complete their education at the University of Colorado next year—she in the school of fine arts and he in the field of economics.

The bride, who was in a bouffant ivory gown and carried a prayer book covered with a white orchid and stephanotis, had Mrs. Robert D. MacLean Jr. as matron of honor. Two sisters of the bride, Miss Sarah Louise and Miss Susan Marie Berens, twins, and Miss Margaret Bolsterli served as bridesmaids. They were dressed in yellow embroidered organdy over taffeta and held cascades of white Shasta daisies. Wyllie French of Evanston, Ill., was flower girl.

Kevin C. Croke of Denver was best man for the bridegroom who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward E. Throm of Denver. Ushers were Mr. MacLean, Donald R. Ebaugh, Denver, and Mr. Throm's cousin, Dr. Hobart M. Proctor of Kansas City.

A reception was given later at Westborough Country Club.

Miss Barbara Hicks Married at Church To Robert D. Garton

MISS BARBARA ARLENE HICKS, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred H. Hicks, 736 Fieldston terrace, Webster Groves, became the bride Friday afternoon of Robert Dean Garton, a second lieutenant in the Marines. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. Harry T. Scherer at Webster Groves Presbyterian Church.

Re-embroidered alencon lace sprinkled with pearls and rhinestones formed the cap sleeves and trimmed the bodice of the bride's tulle gown which featured a handkerchief skirt. Her veil fell from a half-hat of lace and she carried white roses centered with an orchid.

Miss Mary Hilliker, Des Moines, Ia., served as maid of honor and Miss Jacqueline Jasper, Miss Carolyn Steger and Miss Barbara Speegle were bridesmaids. They wore turquoise crystalene gowns and held red roses matching the wreaths in their hair.

Mr. Garton, son of Dr. and Mrs. J. Glenn Garton of Chariton, Ia., had Dan Gullion as best man and Bill Darrah, Chariton, Jerry Bartley and John Jervis, Omaha, Nebr., William A. Bride, Sioux City, Ia., and Jerry Leader as ushers.

After a reception at the church the bride and bridegroom departed for a honeymoon in Colorado. He will report July 18 to Marine Corps School, Quantico, Va., while his bride will enter Mary Washington College, Fredericksburg, Va., for her senior year. She has been attending Iowa State College, Ames, where her husband was graduated Thursday.

Miss Johnson Bride Of Thomas M. Moore

Moore's cousin, Jarvis Winn Lambert, all of St. Louis.

Summery white organdy dresses embroidered with emerald green velvet circle dots were worn by the bridesmaids. Made on princess lines, the sleeveless frocks were trimmed around the bustline with green velvet ribbon tied in back with bows and long streamers. Skirts were short and flared wide. The young women wore green slippers to match the ribbon. Their parasols, open as they walked in the procession, were white net with wide lace bands, and had gardenias tied to the tops and handles with emerald green bows.

Mrs. Hawes's gown was white embroidered organdy, trimmed at the bodice and waistline with three green velvet bands instead of one, and back streamers.

Ivory satin was fashioned into a gown for the bride. Princess in style, the front and back panels were outlined in rose point lace which continued over the tops of long tight sleeves. The sweetheart neckline was softly draped. An enormously flared skirt terminated in a satin and tulle train over which depended the long rose point lace court train, worn both by Mrs. Johnson and Mrs. Hawes at their wedding, fastened at the shoulders. The bride wore a short tulle veil from a rose point crown. She carried lilies of the valley.

Max Steindel conducted four members of the Symphony Orchestra in playing the wedding music including the recessional as the bridal party retraced its steps through the hall, through the formal garden to a side porch overlooking the rose garden where the receiving line formed.

Mrs. Johnson, who with other members of the family stood in the pergola while the ceremony was in progress, wore chantilly lace in a stone blue shade, the scooped neckline and long bodice edged in sequins and pearls, and a tiny lace hat and slippers to match. Mrs. Moore wore lilac silk marquisette and a small matching veiled marquisette hat and shoes.

As guests were being received, the wedding area was rearragned with small tables, some of them shaded by chintz-covered umbrellas, and at dusk stick hurricane lamps were thrust into the ground. Strolling musicians played. Tables for the wedding party were arranged around the swimming pool.

Among the hundreds of guests, those from out of town included the following: Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Wilson, (Emily Milliken) Rectortown, Va., uncle and aunt of the bridegroom; Mrs. John W. Moore (Terry Disbrow), Ashtabula; Mr. and Mrs. Richard Wortham, Lufkin; Mr. and Mrs. John Brodie, Elmira, N. Y.; Mr. and Mrs. John W. Hobbs, Jefferson City; Howard Price, New York; Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Anderson Case (Elise Whittemore), Buffalo, Wyo., and Miss Louise Hodges, Hewlett, L. I., and her fiance, James Crawford Ward Jr., Nashville, Tenn.

Mr. Moore and his bride will fly to Mexico on their honeymoon. They will occupy an apartment in Clayton.

McHaney - Banta Wedding in East

TWO Washington University students, Miss Mary Elizabeth Banta and James Robert McHaney, were married June 9 at Chevy Chase (Md.) Methodist Church. The bride is the daughter of Parke M. Banta, general counsel of the Department of Education and Welfare in Washington, and Mrs. Banta of Washington; Mr. McHaney is the son of Dr. and Mrs. John W. McHaney of Jefferson City and a nephew of Powell B. McHaney of St. Louis.

The Rev. Clifford Homer Richmond performed the ceremony by candlelight. Miss Ruth Amanda McHaney, sister of the bridegroom, was maid of honor wearing pale blue peau de soie and carrying red roses matching her headpiece. The former Miss Banta was in ivory silk with an alencon lace bertha. More of the lace was fashioned into a cap to hold her fingertip veil and she carried white roses, stephanotis and lilies of the valley.

Lee Dorin Snider, Nyssa, Ore., was best man and J. Labon Linard, Alexandria, Va., and Joseph T. McIntyre, Chevy Chase, were ushers.

After a reception at the Kennedy-Warren Hotel, the bride and bridegroom departed for a wedding trip. After July 1 they will live at 5831 Cabanne avenue while they complete their studies at the university.

Ingaborg Rehr Plans Wedding in Autumn To Cpl. R. W. Jacobus

MR. AND MRS. WILMER J. REHR, 5454 Page boulevard, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Nancy Ingaborg Rehr, to Army Cpl. Richard William Jacobus. The news was told at a party at La Rochelle, France, attended by more than 50 friends of the engaged pair. The wedding will take place in this country next autumn.

Miss Rehr, who is called by her second name, is associated with the Special Service Division and is director of the La Rochelle Service Club. She also has served two years in Germany with the Munich and Mannheim Clubs. Miss Rehr will return home in October, accompanied by her mother who is visiting in La Rochelle, and will then complete plans for her wedding.

MISS NANCY INGABORG REHR

The prospective bride is a graduate of The Principia Upper School, where her father is dean of boys, and of Principia College.

Mr. Jacobus is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Beach of Hasbrouck Heights, N. J.

Luncheon Tuesday.

The Child Conservation Conference will install officers at a luncheon Tuesday at noon at Hotel De Soto. Mrs. Lula M. Wilkinson heads the new officers to be installed by Walter Gammeter, principal of Beaumont High School. Miss Grace Gorman, chief probation officer of the juvenile court, will be the speaker.

Carolyne Howe Is Engaged to John S. Thomas

MR. AND MRS. JOHN HUDSON HOWE, 7816 Utica drive, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Carolyne Lawrence Howe, to John Skriver Thomas of Evanston, Ill. The prospective bridegroom's parents, Dr. and Mrs. W. Roscoe Thomas, live in Omaha.

Miss Howe was graduated from The Principia Upper School, attended Trinity University in San Antonio and Seagle Music Colony at Schroon Lake, N. Y. She received her bachelor of science degree in speech this month from Northwestern University where her sorority affiliation was Zeta Tau Alpha. Before her graduation Miss Howe was made a member of the Creative Dramatics Department of the Evanston Public Schools where she has successfully directed several children's productions. Her sister, Miss Nancy Jane Howe, and her brother, John Hudson Howe Jr., are both students at The Principia Upper School.

Mr. Thomas received his bachelor of science degree in journalism from Northwestern University in 1950 and his master of science degree in 1951. While at Northwestern he became a member of Kappa Sigma, social, and Pi Alpha Mu, international publishing-advertising, fraternities. He served with the Navy during World War II. His brother William R. Thomas Jr., is currently practicing law in Seattle, Wash. For the past four years the bridegroom-elect has been account executive with an advertising agency in Chicago.

Miss Roufa Bride Of Avery Seidel

THE MARRIAGE of Miss Estelle Ruth Roufa, daughter of Mrs. Morris Roufa, 5 Almont Acres, Ladue, and the late Mr. Roufa, to Avery Seidel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Seidel, 5 Ladue Manor, took place at noon last Sunday at the Chase Hotel. Rabbi A. E. Halpern officiated.

Elaborate arches of pink and white flowers and huckleberry and aisle posts marked the approach to the altar which was covered with a bell-shaped canopy.

The bride wore white silk with a chantilly lace bodice, a crushed waistline and full skirt which had lace inserts near the hem. The sweep train was also lace. A scalloped veil was held to a pearl-trimmed crown. The bridal bouquet was white orchids having stephanotis streamers.

—Jules Pierlow Photograph.

MRS. AVERY SEIDEL

Miss Ethel Schechter was maid of honor, and two sisters-in-law, Mrs. Arthur Roufa and Mrs. Harvey Roufa, and a cousin, Miss Norma Fred, were bridesmaids. They wore pink embroidered crystalline with deep cowl necklines and full skirts held by a back bow. Their flowers were pink roses with matching streamers.

Herbert Seidel was his brother's best man. Ushers were Harvey Roufa, Theodore Ross, cousin of the bridegroom; Norman Lefton, Lawrence Alton, David Wohl and Edwin Pepper. Arthur Roufa escorted his sister to the altar.

Mr. Seidel and his bride will spend their honeymoon in Las Vegas, N.M., and Los Angeles. They will live here.

Beverly Cornish Becomes Bride

MISS BEVERLY JEANNE CORNISH, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Cornish, 1133 North Harrison avenue, Kirkwood, was married June 4 to Marine Cpl. Frederick Hall Edwards at First Presbyterian Church of Kirkwood. The ceremony, performed by the Rev. Donald H. Stewart, was followed by a reception in an adjoining room.

The former Miss Cornish was married in a white organdy gown complemented by a Juliet cap and fingertip veil. White gladiolas and stephanotis were combined for her bouquet.

Miss Sally Day was maid of honor and Miss Joyce Schuler and Miss Marilyn Gilbreth, bridesmaids. They carried deep pink and yellow gladiolas with their ice blue crystallette frocks.

Mr. Edwards, son of Mr. and Mrs. Newton A. Edwards, 1042 Tuxedo boulevard, Webster Groves, was attended by his brother, Newton G. Edwards, as best man. Ushers were Robert Compton, John O'Keefe, George Gilmore and Richard Scatizzi.

The bride has completed her freshman year at Southeast Missouri State College, Cape Girardeau. Her husband is a graduate of the college, where he became a member of Tau Kappa Epsilon fraternity. They will live at Camp Le Jeune, N. C., his current station.

. . . as any girl with a Scotch grandmother knows. But any woman with a new Chevrolet knows how small savings add up to big ones.
You don't have to be a mechanic to relish the fact that Chevrolet's new V8 engine uses just four quarts of oil in the crankcase instead of the five or more required by all other V8's—one quart less to buy at every oil change! Or how Chevrolet's higher compression squeezes more mileage out of every drop of gasoline.
And everybody knows Chevrolet's reputation for durability . . . its freedom from those recurring repair bills that bite big chunks out of your savings. Many a smart girl today is wearing a charming dress, polishing a new silver service or running an automatic ironer that her Chevrolet bought her—and it could be you!

Miss Mill Is Married To T. H. Copeland Jr.

THE WEDDING of Miss Margaret Oliver Mill to Theodore Herbert Copeland Jr. of Lansdowne, Pa., took place yesterday evening at West Presbyterian Chapel with the Rev. Dr. William B. Lampe officiating. A reception was held afterward in the church parlor. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Marguerite Mill, 7166 Waterman avenue, University City, and William B. Mill, who gave his daughter in marriage.

Maid of honor was the bride's sister, Miss Carhrine Ann Mill; bridesmaids were Mrs. Robert Chambers of Kansas City, Mo., Mrs. Brainerd LaTourette Jr. and Miss Sally Mill, a cousin. The bridegroom, son of Mrs. Elizabeth Copeland of Lansdowne, Pa., had Richard Showers of Lancaster, Pa., as best man. Walter Myers, also of Lancaster; Robert Snow of Cincinnati, Robert Eash of Philadelphia and the bride's brother, Milton Mill, served as ushers.

Mr. Copeland and his bride, who are motoring to Fort Lauderdale, Fla., on their honeymoon, will live in Lansdowne. The former Miss Mill received her degree in education from Washington University; her husband, a graduate of Franklin and Marshall College in Lancaster, received his master's from Columbia University and his doctor's from Temple University.

MRS. JERRY EARL MILLER

Miller - Fishnich Church Wedding

MISS PATRICIA ANN FISHNICH and Jerry Earl Miller were married in a candlelight ceremony last night at First Presbyterian Church, University City, by the Rev. Dr. R. Calvin Dobson. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur J. Fishnich, 1086 Colby avenue, University City; Mr. Miller is the son of the Earl S. Millers of 1504 Bradford avenue, Pagedale.

Miss Joan Lunstedt was maid of honor. The bride's cousin, Miss Phyllis Vaught; Miss Jacqueline Jordan and Miss Barbara Maysack were bridesmaids. With their waltz-length powder blue gowns of silk taffeta the young women carried bouquets of yellow roses. Hand-clipped chantilly lace fashioned the bride's gown which was designed with a V neckline and a bouffant tulle skirt. Her tiered French illusion veil was held in place by a lace and seed pearl headpiece, and her bouquet was a cascade arrangement of white orchids and stephanotis.

The bridegroom was attended by four of his cousins. Glen Miller was best man with Donald and Robert Miller, both of Fredericktown, Mo., and James Miller of St. Louis, as ushers.

The reception was given in the Tower room and terrace of the Congress Hotel. Mr. Miller and his bride later departed on a wedding trip to Biloxi, Miss. When they return to St. Louis their new address will be 4427 St. Williams court, St. Louis county.

Harriet Moore Becomes Bride

MISS HARRIET MARY MOORE, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth F. Moore, 1031 Commodore drive, Richmond Heights, was married to Dr. Robert Joseph Schafer on Saturday, June 11, at the Church of the Little Flower in Richmond Heights. Dr. Schafer's uncle, the Rev. Camillus Schmitt of Antonino, Kans., officiated at the morning ceremony and the Rev. Elmer Behrmann offered the nuptial mass.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter E. Schafer of Wheeling, W. Va. His sister, Mrs. Raymond Gantzer, also of Wheeling, was matron of honor; bridesmaids included Miss Billie Steward, Miss Marilyn Reppell and Miss Mary Ann Magruder of Chicago. Karen Seiler was flower girl. Mr. Gantzer served as best man for his brother-in-law who was also attended by Dr. Waldo Lopez of Yabucoa, Puerto Rico; Dr. Richard Cappiletti of Elkhart, Ind.; Dr. Theodore Flynn of St. Paul, Minn.; Dr. Robert Wiencek of Buffalo and Dr. G. G. Ostolaza, ushers.

The bride was in a waltz-length gown of embroidered organdy with which she wore a veil secured by a crown of matching organdy. She held a cascade of moth orchids entwined with ivy. Her attendants were dressed in pink and blue crystallette and carried pink rosebuds and ivy. The flower girl wore white emboidered organdy over pink.

The ballroom of the Sheraton Hotel was the scene of the subsequent breakfast and reception. The newly-married pair, who motored through the South on their honeymoon, plan to stop in Wheeling. They will live in Chicago while Dr. Schafer serves a year's internship at Cook County Hospital. Dr. Schafer was graduated June 7 from St. Louis University School of Medicine. Since her graduation in 1951 from St. Louis University School of Nursing, the bride has worked in the physical therapy department of Firmin Desloge Hospital.

Joyce Colbeck Bride Of Dr. W. L. Brunswick

MISS JOYCE MARIE COLBECK was married June 9 to Dr. Wilfred Lawrence Brunswick, who a few days earlier was graduated from the St. Louis University School of Medicine. Msgr. Daniel J. Ryan performed the ceremony at Christ the King Church.

The bride, daughter of Mrs. Robert Joseph Colbeck, 6842 Etzel avenue, University City, and the late Mr. Colbeck, was given in marriage by a brother, Robert J. Colbeck Jr.

Her attendants were Mrs. Charles Smith, matron of honor; Miss Kathleen Flynn, bridesmaid, and her sisters, Judith Ann and Mary Jo Colbeck, junior bridesmaid and flower girl.

Dr. Brunswick, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Henry Brunswick of Fort Recovery, O., had Dr. William Inkret Jr., Butte, Mont., as best man. Ushers were Arthur R. Brunswick, brother of the bridegroom; Dr. John A. Lynch, Des Moines, Ia., and Dr. Robert Voorhees, Fort Wayne, Ind.

A breakfast was given at Bippen's Estate and an afternoon reception at the Melbourne Hotel.

You'll suddenly seem to have grown an entirely new and flawless skin!

Lanolin Plus®

Liquid Make-Up

Lanolin Plus
LIQUID MAKE-UP

You will be startled when you see yourself — your friends will be startled when they see YOU — and how envious they will be!

And now comes a truly NEW liquid make-up that virtually wipes from your face the things you don't want to see. LANOLIN PLUS Liquid Make-Up really covers. Those tiny lines and imperfections you so thoroughly hate, vanish from sight. So amazing is the covering power of this heavenly liquid, you could, if you wished, use a shade lighter than your own skin and still have a perfect new-skin look. But it does two more beauty wonders for you:

1. It instantly imparts a kind of youth-giving radiance that is completely new. That is because all its shades are the living colors of young skin. They LOOK alive. The living shade most flattering to you is easy to find, too, as you will discover when you see them all.

2. LANOLIN PLUS Liquid Make-Up containing pure LANOLIN PLUS Liquid helps to soften and smooth your skin every minute you wear it.

Imagine a make-up that not only gives you the appearance of having instantly grown a new, flawless and younger-looking skin, but that also makes skin softer feeling and smoother looking. $1 plus tax wherever cosmetics are sold. Indeed, there is nothing in all the world like LANOLIN PLUS Liquid Make-Up. It is a complete make-up in itself, or the identically matching shade of LANOLIN PLUS "POWDER-PLUS" may be used over it for a completely matte finish.

Lanolin Plus®

"Powder-Plus"

Pressed Face Powder

Lanolin Plus

Instantly your skin seems touched with flattering candlelight Even in Brightest Daylight

If you crave a new kind of softer, more romantic look—no matter what the hour, this sensational new pressed face powder is for you. New LANOLIN PLUS "POWDER-PLUS" is exactly what its name implies . . . beauty PLUS. By absorbing instead of reflecting light, new LANOLIN PLUS "POWDER-PLUS" acts as candlelight acts—it flatters your skin, instead of accentuating little lines and "crow's-feet." Instantly your skin seems bathed in candlelight!

But more . . . all the while you are wearing LANOLIN PLUS "POWDER-PLUS" your skin, underneath, is basking in the rich, continuing benefits of the LANOLIN PLUS Liquid this new pressed powder contains. If your skin is such that you don't need a foundation, you'll find LANOLIN PLUS "POWDER-PLUS" a really beautiful complete make-up. If however, your skin needs more coverage, use the identically matching shade of LANOLIN PLUS Liquid Make-Up as a base. LANOLIN PLUS "POWDER-PLUS" comes in a lovely-to-see compact with puff and mirror to complete the picture. $1.25 plus tax, wherever cosmetics are sold.

Lanolin Plus
LIQUID

Both these make-ups contain skin softening Lanolin Plus Liquid

LANOLIN PLUS Liquid is probably the most quickly effective skin softener ever created! Its presence in both LANOLIN PLUS Liquid Make-Up and LANOLIN PLUS "POWDER-PLUS" makes either of these two make-ups perfect for either dry or normal skin. If you do have dry skin, DO THIS:

Apply a tiny bit of penetrating LANOLIN PLUS Liquid to your skin before retiring and tissue away the excess. When you awaken tomorrow morning and see and feel your skin, you will believe that an angel had touched your face with a magic wand while you slept. All skin dryness will be gone and you'll find your dry skin worries will be over as long as you contiue using LANOLIN PLUS Liquid regularly. $1 plus tax, wherever cosmetics are sold.

Remember, there is only one genuine LANOLIN PLUS!

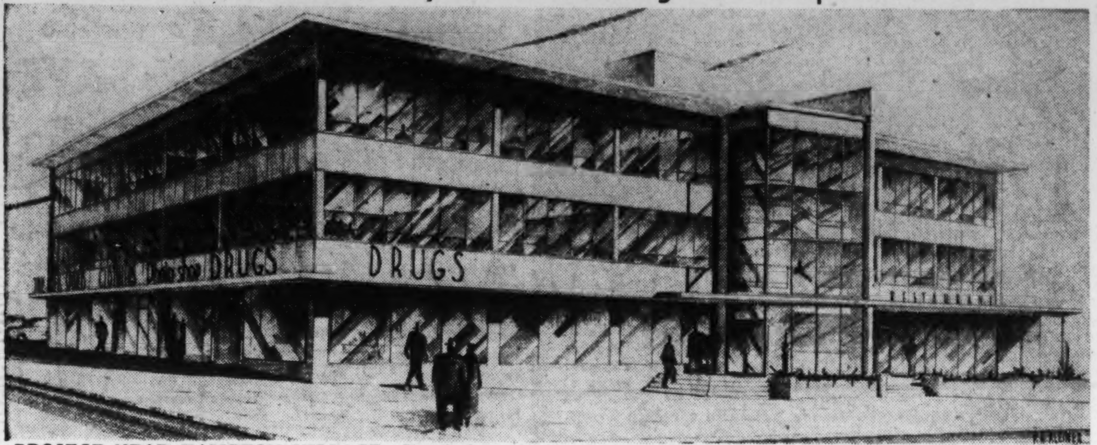
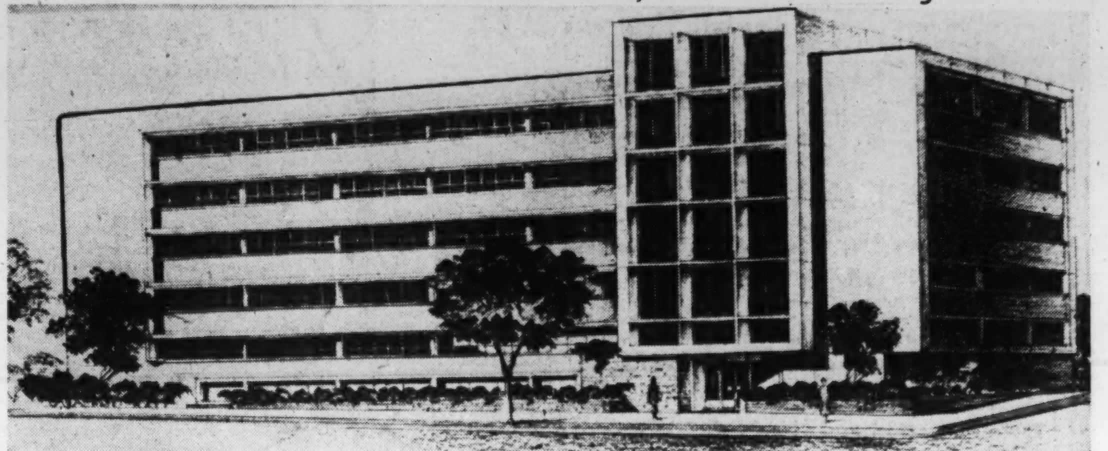
Glass-Walled Four-Story Office Building For Hampton Avenue



PROJECT NEAR HAMPTON VILLAGE—Sketch from Architect Arthur B. Rathert of four-story store and office building, with walls of glass, which investor Jacob Frohmann is to build, beginning immediately, at the southwest corner of Hampton avenue and Sutherland avenue, just south of Hampton Village. Negotiations for the project were completed last Wednesday, with the Dolan Co. being named promtion and management agent. The building will be called the Southampton Building.

Work To Start On Another Clayton Office Building



BEMISTON CORNER PROJECT—Construction is scheduled to get under way immediately on office building designed by Architect Cay G. Weinel for Siteman-Adreon, Inc., at southwest corner of Carondelet and Bemiston avenues, a block east of St. Louis County Courthouse. Alvin Siteman, Inc., will be contractor. Structure will be five stories, with 10,500 square feet to a floor; 200 tons of air-conditioning; warm air heating with baseboard convectors; automatic elevators; marble-walled lobby with indoor waterfall; fireproof construction with brick, trim of limestone and Virginia greenstone. Structure will be called the Siteman Building.

Mid-South Site To Get Offices, Store Building

Negotiations were completed last Wednesday through which construction is scheduled to get under way immediately of a four-story glass-walled stores and office building at the southwest corner of Hampton avenue and Sutherland avenue, just south of Hampton Village.

Cost of the project has been estimated at $1,000,000, including land. The building is to have 44,320 square feet of floor space, an average of about 10,600 on each floor, except that there will be a little more on the ground level floor than on the upper ones. Arthur B. Rathert has designed it.

The building will be erected for Jacob J. Frohmann, an investor with interest in many South St. Louis and Southwestern area properties, who recently completed the new building on Chippewa occupied by the Hellrung Carpet Co., and a group of retail stores at Hampton and Eichelberger avenues.

The Dolan Co. has been assigned promotion and management of the proposed new building. The building will be called the Southhampton.

Construction technique somewhat new in this area is to be used, giving the structure three exterior walls of glass, high-speed automatic elevators to all floors; an ornamental, open, circular stairwell from terazze-floored lobby. Interior corridors also will have glass walls, borrowing outside light for inside office rooms. Sun glare will be filtered out by use of tint in the glass and by means of wide exterior canopies.

Floors will be built with concrete on interlocking steel channel panels. Ceilings will be acoustically tiled. Lights will be fluorescent. Modern mail chutes will be installed.

The street-level floor is to have a top-rated restaurant, stores designed to provide other services for upper floor tenants, as well as for outside traffic. Each store is to be designed with a rear entrance from the off-street parking lot, where flood lights will be maintained in service at all hours of darkness. Twenty-four hour, seven-day functioning is proposed to be maintained.

Heating and air-conditioning will be by a unified central system.

Completion of the project within nine months is anticipated.

MEL GLICK BUYS 40 ACRES FROM 28 LOT OWNERS

Purchase of a 40-acre tract of land in Olivette, to more than double the size of Arrowhead Park subdivision, was reported last week by Melvin H. Glick and Company, Bildors and Realtors.

The subdivision, part of which is already under construction, will, through the addition, be increased to an aggregate value of $3,200,000.

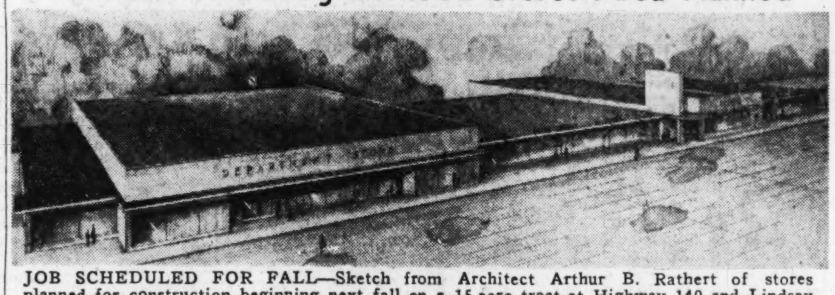
Purchase of 40 acres was a complicated assembly job, seldom encountered in acquiring more outlying acreage. Twenty-eight different owners, with unimproved properties ranging in size from a single 40-foot lot to a 16-acre tract, were involved in the transaction. Negotiations had been in progress for more than eight months. The Glick organization was represented by the Harry M. Fine Real Estate Co. in the deals.

The tract is on the west side of Hilltop drive, two blocks north of Olive Street road and four blocks west of Woodson road.

The original 22 acres of the Arrowhead Park development is east of Hilltop drive.

As part of the project, Glick has installed approximately 1500 feet of main trunk sewer from Wood road in University City to the subdivision.

Fifteen-Acre Neighborhood Stores Area Planned



JOB SCHEDULED FOR FALL—Sketch from Architect Arthur B. Rathert of stores planned for construction beginning next fall on a 15-acre tract at Highway 140 and Lindsay Lane in Florissant by R. K. & A. Jones, Inc., general contractors. Proposed, at an estimated cost of $2,000,000, are a 15,000 square-foot store, a 30,000 square-foot junior department store, 23 other smaller units for variety, drugs, shoes, etc. Paved parking area would be provided.

Subdivision, Stores Center On 66 Planned

Plans for development of 160 acres of ground at the northeast corner of Highway 66 By-Pass and Grandview drive in the edge of Florissant, half in homes and half (fronting 3100 feet on the main highway and running 1100 feet deep) in commercial units No leasing of commercial units has yet been done and work will go ahead initially on the development of homes, the developers hoping to have one ready for use as a display house by the time of National Home Week, Sept. 10-18.

The 160-acre tract was assembled within the last year from four ownerships, Herman Derhake, the Pelke Estate (three brothers and a sister), William Belew, and Henry Cernicek and Harry Wilshusen together. Titles have been taken in the name of the Northwest Developers, Inc., which is an agency of A. F. Koedding Jr. and his sons, A. F. Koedding III (better known as Bud Koedding), and William F. Koedding.

Koedding Jr. said the plat has been approved by the City of Florissant, including the commercial zoning of the section on Route 66, and that he expects to get grading started within two weeks and the construction of a display home under way so it may be finished for the fall presentation.

The acreage extends from the Highway 66 By-Pass to Route 140 and when development is completed a 36-foot wide concrete street will run through from one highway to the other with about a dozen feeder streets leading into it from within the subdivision, Koedding said. Initially the main street is to be built from 66 to Derhake drive, but it is proposed to complete it all the way through in about a year and a half.

The Koeddings will do the construction in both the residential and commercial divisions of the development, with Bud, engineering graduate of the Rolla School of Mines, in direct charge. Promotion of the commercial development has been assigned to the Kelly Agency of Ferguson. Koedding said he hoped to have part of the commercial section ready for use by the middle of 1956, that all units would be air-conditioned, sized and designed to tenants's needs after preleasing.

The land planning for the area was done by the Pitzman Engineering Co. Homes to be erected will be in low-bracket price range, frame construction.

The Koeddings are currently completing their Forestwood development on Chambers road.

KROGER BUYS MIDTOWN LOT

The Kroger Grocer & Baking Co. has purchased a 25 by 136 foot lot with six-room house numbered 3725 Vista avenue, the Irving Selzer Realty Co., Inc., reports. Selzer and the Gladys Manion agency negotiated the deal. The lot adjoins Kroger's main St. Louis offices and warehouse and Selzer said he understood it would be used for parking.

Midtown Office Building Sold

GRAND-OLIVE PROPERTY TRANSFERRED—The Metropolitan Building at northeast corner of Grand and Olive streets, which has been sold for reported $1,250,000 to the Lactor Realty Corporation of New York City, of which Robert Futterman is president. Buyers' equity was said to be about $250,000 with financing of $1,000,000. Sale was made for Nathaniel and Ida Glick, Sam and Sadie Schiffer and Arthur and Sarah Fischman, with negotiations being handled by the Metropolitan St. Louis Co. and the C. B. Snyder Realty Co. of Newark, N. J., with legal details checked by Lawyer Irving Wolfson of New York. Property is eight stories, 100x140 feet (70,000 square feet of floor space), finished in white enameled brick. Principal retail tenant is Walgreen Drug Co., most upper floor tenants are in branches of the medical profession. The Dolan Co. has been assigned management of the property.

Proposed U. City Medical Office

Housing Output In Full Stride All Over U.S.

By WILLIAM KERWIN

WASHINGTON, D. C. (INS)—The nation's home builders started construction on 132,000 dwellings last month, the highest level in four years.

Sparked by easy credit and a persistent demand, housing output hit full stride in May as production zoomed 22 per cent above the same month last year and increased 4 per cent over April.

On the basis of the Bureau of Labor Statistics report, Government and industry officials confidently predicted housing output this year would total about 1,300,000 units, second highest in history.

For the first five months of 1955, builders chalked up a new record six billion dollars in residential construction spending and the number of units started ran just 2 per cent behind the all-time record set in 1950.

Picture Looks Mixed.

BLS coupled its report with a new survey which showed a mixed picture on the volume of building permits issued in May. The survey usually provides a clue to future construction prospects.

BLS said the number of building permits issued last month increased in northeastern and southern states but declined in the west, particularly in California.

Economists blamed the western situation on a recent tightening in the availability of financing for home mortgages. They also pointed to statements by Housing Administrator Albert M. Cole that "a normal self-adjustment is taking place" in the industry to avoid overproduction.

Despite these developments, Government and industry experts said they believed housing output in June would match last month's volume because of the "very strong" market situation indicated so far.

Expecting Steady Volume.

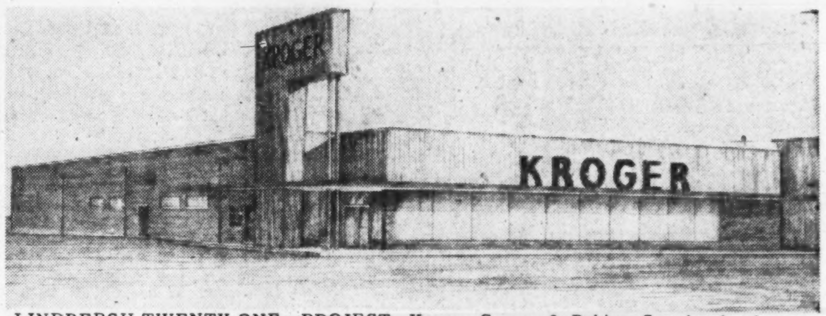
The 132,000 homes started last month compares with 127,000 in April and is the highest monthly figure since June, 1951 when output hit a peak of 132,500 units for the year and then dropped.

In the first five months of this year, builders started 553,550 dwellings, or about 100,000 more than in the same period last year, and just 10,000 less than those started in 1950.

Meanwhile, the National Association of Real Estate Boards says its members believe the current volume of new single family home construction will continue during the second half of this year and may increase.

Moreover, NAREB says a survey in 217 cities indicates that realtors do not anticipate a price rise for new houses.

Ground Cleared For Kroger South County Store



LINDBERGH-TWENTY-ONE PROJECT—Kroger Grocer & Baking Co. sketch of new food market for which ground was being cleared last week at intersection of Lindbergh boulevard and Highway 21 to serve Affton, Lemay, Mehlville and South County residents. Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Walker will own and lease property to Kroger as result of deal negotiated by R. R. Hoffman, local agent, and C. D. Neel, Kroger's real estate management representative. Jack Shawcross did the designing, Joe Schaefer, Inc., has been awarded general contract. Kroger Branch Manager R. E. Hughes said the store will have 16,500 square feet of space (exterior 110 by 150); parking for 150 cars at a time; air-conditioning, separate beverage and parcel pickup service.

Make Broker's Permit Tougher, Slonim Advises

Can real estate brokerage and service be elevated to the status of a profession? Efforts at upgrading the handling of real estate sales and service have been in progress for some time, with appraisal having currently most nearly approached the status of a profession, but lack of or loose licensing laws make it possible in many parts of the country for most anybody, with or without recognized education, to engage in real estate service practices. At present, the Missouri Real Estate Association and state officialdom are considering some tightening of the requirements of the Missouri Real Estate License law for salesmen and brokers. M. J. Slonim, head of the Department of Real Estate and Land Economics of the University College division of the School of Business and Public Administration, Washington University, member of the Executive Council of the Educational Committee of the National Association of Real Estate Boards and a practicing St. Louis Realtor, having been asked by the state association for his views on the matter also presents them publicly:

By M. J. SLONIM

In October, 1954, at a conference of real estate educators from all sections of the country held at Western Reserve University in Cleveland, the writer was privileged to participate in an interesting discussion titled "The Professionalization of Real Estate." This problem offers a definite challenge to the leaders of the real estate industry.

The practice of real estate has some of the qualities of a profession. It deals with land—a subject of extremely broad interest. It involves more than half the wealth of the nation. It covers a vast body of knowledge, including land economics, real estate law, city and regional planning. Whilst the standards and practices of realtors are improving steadily, two factors are lacking for professional status. First, public acceptance of realtors as professional practitioners has not yet been attained; and, secondly, no definite educational qualifications are required for the procurement of a broker's license.

It is crystal clear that the public will not endow the real estate calling with professional status as long as totally incompetent persons are admitted as brokers under present license laws. Many of these quickly-hatched brokers who are foisted upon the public oft render great harm to their clients and the community. The simple life of the American city has disappeared decades ago. In recent years the practice of real estate has become infinitely more complicated. There is an increasing growth of social control over property expressed through federal acts, including intricate tax laws, state statutes and local ordinances of all kinds, such as zoning restrictions, building codes, as well as intensified city planning. All require immense and constant study. Deed restrictions, the impact of the income tax on real estate transactions, modern complicated theories of appraising, render the practice of real estate extremely difficult for the novice who lacks an adequate educational background.

The time has come to protect the public not so much from the dishonest, who are a comparatively small group, but rather from the incompetent and the ignorant who function freely in the real estate field.

The time has come to revise the real estate license laws and to render it infinitely more difficult if not impossible for the unfit to be admitted to the practice of real estate.

It is time that Missouri and the other state legislatures amend the existing laws to provide that the future candidates for a broker's license be obligated to study certain basic real estate courses at an accredited institution of learning. Fortunately a number of universities throughout the country, including Washington University locally, have created real estate departments which offer comprehensive curricula in real estate and land economics.

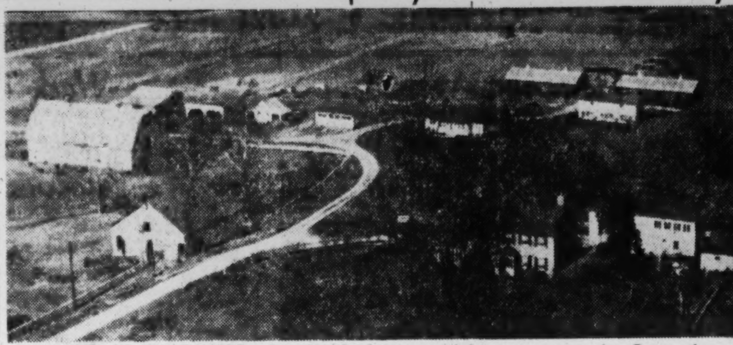
The highest interests of the public, as well as the enlightened interests of realtors themselves demand that a certificate gained through successful completion of a thorough course in real estate and land economics be required for admission to the practice of real estate.

If the real estate license acts will be amended to prevent the incompetent and the unprepared from attaining the rank of real estate brokers, the real estate business will advance materially in prestige and influence. Gradually public acceptance will develop, and finally real estate will be reorganized as a profession.

In recent decades no business has improved its standards and strengthened its position in the community to a greater degree than has real estate. Revised license acts demanding higher standards can give the practice tremendous impetus towards professionalization.

An appropriate real estate education will contribute materially to the training and preparation of leaders with vision, who will give meaning to the inspired thought of Henry Ward Beecher that, "Every man should use his intellect, not as he uses his lamp in the study only for his own seeing, but as the lighthouse uses its lamps, that those afar off on the sea may see the shining and learn their way."

Historic Farm Property Sold on Anniversary



TEN YEARS BUILDING—One hundred twenty-eight years ago in June slave laborers started, for their master Fitzhugh McClay, construction of a large home which, even today, is known as one of the finest in St. Charles county. It took 10 years to build; was constructed of native stone with walls two feet thick; the well was hand dug to a depth of 92 feet. Ten years ago it was completely modernized with baths, etc., but in keeping with the architectural charm of the last century. At the time the home was modernized there was also built on the property a large guest home, complete with three baths, fireplaces, recreation room, dance floor, etc. This property, located one-fourth mile north of the Howell school on the St. Peters road, was sold recently by Dr. and Mrs. Maurice Greene, who made it their home the last eight years, to Mr. and Mrs. Roy Powell of St. Louis. Dr. Greene, an eye specialist, is moving his family and office to the Rio Grande Valley in southern Texas. Cleo Poore Brockman, of Wentzville, was agent in the transfer.

FORMAL OPENING SET TODAY OF KRUMM COURT SUBDIVISION

Formal opening has been set for today of a new subdivision of modest size called Krumm Court. It consists of one cul-de-sac concrete street called Larry Lane, which opens off of Frost avenue. That's reached by going on Airport road to Graham road and from there north to Frost.

The homes, of frame construction in both two- and three-bedroom sizes are being erected by Krumm & Bogert, Inc., and Strodtman & Strodtman have been named promotion agents.

Frost avenue is being widened in front of the subdivision, making ingress and egress easier. Houses have the usual amenities, including full sodding of the yards.

OBSERVER CORPS LEASES

The United States Air Force has leased 5000 square feet of space in the Rady building, 9003 Manchester road, Brentwood, for 15 years, the Edward L. Bakewell agency, acting for the building owner, reports. Gladys Manion was co-operating agent. The Manchester office is to be manned 24 hours daily by volunteer observer corps personnel supervised by Air Force personnel under Capt. Louis J. Hartman, the agency said.

WELLSTON STORES BUILDING BOUGHT BY LOCAL INVESTOR

A two-story commercial building numbered 5937-47 Easton avenue, with a 100-foot front in the heart of the Wellston shopping district, has been purchased by the Linda Investment Co. from the Forsyth Realty Co., the Glick Real Estate Co., Inc., reports. Glick and Paul Crosney, New York broker, were agents in the deal.

The building has street-level stores, second-floor offices, a reported annual gross income of $25,260. A new mortgage of $180,000 was written in connection with the purchase by Williams-Kurrus & Co., Glick said, but total consideration wasn't reported.

Builders Here Finding Homes Demand Brisk

Brisk demand for new homes, especially in the modest price range, is asserting itself in this area, according to the head of the Home Builders Association. Richard C. Higginbotham, president of the Bildors, yesterday reported that members of the association are encouraged by a freshened market picture and look forward to a good productive year.

Higginbotham said that some increase in price, even in the low cost bracket, is unavoidable, citing increases granted locally to labor and also pointed to increases to be expected in steel and other commodities.

The home builder head expressed the opinion that a $12,500 price tag a couple of months ago, would have to be remarked about $12,800 or the builder would have to absorb this amount. This same picture is reflected in other cities, the Bildor president said.

He pointed out, also, that where more substantial price increases are noted, it is because builders are building more into the house. Instances he cited included expenditures for "built-ins," for air-conditioning and for "gadgets."

Especially is this true of homes above $15,000-$16,000 Higginbotham said. He reported instances of builders who found their sales picked up when they went from a $15,000 home to an $18,000 home, no bigger but with more in it.

Referring to recent announcements to the effect that Government mortgage loan agencies were cutting down credit in so-called "over built" areas, Higginbotham said St. Louis was by no means to be considered in that class. He said the builders of the nation are looking forward and planning for "boom" activity this season and for all other seasons to come.

BUILDERS BUY 12 ACRES ALONG OLD BALLWIN ROAD

The Mark-Way Construction Co. has purchased a 12-acre tract on Old Ballwin road a block from the Holy Infant Church and grade school as the site for a small subdivision of three-bedroom ranch houses, the Branch Co. reports.

Ground was acquired for Mark-Way from Robert G. Fulford in a deal negotiated by the Branch Co. and the Van Deusen Realty Co. Branch quoted Norb Markway, president of the construction company, as saying that houses ranging from low to medium price range are contemplated for the area.

Clay Products Men Planning For Big Years

NEW YORK—"The future expansion and planning of the brick and tile industry is being geared to sell and service a residential market of over a million new homes annually for at least the next five years," Douglas Whitlock, chairman of the board of the Structural Clay Products Institute, reported, speaking at a luncheon meeting of New York banking and mortgage executives. "We believe that a residential market of over a million new homes annually is a normal, healthy and justified market and will continue during the next five years," said Whitlock.

"Our decision was not arrived at hurriedly, nor without cautious concern . . . it is based on a new market study made by Dr. Robinson Newcomb, nationally recognized construction economist. This new study penetrates deeper than just the factors of family formation, vacancies and demolitions that are conventionally used in an evaluation of the future housing demands and the market it will support. This new analysis recognizes two vitally important economic developments that will strongly influence the market," Whitlock pointed out.

"Number one is the increased productivity of the individual which in turn has resulted in increasing per capita income. Number two is the revolution that has been taking place during the last 25 years in income distribution. It adds up to this," Whitlock continued, "to the accepted figure of 600,000 new family formations annually, we should rightfully add another 600,000 or more additional potential new house customers from already existing family formations." Whitlock referred to charts prepared by Dr. Newcomb showing that every year for the last five years 1,860,000 more households moved up into the $4000 to $10,000 per year income range. For the next five years Dr. Newcombe forecast at least 1,160,000 new households will be added to this income group.

Whitlock also announced an industry-wide survey which has been launched to permit brick and tile manufacturers to gear their production accurately to the continued high demand for new houses documented by the Newcomb survey. He pointed out that last year 29% of all new homes built were built with brick and tile and that this represents a 16% increase in the use of structural clay products in the residential market during the past decade.

He also outlined the brick and tile industry's research program aimed at developing new materials and new methods of construction for this residential market.

PLUMBER-HEATER DEALERS TOLD TO LEARN COOLING

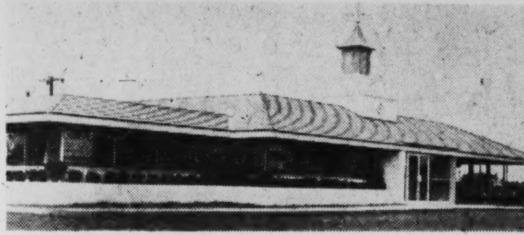
About 200 representatives of plumbing and heating contractor-dealers were told last week that by 1960 the air-conditioning industry will be "a billion dollars a year industry at the wholesale level" and that, because long before that the bulk of installations will be combined heating-cooling central units, they would do well to "get on the bandwagon."

The occasion was a sales promotion session arranged by St. Louis Distributors Ahrens & McCarron at Kingsway Hotel on behalf of the Rheem Manufacturing Co. in connection with that manufacturer's expansion into production of full lines of combined heating-cooling central units.

Although a manufacturer of major size, with plants in nine states and plants and distribution functions in nine foreign countries, Rheem (steel barrels and other containers, domestic water heaters, etc.) until now had gone in only for room coolers in the air-conditioning field.

Rheem now proposes to build both gas and oil-fired, water and air-cooled central units for both new construction and modernizing in a wide variety of sizes and styles, sent in five factory men to make the St. Louis presentation, first in the nation outside of Texas.

New Clayton Restaurant Opened



ON CLAYTON ROAD—New Howard Johnson's restaurant, largest of the standard-designed units in the system, which was opened last week at 7950 Clayton road, Richmond Heights, in charge of Harold Merkin, former manager of the Officers' Club at Scott Air Force Base, Belleville. Designed by Architect Joe Sicco, building was erected by Jones Kissner Construction Co. under supervision of Ernest Swedin. Building seats 165 diners, has parking area off street for 85 cars. It is second in famed Eastern chain to be opened here.

Paints Make Factories Safer. Non-skid paint is often used in industrial plants to prevent accidents caused by slipping. This paint differs from ordinary architectural paints in that it contains an abrasive—for example, pumice stone. Comparatively small quantities are mixed at a time and the paint is kept under constant agitation to keep the abrasive particles in suspension. When the paint is sprayed, a special nozzle is used to avoid excessive wear by the abrasive.

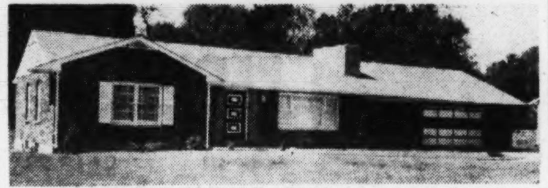
Home on Court Purchased

HOME ON COURT—Residence at 5969 North Cuba Court bought from Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Guerrant by Mr. and Mrs. Francis Slay (operators of Slay's Bar Barbeque at 2652 Hampton avenue.) Negotiations were handled by the Roy William Morris Realty Co.

Home In Carolynne Acres Sold



IN SOUTHWEST COUNTY—Residence at 10022 Carolynne Acres, a subdivision off Highway 21 southwest of the city, sold for Mrs. Laura Root to Mr. and Mrs. Edward Wolken in transaction negotiated by the Howard S. Bergen Realty Co., with the J. Ben Miller Realty Co. handling the financing. House is on a one-half acre lot, has double fireplace, two bedrooms.

Realty Agency's New Home

ON CHIPPEWA STREET—New home of the P. J. Kwentus Real Estate Co. at 4458 Chippewa street. Kwentus moved to new location from Aracade building downtown for expansion of sales program. East half of building is occupied by Nick Mess Plumbing Co., west half by Kwentus. There is a parking lot in the rear.

ZYKAN ACQUIRES 177 - ACRE TRACT IN PATTONVILLE

Frank E. Zykan, Inc., has purchased from the Chambers Estate, A. T. Chambers et al., 177 acres of ground lying between St. Charles road and Natural Bridge road at the western end of the Pattonville shopping zone, the R. J. Fahey Real Estate Agency, which handled the deal, reports.

The ground has three frontages on St. Charles road, one of 600 feet, one of 171 feet, one of 201 feet, beginning about 300 feet west of Fee Fee road, and a 20-foot access right of way easement to Natural Bridge road beyond its northernmost boundary.

A small part of the property will be used for right of way and a cloverleaf overpass of the proposed Mark Twain Highway as it crosses St. Charles road, according to present plans of the State Highway Department, Fahey said. Zykan, a builder of low and medium priced homes, presumably will subdivide the ground as soon as the highway route is definitely established.

BUILDERS' PICNIC PLANNED IN INDIAN MEADOWS CLUB

Richard C. Higginbotham, president of the Home Builders Association of Greater St. Louis reports the annual Bildor picnic is being planned for July 27 at Indian Meadows Country Club.

The picnic committee, headed by Melvin H. Glick, president of Melvin H. Glick and Co., building firm, has planned several activities

A record attendance of 600 was set at last year's stag affair and an even larger crowd is anticipated this year.

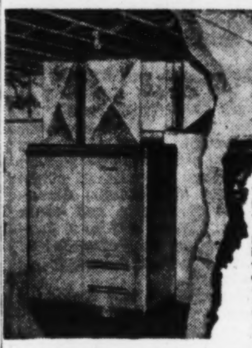
Enjoy MOUNTAIN Coolness Throughout Your Home in WARMEST WEATHER



This shows how your heating system is converted to cooling.
No extra floor space is needed. Cooling coil fits into duct system, connects to outside compressor unit.
Complete equipment consists of only two compact units.

Truly efficient, economical central home cooling is here at last, and our air conditioning specialists can quickly bring it to your home. We mean, of course, WILLIAMSON WATERLESS AIRefrigeration, the air cooling system that needs no water, no plumbing, no pump, no water tower.
Modern WILLIAMSON equipment uses your present warm air heating system to deliver cool, filtered, dehumidified air to every room, saving you many dollars on installation.

COMPACT MODERN DESIGN
Compare this to cooling only one or a few rooms with window units. Designed by WILLIAMSON, nationally known manufacturer with 65 years of air conditioning experience, AIRefrigeration consists of two compact units. Both are out of view.
Cooling coil fits into furnace duct and compressor unit is set up outside. No additional floor space is needed. Operation is quiet. Let us show you how easy and economical it is for you to enjoy a home-full of constant, mountain coolness this summer!

Wood Sheds Heat, Cold.

Wood helps you keep warm in winter and cool in summer. A wall of two-by-four-inch studding with lath and plaster, one-inch wood sheathing, building paper and bevel siding has about 25 per cent less heat loss in cold weather than does an eight-inch furred brick wall with lath and plaster, according to the National Lumber Manufacturers Association. Wood siding keeps home interiors cooler in summer because it does not absorb and retain heat to the extent that some other wall surfacing materials do.

SHORT COURSE FOR NURSERYMEN AT COLUMBIA

The annual short course for nurserymen sponsored jointly by the College of Agriculture, department of horticulture, of the University of Missouri and the Missouri State Nurserymen's Association will take place tomorrow, Tuesday and Wednesday at Columbia.

On the agenda are presentations by Theodore W. Bretz, professor of forestry; C. Edmund Marshall, professor of soils; Daniel F. Millikan, assistant professor of horticulture; Harold E. Mosher, assistant professor of horticulture; James E. Smith, associate professor of floriculture; Harold G. Swartout, professor of horticulture, all of the University of Missouri; together with Robert H. Hillenmeyer, Hillenmeyer Nurseries, Lexington, Ky.; Al. Linkogel, Links Nursery, Inc., Clayton, Mo.; John P. Mahlstede, assistant professor of horticulture, Iowa State College, Ames, Ia.; Vernon Marshall, vice president American Association of Nurserymen, Arlington, Nebr.; Joseph B. Weston, Neosho Nurseries, Neosho, Mo.

Study topics will include the soil, turf grasses, packaging of nursery stock (with special attention to the new transparent polyethelene wrappings many nurseries already use); landscaping studies; diseases of shade trees and ornamentals; discussion of salesyards and other matters. There will be a business meeting on Wednesday of the Missouri State Nurserymen's Association.

Entertainment will include a barbeque at the Wilkerson nursery on Route 40, west, Tuesday night.

The studies will be undertaken in the new air-conditioned Memorial Student Union Building on Hitt street at Lowry street.

Attendance at the coure is not restricted to members of the nurserymen's association, said Mosher, who is chairman of the short course committee of the university.

80-ACRE TRACT IN DES PERES IS SUBDIVIDED

Promotional effort has been started on a new subdivision being cut from an irregularly shaped 80-acre tract in Des Peres, with a display house set up temporarily in a part of the tract that has been commercially zoned.

The ground lies on the south side of Manchester road, extending eastward from Des Peres road, and wraps around the back (south side) of the Manchester Drive-In Theater, extending to Ballas road. It is being called Ballas Estates. The tract is bounded on the south, in part, by the Winslow subdivision, and, east of the theater reaches to commercial properties and a small Ballas road cemetery on its northern line.

The Manchester road frontage of the tract is zoned commercial for a 500-foot depth from the theater west to Des Peres road.

The Humfeld agency of Clayton has the promotion. Homes to be built in the area are to be three bedrooms, low price range buildings of ranch styling, with poured concrete basements. Concrete streets are to be built. What will be done with the commercial part of the tract hasn't yet been reported.

THE NEW ALL-AMERICAS

The 1955 flower winners are Prima Donna petunia, Toreador celosia or cockscomb and McKana's giant columbine or aquilegia.

They have been tested in the 22 All-America trial grounds, in all sections of the country, and are chosen as the best of their kinds and colors to date.

They are generally recommended and seeds should be obtained from seed firms as long as stocks last this first year of introduction.

The 1955 vegetable winners are Seminole bush snapbean, golden beauty sweetcorn and pennsweet muskmelon. The corn and melon are regional recommendations, for the northern states and Canada, while Seminole is an all-purpose snapbean for gardens everywhere.

Wears Slowly Away.

Exposed unpainted wood wears away at the rate of about a quarter of an inch in 100 years. Properly painted wood surfaces will last indefinitely.

HYBRID VIGOR POPULAR

Hybrid vigor and extra uniformity or trueness to kind were brought to popular knowledge, garden and planting use with hybrid corn. Dr. Glen Smith, United States Department of Agriculture, working in conjunction with Purdue University, was honored with the All-America Selections medallion of honor for outstanding horticultural achievement. Among other valuable originations, Dr. Glen Smith produced the first outstanding and still leading hybrid sweetcorn, Golden Cross Bantam. The garden world is indebted to Dr. Smith and his fellow workers.

FIRST GENERATION HYBRIDS

Onions, peppers, tomatoes, cucumbers, squash, as well as corn and other vegetables and flowers, are now bringing improved yields, uniformity and other desirable plant qualities, through the development of "first generation hybrids." They necessitate considerable extra work in producing seed crops through inbreeding of parent stocks and final crossing for the first generation hybrids. Naturally such seeds cost more than "open pollinated" or naturally crossed seed crops but good hybrids are more than worth their extra cost. Depend upon reliable seed firms for the hybrid varieties adapted to your climate and section. A number of recent All-America Selections, flower and vegetable variety winners, have been first generation hybrids.

"No black spots on my rose leaves!"
Black spot disease can't ruin the leaves of your rose bushes if you spray regularly with Black Leaf Phygon. Even better, combine it with Black Leaf 40 and Black Leaf Malathion for a three-way, all-summer spray to control all the major insect and disease pests of your roses. Spray often enough to keep the new growth and the older foliage protected and watch your roses grow and bloom!
Mix together in 1 gallon of water: 1 teaspoonful of Black Leaf 40, 2 teaspoonfuls of Black Leaf Malathion and 2 teaspoonfuls of Black Leaf Phygon. This combination controls aphids, leafhoppers, other insects and mites, prevents mildew and black spot. Also controls bugs and blights on other flowers, ornamental shrubs, trees and vegetables.
Economical 1-oz. bottle of Black Leaf 40 only 39¢; 1-oz. bottle of Black Leaf Malathion, 39¢; 4-oz. package of Black Leaf Phygon, 69¢

"No need to have a grubby lawn!"
Grubs in the ground are great root eaters and they kill entire patches of your lawn or favorite shrubs, if left to feed unchecked. The adult beetles also do serious damage to leaves, flowers and fruits; especially Japanese beetles and June or May beetles. The sure, easy way to kill most of these insects is to scatter powerful Black Leaf Dieldrin evenly over the sod or ground surface. It works fast, kills grubs fast!
Use BLACK LEAF® DIELDRIN
Spread one pound of Black Leaf Dieldrin for every 700 square feet of lawn or other area you want to protect from grubs. Powerful, long-lasting and economical Black Leaf Dieldrin also kills wireworms, chinch bugs, lawn moths, ants, ticks, chiggers, pillbugs and other soil-infesting insects. Easy-to-use granules penetrate to the soil with no dust, no waste.

New Men's Store in Lemay

IN LEMAY—The Manhattan Sales Co., 1440 South Broadway, formally opened a new neighborhood unit of its business last Thursday at 1115 Lemay Ferry road (intersection of Lemay Ferry and Telegraph roads). The store has 4000 square feet of selling floor space and there are parking facilities for 200 cars at the front of the building. Operation of the store is largely on the self-service basis, with counters and equipment in lime oak and turquoise. The store is air-conditioned. The Manhattan stores, which handle general merchandise and army surplus, men's dress and work clothing, are operated by Harry, Max and William Cohen.

KEEGAN HEADS COUNCIL

Charles F. Keegan, New York City, is the new president of All-America Selections, following Earl M. Page of St. Louis. John Waller, Guadalupe, Calif., was elected vice president and W. Ray Hastings, Harrisburg, Penn., was re-elected to serve his twenty-second year as executive director of this original horticultural research organization. A.A.S. provides 40 vegetable and flower trial grounds with resident judges over the country for the testing and screening of proposed new varieties from seeds.

Eight Basic Safety Rules Aid Driving

Faced with a long weekend of holiday driving, American motorists would do well to remember some of the people who "made the statistics" last July 4th.

A thirty-six-year-old mechanic in the Midwest, who was a careful driver, never exceeded the speed limit and always observed traffic signs, was killed in an automobile wreck for which he was solely responsible.

The same was true of a 50-year-old housewife in the South and a 48-year-old physician in the East.

None of these cases was unusual. The National Safety Council has estimated that five out of six drivers involved in fatal accidents were not exceeding the legal speed limit.

So even if you remember to watch your driving speed—there are other driving rules, just as important for your safety—which are more frequently ignored. Here are eight basic ones:

(1) Train your eyes to see the road situation at least a block ahead, as well as close at hand. This will give you a chance to anticipate the highway construction or the stalled car which may make the drivers ahead of you stop suddenly. For highway driving, learn to see half a mile ahead.

Brake Car Gradually.

(2) Don't follow the car ahead too closely. If that driver is forced to stop suddenly and your car is practically at his bumper, you're apt to run into the rear of his car. Try to leave a length of one car between you and the vehicle ahead for every 10 miles of speed, so that, if you are going 40 miles an hour, leave a space of about four cars between you and the car ahead.

(3) Don't brake your car abruptly or change direction suddenly without warning the driver behind you. Don't change lanes unless you're going to make a turn. When you change, signal in plenty of time.

(4) Make sure you can really handle your car. Do you remember not to slam your foot on the brake when the car begins to skid, but rather to let up on the gas and turn the wheel in the direction of the skid until you gain control of the car? Learn to keep a tight grip on the wheel when you suspect a flat tire. When your brakes fail, do you remember to use the hand brake—and if that fails, to shift to a low gear and turn off the ignition?

Take It Easy.

(5) Make sure that your car is in the best possible condition. Don't speed on slippery pavements today with wornout tires you intend to trade in tomorrow. Make sure your brakes are tight. As soon as you suspect trouble, have your car checked. Repair bills are cheaper than hospital bills.

(6) Don't drive when you are tired or ill. If you have a bad headache, you cannot give full attention to the road. A good idea is to keep headache relief tablets in your glove compartment for just such an emergency. Then perhaps it's also a good idea to pull over at a drive-in, have a cup of coffee and relax for a few minutes before getting back on the highway.

(7) Don't depend too much on stop signs and signals. You may have the right of way but before you go ahead make sure that the driver of the car coming from the other street of an intersection has heeded his red light or stop sign. The fact that you were in the right is small comfort in a hospital room while you wait for broken bones to mend.

(8) If someone is in your path, don't take it for granted that he will see your car coming and get out of the way. Blink your lights at him or honk your horn. Most important of all, slow down so that you can stop if a child or small animal doesn't know enough to get out of the road.

SIX-STORY BUILDING SOLD ON NORTH SIXTEENTH ST.

A six-story building at 701 North Sixteenth street, a brick, terra-cotta trimmed structure with 25,000 square feet of fireproof and sprinkler protected floor space, has been sold by the Central Mortgage Discount Corporation to the Jay Gee Investment Corporation, the Glick Real Estate Co., agent in the deal, reports. Consideration was not reported.

The property houses offices of the Decca Records distributor here, the Hieber Textile Co., Central Printing & Addressograph Co., Brendel Typographic Service, and the Donna-Lo Laboratory.

SUBDIVISION IN MANCHESTER FORMALLY OPEN

A new subdivision of some 30 acres called Connie Lee Acres, in Manchester a half mile south of Manchester road on Sulphur Springs road, has been opened by the Humfeld Realty Corporation, promotion agent, with Hays-Torgove, Inc., doing the building.

Homes are to be built on both sides of a new street called Connie lane, which has been cut through eastward to Hannah road. Houses in ranch style in low price range are being erected, with Johns Manville color styling. Some display units are up.

Being within the jurisdiction of Manchester, Connie Lee Acres will have police and fire protection from that town.

The LAKE VACATIONLAND
St. Louisans have always wanted
Lake Lorraine
only 30 MINUTES FROM ST. LOUIS

Only 30 minutes away from busy St. Louis, a beautiful new Lake Vacationland is rapidly coming into existence.

Nestling among the beautiful hills of Jefferson County, there will soon be a huge lake of clear, sparkling water . . . and around this lake will be picturesque lodges, where busy men and their families will enjoy life as they have always hoped to do . . . even as the nearby city swelters under summer's simmering heat.

Almost at their own doors, Bass, Crappie, Blue Gill, Perch and Channel Cat will wait to match wits with the disciples of Izaak Walton . . . the clear lake will beckon invitingly to those who love the tingling thrill of a good swim in spring-fed waters.

The same men who developed beautiful Lake Montowese and Fond du Lac are building Lake Lorraine in a setting of rare natural beauty . . . in the wooded hills of Jefferson County near Goldman, Missouri, less than 30 miles south of Affton on Highway 21 (Tesson Ferry Road).

The heavily timbered shore line has been divided into Lodge Sites varying in size from 50x150 feet to half acre and acre tracts. Modern conveniences are available. Lodge Site prices start at $750, and may be bought on most convenient terms.

Lake Lorraine will NOT be open to the general public. It is being developed—and will be maintained—for Lodge Site owners and their guests. Careful selection of owners of Lodge Sites and expert management assure the high character of this beautiful Lake Vacationland.

Schools Can Be Built Resistant To Atom Blasts

NEW YORK.—School buildings can easily and inexpensively be built resistant to atomic blasts as compared with schools designed without that factor in mind, according to a treatise in the June isue of Architectural Record, a professional magazine for architects and engineers.

The study was prepared jointly by an architect and an engineer. The architect is Ellery Husted of the firm of Gugler, Kimball & Husted. The engineer is Boyd G. Anderson of the firm of Ammon & Whitney. Both are of New York City.

The article points out that not only is the protection of school children important, but that school buildings are of prime importance for shelter and service for all people after an attack.

It says too that designs strengthening schools against blast also strength against fire, earthquakes, hurricanes and tornadoes. And at little extra cost; in certain cases at no cost.

Rate to Continue.

"This study is of particular timeliness because the architects and engineers who will read it are now engaged in the greatest surge of school design in the history of the country," commented John Knox Shear, editor-in-chief of Architectural Record, a publication of F. W. Dodge Corporation. "And there is all reason to believe the high rate of school construction will continue for years, according to Dodge officials.

"The way architects and engineers shape their designs now and in the years ahead may decide the survival or death of countless children in case we are atacked. Fortunately for these children this article will be in the hands of the men who are designing 95 per cent of new schools, by actual survey."

Architectural Record says that while the article is primarily technical and "how-to-do-it" in nature, it makes observations of general interest such as: "A view of complete helplessness against A-bomb or H-bomb attack should not be accepted. Many new schools, following the housing trends, are being built on the outskirts of big metropolitan centers.

Fire Resistance Important.

"What might be considered minimum protective measures for such schools may be surprisingly effective, since they will generally be at sufficient distance from the main target areas to make it unlikely that they wil be exposed to the most intense blast pressures. The important thing is that this knowledge be put to work now, while there is still time."

The writers also say: "Most persons are unaware of the vulnerability of the average American school to bomb blast, earthquake and high winds. They judge by apearance only. Many schools, new as well as old, particularly those of wall-bearing construction (floors supported by walls rather than by internal structure) are vulnerable to all the effects of atomic weapons."

The article stresses structural strength but also strongly stresses fire resistance. It states that the experiences with the attacks on Japan demonstrated that fire resistance is almost as important as structural strength.

89 BRICKLAYERS COMPLETE THEIR APPRENTICESHIP

Eighty-nine young bricklayers received certificates for completion of a four-year apprenticeship course last Monday night at a dinner meeting held at the Roosevelt Hotel by the Bricklayers Joint Apprentice Committee.

The new journeymen had each completed approximately 6000 hours of employment and a minimum of 576 hours of classroom instruction. They were given their diplomas by Thomas Murphy of Washington, treasurer of the Bricklayers, Masons and Plasterers International Union, AFL, who was the guest speaker.

Commenting on the development of competitive building materials, Murphy assured the class that masonry could maintain its position of leadership as long as bricklayers continued to maintain and increase the quantity and efficiency of their work.

"The answer to substitute materials," he said, "is productivity. All of us—contractors and bricklayers alike—know that the way to get more work is to keep masonry competitive with other materials. This can be done. All it involves is doing a good, workmanlike job and turning in a fair day's work for a fair day's pay."

The St. Louis bricklayers' apprentice program is administered jointly by the Mason Contractors Association and the Bricklayers Union Local No. 1, AFL. The program was started in 1941, interrupted by World War II, and reinstituted in 1946.

Since 1946, the program has had an average enrollment of about 170 apprentices, with about 45 graduating each year. Formal graduation exercises were held for the first time this year.

CHURCH WOMEN BUY 14-ROOM RESIDENCE ON LINDELL BLVD.

A property on Lindell boulevard numbered 4472, having a 14-room residence on a 145 by 213-foot deep lot, has been purchased by the Catholic Women's Association for use as a girls' home. Extensive reconditioning is planned.

The property was sold by the Glick Real Estate Co., which owned it, with the real estate department of the Mercantile Trust Co. acting as agent for the buyers. Glick said the property was valued at about $100,000, in part because of the large lot in such a central location.

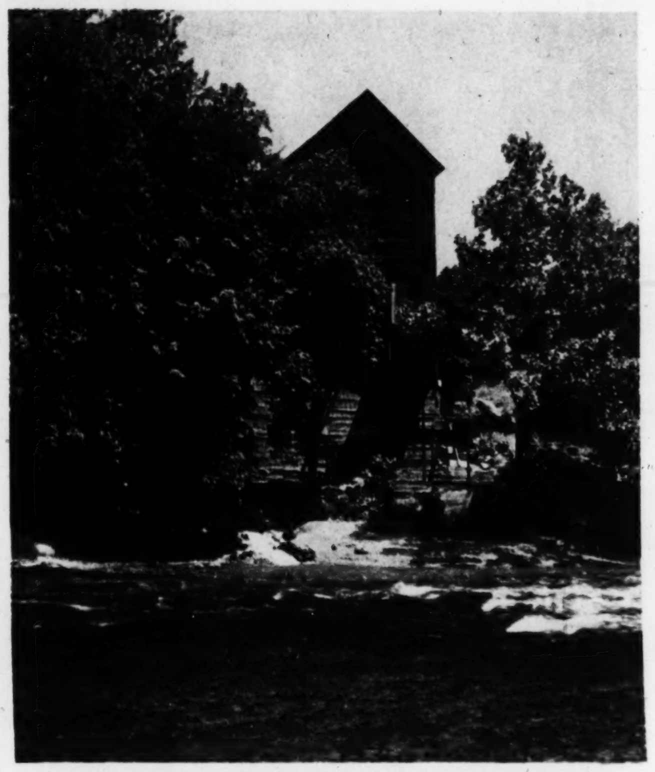
ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH

In Oregon County's Hurricane valley, about midway between Alton and Winona, Farmer Walter Brown saws stove wood with a water-powered saw. The power comes from overshot wheel on left side of drop-siding millhouse. Spring water from a cave in cliff behind flows down elevated wooden millrace which is supported by three poles. Brown has lived on his Falling Spring farm for all his 72 years. The 500-acre farm has been in his family for more than 100 years. Mill's original water wheel was built before 1870, was replaced about 30 years ago.

OLD MISSOURI GRIST MILLS

Some Dozen of Them Are Still Grinding Grain With Water-Powered Stone Burrs



The Dawt Mill is perched on a bank of North Fork White River in Ozark County. It was built about 1900. Water from millpond upstream from mill is sluiced into the mill, runs through the turbine and back into the stream. Dawt Mill is about two miles off Highway 160 just east of Tecumseh. The mill now shells and grinds corn.

The Rockbridge Mill was built around 1872 and is no longer in operation. It is in Ozark County between Dora and Gainesville. A West Plains dentist, M. C. Amyx, has purchased Rockbridge, now operates it and surrounding waters as a commercial trout-fishing resort. Old-fashioned, rowboat-shaped coffins of uncertain origin are still stored inside on third floor of the mill.

THE WATER-POWERED MILL for grinding grain was a major instrument in the agrarian economy of Missouri at the turn of the century. Today the 40-odd grist mills that survive are by way of being curiosities. But about a dozen of these mills are still in operation, their stone burrs grinding grist for connoisseurs of graham flour bread, corn pone and "hush puppies." (Folklore has it that the term "hush puppies" for deep-fried balls of corn meal comes from the custom of fishermen carrying cooked meal on their trips. To keep their dogs quiet while angling, the fishermen tossed them bits of meal while saying, "Hush puppy, hush puppy.")

It was probably in the late 1860s that the water mills began switching over from the more picturesque but less efficient water wheel to the water turbine. The old water wheels are of two types. One is the overshot wheel where water cascades over the top of a vertical wheel, filling buckets on the wheel's rim and turning it by weight of the water. The other, an undershot wheel, is moved by water passing beneath and striking against blades set in rim of the wheel.

In the turbine mill, a head of water is fed into a large funnel which contains curved vanes—much like the blades of an electric fan—on a central spindle. Power is geared to the millstones, or burrs, from the turning central spindle, which is forced around by water pressure on the blades. The mills on this page are the turbine type with the exception of Walter Brown's overshot wheel.

Sun-dappled foliage gives seclusion to red-painted Alley Spring Mill. The mill, not operating, is in 427-acre Alley Spring State Park of Shannon County. The park was acquired by the state in 1924. This mill was constructed in 1893 and replaced another mill which burned. Wooden gears remain intact inside the three-story building. Alley Spring discharges 55,000,000 gallons of water a day.

Water from a large spring spills over dam at Aid-Hodgson Mill. This mill last year marketed more than 50,000 pounds of stone-ground white corn meal. It also mills a whole wheat cereal, graham flour and yellow corn meal. The mill, which is near Caulfield in Ozark County, was built in 1897. It replaced one which was milling on the same site before the Civil War, but was destroyed by fire.

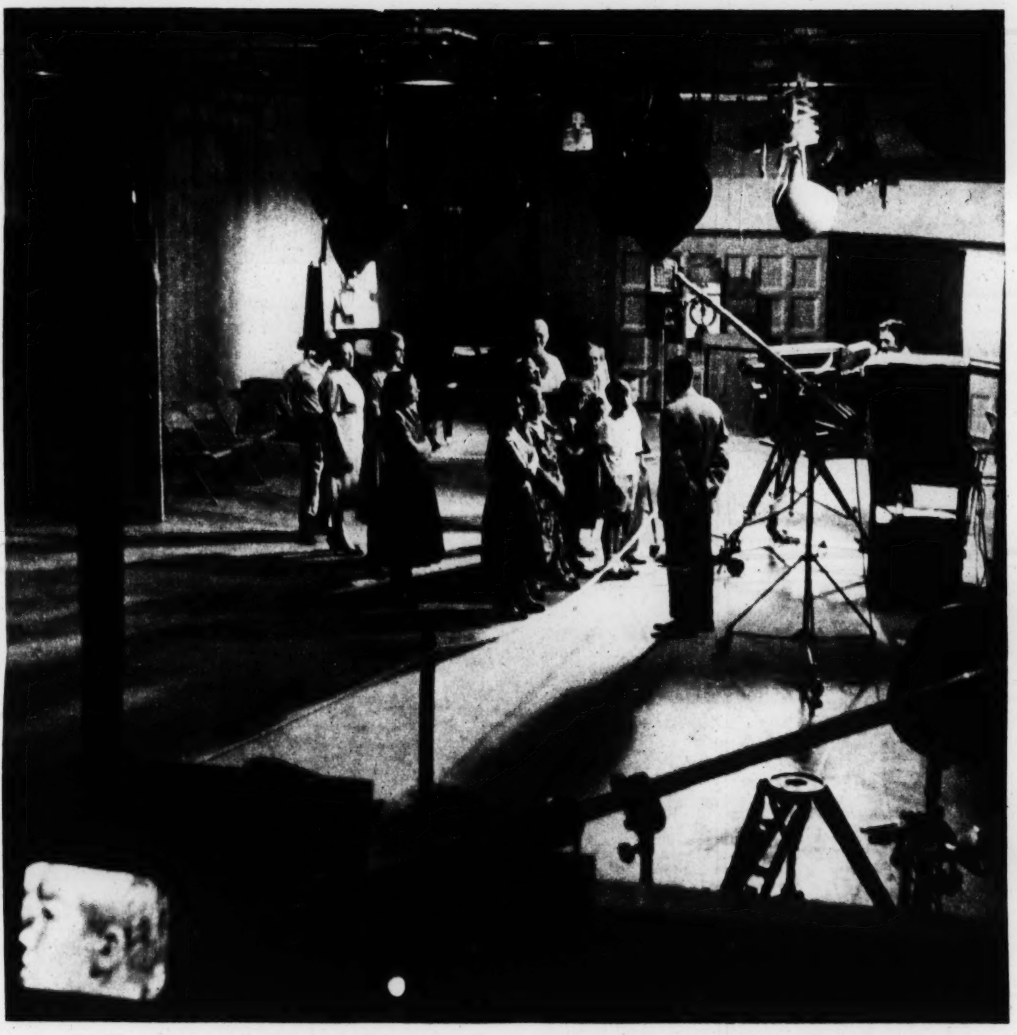
Seeing Themselves On Television

Reactions of Visitors at Opening of Educational Station KETC's New Building as They Behold Their Own Images



In KETC studio, group of guests listens to talk by guide while a television camera photographs individuals. The picture appears on control room monitor screen (lower left) and also on screen of receiver between camera and microphone boom where televised subject can see own image. Boy whose face shows on monitor is in front row of group.

WHEN ST. LOUIS' educational television station, KETC, held open house at its new studio and office building, it used a sure-fire method of entertaining visitors. It let them see themselves on television. The visitors looked at their televised images on a receiver that was set up next to the camera that was taking their pictures. For many guests, this proved the high point of the conducted tour through KETC's new home on the Washington University campus. While the experience was akin to the prosaic business of looking in a mirror, it was more fascinating because of the novelty and scientific mystery involved.

On beholding their electronic reflections, subjects' reactions varied from pleasant surprise to self-conscious disbelief. Most simply smiled at themselves. Many waved, as if to prove to their own satisfaction that the action portrayed was instantaneous. Some children, in typical uninhibited fashion, felt compelled to make faces or stick out their tongues. A few enjoyed their own performances with bubble gum.

The open house marked the public's introduction to the KETC building, named the Julius and Freda Baer Memorial after the parents of the donor, Arthur B. Baer. The building is at Big Bend and Millbrook boulevards.

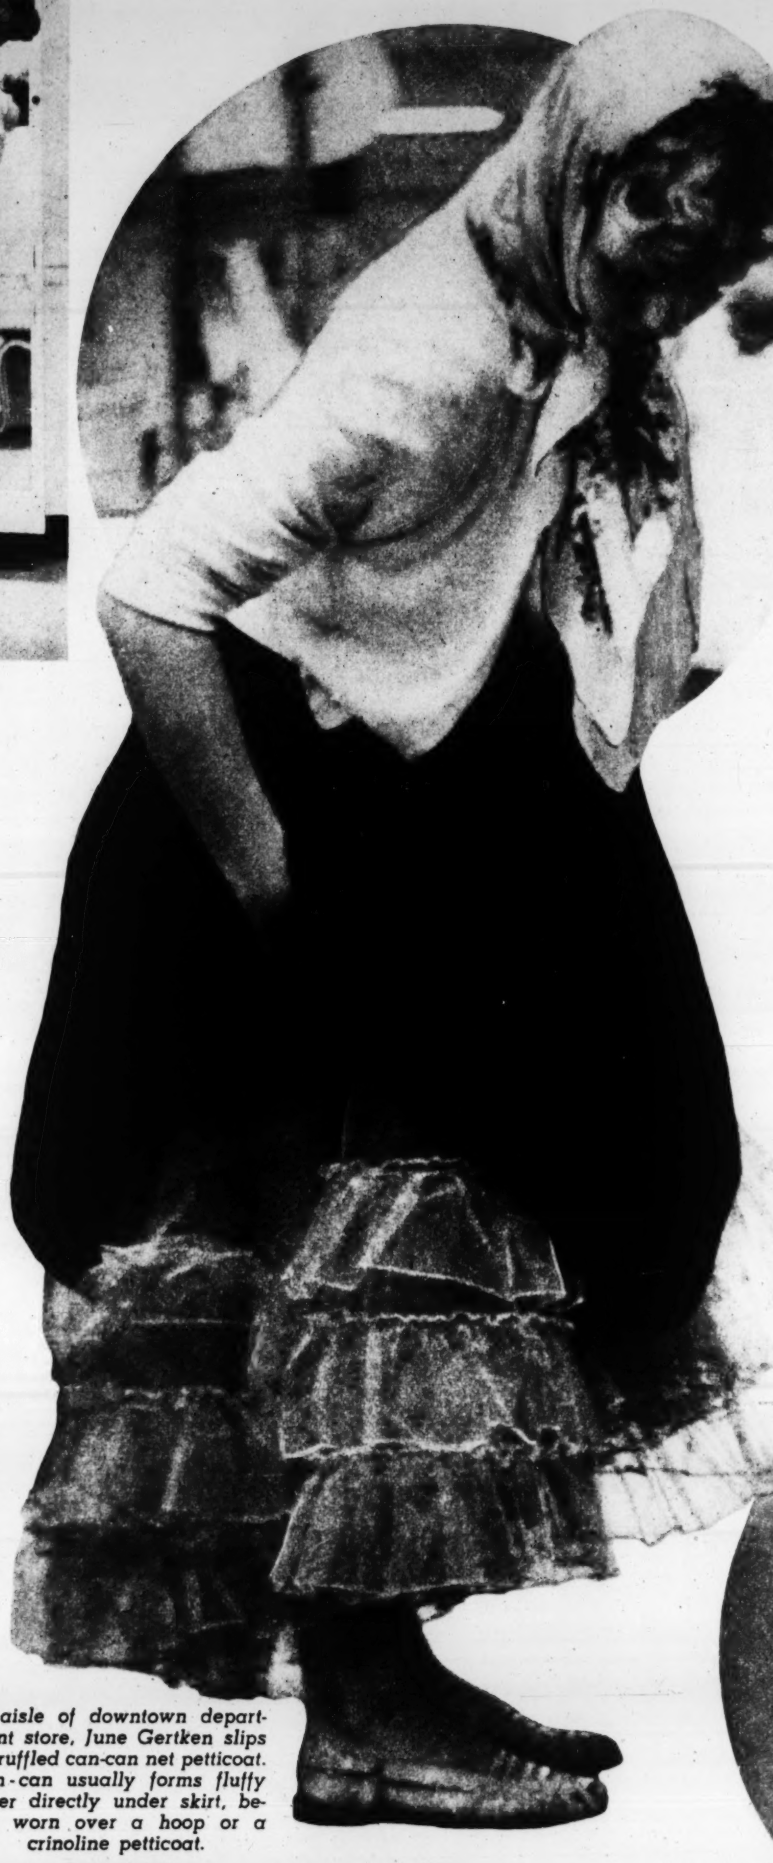
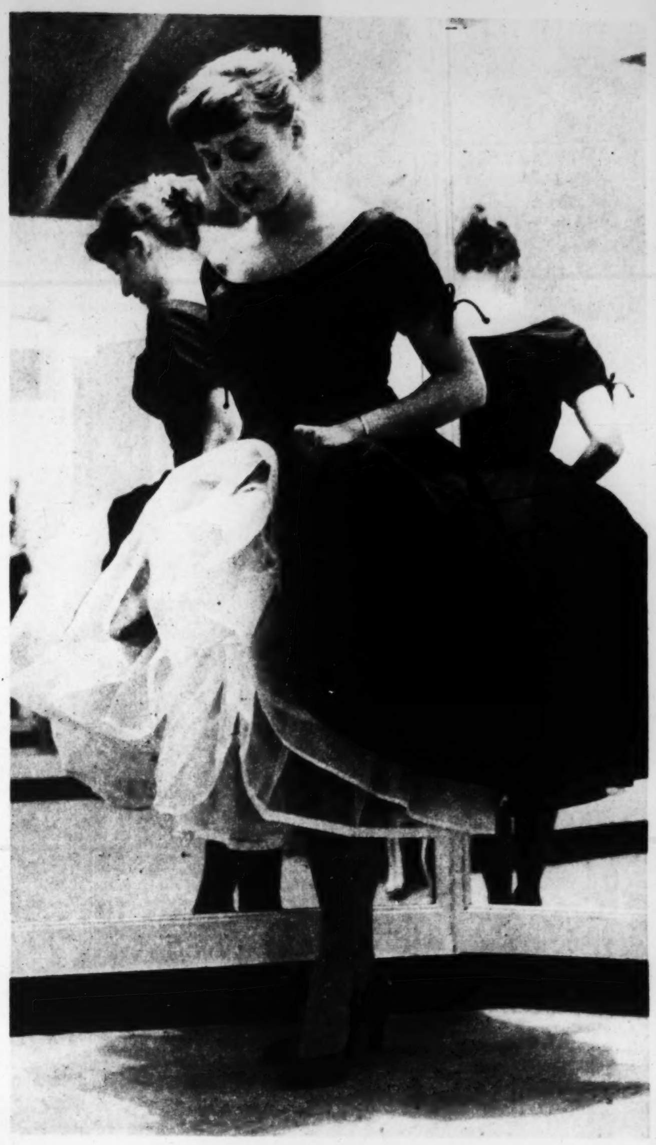
RE-DISCOVERY OF HOOPED PETTICOAT

Teen-Agers Turn to It for "Stand Out" Look, Combine It With Can-Can, Crinoline

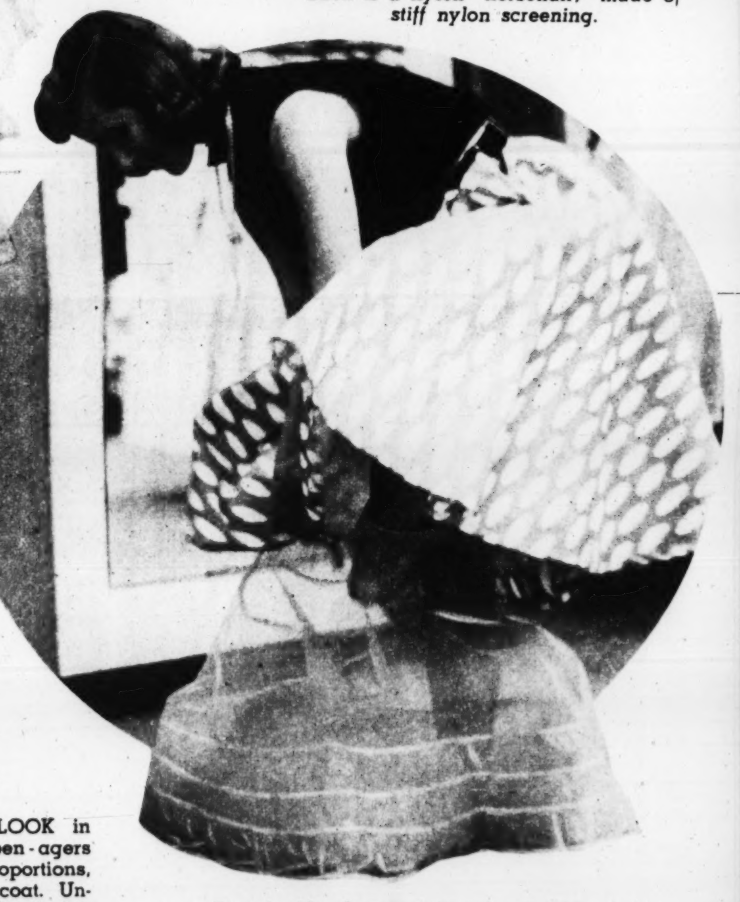


In aisle of downtown department store, June Gertken slips on ruffled can-can net petticoat. Can-can usually forms fluffy layer directly under skirt, being worn over a hoop or a crinoline petticoat.



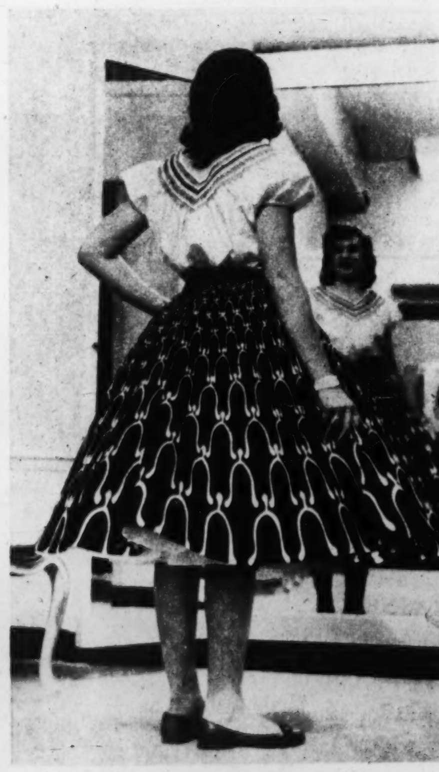
Four-petticoat foundation is displayed by Margie Terrell, a college student. Each is a nylon "horsehair," made of stiff nylon screening.

Unless the wearer knows how to handle her hoops, sitting down may pose a problem in modesty. Merline Briggs shows how it's done on a soda fountain stool.

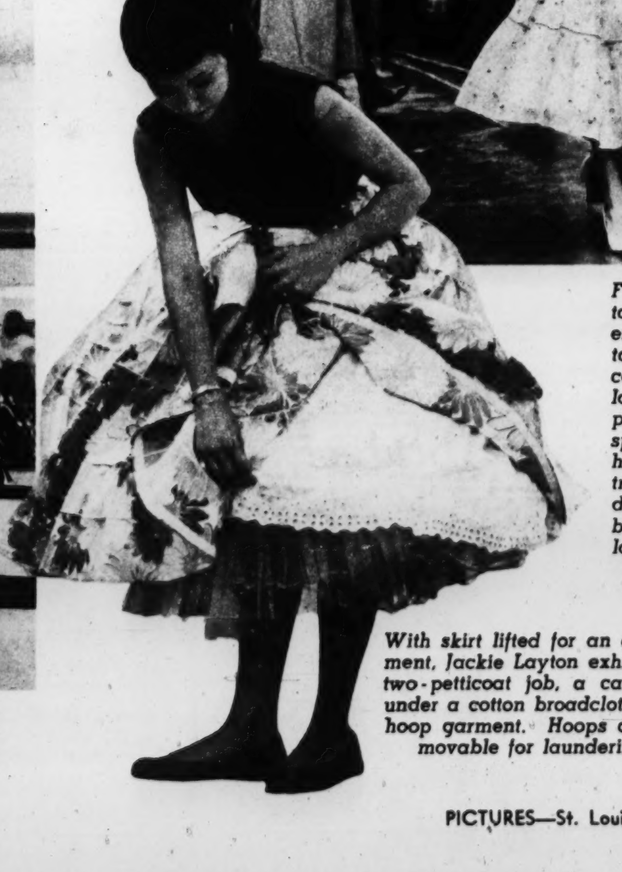


Dorothy Varel steps into net can-can petticoat, with three tiers of ruffles, which will provide soft fullness for her wide circle skirt.

Full skirt of Antonette Daleo's afternoon frock (photo above) is accorded stand out look by hooped petticoat. Besides space problem, hoops may give trouble on rainy days when umbrellas aren't large enough to shelter them.



Sandra Hoeltge's wishbone-decorated skirt is given a bell shape by a can-can petticoat over a three-tier hoop which is over a crinoline of nylon "horsehair."



With skirt lifted for an adjustment, Jackie Layton exhibits a two-petticoat job, a can-can under a cotton broadcloth two-hoop garment. Hoops are removable for laundering.

THE "STAND OUT" LOOK in skirts fancied by teen-agers has reached new proportions, thanks to the hooped petticoat. Until the recent re-discovery of this item of Victorian apparel, girls depended on crinoline petticoats to provide a bouffant effect with swirl skirts. Now the old-fashioned hooped jobs have come along to create a new fashion fad.

Not that hoops have replaced the stiff crinolines and the ruffled can-can petticoats which have been in vogue for more than a year. The big hoops are worn along with the others to achieve the chic appearance of an oversize lampshade. In building out a full skirt, the usual order of construction, from skin out, is a crinoline, a hooped petticoat and a can-can.

Teen-agers who are working girls are forced by practical considerations to forego hoops. They attain the fashionable "stand out" look by piling on unhooped petticoats. Whereas one or two crinolines sufficed before, up to six now seem to be required. The new style flatters the waist and ankles by making them appear slim by comparison.

The hooped petticoat fad engendered a serious problem during the closing weeks of school. Hoops were banned in some overcrowded high schools, it was reported, because they created traffic jams in already congested corridors.

TROUBLE IN ARGENTINA

Peron's War on Catholic Church Reaches a Head in Street Fighting

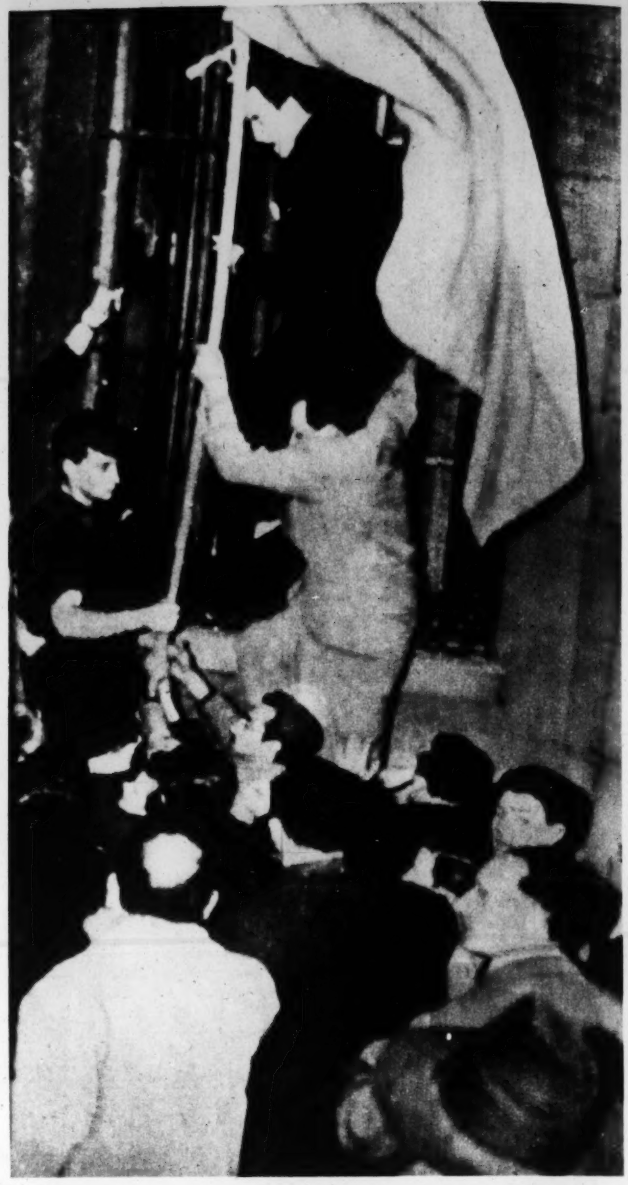
Federal police search one of the men arrested in the raid on the episcopal palace. A police communique said those arrested were suspected of starting rumors the cathedral had been burned. Dispute between Peron and the church came to a head evening before the rioting when Catholics held a Corpus Christi procession despite a government bar.

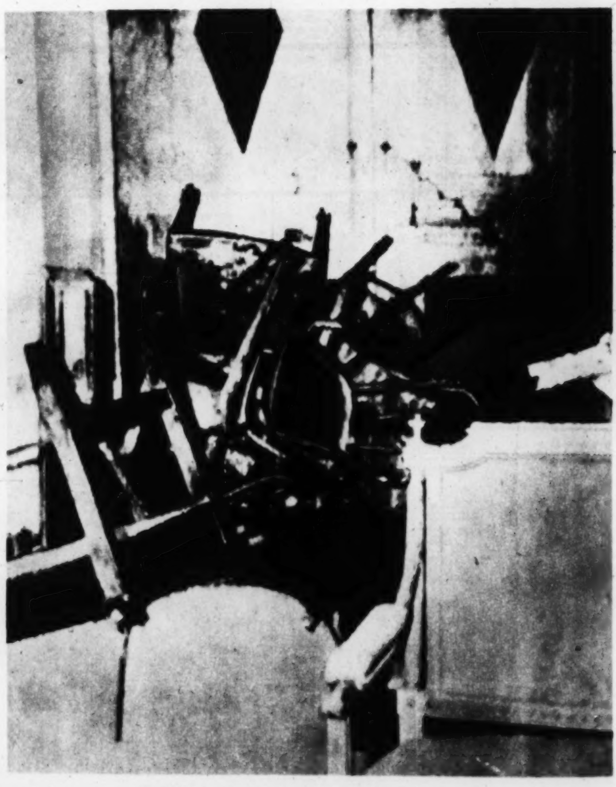
THE SEVEN-MONTH-OLD WAR waged by Dictator-President Juan Peron of Argentina on the Roman Catholic Church in that nation took a violent turn last weekend. Street fighting broke out in the Plaza de Mayo Sunday when Peron's supporters surged against a group of Catholics guarding the Buenos Aires Metropolitan Cathedral, then advanced on Cardinal Copello's adjoining episcopal palace. In the resultant rioting, marked by shooting and stone throwing, about 30 persons were injured, palace windows were smashed. Police scattered the rioters with tear gas.

Early Monday Peron's Federal police raided the palace, arrested about 470 persons who had taken refuge there from the street fighting. Monday night Peron accused high Argentine clergymen of trying to provoke disorder. On Tuesday the 6,000,000-member, strongly Peronista General Confederation of Labor called a nine-hour nation-wide strike to demonstrate loyalty to the dictator.

The Vatican newspaper L'Osservatore Romano asserted Argentine Catholics "are in the position of accused people with no possibility of defending themselves."



During a demonstration last Monday night, Peronistas clamber up grillwork outside episcopal palace in effort to plant Argentine flag on building. Catholics guarding the palace drove off the demonstrators. About 90 per cent of Argentina's 18,000,000 people are Catholic. Under the Argentine Constitution, Catholicism is the state religion, the President and Vice President must be Catholics. The Peronista Congress has taken steps toward eliminating those requirements.



Tables and chairs barricade a door of the episcopal palace, before the police raid. Police broke down the barricades.

Associated Press Photos except as noted

Peron, in a radio address to Argentina last Monday night, denounces the Argentine Catholic church. He asserted his regime would act "with discipline and energy."

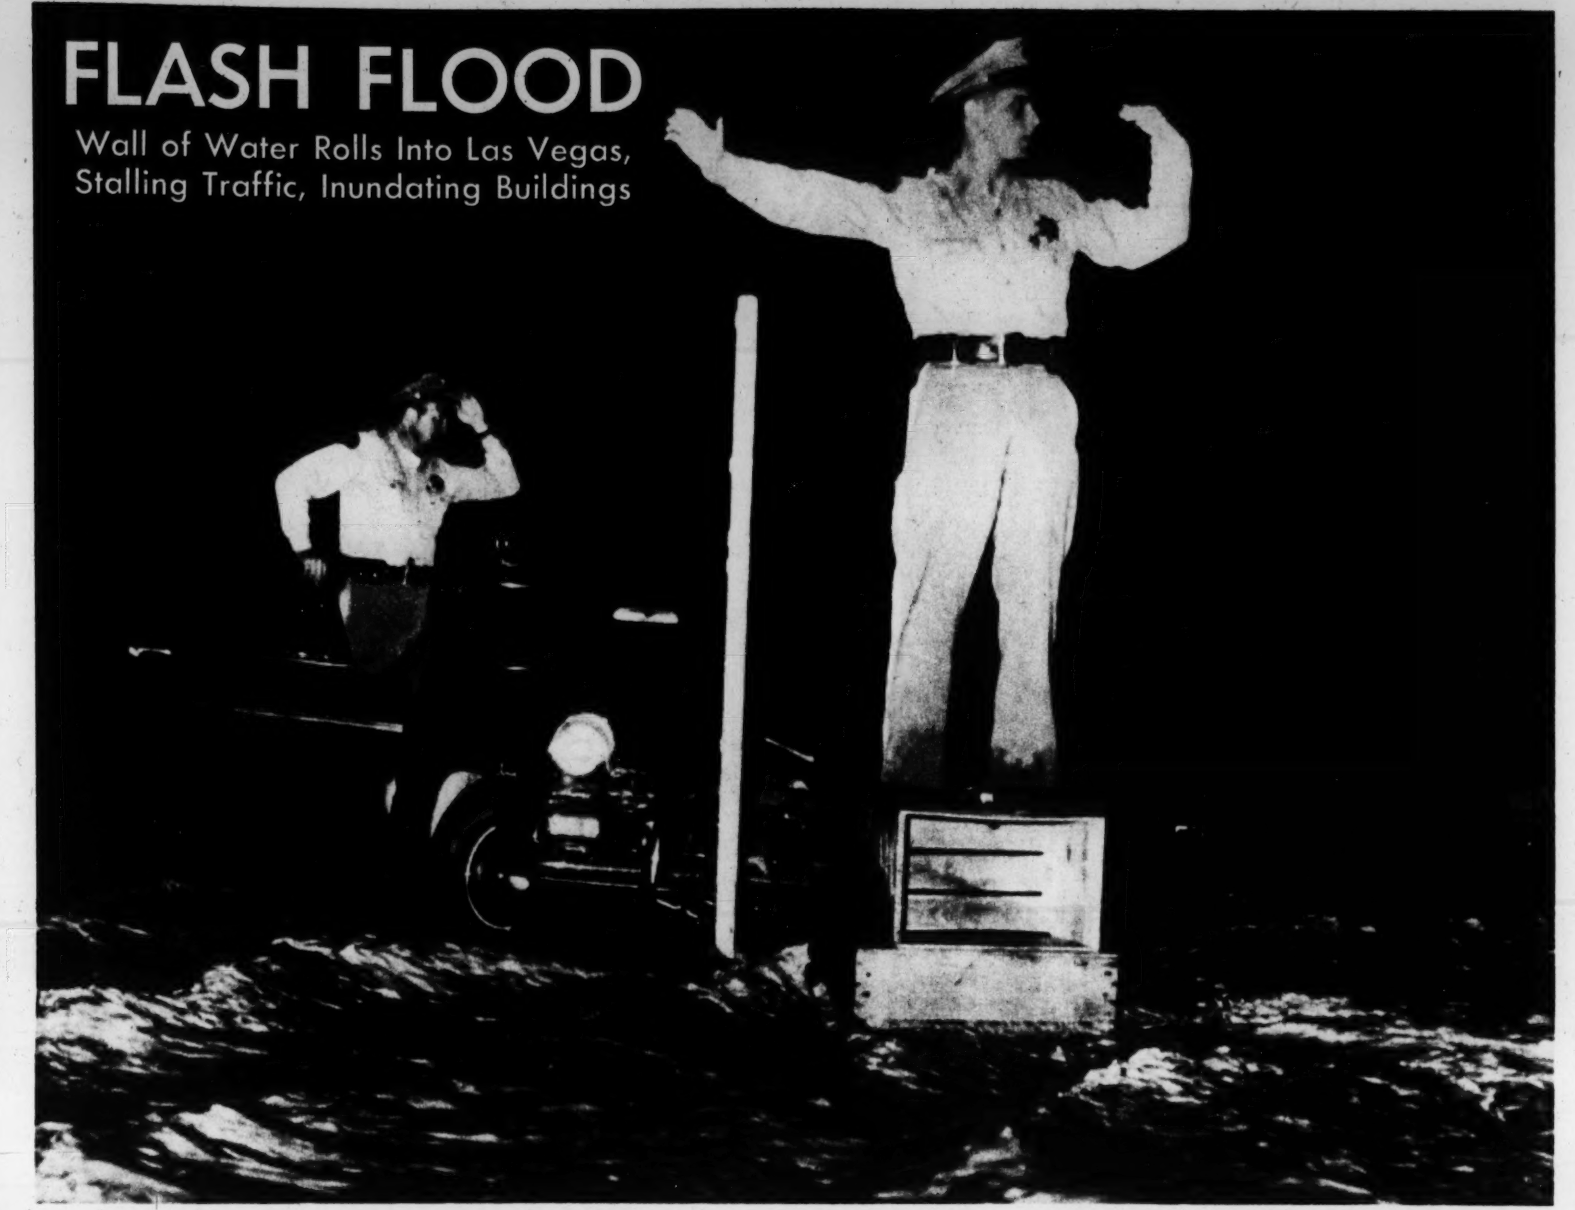
FLASH FLOOD

Wall of Water Rolls Into Las Vegas, Stalling Traffic, Inundating Buildings



Surrounded by swirling water, Patrolman Peter Zadra of Las Vegas directs traffic from an improvised platform of fruit boxes on a downtown street. His partner keeps dry by standing in a police car. Freak flash flood, which inundated the main street of the Nevada city with water a foot deep, was caused by cloudbursts on the mountains that surround Las Vegas. A wall of water swept down the slopes, flooded scores of homes and stores, and stalled hundreds of automobiles.

Associated Press Photos except as noted

Victims of the flash flood, inconvenienced but cheerful, are assisted from some of the stalled automobiles by police officers. Residents described the deluge as the worst Las Vegas flood since 1923. No casualties were reported, but property damage was expected to exceed $100,000.

EXILED TUNISIAN PATRIOT RETURNS

Habib Bourguiba, Tunisian Nationalist leader (standing in car), salutes the crowds welcoming him in Tunis on his return from three years of exile in France. The 52-year-old lawyer, leader of the Nationalist Neo-Destour party, has long fought for independence for the French protectorate of Tunisia. After a wave of anti-French demonstrations in 1953, he was exiled to France, held under house arrest in a chateau near Paris. After a home-rule agreement between France and Tunisia was initialed, Bourguiba's exile was ended.

PICKS HIS MOTHER AS COLOR GIRL

Tradition is broken at the University of Southern California when the mother of a cadet, instead of the sweetheart, acts as Color Girl. The mother is Mrs. E. H. Durrett of Whittier, California. With her son, Midshipman Jack P. Durrett, she holds the colors just before he gives her the customary kiss bestowed on color girls. As commander of the company that won the Naval ROTC drill contest, Midshipman Durrett had the honor of picking the Color Girl and named his mother.

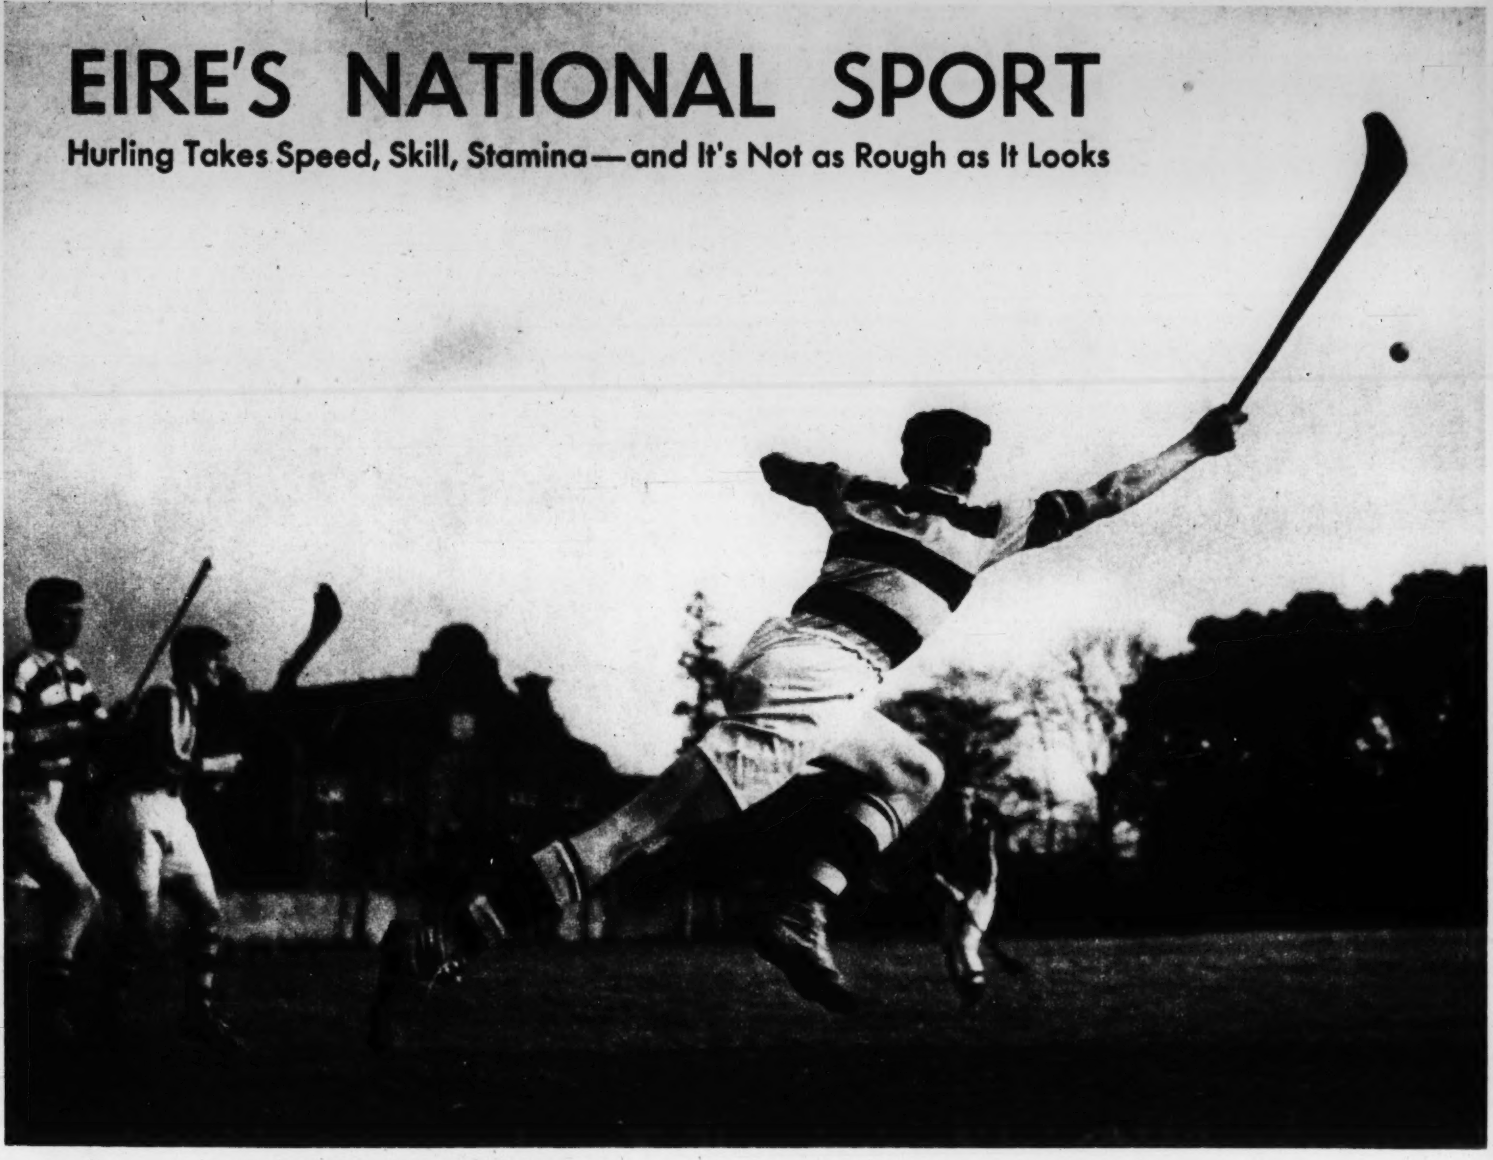
EIRE'S NATIONAL SPORT

Hurling Takes Speed, Skill, Stamina—and It's Not as Rough as It Looks



Player wearing horizontally striped shirt lunges with upraised hurley to knock down ball batted by opposing player (background, wearing vertically striped jersey). The maneuver is known as "stopping"; ball can be stopped with hurley, hand or body, and it can be batted on ground or in air. Man-to-man defense is usually employed.

By ROBERT E. HANNON of the PICTURES Staff

HURLING, THE NATIONAL SPORT OF IRELAND, is much maligned and little understood in this country. Americans often think of the game as legalized mayhem in which teams of hot-tempered Gaels, on the pretext of batting a ball toward a goal, gleefully club each other with shillelagh-like hockey sticks. Actually, hurling is a game that requires tremendous speed, skill and stamina and a high degree of finesse and team work. Although body contact is employed, the play is no rougher than soccer, and rarely is a player seriously injured.

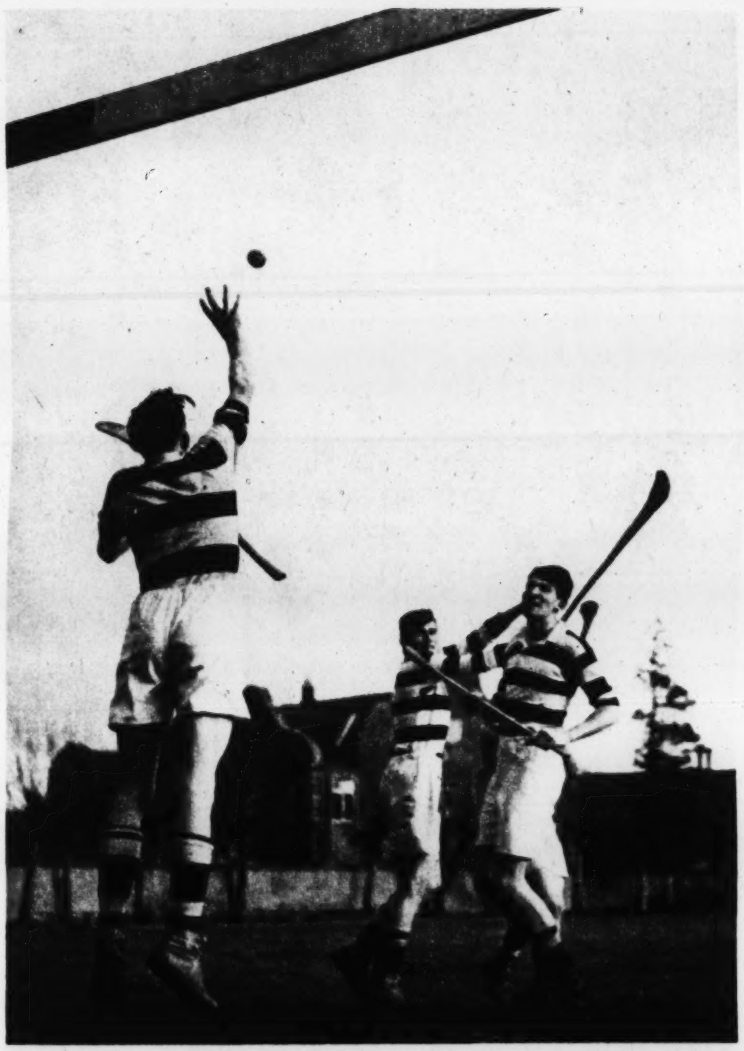
Fifteen players—six backs—six forwards, two midfields and one goal keeper—make up a team. They wear soccer shoes and uniforms, and each carries an ash stick, or hurley, which resembles a field hockey stick. The hurley is usually three feet long, and curves at one end into a broad blade. The hurley ball is about the size of a baseball but much lighter, and its leather cover has raised seams.

Hurling is played on a field larger than an American football gridiron, being 140 yards long and 80 yards wide. At each end are goals, similar to football goal posts. Goals are 16 feet high and 21 feet wide with a cross-bar eight feet above the ground. As in most games, the object is to outscore the opposing team. A goal, which counts three points, is scored by driving the hurley ball between the goal posts under the cross-bar; a single point is scored when the ball sails over the cross-bar. A game consists of 30-minute halves with a 15-minute intermission between; a total of 20 or 30 points may be scored in a well-played game.

Fast and continuous, the play might appear as helter-skelter action to the uninitiated spectator, but a good deal of science is called for in moving the ball up and down the field. Much of the time the ball is in the air as the teams maneuver offensively and defensively. Despite the name of the game, the ball is not hurled; it must be batted or, as is done infrequently, carried on the blade of the hurley, like a pea on a knife. The ball can be caught but cannot be picked up by hand or thrown.

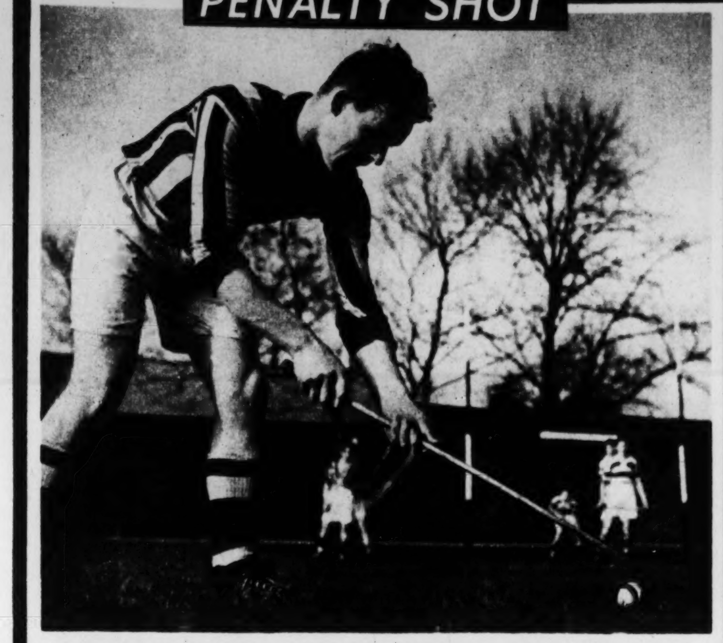
A strictly amateur sport, hurling has been played in Eire since pre-Christian days and is extremely popular both as a spectator and a participant sport. The all-Irish finals in Dublin between Eire's top amateur teams are witnessed by as many as 90,000 fans. In the United States the game is played extensively by young men of Irish extraction in Boston, New York, Detroit, Chicago and San Francisco. For a long time it was popular in St. Louis, but it died out here some 20 years ago.

Three Lions Photos

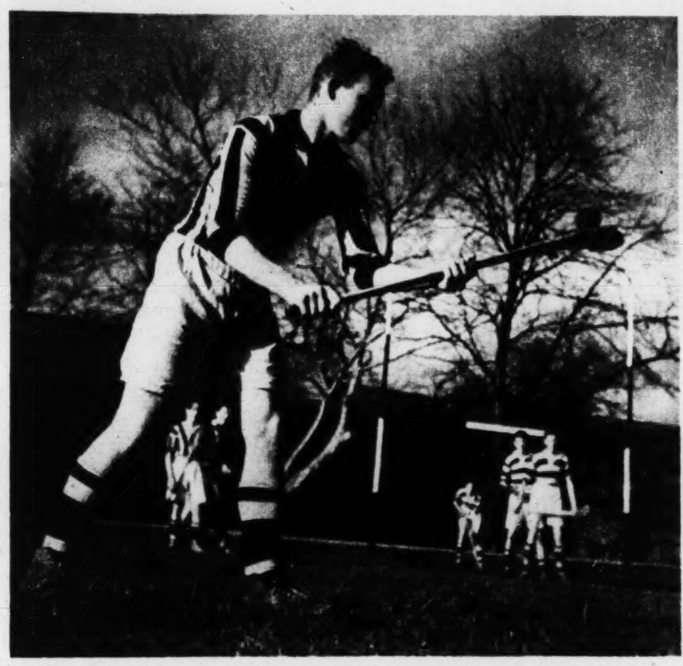


With ball sailing goalward over heads of defending teammates, goalie leaps to make "save," catching ball in upraised hand. As in ice hockey and soccer, he "clears" ball by passing it to teammate or driving it toward opposing goal. Good hurley players handle their sticks with amazing dexterity. Hurling resembles game of field hockey.

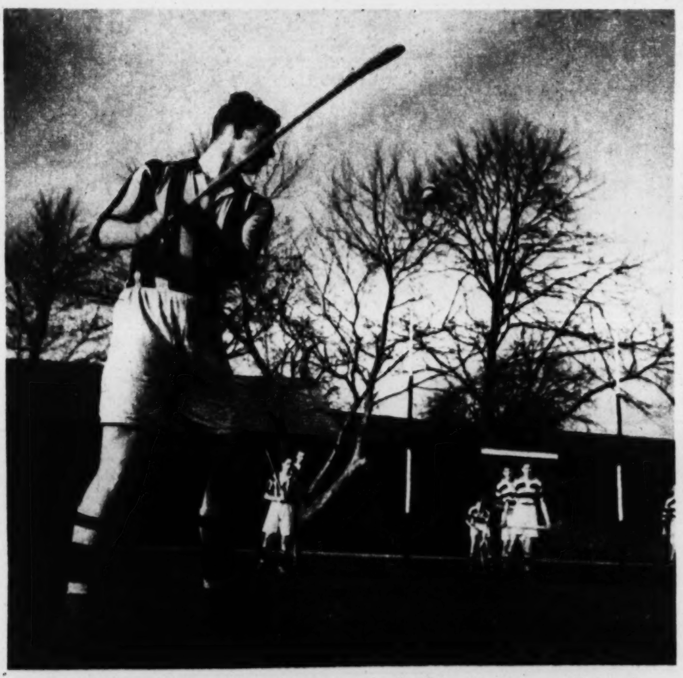
PENALTY SHOT



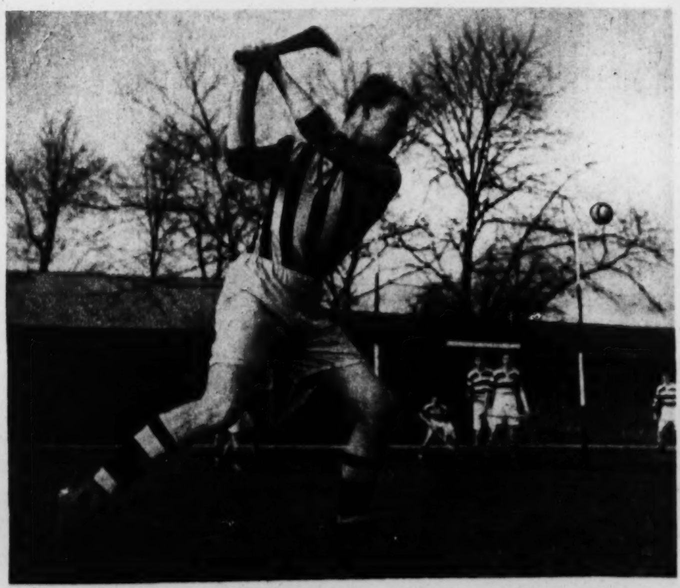
In hurling game between Irish college teams, a player prepares for a free shot at goal after penalty was called on opposing player. Shot, made from 21-yard stripe, is effort to drive ball with hurley stick between goal posts, preferably under cross-bar. Ball is laid on ground, picked up with hurley as part of execution of shot.



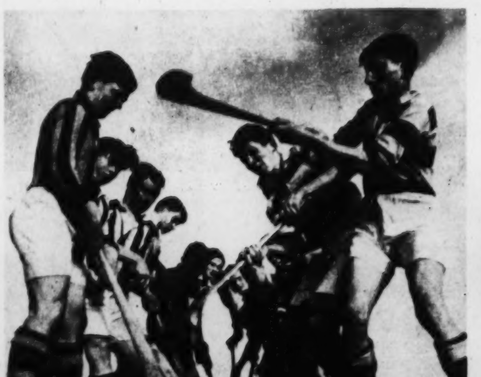
Ball is balanced momentarily on blade of hurley after being picked up from ground. Opposing players have arrayed themselves in front of goal to block the shot and prevent score, if possible. In hurling, the ball never can be picked up with hand; it may be caught but not held. It can be tossed in air, on ground or batted.



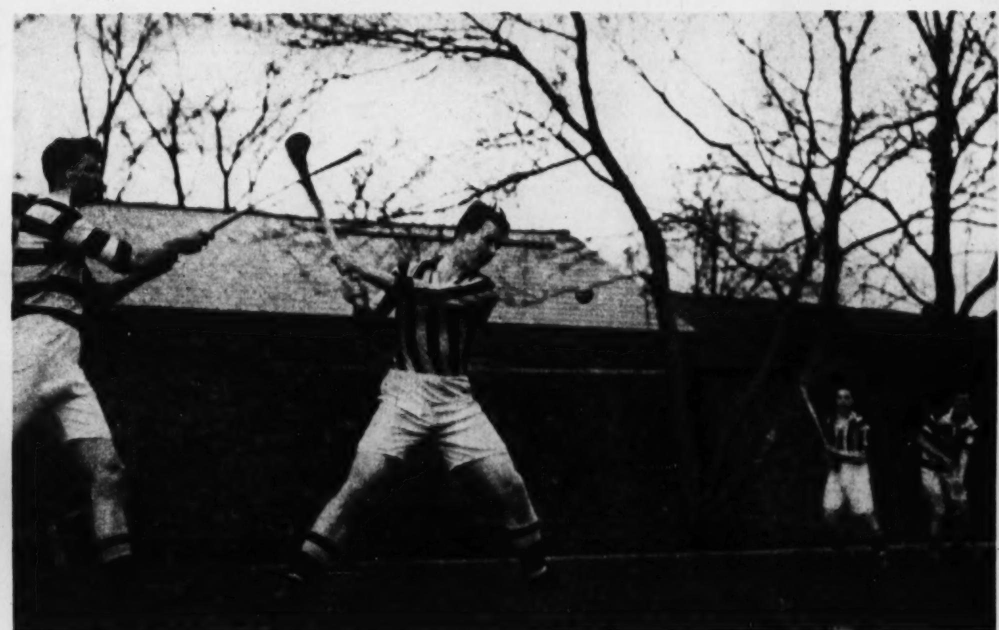
In third phase of free shot, player tosses ball in air from stick blade, draws back hurley preparatory to hitting the ball. The action is much like fungo hitting in baseball, except ball is tossed by adroit flick of the stick rather than by hand. Ball, which has cork center tightly wrapped with wool, is very lively.



At top of back-swing, player is about to take vicious whack at ball which appears suspended in the air. Defensive player who might stop ball with body would know he has been hit as the fast-traveling, leather-covered sphere stings painfully. By American baseball standards, hurling players use cross-hand grip.



For "throw in" that starts game, seven players from one team face seven from the other in opposing lines at midfield. Referee tosses ball between the two files and players try to bat it out and gain possession. Severe penalties, up to banishment from game for life, are imposed for deliberately striking another player with hurley.



In a finely executed and permissible tactic, player at left is using his hurley to hook opponent's stick and prevent shot. Maneuver is known as "blocking." Another type of blocking is body-checking, which also is legal. In hurling, player substitutions can be made only for injury. The better the participants, the less rough is the game.

Hottest-Selling Buick in History

No wonder you see so many '55 Buicks on the highways — they're rolling up bigger sales than ever before in history—topping the popularity that has already made Buick one of the "Big Three" of America's best sellers. Come try one—and price it—and you'll see why Buick sales are soaring.

The 4-Door Riviera

It's what America wanted
-and it's going great guns

You see pictured here an automobile long awaited and long expected by the nation's car buyers.

It is a Riviera—the "hardtop" that Buick pioneered for the entire industry six years ago.

But it is a Riviera with separate doors for the rear-seat passengers—and that's the combination now taking the country by storm.

It's easy to see why.

Folks wanted the sleek and racy "convertible look" styling of the hardtop—but they wanted it with the room, comfort and convenience of a true 4-door sedan. And here they have it all . . .

The full and open airiness of the Riviera . . .

A completely unobstructed view to both sides, with no center doorposts above the window line . . .

The extra-generous legroom, headroom and hiproom of a full-sized Buick Sedan . . .

Front doors and rear doors — and all four of them hinged at their front edges for greater safety, and to assure easy entrance and exit.

But not by a long shot is that all.

This new kind of automobile is coming off the production line in the two lowest-priced Buick Series—the budget-tagged SPECIAL and the supremely-powered CENTURY.

So you get the last word in automobiles with the sizzling might of a V8 engine of 188-hp or 236-hp. You get it with the spectacular performance and better gas mileage of the new Variable Pitch Dynaflow.* And you get it with the easy-to-take prices that have helped sweep Buick into the top circle of America's best sellers.

Why not take a firsthand look at the newest idea in new cars? With demand for the 4-Door Riviera pushing production capacity to the limit, the sooner you see it — and place your order — the sooner you can have one for your very own.

Dynaflow Drive is standard on Roadmaster, optional at extra cost on other Series*

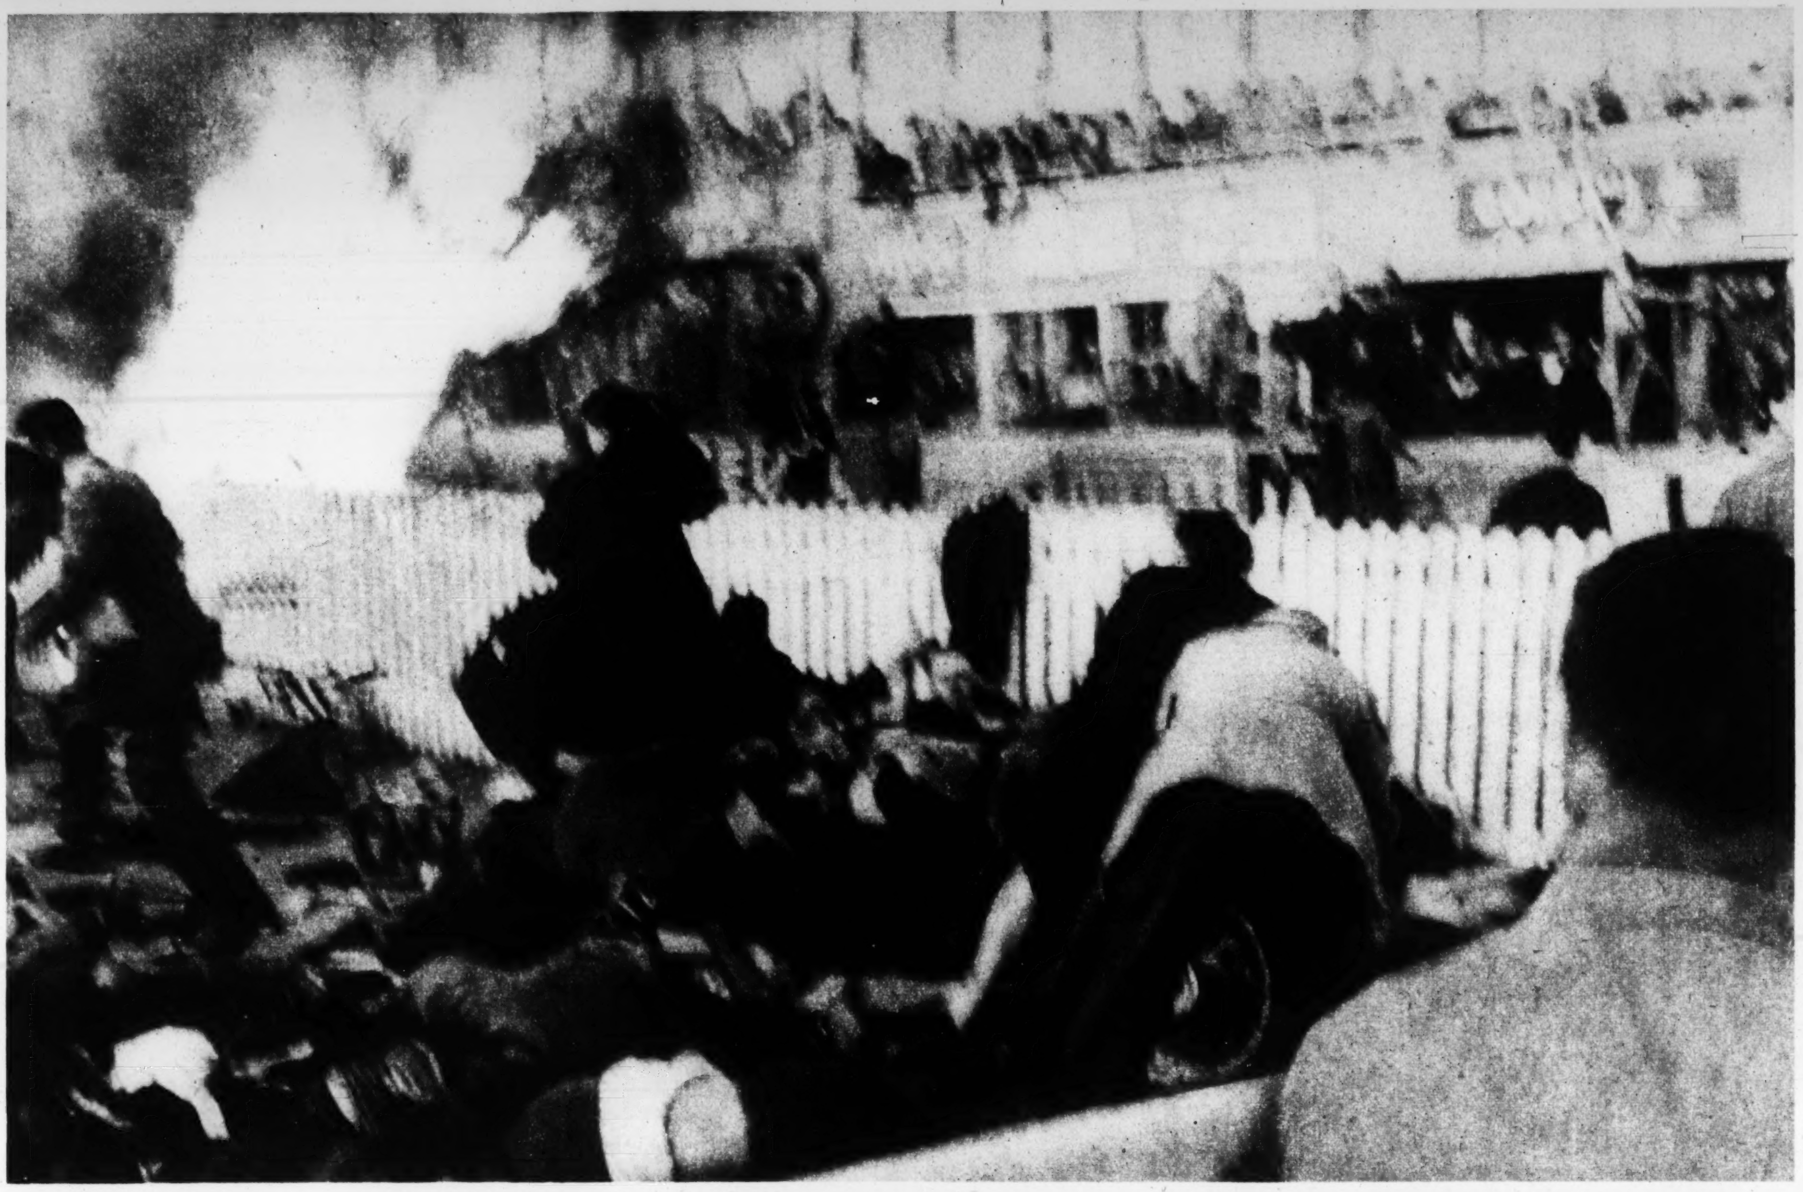
Cook Creamettes as directed on the package. Drain. Chill in cold water. Mix with four tablespoons of mayonnaise and two-thirds of a can of Spam that has been cubed. Chill. Serve on lettuce leaves and top with one tablespoon mayonnaise and the remaining Spam cut into thin strips. Serves four to six. SUGGESTION: Substitute your favorite salad dressing in place of mayonnaise.



Seconds after the accident, dead and injured spectators lie heaped on ground. Parts of the racing car that sailed over picket fence behind which the victims were standing are strewn about. Spectators not hit by flying debris try to aid fallen victims. A man at right lifts a racer wheel from a victim. In left background flames rise fiercely from the chassis of the ill-fated racer, a silver German-made Mercedes. The body of its French driver, Pierre Levegh, was thrown back on the track by the car's explosion. The Mercedes company, in deference to the tragedy, ordered its two others cars, one of which was in the lead, withdrawn from the race.

WORST RACING TRAGEDY

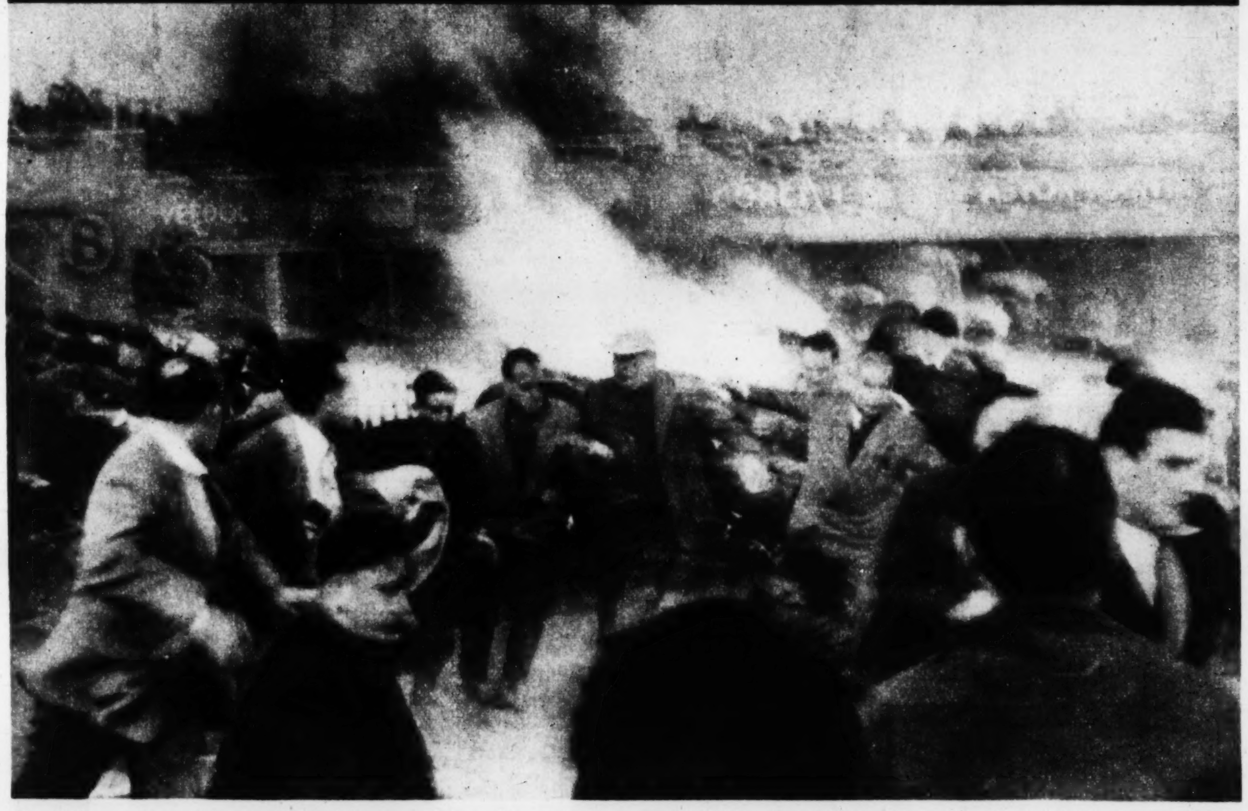
Car Crashes on French Track, Sprays Crowd With Blazing Parts—79 Killed

THE French Government last Monday temporarily suspended all automobile racing in that country following the worst tragedy in racing history. The suspension came two days after the accident at the Le Mans track that caused the deaths of 78 spectators and one driver. Seventy-four persons were injured. French officials said the suspension was ordered so a new racing safety code might be prepared. This code was expected to be ready for the next scheduled major race, the Grand Prix de Reims, on July 2.

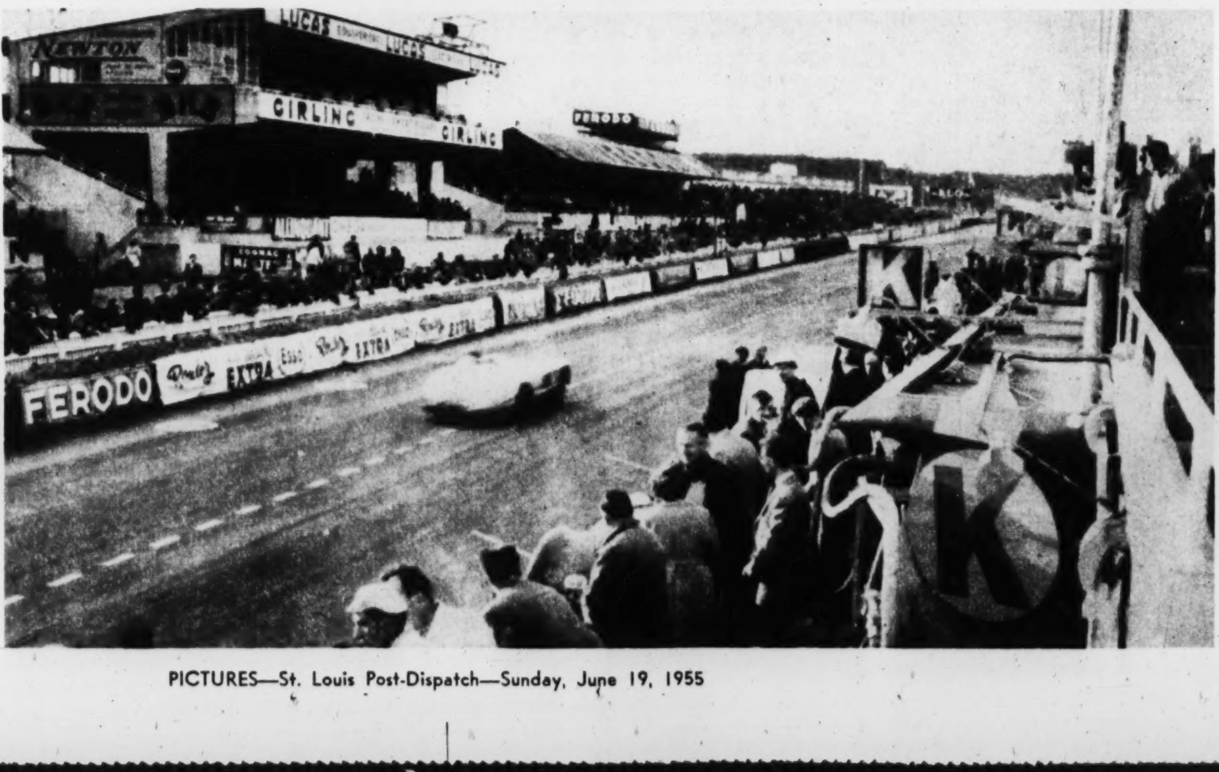
This worst of all racing accidents occurred during the annual Le Mans 24-hour race for sports cars. One of two cars that crashed after coming out of a turn took a flaming, smoking dive toward tightly jammed, helpless, screaming spectators. The car spun into an embankment, which held its magnesium body. But the car's heavier parts, including its motor and wheels, ripped through the crowd.

Mingled with the screams and moans of the dying and injured was the roar of engines as the race continued. Ambulance workers, policemen, doctors, nurses and first aid personnel spent two hours removing the dead and injured from the trackside. The injured were taken to nearby hospitals in ambulances and on farm trucks.

Associated Press Photos except as noted



Spectators who were spared flee in terror from the searing flames of the burning magnesium chassis. In background, across track, other spectators stand on top of racers' pit stalls. The Mercedes, after its splintering 125-mile-an-hour crash with a British Austin-Healy, had brushed against pit wall on far side of track, bounced off, headed at right angle across the track. The Austin-Healy smashed along wall, injuring several spectators and its British driver. All but two of the dead were French. A mass funeral service was held last Tuesday at Le Mans' 600-year-old Gothic cathedral.



A sports car (left) flashes down half-mile straightaway in front of stands during trials before the race. The accident occurred just past a turn leading into straightaway, at a point where many of the 250,000 spectators were standing 20 to 30 deep behind a picket fence. The endurance race at Le Mans (115 miles southwest of Paris) is run over a closed asphalt highway circuit eight miles, 675 yards in length. The cars are piloted by pairs of drivers who relieve one another. An American was Levegh's relief driver. The race was won by two British drivers in a Jaguar that broke the track record with an average speed of 107.067 miles per hour. Jaguars also won second and third places.

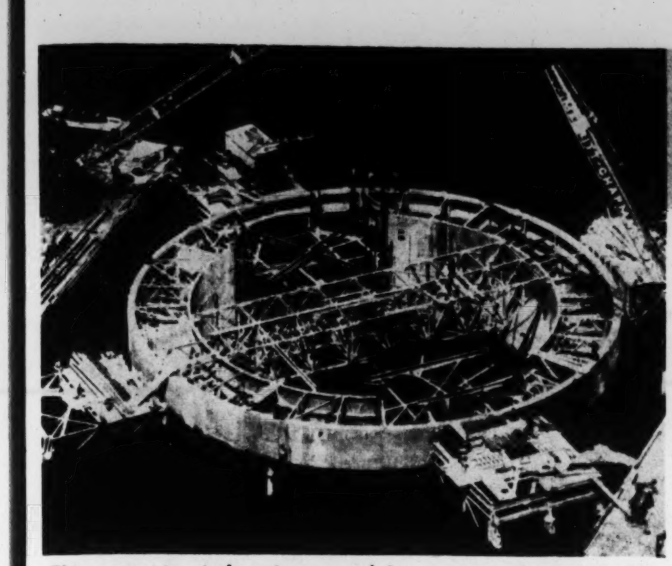
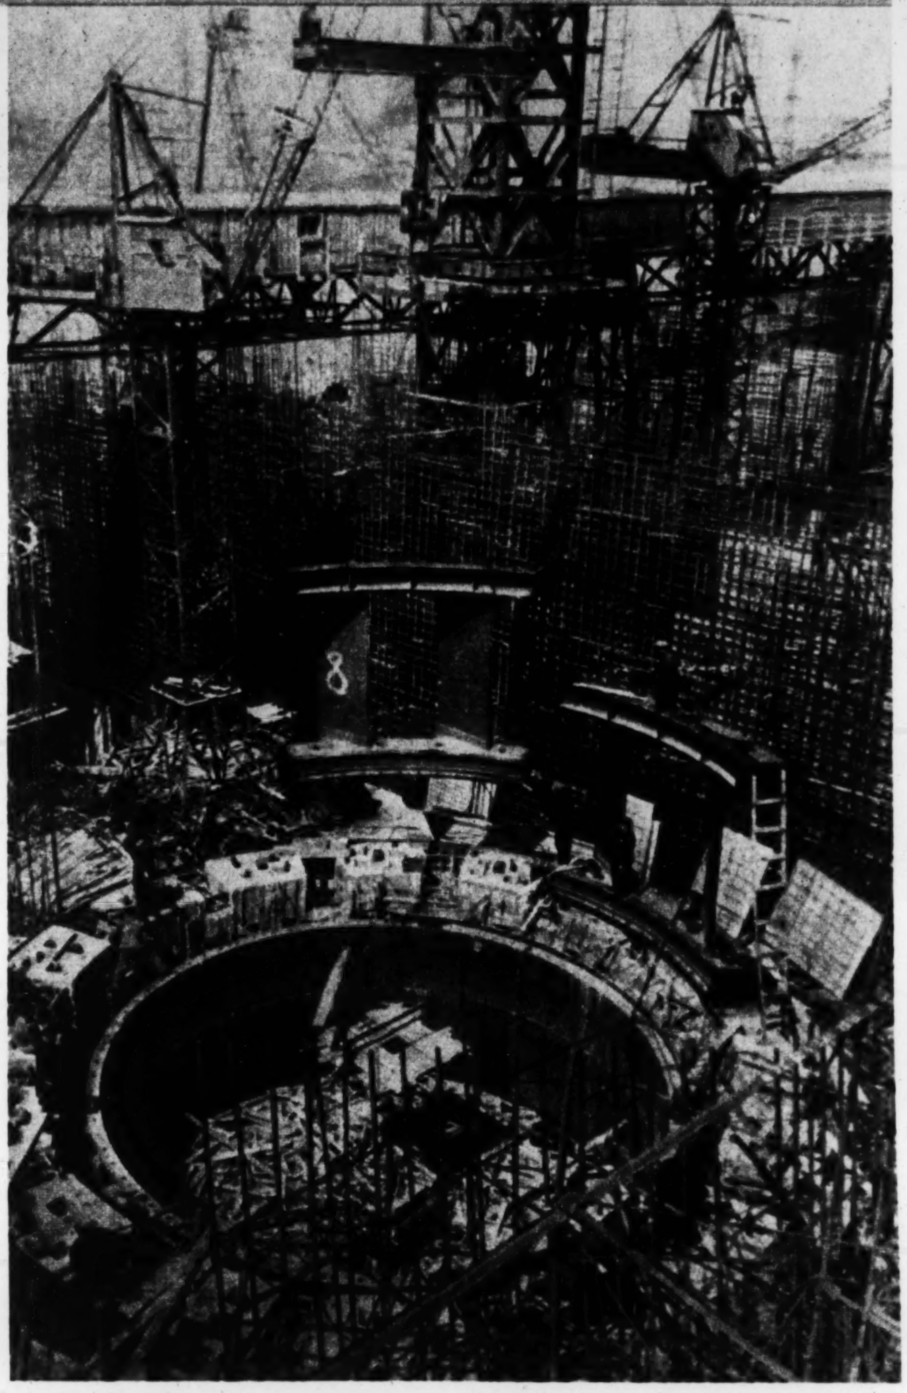
Patterns in Construction

Huge Projects Shaping Up in Various Parts of World

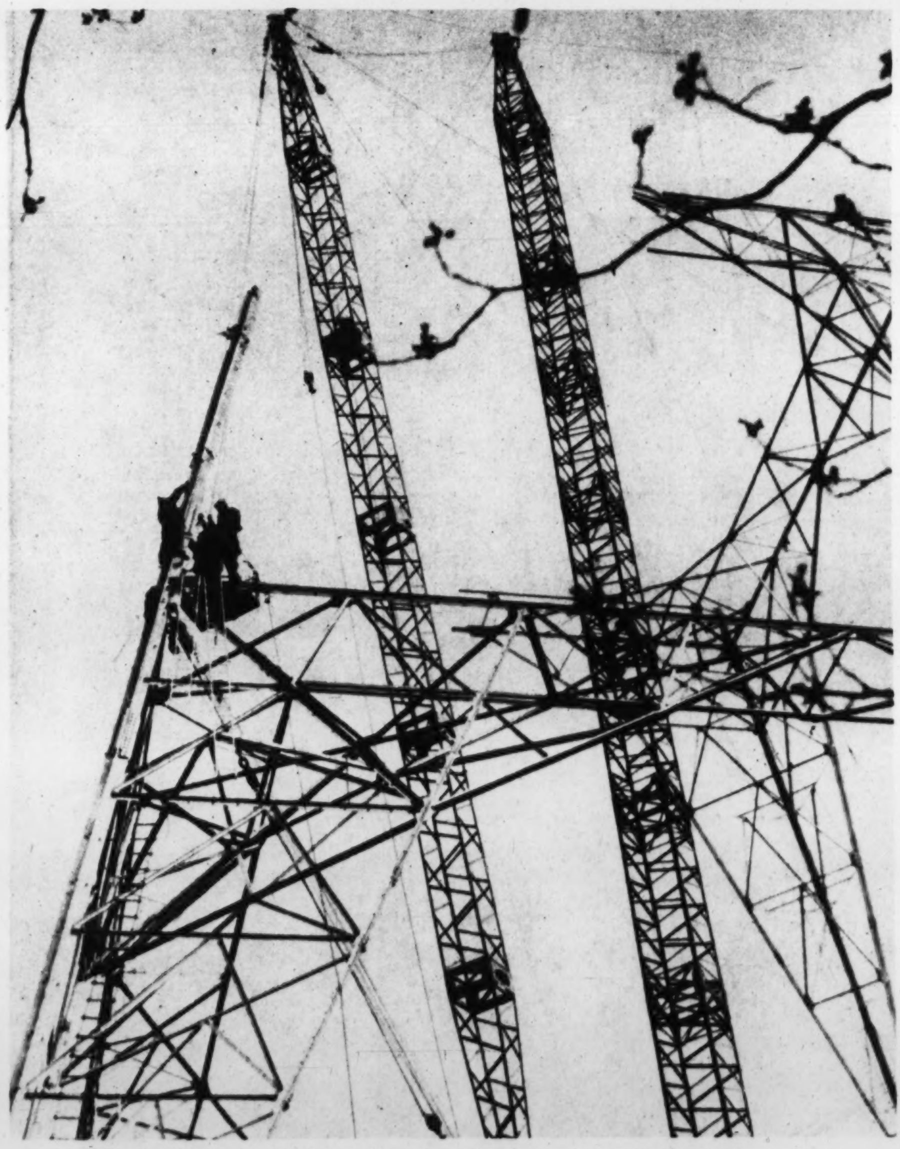


This concrete circle criss-crossed by a maze of steel is the foundation for one of the towers of a suspension bridge, now being constructed across Mackinac Straits. The foundation, photographed from the air near St. Ignace, Michigan, is 116 feet in diameter. It is footed on rock more than 200 feet below the surface of the water. The 552-foot-high, five-mile-long bridge, described as the longest in the world, will link Michigan's upper and lower peninsulas. To cost upward of $100,000,000, it is scheduled for completion by November, 1957.



Against a backdrop of rising reinforcement rods, workmen install circular casing for turbine wheels at the Kuibyshev hydroelectric plant near Stavropol, Russia. The plant, one of four of its kind under construction on the Volga River and its Kama tributary, is scheduled to be completed next year. Russian announcements assert it will be the largest electric power plant in the world. It is expected to have a rated capacity of 1,700,000 kilowatt hours, and a potential annual output of 10 billion kilowatt hours.

Associated Press Photo



Steel beams are silhouetted against sky as work proceeds on the towers of the new television station which the British Broadcasting Corporation is building for the London area. When completed the antenna mast, standing 640 feet high on four giant legs, will resemble Paris' Eiffel Tower (height 984.25 feet). The tower is being built near Sydenham on the site of one of London's once historic landmarks, the Crystal Palace. That show place and amusement center, dating back to the days of Queen Victoria, was badly damaged by fire in 1936, was demolished in 1940.

Angel Pie, a Luxurious Summer Dessert

1. Mrs. Behrens makes meringue shell by adding sugar to egg whites which have been beaten with cream of tartar until stiff. It is baked in pie pan.

2. Filling made of egg yolks, salt, sugar, juice and grated lemon rind is cooked over hot water until thick, then cooled.

By MERNA LAZIER

ANGEL PIE IS A SNOWY-WHITE, tender meringue filled with a light, fluffy lemon chiffon and topped with floating clouds of whipped cream. Mrs. Carl V. Behrens of St. Louis has frequent requests from her friends for this attractive and flavorful dessert. For all its elegance it is quite easy to make. It will keep well under refrigeration.

Mrs. Behrens prepares the meringue shell of egg whites, sugar and cream of tartar. Whites are beaten with cream of tartar until stiff enough that an inserted knife leaves a cut mark. Sugar is then added gradually, and beaten until thoroughly blended. Mixture is spread over bottom and sides of a greased pie pan. It is baked in a slow oven, 275 degrees, for about one hour or until dry. Filling, made by beating egg yolks slightly and then adding other ingredients, is cooked until thick. When it is cool, half the whipped cream is folded in and the mixture is spooned into the meringue shell. Remaining cream is put on last and pie is chilled until ready to serve. The pie will serve six to eight persons.

INGREDIENTS: For the meringue shell—four egg whites, one-fourth teaspoon cream of tartar and one cup sugar. For the filling—four egg yolks, one-half cup sugar, three tablespoons lemon juice, one tablespoon grated lemon rind, one-eighth teaspoon salt. One pint whipping cream for filling and topping.

THE FIRST TRAIL WEST

Film "The Far Horizons" Is Based on Lewis and Clark Expedition

1. The American Congress has appropriated $2500 for an expedition to search out a land route to the Pacific and to gather information about the Indians and the country of the Far West. President Thomas Jefferson selects his private secretary, Captain Meriwether Lewis (Fred MacMurray, left), to head the expedition. Lewis cuts short a visit at the home of Julia Hancock (Barbara Hale), to whom he was about to propose. His friend Lieutenant William Clark (Charlton Heston) stays behind. Clark and Julia fall in love and become engaged.

2. Lewis selects Clark as his associate in command, and Clark is made a captain. On May 14, 1804, the Lewis and Clark expedition sets out from Illinois, where it had wintered, across the Mississippi River from St. Louis. Moving up the Missouri River, the explorers reach a camp of the Minnetaree Indians, who have enslaved Sacajawea (Donna Reed), a Shoshone girl. Sacajawea offers to lead the captains westward, but Clark rejects the offer. The expedition moves on, leaving Sacajawea behind. The girl learns of a plan to ambush the party.

3. Sacajawea escapes from her captors, overtakes the expedition, warns Lewis and Clark. The small band of explorers repels the attack and Sacajawea becomes the expedition guide through the rugged, unknown West. At the great falls of the Missouri River, the keelboat in which the party is traveling has to be portaged laboriously around the obstacle. During the overland struggle, Clark becomes ill.

4. When Clark collapses, Sacajawea nurses him to health, and falls in love with the captain. Clark, in turn, becomes infatuated with the Indian maid. Charbonneau (Alan Reed), a French guide with the party, is jealous of Clark, and claims a Minnetaree chief had given Sacajawea to him. He attacks Clark, and the desperate fight which follows results in Charbonneau being sent back east.

5. The expedition reaches the camp of the Shoshones. They are aided by Sacajawea's brother, but Wild Eagle, a Shoshone brave, insists Sacajawea had been promised to him before her capture by the Minnetarees, and swears revenge when his claim to the Indian girl is rejected. Wild Eagle causes the expedition to be ambushed, with its canoes being snagged by a hidden net stretched across a narrow river. Lewis dives from his canoe and slashes the net, enabling the explorers to escape.

6. Lewis and Clark push onward through the wilderness and across the Rockies to the Pacific. They then retrace their route to St. Louis, arriving on September 23, 1806, and with Sacajawea along go back to Washington. The Indian girl, after meeting Julia, realizes she would be out of place in the white man's world. She returns west to her own people. Lewis and Clark, who had quarreled over Clark's apparent disloyalty to Julia, are reconciled, and Clark marries Julia. (The movie story deviates considerably from history.)

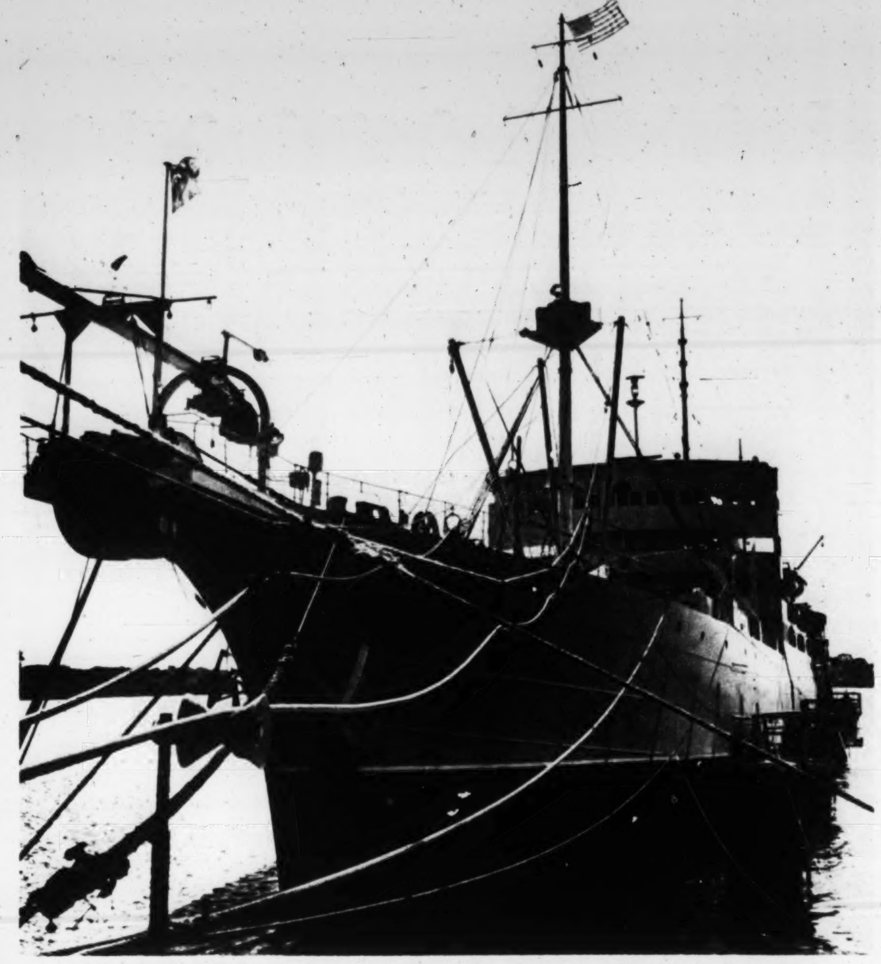
First Trans-Atlantic Telephone Cable

Laying of Lines by Ship Will Take Two Summers—Cost of Project Is to Be $40,000,000



Flying both British and American flags, the Monarch takes on load of deep-sea telephone cable at Newington, New Hampshire, where undersea line was made. The 480-foot, 8000-ton vessel can carry 1800 nautical miles of the heavy cable coiled in big steel tanks in its hold (drawing below). Cable weighs three tons per mile. Map, not to scale, shows route of the trans-Atlantic telephone system. Components include 575-mile radio-relay route, 300-mile shallow water submarine cable link, and the long twin-span to Oban. Inset shows varying depths of ocean floor.

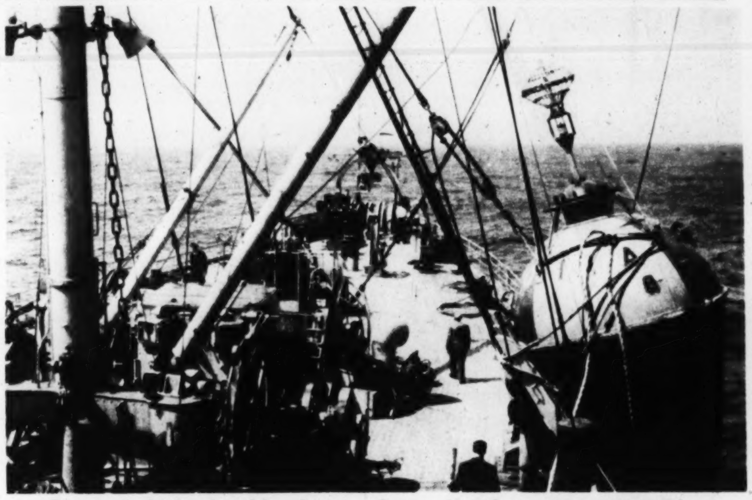
LAYING OF THE WORLD'S first transoceanic telephone cable, which will span the Atlantic between Newfoundland and Scotland, is scheduled to begin next Wednesday. The $40,000,000 project, to be completed late next year, is a joint undertaking of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company and British and Canadian agencies. The job will be done by the British cable-laying ship, H.M.S. Monarch.

Two submarine cables will make up the inter-continental transmission system, each carrying voices in one direction. The circuit will carry 36 conversations simultaneously, almost tripling the capacity of the trans-Atlantic radiotelephone, which has been operating since 1927. A number of telegraph cables span the Atlantic (first successful one went into service in 1866) but they are incapable of voice transmission.

The twin submarine cables—one will be laid this summer, the other next—will extend 1950 nautical miles, or 2250 land miles, between Clarenville, Newfoundland, and Oban, Scotland. They will lay some 20 miles apart on the ocean floor at depths down to three miles. A single cable will extend the circuit to Nova Scotia and a radio-relay from there to Portland, Maine.



Forward deck of cable ship is cluttered with paying-out mechanism. Bow sheaves are for laying shore-end segments of cable, stern sheaves for deep-water operations. At right is diving bell. Voice transmission over cable is made possible by unique repeaters that amplify weakened voice currents; each cable will contain 52 of the tiny amplifiers spaced 40 miles apart.

BLONDIE
by CHIC YOUNG
HERBERT REFUSES TO TAKE ME TO OUR BIG COUNTRY CLUB DANCE TONIGHT
THE BRUTE!
SHAME ON YOU, HERB WOODLEY, FOR BEING SO SELFISH!
I HATE DANCES, AND, ANYWAY, I CAN'T DO ALL THIS SILLY JIGGING THEY DO THESE DAYS
BUT, HERB, YOU SHOULDN'T JUST THINK OF YOURSELF-- YOUR WIFE LOVES TO DANCE
OH, GO HOME AND MIND YOUR OWN BUSINESS
DAGWOOD'S ARGUMENTS ARE SO CONVINCING --- I'LL TAKE THEM DOWN ON MY TAPE-RECORDER FOR FUTURE USE
THINK OF YOUR DEAR LITTLE WIFE--SHE WORKS AND SLAVES ALL DAY FOR YOU-- IT'S YOUR DUTY TO TAKE HER DANCING ONCE IN A WHILE AW, DRY UP
WIVES LOVE TO DRESS UP PRETTY AND GET OUT OF THE KITCHEN-- SHE DOESN'T ASK MUCH OF YOU
TAKE A POWDER
IT'S NO USE, TOOTSIE--HE'S AS STUBBORN AS A MULE
OH, DEAR, WE POOR WIVES WERE MADE TO SUFFER
AS LONG AS HERB WON'T TAKE ME, BLONDIE, YOU AND DAGWOOD MIGHT AS WELL USE THE TICKETS TO THE DANCE
OH, NO-NO
I'LL PLUG IN THE TAPE-RECORDER AND PLAY BACK HIS OWN WORDS
OH-NO-PLEASE, PLEASE
THINK OF YOUR DEAR LITTLE WIFE-- SHE WORKS AND SLAVES ALL DAY FOR YOU-- IT'S YOUR DUTY TO TAKE HER DANCING ONCE IN A WHILE
WIVES LOVE TO DRESS UP PRETTY AND GET OUT OF THE KITCHEN-- SHE DOESN'T ASK MUCH OF YOU
I SURRENDER-- I'LL TAKE YOU
AW, STOP LAUGHING-- YOU SOUND LIKE A HYENA

YOU SURE DID! SOMEBODY CUT YOUR LINES DURING THE NIGHT! THE SOMEBODY WHO'S OUT THERE FISHING RIGHT NOW! HE LEFT A FOOTPRINT IN THE SAND!
TELFORD! OOOH, THAT CREEPY STUFFED EEL!
LET ME BUZZ HIM WITH THE WATER SKIIS!
I'VE GOT A BETTER IDEA, JAN! HE DOESN'T KNOW THERE ARE TWINS ON BOARD!
WHILE YOU'RE SWIMMING OUT TO HIM I'LL GO AROUND BACK, DIVE IN, AND SWIM OUT UNDER WATER!
HI! HOW'S THE FISHING?
PRETTY BAD 'TIL YOU COME ALONG! HAW-HAW!
CAN I CLIMB IN?
SURE!... HUH!??
H-HOW'D YOU G-GET OVER THERE??
WHICH SIDE SHALL I GET IN ON?... THIS ONE?
I'M S-SEEIN' THINGS!
OR THIS ONE?
HE DIDN'T SAY, SISTER, DEAR, SO LET'S BOTH GET IN ON THIS SIDE!
LET'S GO!
THERE'S TWO OF 'EM!
HELP!
NICE GOIN', GIRLS!... SEE YOU AGAIN SOME TIME!
GOSH, YOU LOOK FROZEN, TWINS! GO BUNDLE UP IN MY OLD FISHING CLOTHES WHILE I GET THE TRUCK TO TAKE YOU HOME!
WOW! IN THAT OUTFIT YOU COULD WALK RIGHT INTO SCHOOL TOMORROW! IT'S "SLOP DAY"!

AMERICAN AIRLINES
AMERICAN AIRLINES

BIG WEEKLY CONTESTS! ENTER EACH AND EVERY WEEK!

52 GRAND PRIZES FOR WINNING TEAMS* OF CHILD and PARENT

*(104 TRIPS, IN ALL)

52 winning teams will fly via AMERICAN AIRLINES LUXURIOUS FLAGSHIPS for thrilling, all-expense DUDE RANCH VACATIONS IN Tucson ARIZONA

(Trips scheduled for arrival in Tucson August 21st)

BE THE GUEST OF THE FAMOUS Tucson SUNSHINE CLIMATE CLUB

Fabulous days and nights . . . the vacation of a lifetime! See the wild west first hand . . . live life on the range just like your favorite cowboy hero. Thrills! Action! Adventure! Wonderful meals, planned activities, and everything free!

Here's all you do...

1. Cut out official entry blank below along dotted lines.
2. Carefully cut out the big "Sicle" ball from the fronts of any three "POPSICLE," "FUDGSICLE," "CREAMSICLE," "DREAMSICLE," or "50-50 POPSICLE" bags.
3. Paste the three "Sicle" balls on the entry blank.
4. Match the ranch brands against the names of the ranches shown on the entry blank by writing the number of the ranch name in the corner of the box where you think it belongs. For example — we have put a 3 in the first box because Circle Z (number 3 on the list) fits that brand.
5. In the empty space shown on the entry blank, draw the brand you would use if you owned a ranch.
6. Print the name of your imaginary ranch on the dotted line indicated on the blank. (Mom and Dad can help!)
7. Write your name, age and address in the spaces indicated on the blank. Your entry will be judged against other entries in your age group.
8. Paste the completed entry on a 2-cent post-card and mail to "POPSICLE," P.O. Box 123, New York 46, N. Y. Send in as many entries as you like. Entries must be postmarked no later than midnight, August 6th.
9. Entries to be judged by an independent judging organization on the basis of correctness and neatness. In case of ties, originality of "imaginary ranch brand" will be deciding factor. Decision of judges will be final.

Don't delay! Send in your entry right away. And remember, you can enter as often as you like. Weekly contests begin Sunday morning and end the following Saturday at midnight. All entries will be judged in the weekly contests by postmark date.

HURRY! ENTER YOUR FIRST CONTEST NOW!

Last Contest Closes SATURDAY, AUG. 6th, 1955

Prince Valiant IN THE DAYS OF KING ARTHUR

BY HAROLD R. FOSTER

Our Story: PRINCE VALIANT'S WARRIORS HAVE BEEN TOO LONG IN IDLENESS AND ARE BEGINNING TO DISTURB THE PEACE, TO PUT IT MILDLY. AND THE GREAT PRINCE OF KIEV WONDERS IF THEY HAVE NOT GIVEN HIM JUST CAUSE TO SEIZE THEIR TREASURE-LADEN LONGSHIPS.

WHILE ALETA, THE CAUSE OF ALL THE DELAY, SPENDS HER DAYS HAPPILY WITH JEWELERS AND DRESSMAKERS.

AT LAST VAL BECOMES ANGRY. ALETA PATS HIS CHEEK SOOTHINGLY: "DON'T BE PEEVISH, DEAR; I CAN ARRANGE THESE THINGS SO SIMPLY!"

"OUR WARRIORS GROW RESTLESS...THEY HAVE HAD NO EXERCISE SINCE THEY BROKE THE PATZINAK NATION AND LAID WASTE TO THE CITY OF THE DRAGDA KHAN. SHOULD YOUR POLICE INCITE THEM THEY WILL CAUSE MORE DAMAGE TO YOUR BEAUTIFUL CITY THAN ALL THE TREASURE IN OUR SHIPS CAN PAY FOR!"

"SO YOU PROVIDE A BARGE FOR MY DRESSMAKERS AND WE WILL GO ON OUR WAY!"

THE RULER OF KIEV IS THOUGHTFUL; SHOULD HE LET ALL THAT TREASURE ESCAPE? OR IS SHE BLUFFING?

HE WILL NEVER KNOW. TWO FIGHTING SHIPS DEPART, FOLLOWED BY A BARGE OF GIGGLING DRESSMAKERS.... WHAT STRANGE PEOPLE THESE NORTHMEN ARE!

6-19-55

SIR GAWAIN RIDES AWAY WITH HIS TROOP. IT IS REPORTED THAT THE TREASURER'S WIFE WEPT BITTERLY, BUT THAT HE WAS CHEERFUL FOR DAYS, A STRANGE THING AMONG TREASURERS!

VAL IS ASKING HIMSELF A QUESTION: HOW IS IT THAT A WIFE CAN BE OBEDIENT, DUTIFUL, GENTLE, AND YET ALWAYS MANAGE TO GET HER OWN WAY? HE FINDS NO ANSWER.

NEXT WEEK:- The Marshes.

DICK'S Adventures

by NEIL O'KEEFFE and MAX TRELL

A HEAVY SENSE OF DOOM HANGS OVER THE MONTANA BADLANDS! SUDDENLY DICK PULLS HIS MOUNT TO A DEAD STOP! FROM FAR OFF IN THE VALLEY OF THE LITTLE BIG HORN COMES THE EERIE WAIL OF A PRAIRIE WOLF!

TO GENERAL CUSTER, MAJOR RENO AND CAPTAIN BENTEEN, DICK REPORTS: "THAT WOLF CALL WAS ONE OF CRAZY HORSE'S SCOUTS. WE MUST BE GETTING NEAR THEIR VILLAGE."

CUSTER IS ABOUT TO COMMIT A FATAL ERROR BY DIVIDING HIS SMALL FORCE INTO THREE STILL SMALLER UNITS. DICK TRIES TO WARN HIM ....BUT THE WORDS STICK IN HIS THROAT!

CUSTER DIRECTS MAJOR RENO TO COMB THE SIDE CANYONS WHILE HE AND CAPTAIN BENTEEN, HALVING THEIR TROOPS, ADVANCE ALONG OPPOSITE SIDES OF SUNDANCE CREEK. DICK ACTS AS AN OUTRIDING SCOUT.

BERATING HIMSELF FOR LACKING THE COURAGE TO SPEAK OUT EVEN TO A GENERAL, DICK AGAIN RIDES ON AHEAD. ONCE MORE COMES THE WAILING WOLF CALL....

CAUTIOUSLY ROUNDING A BEND OF THE STREAM, DICK COMES ON A DESERTED INDIAN CAMPSITE. THE ASHES OF THE CAMPFIRES ARE STILL SMOLDERING. AND THERE, WEIRDLY ALONE, STANDS A SINGLE TEPEE!

AND BEFORE CUSTER AND HIS TROOP REACH THE CAMPSITE, DICK INCHES WARILY UP TO THE TEPEE AND PULLS ASIDE THE FLAP! INSIDE, A FEARSOME GRIMACE ON HIS FACE, SITS A LONE WARRIOR, STILL AND SILENT AS DEATH!

NEXT WEEK: RIDE THE WHIRLWIND

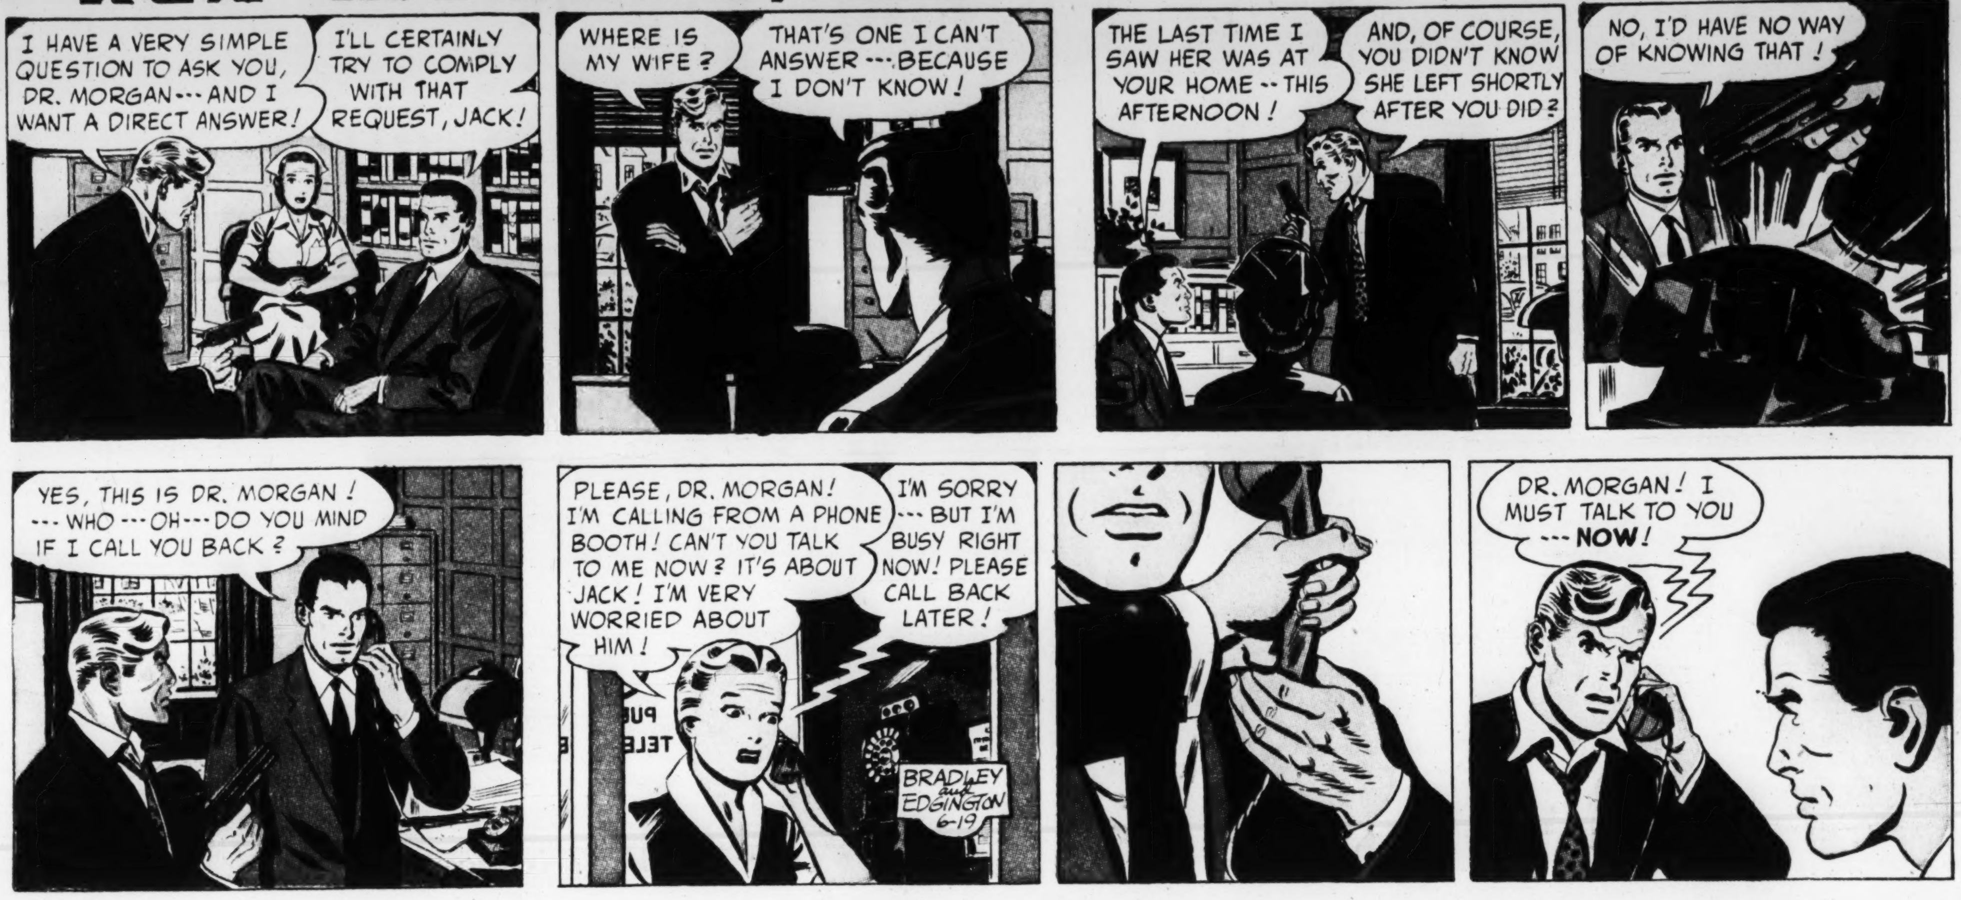
REX MORGAN, M.D.

By Dal Curtis



I HAVE A VERY SIMPLE QUESTION TO ASK YOU, DR. MORGAN--- AND I WANT A DIRECT ANSWER!
I'LL CERTAINLY TRY TO COMPLY WITH THAT REQUEST, JACK!
WHERE IS MY WIFE?
THAT'S ONE I CAN'T ANSWER --- BECAUSE I DON'T KNOW!
THE LAST TIME I SAW HER WAS AT YOUR HOME -- THIS AFTERNOON!
AND, OF COURSE, YOU DIDN'T KNOW SHE LEFT SHORTLY AFTER YOU DID?
NO, I'D HAVE NO WAY OF KNOWING THAT!
YES, THIS IS DR. MORGAN! --- WHO --- OH --- DO YOU MIND IF I CALL YOU BACK?
PLEASE, DR. MORGAN! I'M CALLING FROM A PHONE BOOTH! CAN'T YOU TALK TO ME NOW? IT'S ABOUT JACK! I'M VERY WORRIED ABOUT HIM!
I'M SORRY --- BUT I'M BUSY RIGHT NOW! PLEASE CALL BACK LATER!

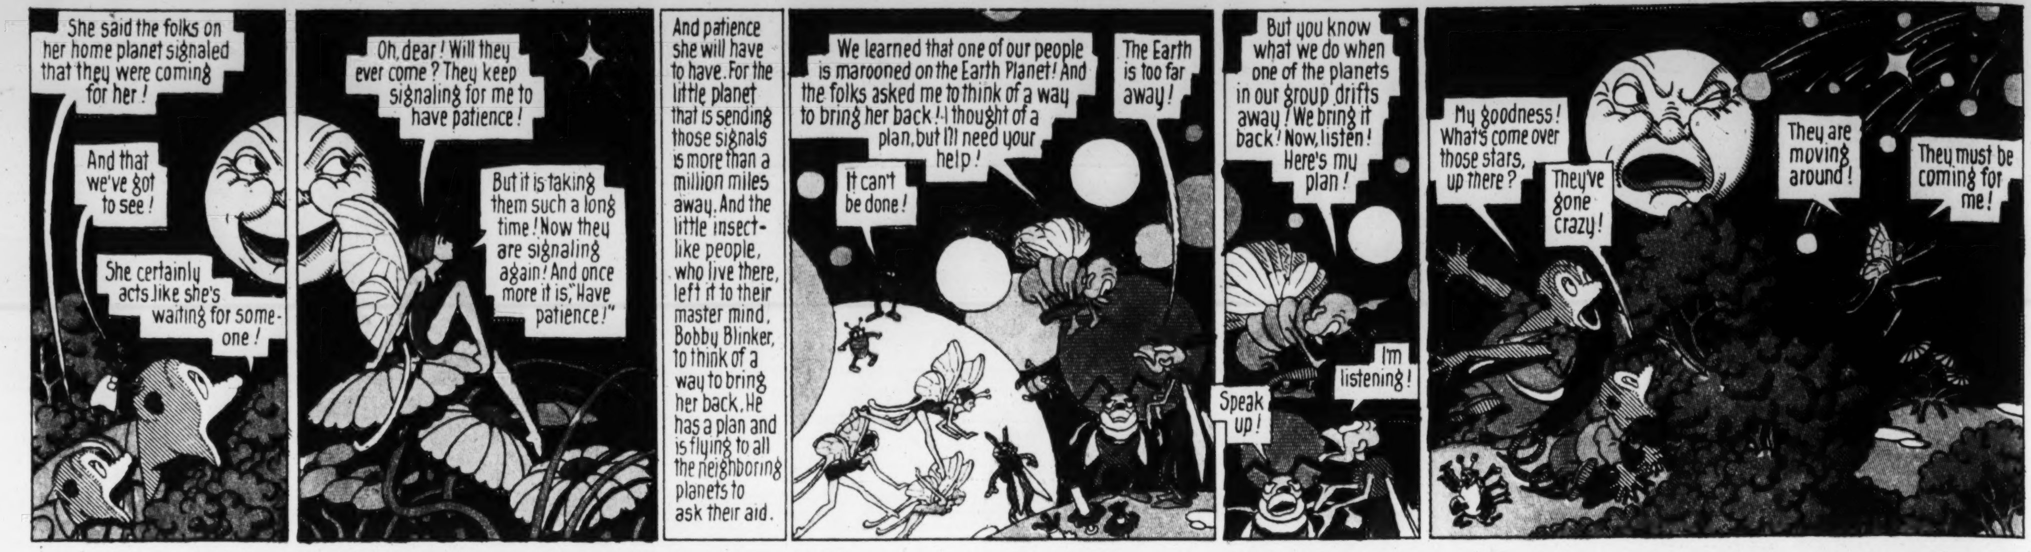
HICKORY HOLLOW FOLKS

By WALTER QUERMANN



She said the folks on her home planet signaled that they were coming for her!
And that we've got to see!
She certainly acts like she's waiting for someone!
Oh, dear! Will they ever come? They keep signaling for me to have patience!
But it is taking them such a long time! Now they are signaling again! And once more it is, "Have patience!"
And patience she will have to have. For the little planet that is sending those signals is more than a million miles away. And the little insect-like people, who live there, left it to their master mind, Bobby Blinker, to think of a way to bring her back. He has a plan and is flying to all the neighboring planets to ask their aid.
We learned that one of our people is marooned on the Earth Planet! And the folks asked me to think of a way to bring her back! I thought of a plan, but I'll need your help!
It can't be done!
The Earth is too far away!
But you know what we do when one of the planets in our group drifts away! We bring it back! Now, listen! Here's my plan!
Speak up!
I'm listening!
My goodness! What's come over those stars, up there?
They've gone crazy!
They are moving around!
They must be coming for me!

MERCY SAKES! DO YOU KEEP ALL THAT MONEY IN OLD SHOE BOXES, UNCLE LUCKY?
BUT YOU SAID THEY CONTAINED ONLY ODDS AND ENDS.
WELL, I PLUMB FORGOT, NEPHEW.
THERE MUST BE MILLIONS HERE!
IT'S NOT SAFE CARRYING ALL THAT MONEY AROUND, UNCLE LUCKY.
I KNOW, BUT WHEN I BURY IT, I FORGET WHERE I BURIED IT.
THEN PUT IT IN A BANK.
BUT I ALWAYS FORGET WHICH BANK I'VE PUT IT IN.
IT'S FOR YOUR OWN GOOD, UNCLE LUCKY. WE STRONGLY ADVISE YOU TO PUT YOUR MONEY IN A BANK.
WELL, I DUNNO. I SEEM TO REMEMBER THAT YOUR ADVICE ALWAYS COST ME MONEY.
BUT EVERYBODY KNOWS A BANK IS SAFER THAN A SHOE BOX.
MAYBE SO, BUT YOU'RE SUCH A DANGED HOODOO I FEAR THE WORST.
THAT'S RIDICULOUS! JUST SIT DOWN IN THIS CHAIR, UNCLE LUCKY, AND LET'S TALK IT OVER.
THIS CHAIR'LL DO.
NO, NO! TAKE THE ROCKER, UNCLE LUCKY. IT'S MUCH MORE COMFORTABLE.
WELL, OKAY, IF YOU INSIST.

Hints to help you win!

Make believe you have just found two cute little dogs (a boy dog and a girl dog) just like the Dash-Hounds. Ask yourself what you would call dogs that look like the Dash-Hound Twins. Perhaps names like "Mickey and Minnie" or any of many other better names you can easily think up. Everyone who sends in names has a chance to win. You need not own a dog to enter this contest. Ask your dog-owning neighbors for their Dash labels. Enter this contest today! Enter often! The more names you send in—the greater your opportunity to win!

READ THESE SIMPLE RULES:

1. Print your names for the "Dash-Hounds" on entry blanks or plain paper. Print your own name and address clearly. With each pair of names, include 2 labels from Dash Dog Food or one box top from Dash Meal. Each entry on separate entry blank or sheet of paper.

2. Mail your entry to Dash Dog Food, Dept. A, Box 5155, Chicago 77, Illinois.

3. Names will be judged on basis of originality, uniqueness and suitability by independent contest judges. Decisions of judges final. Duplicate prizes in case of ties. Armour and Company reserves the right to disqualify any entry which was not personally composed by contestant or members of his household.

4. All entries become property of Armour and Company—none returned. Prize winners will be notified promptly upon completion of judging. List of winners will be sent you on request (after September 24, 1955, to allow time for handling) if self-addressed, stamped envelope is enclosed.

5. All persons in the United States, its territories and possessions, may enter—except employees of Armour and Company, its advertising agencies and their families. Contest subject to all Federal and State regulations.

6. Contest closing dates: June 26, July 3, July 10, July 17, July 24, July 31. Entries for each weekly contest must be postmarked by midnight of the closing date. Entries for the 6th and final week must be postmarked before August 1 and received by August 8, 1955.

This Mississippi family is Writing for the Fun of It

by IDA HENRY ANDERSON

COLLABORATORS: The author rewrites a story with help from husband and son.

JACKSON, MISS.

As a family of three, we cast about for years for a hobby that would be profitable and stimulating to all of us. We felt very strongly that families with a common interest derive increased enjoyment from life and one another. But the things I suggested seemed to hold little interest for my husband John and our 18-year-old son, John, Jr.—and vice versa—until we finally stopped discussing the subject altogether.

Then one day I realized, with a pleasant jolt, that we did have a family hobby. Like Topsy, it had "just growed," and all three of us had been practicing it for some time without being aware of the fact. It was creative writing.

As the granddaughter of Col. R. H. Henry, publisher and editor of Jackson's Clarion-Ledger for more than 50 years, I had grown up in a literary atmosphere. I had always intended to take up writing myself, but never found time for it until a couple of years ago. My husband, who is in the insurance business, and young John, who was then a high-school sophomore, encouraged me in my early efforts—despite the mounting collection of rejection slips that began to decorate my study walls. In fact, the two shortly caught the writing bug themselves.

John, Jr., received top grades for the themes, essays and short stories he wrote for his English class, and ultimately won first prize in the local Regional Scholastic Writing Awards contest. His literary success helped him obtain a $2,800 scholarship to Vanderbilt University, which he will enter this fall.

Tasteful Pen Name

John, Sr., to our boundless surprise, became a columnist for a local newspaper under the toothsome nom de plume of Luscious P. Cranberry. In his column, he goes into such universal problems as those one is apt to encounter while buying a new automobile license tag or voting in a state election.

My own writing has consisted of innumerable short stories (which have garnered most of my rejection slips), human-interest features and sketches, and publicity releases in behalf of local charity drives and other community projects.

Although we don't precisely collaborate on our individual writing, we do work together at it. We help one another with ideas, revisions and, above all, objective criticism. We discuss leads, characters and dialogue at the dinner table. If we can't picture a certain character speaking in a certain way, we are frank to say so. If one of us lacks an idea for a story line or angle, chances are the other two will be able to supply it. And when anyone seems to be slipping into the pitfall of long-windedness, we are quick to recommend cuts.

Once when John, Sr., wrote a column that bogged down in a veritable quagmire of family names, I read it aloud to John, Jr. It took considerable doing, but we finally got the family tree straightened out. On another occasion, my husband and I helped young John clarify the symbolical meaning of a stormy short story.

The fact that we respect one another's criticism is the acid test of our hobby's success. If we got mad or had our feelings hurt, there wouldn't be any value in our collaboration. Actually we have obtained new insights into both ourselves and human nature.

None of us may ever amount to anything in a literary way. So far, our combined earnings haven't come close to covering the postage involved in mailing out manuscripts. But the vital, common bond of interest we've achieved—by working together on something that we enjoy—has meant more to us than all the money and prestige in the world. ■

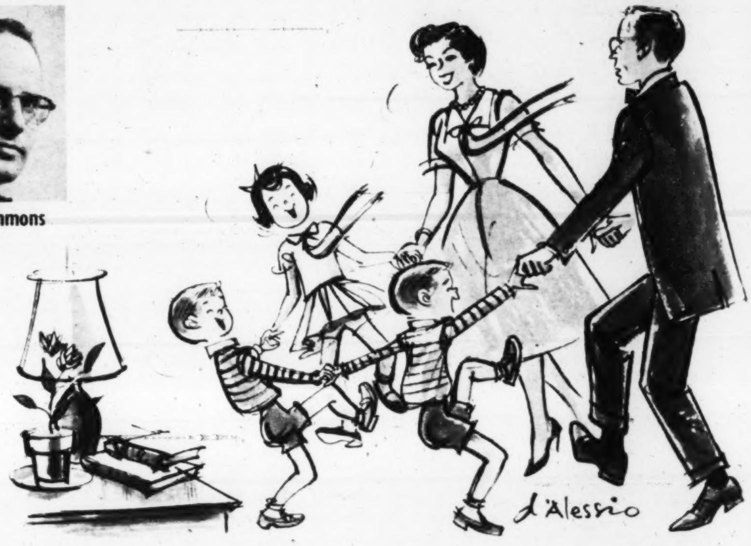
Father Emmons



Have a day on Father

Want to know how it all got started? So does this man

by DICK EMMONS

There are several widely held theories about the origin of Father's Day, not one of which can pass the litmus test. However, if you fellows will pull your chairs up a bit closer, we'll have a little straight-from-the-shoulder man talk about the whole thing.

My question is, whatever happened to the old-fashioned Father's Day? I dreamily remember the time when my wife and daughter would devote their full energies to letting me sleep as long as the sandman (he was the cutest I've ever seen) would permit.

Rather than chance waking me, the dears used to strap rubber sponges to the bottoms of their slippers, read each others' lips when communication was required and dunk marshmallows into a silent mush for breakfast.

Later, they would assist me to a lawn chair and, working in relays, dedicate themselves to seeing to it that my glass was kept frosted and full.

Recently, however, the Father's Day picture around here has been painted with a different kind of brush. I can't say categorically that I've had nothing but mental grief from this annual deference to Daddy, because there's been a dash of physical misery mixed in there, too. Just enough to bring out the true flavor of the grief.

The trouble, as I see it, is that we have been swept up in the latter-day trend calling for families to indulge in recreation as a unit. It strengthens the bonds, they say.

In our house the bonds are like tensile steel. Take it from a man who tried to bend them last Father's Day.

"How about a round of golf?" I suggested brightly that morning, after our 3-year-old twins had bugled us out of bed at dawn.

"The family that plays together stays together," my wife, Helen, objected.

"I'm willing to play together," I stated. "We're knee-deep in caddies. This is Father's Day—and Father likes golf."

"Let's skip rope," our daughter, Ann, suggested. "I can do hot peppers."

"Wing awound the wosy!" one of the twins screamed. His brother took up the chant.

"Oh, all wight," I said testily. We played that until my legs cried out in alarm and my face was wosy. Then we tried Bwind Man's Bwuff, Dwop the Hankie and Leap Fwog, which turned out to be Leap Father, until lunch.

After a four-minute rest period, during which I sat perfectly still, merely allowing my restless toes to beat time to the voodoo throbbing of my temples, we resumed our efforts to cement the family. When merciful night fell and I was able to take cover in a thicket of early-blooming hollyhocks, I lifted my face (with both hands) and asked the careless stars why we set aside this special day to undo fathers.

The Fruits of Research

My research in the ensuing year has produced two theories on the matter. I pass them along because I don't know what else to do with them:

1) Father's Day was thought up by a wife who was disappointed with her husband's present on Mother's Day and wanted a legitimate opportunity to get back at him. The story has it that she gave him a gift certificate from a lingerie shop.

2) Father's Day was first declared by a father who believed it would entitle him to sit around in a lawn chair all day watching cloud formations. He has asked that his name be withheld.

The absolute truth is probably someplace in between. Be that as it may, I hereby propose the formation of a Society for the Immediate Discontinuance of Any and All Days Singling Out Dad for Special Attention. Membership in the SFTIDOAAADSODFSA (pronounced sftidoaaadsodfsa) will be open to all male parents who are also fathers. ■

NEARLY FINISHED with his colossal face, Bedore applies last touches. The city is supplying a pedestal for it and moving it to a suitable site.

A St. Peter for St. Petersburg

ST. PETERSBURG, FLA.

Looking out serenely from a back yard onto a busy avenue, a 12-foot-tall, 3-ton statue of the face of St. Peter has been popping the eyes of passing motorists. The statue is the work of Sidney Bedore, 72, who came here recently from Green Bay, Wis., and plans to stay permanently. On arriving, he and his wife were surprised to find the city had few memorials to its namesake. So Bedore went to work with cement (he's been sculpting for more than 40 years), spent a year shaping the face and gave it to the city free. "After all," he explains, "Peter got little for his work."

AT START, Bedore used clay models in shaping the huge cement face.

'I Begged the Reds

A story every American should read: how our No. 2 prisoner

FOR TWO YEARS this extraordinary story was locked in U. S. Air Force files. It concerns a man who, subjected to pitiless Communist brainwashing, finally "confessed" to a dreadful, if nonexistent, crime: germ warfare. In releasing it now to PARADE, Andy Evans and his superiors not only permit a shocking look at one man's ordeal. They also provide a basis for judging the actions of men like Evans. Above all, they help reveal the true nature of the enemy we fought in Korea—and which still threatens us, there and elsewhere.

MONTGOMERY, ALA.

At dusk on September 18, 1953, a slight, emaciated man hesitated nervously before his front door here. The door was unlatched, but he made no move to enter. Instead he pressed his finger against the doorbell and waited. His wife answered the ring. She gasped one word, "Andy!" and threw her arms around his thin shoulders.

It was Andrew Evans' homecoming after six months in a Communist nightmare. He had been a prize prisoner of the Korean war, second in importance only to Maj. Gen. William F. Dean. For Andy Evans, Air Force colonel and jet ace, had held a key post in the Pentagon—executive assistant to the Chief of Staff.

He rang his own bell, like a stranger at the door, because of sudden stagefright at presenting to his wife the man he had become. His shyness resulted partly from his gaunt appearance, partly from the stutter that made every word a pain to speak.

Worse, he still was unsure whether he had brought back the same brain. He couldn't be sure because he had been brainwashed. He had been ground down with psychological pressure until at last he had signed a false confession, admitting germ warfare against the North Koreans.

He now is sure of himself again, but the intervening months have not been easy. Most difficult has been facing the question his friends politely never ask: "But why did you sign a confession for the Communists?"

There's no simple answer, but there is an answer. In Andy Evans' story you will learn what happens to a man reduced to a state half animal, half human, battered with lies until the truth is wholly unreal, helpless before madmen whose ability to torment is almost beyond belief.

Three times during his ordeal, Evans faced execution. Once he was prodded in the back with a gun and ordered to confess or die. He answered: "I won't sign." Given 24 hours to reconsider, he was again hauled before the executioners. This time the gun was pressed against the nape of his neck. But he said honestly: "I prefer to die."

He was granted another 24-hour reprieve to think it over. The guards came for him in the middle of the night. They asked if he had decided to confess. Again he said, "No." He was marched up a hill and stood against a tree facing a Chinese firing squad. Then he was offered one final chance. "Confess or you will be shot," he was told.

"It was a dark and stormy night," Evans recalls. "I knew it was my last one, and I was glad. I said, 'No, please get it over with.' " But the firing squad never fired. Without comment, his tormentors led him back to a fate literally worse than death.

The Colonel's eyes have a faraway stare as his thoughts wander painfully back. They are an old man's eyes in a young man's face: he is only 36. "Many times I would have been delighted to have been strung up by my wrists, to have been beaten into unconsciousness," he muses. "These were luxuries I was not allowed. We Americans only understand what we can see and feel. It is hard for us to imagine torture of the mind. But I have been through the experience. Believe me, death is preferable."

Col. Andrew Evans was already a hero before he left for Korea. A West Point graduate, he became a World War II ace of whom a superior said: "I would place Andy Evans in the highest 10 per cent of all officers I have known." Among his postwar assignments, he served as executive assistant to the late Air Force chief, Gen. Hoyt Vandenberg.

GRIM MEMORIES fill Andy Evans' face as he holds the bowl he ate from in prison—the only remaining physical "souvenir" of his captivity.

At Maxwell AF Base here, where he was stationed before going to Korea, he and his wife, Claire, were attractive additions to the Air Force set. They played golf, entertained friends and reared healthy, happy children—Jay and Dick, the two boys, and Susan and Cathy, the little girls.

It was a good life, but Evans begged for a combat assignment. When he got it, in three months he chalked up 67 combat missions. "Andy was such an eager beaver you'd almost think he was trying to win the Korean war single-handed," says a jet pilot who flew under him.

To his World War II collection of medals, he added many more. He won the Silver Star, for instance, for leading a mission against a heavily defended rail bridge in northernmost Korea on March 14, 1953—a mission almost identical to that dramatized in the movie, The Bridges of Toko-Ri. On March 27 he fell into enemy hands.

He flew two missions that morning, then pulled his rank to lead a third. Over the target, enemy ground fire chewed holes in Evans' F-84 Thunderjet. He pointed the nose toward South Korea, hoping to crash-land in friendly territory. But an explosion in the cockpit knocked him out and somehow tripped the seat ejector. He woke up 500 feet from

to Shoot Me!'

in Korea was tortured until he 'confessed' to a dreadful lie the ground, drifting gently down in his parachute.

Freeing himself from the plane gear, he landed on marshy ground—a tragic 100 yards from U.S. lines. Yelling Chinese troops were already swarming down on him. He emptied his pistol at them, got a stern reply from Red machine guns. So he raised his hands in surrender and was led off behind the Bamboo Curtain.

The interrogation began almost immediately. But Evans was a buoyant, cocky guy, mentally agile and morally sure of himself. "I rather enjoyed matching wits with my hosts," he says with a wry smile.

Those first 10 days he breezed through. He was even called down for grinning saucily at a Chinese Wac. He was so successful in building a network of lies about himself that he almost had the interrogators convinced he was a person of no consequence. To questions about military information, he brashly told them: "Read it in the newspapers!"

Part of the cockiness went out of him, however, when his interrogators marched into his cell and hauled him to attention. Cursing him as "a dirty, filthy liar," they gave him a complete report on himself taken from an American radio broadcast. He had 24 hours, they added, to admit the broadcast facts in writing.

The First 'Innocent' Signature

Seeing no harm in acknowledging information they already knew, Evans agreed. "This insignificant statement seemed innocent enough," he says. "I was completely unaware that the enemy wasn't after military information from me but after something unreal—namely, an admission of germ warfare. I possessed a childlike innocence of Communist techniques and objectives."

Evans realized later that securing his signature on a harmless statement was an important first move in the drive toward a "confession." He was being slowly adjusted not to mind signing his name on a piece of paper.

He still was not mistreated in the usual way. The Chinese even brought him two colored eggs for Easter and boasted of their kindness. They also loaded him with Communist literature, which he read to occupy the time. But the pattern for the months ahead was emerging. He got no rest from his interrogators. They would take turns hurling questions at him, day and night, without letup.

Bouncing off at first, the questions soon began to pound against his brain like a constant drip of water on the forehead. With this went a deliberately erratic schedule. He never knew whether he would be questioned for four hours or for 24. He never knew whether he would meet pseudo-sympathy or ferocity. He never knew when he would eat, when sleep, when he could sit, when lie down.

"There was never an opportunity for me to develop a routine," as he puts it, "where I could sort of bunch my muscles for what was coming next."

He also was subjected to periods of starvation, cramped into tight, filthy quarters, shut off from daylight and fresh air. (In six months of captivity he saw only two days of daylight.) At no time during the day was he allowed to recline or close his eyes. His sleep at night, when permitted, was sadistically interrupted.

Not the least of his misery was caused by tiny Red allies—lice that multiplied in his beard, vermin that crawled over his body, rats that raced around his head at night. "The lice," he recalls with a shudder, "were a terrible problem." He fought a losing battle against them, nipping them one at a time between his fingers.

Erosion of the Mind

The accumulation of all these things produced what it was intended to: an erosive process that rapidly wore him down. "One thing followed another in an amazingly well-planned pattern which I was constantly trying to fathom but never could grasp," says Evans, thinking back.

For a while, he was questioned alternately by a team of inquisitors by day and a smiling, solicitous Chinese officer at night. The interviews were held five miles apart; Evans, though full of fever, was forced to hike back and forth every night. The interrogators asked particularly about a giant American pincer movement which they feared would close the jaws on North Korea. "They would hammer for hours on a high-level military subject. Then, after getting no satisfaction from me, they would slip into a seemingly harmless personal question which I must admit came as sort of relaxation. Sometimes I told them the truth about my personal life." He realizes now they were trying to learn more about him—"how big a fish I was, how much propaganda value I would have."

Evans had been advised to pack a picture of his family in his wallet: it might get him sympathy in case of capture. One interrogator kept coaxing him to pull out the picture and look at it each day. Then he would ask patronizing questions about the children's health and schooling.

"Carrying this picture was one of the worst things I could have done from a psychological viewpoint," Evans says. When he realized the Communists were using it to torture him with loneliness and homesickness, he tore it into tiny pieces.

His constant inner wish was to become a "regular" prisoner of war, a desire the Communists played on. Six weeks after his capture, they promised to take him to a POW camp. Thankfully, he dreamed of a sort of Stalag 17 where comradeship would erase the nightmare.

He was driven northward at night in a truck with six armed guards. En route, a prowling American B-26 dropped a flare. Caught in the glare, the truck was jolted by three bomb blasts that barely missed. Afterward Evans wished the bombs had killed them all.

At the end of his truck ride, he was thrown into a damp, filthy cell the size of a packing crate. It reeked of a heavy stench that was locked in with him, the room being windowless. For furniture, a pile of urine-saturated straw was strewn on the floor. The place did have an electric-light bulb—but the light was turned in his eyes during question periods.

The Colonel brought a nest of lice with him, of course, in his scraggly hair. But he found other vermin waiting for him; the bedbugs and rats were particularly bad.

His every movement was watched by two guards, who never took their eyes off him. They weren't guarding against a conventional escape; they just didn't want to lose their prey through suicide.

EVANS' CHILDREN: This is a copy of the photo he carried with him, tore up when the Reds used it to make him homesick.

For the next few days, amazingly, Evans found politeness and cultural conversation. A saccharine Chinese officer with courtly manners and manicured fingernails would offer him hot tea and discuss esthetic subjects in an Oxford accent.

Along with the gentle talk were props. Once, off in the distance, Evans heard a group of Americans singing Suwannee River. Again he heard two men, obviously Americans, stroll by his cell chatting about a Hemingway book. All this was calculated to induce homesickness.

Inevitably, of course, the Chinese Beau Brummell turned off the charm, and the browbeating routine began again. Evans was turned over to new inquisitors, two of them American-educated. They would damn "the dirty white race," then exhort him to "trust us, have faith in us."

He spent 12 weeks in a room too small to stand up or lie down in

"How," Evans finally retorted, "can I trust anyone who goes around spreading this germ-warfare stuff?" That started the final stage of his mental tug-of-war. As he recalls: "The interrogator came back with a snarl and an accusation that I was one of those most involved in germ warfare. Thereafter, the questioning never varied. It was either my personal biography or germ warfare."

By now-familiar techniques, his mind was cruelly tortured until he longed for physical punishment as a relief. He often argued with his tormentors, even insulted them, hoping to provoke them to violence. But except for being kicked, slapped and spat upon, his person was not touched.

"I was filthy, exhausted. I felt like a cornered animal," Evans says. Yet he still had confidence in his ability to stick it out. "I thought no one could be forced to sign something against his principles unless he was drugged. I simply didn't know."

The Germ-Warfare Charge

One day he was led to a nearby room where he found himself before a somber tribunal. In an atmosphere of judicial dignity (complete with three Chinese judges), a functionary unfurled an official document charging Evans with conducting germ warfare and having innocent blood on his hands. If he begged forgiveness, it added with a verbal flourish, the good hearts of the Chinese and Korean people would permit mercy. Otherwise he would be executed. He had 24 hours to decide.

The Colonel was stunned. "This may sound melodramatic," he says, "but the day was May 12, my daughter's birthday. I was sent back to my cell where, for the first time, I wept. Within a few minutes, my chief interrogator was on me like a hound dog." The officer was all sympathy. Evans would feel so much better, the officer said, if he would get his guilt off his chest and confess.

"I told him to go to hell."

At the end of the 24 hours, he was marched back before the tribunal and, with a pistol jammed against his back, asked for his decision. It was the first of his three brushes with the executioners.

After his final midnight drama before the firing squad, he was ruthlessly starved for 12 days. Throughout the siege, the interrogation never stopped; he was allowed no sleep, except when he passed out for a few minutes.

"I was stood at attention for hours; I was placed under a bright electric-light bulb for more hours; I was sat at attention on a hard stool and tormented, bullied, browbeaten."

He watched himself die by degrees from lack of food and rest. All the while, his captors kept drumming lies into his brain, lies about germ warfare and his participation in it, lies he heard so many times they almost became real.

Some lies stuck, temporarily etched in his groggy mind. "In the end," he says, "I no longer knew what truth was. What they said couldn't be true. But after having it pounded into my head, I began to wonder. I just prayed to be left alone."

Once the guards looked away momentarily. He grabbed the light bulb, shattered it and started slashing his wrists. But the guards pounced on him before his suicide attempt succeeded.

Then, abruptly, the Communists appeared to give up. They promised to send him to join the other POW's. There was just one minor detail: would he write out his full personal history?

One Room, 3 by 3

Evans, numb and worn, agreed. "They got no military information," he says, "but I gave them the minutest details about my personal life—some true, some false. If I had known then what I know now, I would have realized they wanted the information to beef up a later confession."

About June 1, Evans was moved through the night to another place. His new cell was the worst torture chamber of all: a tiny storeroom on the side of a hill. It would have been 6 feet by 6—except that it was half filled with crocks of grain.

For the next 12 weeks he lived like an animal in a space 3 feet square. He could neither lie down nor stand up—so he sat continuously. For exercise, he could only try weakly to push one muscle against the other.

Daylight was shut out by mud plastered over the windows; only an occasional glimmer stabbed through chinks in the door. Evans ate, drank and washed out of one tiny bowl, not much larger than a cup. His tormentors even devised a quaint torture involving the bowl. They would fill it with water, but, before he could drink, his food would be brought. To make room for the food, he would have to pour out the water. He seldom could have both.

His emotions went through several metamorphoses during this ordeal. At first he was bitterly angry at the Communists and all they represented. “I vowed,” he says, “never to give what they wanted. I fought them with every fiber of mental strength remaining. Sometimes I even started converting my interrogators to capitalism. Then a replacement would hurriedly be sent in to take over the questioning.”

But the treatment never let up. “I was not permitted to stand up, recline, lie down. I did not see the sunlight or feel the fresh air. I was never allowed a full day's rest or a complete night's sleep. I was unclean, infested with lice and bugs. After you're reduced half-way between the human and the animal, something begins to tarnish.”

Then his emotional control began to go. He would find his eyes afloat sometimes with tears. All he wanted was relief from the incessant questioning and bullying. “I begged them to kill me,” he says. But they threatened to keep him forever in that cramped space unless he changed his mind about confessing.

Man into Animal

“At this point,” says Evans, “I resigned myself to spending the rest of my life there, and I hoped it would be a short life.” Despair gradually gave way to apathy. “I reached an absolutely impassive state. I showed no emotion whatever during the rest of my capture. I was like an animal, living from meal to meal and not really caring whether I got the meal.”

Only one thing gave his spirits a lift—the sound of American planes. Then even that stopped. Eight days later he was dragged before another tribunal and told that the war had ended, the United States had surrendered, all prisoners would be repatriated—except Andy Evans.

Next day the tribunal offered further arguments. They handed him a letter, addressed to him by name, from North Korea's puppet premier, Kim Il Sung. The letter urged him to sign the confession, so he could be repatriated with the others. He was given 24 hours to decide.

When he expressed doubt that the war was over, he was shown copies of Chinese newspapers printed in English. The news fitted in with the absence of planes overhead. Still he held out against signing.

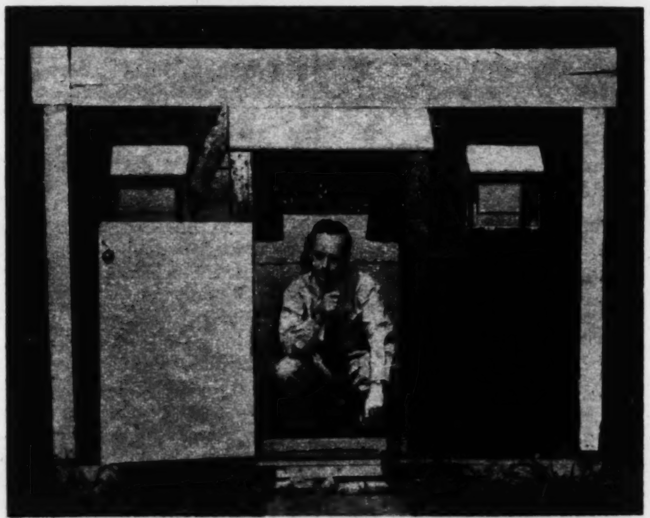
“I don't want anyone to think I am an iron character,” he says now. “I was just numb. Anyhow, my 'no' wasn't as decisive as it sounded. Within, I was beginning to doubt the value of struggling on. I also rationalized that I would be repatriated in time to expose the phony confession before they could get any propaganda value out of it.”

Then came the final blow. The Reds had showed him many American “confessions,” but this time they brought in a tape recording. He recognized the tired, halting voice of his best friend—“a man of great character, bravery, integrity and honor”—telling lies about germ warfare.

“To be sitting in a stupor half out of this world, as I was, and to have your senses shocked into reality by the words of your best friend,” says Evans, “most certainly has a tremendous psychological effect.”

He returned glumly to his cell and, for the second time, sobbed. Describing his mental state, Evans says his brain was “a confused glob of thoughts without pattern.” He had lost much of his reasoning power and common sense. Only with the greatest effort could he distinguish propaganda from truth.

Yet never did his captors convince him that Communism was right or that he should “atone” for his “germ-warfare crimes.” He doesn't doubt that they could have—given time. Continued brainwashing, he is sure, would have turned him into a Communist zombie.



DOLL HOUSE where Evans' children now play actually is bigger than the cell he spent 12 weeks in. Here he squats as he had to much of the time.

Meanwhile he wrestled with his conscience, trying groggily to grasp a thought pattern that would lead to the right decision. His chief interrogator stood by, consoling him and exhorting him to sign, rather like a preacher at a revival trying to convert a sinner. On the 11th hour, he agreed to sign.

“Probably to most people,” remarks Evans, “to break down means utter collapse, a slobbering of words and complete abandonment of resistance. I know this is not the case. Near the end of this experience, for instance, there was another moment when I backed out on the whole deal. The Communists tried to get me to backdate my confession to May. For some reason, I went into a state of obstinancy and refused to

“But I accepted the date of August 18, though it was then September 3. My condition at that time might best be described as only half man. I could still gather my energies to fight them on some subjects, but I was completely impassive on others.”

Philosophizing for a moment, Col. Evans adds: “I think we must decide whether a person's life is more valuable to us than a Communist propaganda lie. I believe our men should be instructed to hold out to the limits of their endurance, but we must recognize such limits do exist. We also should not dignify their lies by behaving as if they were true.”

The moment Evans relented, he was issued clean clothes and transferred to a large room with a comfortable cot. He was doused with DDT to kill the lice and was allowed to bathe in the river. A guard, not trusting him with a razor, shaved him.

For a week, he was showered with almost ridiculous treats: sacks of sugar, beer, cigarettes, malted milk, candy. Then he was ordered to write out his confession. He composed one so exaggerated that it was ridiculous on its face. The Reds were furious—and Evans haughtily announced he had changed his mind about signing. Back to his cell he went for another 12 hours.

All the old horrors, the miseries, the soul aches, returned with a rush. He had a vision of himself disappearing forever behind the Bamboo Curtain. It wouldn't take much more Red coercion, he knew, for him to lose his identity. He would be physically the same person, but mentally someone else. His captors also had convinced him that a confession would mean forgiveness — and freedom. Once again he decided to go through with it.

This time the Communists wrote the confession out for him. The 20-page document cleverly interwove lies about his germ-warfare raids with truth about his personal history. But even in surrendering, Evans tricked the Communists. He had given them, as dates of his principal missions, 10 days spent on leave in Hong Kong and a week spent in Tokyo. Unwittingly, the Reds incorporated these dates into his confession.

After signing the document, he was forced to read it into a tape-recording machine. His stutter by this time was so bad that it took him 18 hours to read the 20 pages.

Three days later he was prettied up and shipped off to Panmunjon for repatriation, joining other prisoners on the way. Once a Chinese cameraman took movies of them. Another prisoner still remembers how the brainwashed, emaciated, browbeaten Colonel turned defiantly and thumbed his nose at the camera. "We were deathly afraid we would be punished, maybe even denied repatriation, for Colonel Evans' impudence," recalls this witness. But the Chinese pretended not to see what had happened.

Shattered Hope

On the journey to freedom, Evans' first thought was to proclaim his confession as false, expose what the Communists had done to him and thwart their propaganda scheme. Five minutes after he had been turned back to American hands, he revealed to reporters that he had signed a germ-warfare confession. Instead of sympathy, a horrified hush fell over the group. He tried to explain the circumstances–how he had been tortured into signing–but they didn't seem to understand. Soon he stopped trying.

The doctors and nurses who examined him showed little more sympathy. With casual bedside interest, they would ask whether it had been rugged. When he started to tell them, they would nod their heads and reply absently: "Too bad, too bad."

As a result, he withdrew into the company of other brainwash victims; he would talk to no one else. He had been so saturated with Communist lies, however, that he hungered for the truth. So he stacked magazines and newspapers high beside his bed. He discovered for the first time that many Communist claims, which he in his mental stupor had accepted, were untrue.

Evans also learned that, for confessing germ warfare, he was considered a traitor by many. He had tried to die for his country but had been denied the "luxury." He had signed a false statement when it seemed useless to go on fighting. But he had fought.

"I had signed under circumstances that I thought any American should understand," he explains his feelings. "Under our system, no statement obtained by coercion or duress can be used as evidence against a man. I came to resent people because they didn't try to understand. I resented anyone who looked healthy and unconcerned. Most of all, I resented the articles that suggested we, who signed confessions, were traitors."

How to Judge?

He came to one conclusion: "Human behavior cannot be judged by a yardstick, used against suffering people by those who have never suffered."

So it was in disappointment and dismay that Col. Andy Evans later stood on the front porch of his home and waited for his wife to open the door.

Only Claire–a petite, pretty blonde with sparkling blue eyes–greeted him that first night. Too self-conscious to face the children, he had phoned from San Francisco asking her to have them in bed. Next morning the children came to him, one by one. Each had been briefed not to mention "how Daddy looks," but 3-year-old Cathy didn't understand. When she saw him, she squeaked: "Daddy, you don't look the same." But she looked good to Daddy, who grabbed her up in his arms.

For a long time thereafter, Evans remained a sick man–mentally and physically. Though he ate well, he couldn't regain the 60 pounds he had left in Korea. He had started at 148; today he still weighs only 125. His blood pressure is so low doctors hardly believe it.

For months he couldn't sleep more than two hours at a time. What sleep he got was haunted by nightmares. He also refused to see anyone except Claire. He would spend hours sitting and staring into space.

A STORY EVERY AMERICAN SHOULD READ

His wife suspected that, deep down, Andy wanted the companionship of his Air Force buddies. It took until Christmas Eve, 1953, for her to persuade him to attend a party. He stayed only 15 minutes.

But then he began to loosen up. He played golf with a few friends. Others, secretly encouraged by Claire, dropped by the house. They worked hard to draw him out of his protective shell.

Still Evans stayed pretty well holed up at home. He preferred to putter around the yard or play with the children. The first Christmas he took the two boys in the car and personally delivered dozens of food baskets to needy Negro families. He explained to Claire: "I want the boys to be thankful for their blessings. I think maybe this will help teach them gratitude."

Evans still has trouble restraining himself from teaching others the same lesson. If someone at a restaurant gripes about the food, he has to fight to keep from bursting out in resentment. Or, if someone complains about his quarters, he thinks of his 3-by-3 prison.

"We don't know how lucky we are in America," he declares. "I want to shout it from the housetops!"

Evans had a driving desire, even while still under medical care, to get back in the air. Though underweight, he finally was granted a special waiver to fly again. In case of war, he would like nothing better than to lead the first mission. But he has two reservations.

"In the next war," he says, "I will go disguised as a second lieutenant. I won't reveal my true rank unless I am put with other POW's and leadership is needed. I will also carry suicide pills. I absolutely won't go through another brainwashing if I can help it."

Today, Andy Evans appears completely his old self again. He is a slight, thoroughly alive officer with a ready smile and a look of vigor. His stammering has disappeared, and his conversation is fluent. Lithe and agile, he is Maxwell Air Force Base's golfing champ. He seems rehabilitated. But if you ask him, he will say: "The rehabilitation is all on the outside."

Beneath the mental scar tissue, his memories still fester. He can't keep his mind from wandering back to Korea, from associating daily events with his experiences as a prisoner. This has made him absent-minded, which he never used to be.

He avidly reads and saves every printed word on the POW question; the newspaper accounts often upset him. The nightmares, too, still torment him, though not as frequently. Yet his outward attitude toward his experience is amazingly detached and philosophical.

A Clear Name

Colonel Evans' Air Force career is unmarred by the events in Korea. An Air Force Board heard his story in secret and on May 20, 1954, ruled: "It is the recommendation of this Board that this case be closed and that the officer's name be removed from any possible prejudice for his acts as a prisoner of war."

One Board member, a high-ranking general, commented afterward: "The cases we investigated fell into three general categories—the stinkers, whom we will get rid of; a considerable number about whom we cannot be too sure but will give the benefit of the doubt; and a few who should get a great big medal. In my judgment, Andy Evans' name heads the list of the few who should really get medals." ■

THE PROBLEM OF BRAINWASHING—what it is, how to cope with it—is new in America's military experience. But it is one that must be solved before another war breaks out. What is Washington doing about it? PARADE reports on this vital issue NEXT WEEK.

REUNITED after an experience that left its mark on them both, Andy and Claire Evans now seek to face the future—not the past.

Las Vegas

A glittering vacation can be yours—cheaply—

HOOVER DAM, a top tourist attraction, awes Humphreys family. Dam is 726 feet high, was completed in 1936.

For 10 days, the Roy Humphreys family of Grand Junction, Colo., had a millionaire's vacation in the town that boasts of being "The Entertainment and Fun Capital of the World"—Las Vegas, Nev. They stayed in a first-class motel, ate in the best restaurants, plunged into a giddy whirlpool of night life. After 10 days, they totted up their expenses. The sum, including room, meals and gasoline: $205.

Incredible as that total sounds in a town where $52 million changes hands each year at the gambling tables, it was reached without cutting a single corner. The Humphreys' "secret"—one that is widely known but seldom observed—was simple: they didn't gamble.

Roy and his family—his wife, Nelda; Karen, 10, and Michael, 12—made that resolution before leaving Grand Junction, and they stuck to it, despite batteries of slot machines and gaming tables. They went into the gambling halls, even edged close enough to the tables to watch the games, but never weakened. Thus they were able to capitalize on prices pegged deliberately low as a lure to visitors with less will power.

A few years ago, the visiting Humphreys might have struck an even better bargain. In those days, a double room in the most plush hotels along the "Strip"—the Flamingo, the Sands, the Sahara—cost only $6 a night. Owners were content to take a loss on room and board and make it up—and then some—at the tables. But then the current dizzy bidding for entertainers began. (Liberace recently was paid $150,000 for a three-week stay at the Riviera.) Management cut out frills like free breakfast and no-cover-charge entertainment, boosted room prices to try to narrow the gap. Now the top hotels charge $10 a night, and up.

So the Humphreys bypassed the more lavish places. Roy went instead to the Chamber of Commerce, inquired about cheaper lodgings. He was referred to a comfortable motel on the Strip where the family paid $6 a night.

From there, it was a short walk to the Sands, where they made dinner reservations for the early show. (In Las Vegas, there are two shows at night, at 8:30 and 11:30. The Humphreys, like most tourists with children, always attended the early show.) The night they went to the Sands, opera star Marguerite Piazza headed the program. The tab, for four dinners plus drinks and entertainment, was $18.

Las Vegas is within easy driving distance of the Grand Canyon, Hollywood, other travelers' meccas

SAGE BRUSH and sand surround Humphreys' Plymou
Charleston Mountains and cool air. Las Vegas feature

When they tired of indoor recreation, the Humphreys found plenty to do in the desert around Las Vegas. Twenty-five miles from the city is massive Hoover Dam, with beautiful Lake Mead—largest artificial lake in the world—backed up behind it. The Humphreys took a 45-minute guided tour through the dam—over the protests of Karen, who asked her father, "Won't we buried alive?" "Sissy," muttered her brother Mike.

The tour (30 cents for adults, free to children under 12) dips 528 feet into the dam, which sits astride the Black Canyon of the Colorado River and boasts the world's largest power plant. Guides explain the workings of the huge engineering project; at the Visitors' Bureau in nearby Boulder City, the family learned more at a free movie, The Construction of Hoover Dam.

Two of their 10 days the Humphreys spent at Lake Mead, a favorite water playground in the West. The lake, 589 feet deep with a 550-mile shoreline, offers boating, surfboard-riding, swimming and fishing. The Humphreys took an excursion trip around the lake ($1.75 a person) and Roy tried his luck with bass and trout. (Fishing for both is excellent the year round, in both Lake Mead and nearby Lake Mohave. A fishing license costs $3.50 a year.)

Another trip took the Humphreys to the Charleston Mountains, 35 miles northwest of Las Vegas, which have an average elevation of 7,500 feet and offer cool relief from the desert heat. The U. S. Forest Service maintains public campgrounds, equipped with stoves, tables, fuel and water, and the family picnicked there before hiking toward Charleston Peak. In winter, the area is a ski resort and Roy promised to bring the family back for a snow vacation.

There are many attractions within easy driving distance of Las Vegas. The city is midway between the North and South Rims of the Grand Canyon. Hollywood is an overnight drive (285 miles away); Death Valley is close by; Zion and Bryce Canyon National Parks are within range.

The Humphreys passed up these extras to spend their time in Las Vegas. They lazed in the desert sun at their motel swimming pool, visited the Last Frontier Village with its "Believe It or Not" collection. Often, in the evenings, they would drift down to the Strip hotels to watch the gamblers in action or to try to catch a glimpse of famous visitors. (During their stay, they ran across Bing Crosby at the Sands, Debbie Reynolds at the Sahara and Sonja Henie at the New Frontier.)

You, too, can take a Las Vegas vacation on a shoestring—if you have the will power. Your first step should be to write the Chamber of Commerce, which will furnish a list (and rates) of the town's 31 hotels and 245 motels, even make reservations for you. And you can save more money by taking advantage of free facilities of the National Parks and Bureau of Reclamation at Lake Mead and in the national forests.

You'll like it—although you may not go as far overboard as Roy Humphreys. When the time came to return to Grand Junction, he went instead to see Jack Entratter, who produces shows at the Sands. Now the Humphreys have a new home town—and Roy has a new job, as a deputy sheriff at the Sands Hotel. ■

Hamburger Turnovers

FROM PARADE'S TEST KITCHEN

Hamburger Turnovers are Yankee first cousins of the Cornish Pasties so popular across the sea. You'll like this version made with ground beef and seasoned to savory perfection. Serve them hot, with a lusty tomato sauce, or pack them, cold, in lunch box, picnic basket. Delightful either way!

HAMBURGER TURNOVERS

Pastry for 2-crust pie
1 1/4 pounds round steak, ground
2 cups finely diced cooked potatoes
1 large onion, finely chopped
1/3 cup chopped parsley
1 1/2 teaspoons salt
1/8 teaspoon pepper
1/8 teaspoon rosemary
1/3 cup butter or margarine
1/3 cup lemon juice
1 teaspoon grated lemon peel
1 egg, beaten

For 12 Turnovers: roll pastry 1/8" thick; cut into 12 6" circles. Mix round steak, potatoes, onion, parsley, salt, pepper and rosemary. Place a layer of meat mixture on each round of pastry. Dot each round with butter; sprinkle with lemon juice and grated lemon peel. Dampen edges of pastry, fold over, press edges together and crimp them with finger and thumb. Brush with beaten egg. Make two small slits in top of each turnover. Bake in hot oven (400°F.) 1 hour.

TOMATO SAUCE

1/2 cup minced onion (1 small)
2 tablespoons bacon drippings or fat
2 teaspoons sugar
1 cup water
1 can condensed tomato soup
1/8 teaspoon savory
1/8 teaspoon rosemary
Salt and pepper to taste
1 tablespoon lemon juice

Brown onion in hot fat; add sugar, water and tomato soup. Mix well. Add savory, rosemary, salt and pepper and simmer 10 to 15 minutes. Add lemon juice. Serve hot over Turnovers. Makes about 3 cups.

Anywhere she goes...

she can buy Tampax

Whether you travel by boat, plane or camel train, you can buy Tampax. It's on sale in Egypt, Madagascar, New Guinea, Venezuela, Iraq, Guatemala—and scores of other foreign countries. It's available, too, in every city, every town, every hamlet, throughout the length and breadth of the United States.

Such widespread distribution is clear evidence of the way Tampax internal sanitary protection has "caught on" with women. And yet—is this so surprising? After all, Tampax is really the logical method of protection on "those days"—the method that does away with the bulky belt-pin-pad harness, and substitutes protection that's far more convenient and much easier to use.

Wearer's hands needn't even touch the Tampax. Tampax can be worn in shower or tub. Tampax prevents odor from forming. Tampax is easy to dispose of. And it's so small, a month's supply can be carried in the purse. Choice of three absorbencies at drug or notion counters. (Regular, Super, Junior.) Tampax Incorporated, Palmer, Mass.

Entertaining

Miss Vanderbilt answers a variety of timely questions

Many of you have written me about your problems in entertaining. We all know that entertaining is easier and more spontaneous than it used to be even a few years back. Many of us entertain oftener and with less fuss and expense. Here are some of your letters on the subject:

Q. My husband and I are about to celebrate our 20th wedding anniversary. What would be the proper gift for this year? Should all guests expect to bring gifts? How do we extend our thanks?—Mrs. K.C., Berwyn, Ill.

A. The traditional gift for the 20th anniversary is china. (But any gift that you and your husband wish to give each other is appropriate.) Your friends, if they are invited to celebrate with you, give you gifts if they choose—in any case, china. You thank those who come in person. For gifts sent by mail or messenger you may phone, thank the donors verbally if you see them or write notes.

Q. A relative of ours visits us occasionally from another state. Naturally she pays her transportation here. We have planned a vacation trip, and will take this relative along in our car. Is it sufficient for us to pay the car expenses and for the relative to pay her share of the food and lodging? Or, since she has spent money to come and visit us, are we supposed to pay all expenses of the trip?—F.J.O., Carlsbad, N. M.

A. In matters such as these, one needs to be very frank. It seems unlikely that you should be expected to do more than pay the car expenses in such an event. But you should give your relative a chance to accept the invitation under these circumstances, or return home before you start the trip.

Q. At my daughter's wedding reception, would it be all right to serve highballs first and then one round of champagne to toast the bride and groom? Or would it be proper and in good taste to eliminate the champagne altogether, and, if so, what will we use for toasts?—Mrs. G.A.W., Lyons, N. Y.

A. You may serve highballs as you suggest. Instead of champagne, you may substitute a nice white wine in proper glasses—or let the guests toast the bride and groom with their highballs.

Q. A girl I go with is 15 and lives about 500 miles from my home. My parents think it would be all right for her to spend a few days with us this summer (I go to school in the town she lives in). Would it be all right for me to furnish transportation for her?—T.V.B., Lincoln, Neb.

A. You may ask her, and your mother should write her mother. However, her parents should furnish the transportation if it is to be on a public vehicle. If your parents or you – with a chaperone, if you drive – want to drive over and bring her back, that is also correct.

Q. Is it proper for a high-school girl to ask a college boy to spend a week end at her home? I have known this boy for five months, but his school is some distance from mine and I see him only on vacations, although we correspond.—M.N.S., East Orange, N. J.

A. Yes, it is quite correct to invite him if your parents, of course, approve of your friendship with him.

Q. Would you please tell me how to tell those invited that a party has been postponed?—V.P., Lincoln Park, Md.

A. Phone or wire your guests—or write them if you have time—telling them the reason for the postponement and setting a new date, if possible.

QUESTIONS FROM READERS will be answered in this column as space permits. (Miss Vanderbilt cannot answer letters personally.) Address: Amy Vanderbilt, PARADE, 285 Madison Ave., New York 17, N. Y.

REPAIRS YOUR RUGS: Newest do-it-yourself kit lets you mend holes and burns in rugs and carpets. It combines loose nap from undamaged areas with a special cement said to form a lasting mend hardly noticeable even on close inspection. The kit contains the cement, nap-gathering tool and complete instructions. It can be used also for rug binding and will even join factory remnants to a full rug for economical wall-to-wall carpeting. $2. RUG-WELD, Box 3446, St. Paul, Minn.

RINSES PAINT AWAY: If you have a paint-removing job to do, a new kind of remover may save both work and mess. In addition to softening old paint, varnish and stain more quickly, it's said to let you whisk the old finish away with a wet cloth, leaving a smooth, spotless surface ready for refinishing. There is no need to neutralize, scrape, sandpaper. It has pleasant pine aroma, too. $1.98. BULL DOG CORP., Dept. PP, 131 Dey St., Jersey City, N. J.

FOR YOUR CAR: Now there's an install-it-yourself automatic headlight dimmer. It's a compact photoelectric unit you can mount on the instrument panel at the lower left corner of the windshield. Gable at 54 (on location in Mexico): "I'm through working for salary . . . From now on, it's a percentage deal for me . . .

CLARK GABLE:

After 25 years in Hollywood, he's on his own

by LLOYD SHEARER PARADE WEST COAST CORRESPONDENT

After a quarter of a century in the movie business, William Clark Gable, the acknowledged king of the actors, has decided at the ripe age of 54 to go on his own.

"From here on in," Gable confided recently in Durango, Mexico, where he was on location for The Tall Men, "I'm through working for a salary. I've been on salary since 1930, and I've got less to show for that kind of security than most people think.

"The thing for an actor to do nowadays is to work for a share of the picture's profits. You've gotta take a chance. Fellows like Jimmy Stewart and Gary Cooper—they had the right idea years ago. Today they're well-fixed. Why? Because they were willing to gamble, willing to spread the risk.

"If a film's no good, you wind up with little. You've invested your time and talent. If it goes over big, you've got a bundle spread over a period of years.

"Take Gone With the Wind," Gable continued. "Know how much that picture has grossed since 1939? About $35 million. In order to get me for the Rhett Butler part, David Selznick had to give up 50 per cent of the film to MGM. Know how much I got? Maybe 30 or 40 thousand in salary.

"Now, suppose I had 10 per cent of the gross." This is Gable's current deal on Soldier of Fortune and The Tall Men, both released via 20th Century-Fox. "I'd be set!

"Yes, sir, my salary days are over. From now on, it's a percentage deal with me. Should've done it years ago. But I was tied up with a studio contract until last year."

Oddly enough, MGM, which had Gable under contract from 1931 to 1954, offered "The Moose" a share-the-profits deal prior to his leaving. But he turned it down.

"Eddie Mannix [MGM's general manager] came over to London a year or so ago," Gable told me, "and offered me a unit of my own. 'You can pick your own stories,' he said. 'Cast your own pictures. Make anything you want up to $2½ million. We'll back you and we'll work out the split.'

"It was a good offer, a fine offer, but I didn't want a company of my own. That kind of thing can become a headache. You get charged with the studio overhead, and every actor in town comes up asking for a job.

"I said to Mannix in London, 'Thanks for everything, Eddie, but as regards Metro, I think I've had it. No more long-term studio deals for me.' We shook hands, and that was really the end of my relationship with MGM. A few months later I came back to Culver City, did a little work, then checked off the lot."

What About Marriage?

Now, for Clark Gable to talk thus about any subject for publication is far from typical. For years his press relations have been affably close-mouthed. He is one actor not given to bright remarks. Ordinarily he limits himself to one-sentence answers—particularly where finances or women are concerned.

As we sat on the veranda of his Durango hotel, I said as much to him. "Last time I saw you," I added, "you were in Venice with that French model, Susan Dadolle."

"I remember," Gable nodded. "You wanted to know if I was going to marry the girl. I told you there was nothing to it, just friendship, but you didn't want to believe it."

"Every time you say you're just friends with a girl," I offered, "you wind up marrying her. That's the trouble with you. I'll bet you get married to Kay Spreckels within the next few months."

Gable tossed back that handsome, leonine head of his and grinned widely.

"Everyone knows more about me," he said, "than I do myself. Right now I'm not getting married. After I finish this picture, I'm through working for a year. I'm heading for Alaska and some hunting. . . . Don't get me wrong. I think Kay Spreckels is a swell girl. But she's had enough of marriage, too. She's a three-time loser. Matter of fact, I think that's what we have in common."

As any movie-goer knows, Clark Gable has been married four times since 1924 and divorced thrice. Each of his marriages has been characterized by a certain notoriety not in accord with the truth.

The professional mud-slingers, for example, would have the public believe that in 1924 he married Josephine Dillon, wife

Right now I'm not getting married . . . I'm going to Alaska for some hunting."

No. 1 and a dramatics teacher 14 years his senior, largely because he wanted free drama coaching.

The fact is that when Gable was a 23-year-old telephone repairman in Portland, Ore., he fell in love with 37-year-old Miss Dillon because of her charm, her savoir-faire and her manner. A graduate of Stanford University, Josephine Dillon was a sophisticate who appealed to a small-town (Hopedale, Ohio) boy both mentally and physically.

Gable always has preferred a mature woman to a young, fatuous beauty. Years ago he told me: "To my way of thinking, the sophisticated woman is more interesting than the young girl who has only a pretty face and a shapely figure. The sophisticated woman has more to offer the average man. She's had experience with life. She's seen more, heard more, knows more and is, consequently, more amusing. As far as I'm concerned, the demure little girl is a very dull proposition. Give me the older woman every time."

GABLE'S WIVES . . .

WIFE NO. 1 was Josephine Dillon. Ohio-born Gable wed her in 1924. She coached him in acting — but they parted before his recognized screen debut in The Painted Desert (1931).

CLARK GABLE CONTINUED

Through four marriages over a 30-year span, Gable, as both man and actor, has stayed friendly, restrained—and natural

Certainly, Josephine Dillon knew much about acting. She taught Gable how to deliver a line and helped him land extra parts at $2.50 a day. Gable never was a top-notch actor—he still isn't—but he was always a loyal, thoughtful and considerate husband.

"People will come to me," Josephine Dillon once said, "and they will shake their heads and say, 'You poor, poor dear. Isn't it awful how that man Gable treats his wives.' Well, if there was anything wrong with a man, you wouldn't stay seven years with him."

Gable's second wife, Maria Langham, a society matron from Houston, Tex., 11 years his senior, is credited in some circles with making his rise to stardom an actuality. Here again, rumor is at variance with truth.

Gable was under contract to MGM at $350 a week when he married Mrs. Langham in 1931. She had fallen in love with the actor while he was working in a stock company in Houston. She asked her husband, an attorney in Washington, D.C., for a divorce, and when it was granted she became the second Mrs. Clark Gable.

Known as "Ria," she presided over Gable's seven-room, Spanish-type house equipped with swimming pool in Benedict Canyon, introduced him to society (he was listed in the 1933 Blue Book, the Los Angeles equivalent of the Social Register) and made him a stepgrandfather when her daughter, Mrs. Thomas Burke, gave birth to a son in 1936.

Although Gable's second marriage dragged on for eight long years before it ended in divorce, the actor and his wife called it quits in the summer of 1935. Gable accepted the blame for the marital failure. "I'm not the easiest person in the world to live with," he explained, "and I admit it. Sometimes I wonder how I get along with myself."

34 Months of Happiness

Gable settled $286,000 on Maria Langham before he acquired the legal freedom to marry Carole Lombard in 1939. Miss Lombard was one of the most pretty, profane and witty actresses to grace Hollywood. Gable was never more happy or more successful than in the 34 months he was married to her. This was the great love of his life, and in its tragic end he revealed a strength of character that his jealous detractors gloss over.

On January 16, 1942, Carole Lombard—along with her mother, her press agent, Otto Winkler, and 15 soldiers—was instantly killed when their plane crashed into a Nevada mountain top. At the time of the accident, Gable was at home on his 22-acre ranch in the San Fernando Valley. He, his butler and Jean Garceau, his wife's secretary, were putting the finishing touches on a homecoming party for Carole. Then came the telephone call: "Miss Lombard's plane is down."

The plane was west-bound from Indianapolis, where Carole had sold more than $2,000,000 worth of War Bonds. Otto Winkler had wanted to take the train home, but Carole had preferred the plane. They'd flipped a coin, and the actress had won.

On receiving word of the accident, Gable raced to the Burbank airport, chartered a plane and flew to Las Vegas. There he learned for the first time that the airliner actually had crashed. A search party was formed to go into the mountains to bring down the remains of the passengers.

Gable insisted upon going along. He fought like a madman, but the posse chief wouldn't hear of it. To the men who came down from the mountains the following morning, scarred remnants of human beings loaded on their pack animals, Gable distributed hot meals and $100 bills.

When the airline asked him to sign a release, he said he wouldn't sign a single document until $100,000 had been settled on Otto Winkler's widow. Prior to that he himself paid off the mortgage on the Winkler home.

WIFE NO. 3 was actress Carole Lombard. Gable married her in 1939; the following year they were White House guests of President and Mrs. Roosevelt. But in 1942 Carole was killed. Gable soon joined the Air Force, rose to captain.

WIFE NO. 4 was Lady Sylvia Ashley; widow of Douglas Fairbanks, Sr. Since this marriage ended in 1953, Gable has been freelancing—in his romantic interests as well as in films.

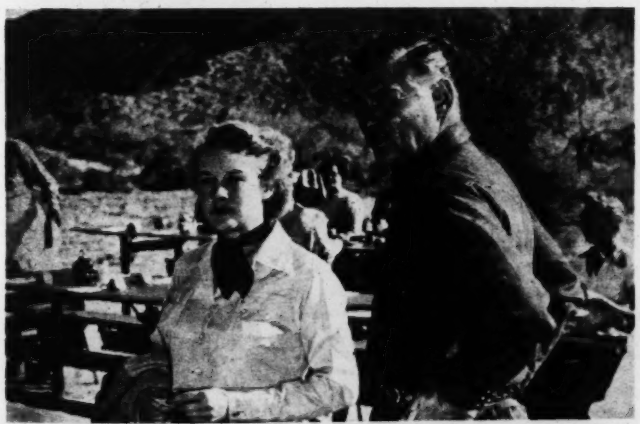
In some quarters Gable has earned the reputation of being "a man who's tight with a buck." This is only because he refuses to publicize his benevolence.

In 1949, for example, when he married Sylvia Ashley in a moment of admitted weakness, Lady Sylvia soon let it be known that she would like Jean Garceau moved from their ranch. Gable refused. He ordered a separate house built for Miss Garceau and still employs her as his secretary. As for the continental and sophisticated Lady Ashley, she is no longer Gable's wife. "Three weeks after we were married," he said, "I knew that it was a mistake." The mistake cost Gable $150,000. "Freedom," he has said on many occasions, "comes high."

A few years ago an actor friend of Gable's, down on his luck, expressed the hope of one day returning to his home town, Indianapolis. Gable happened to overhear the remark. He gave the actor a thousand dollars in cash and sent him off to have a fine time at the Memorial Day speed races. When a press agent learned of the good deed and planted the item in a gossip column, Gable was furious.

"If you ever again pull a stunt like that," he warned the publicist, "I'll have you canned."

As a man Clark Gable is restrained, friendly and easy—which is pretty much what he is as an actor. He belongs to the naturalistic school of histrionics, underplaying rather than over-emoting his parts. One role which called for him "to ham it up" was Parnell, a prewar epic in which he played the Irish patriot. The film was terrible, "and so," Gable says, "was I."



OFF SCREEN, Gable looks much as he does on—a bit grayer, more lined, but still keen and vital. Here he's breakfasting after a desert ride near Palm Springs. The lady is his good friend, thrice-divorced Kay Spreckels.

Although he won an Oscar in 1934 for It Happened One Night, he prefers his performances in Gone With the Wind and Mutiny on the Bounty.

He has always loved the outdoors and is a crack hunter and fisherman. His thirst for adventure and travel remains unquenched although in the past two years he has made films in Africa (Mogambo), Europe (Betrayed), Hong Kong (Soldier of Fortune) and Mexico (The Tall Men).

From Garbo to Kelly

Diplomatic and tactful, he shies away from practically all questions concerning his leading women. Over the years he has played opposite virtually every top-flight actress from Greta Garbo to Grace Kelly. Joan Crawford starred opposite Gable in eight movies from 1931 to 1940 and once told me, "I was very much in love with him but was afraid to admit it. I always had the feeling that he was the kind of lover who cared more for the chase than the prize."

Since the end of World War II, in which he served as an aerial gunner, Gable had made 15 films, 14 of which have been released. To date, the most successful of these has been Mogambo. Gable holds high hopes, however, for Soldier of Fortune and The Tall Men, in which he stars opposite Susan Hayward and Jane Russell, respectively.

Gable is particularly fond of Jane. "I like the gal so much," he told me, "that my first picture next year is going to be for her own independent company; and she's not even going to be in it." ■

SAFETY'S SAKE
STOP
COFFEE BREAK

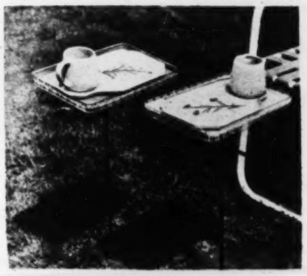
Safe driver stops for a "Coffee-break"

The road is inviting, the weather fine. As the miles slip by, he watches his speed, he's careful of other cars, he makes countless split-second decisions. And – he keeps alert! Every couple of hours or so, he stops for a "Coffee-break." Especially on long trips, safety experts and professional drivers advise regular "Coffee-breaks." What a sure way to ease road fatigue! Good, full-bodied coffee – so much flavor. Or refreshing Iced Coffee – so cooling when you're hot and tired. On the road, on the job, or at home, give yourself a "Coffee-break." Think better, work better, feel better – drive better!

PAN-AMERICAN COFFEE BUREAU, 120 Wall St., New York 5, N. Y.

1 Lunch is served outdoors on paper plates anchored in wire holders. Insulated tumblers keep drinks cool.

2 In a decorative casserole of heavy enameled iron, food will retain oven heat for a long time.



3 Easy way to find a table outdoors is to stick one in the ground. It supports stoneware plate, mug.

SUMMER BUFFET

When summer weather breezes in, the family dining room moves outdoors. And new housewares make meals–or entertaining–easier and more pleasant. Inexpensive plastic kitchen sets, for example, do double duty on the outdoor buffet table. Other fresh ideas are pictured here:

Combination trays and tables which can be carried in one hand ease the pressure on limited dining table space.

When a utility cart isn't practical because of bumpy terrain or distance of outdoor table from kitchen, wire carry-alls prove their worth.

Big, decorative casseroles in enameled iron, glass and metal go straight to the buffet from the oven.

When paper plates are used, new holders give them support and anchor them against the wind.

4 Swing stand in walnut and copper cradles glasses securely. It can be carried in one hand. Walnut has special finish.

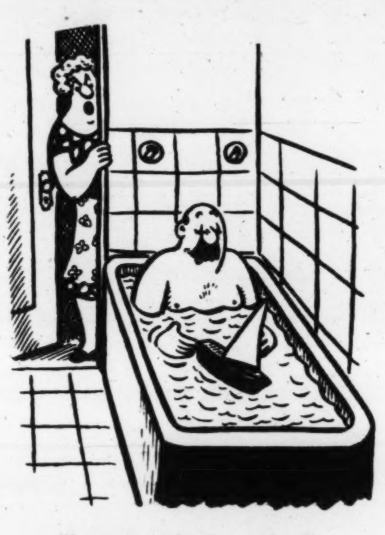
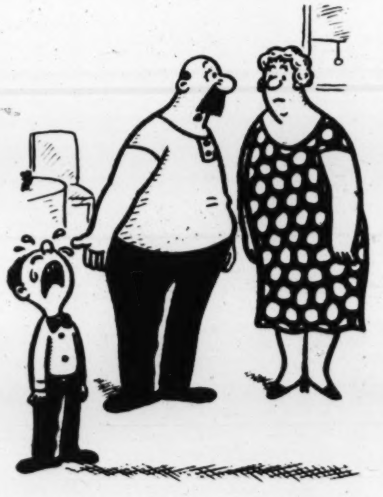
"My daughter is not at home to you, sir."



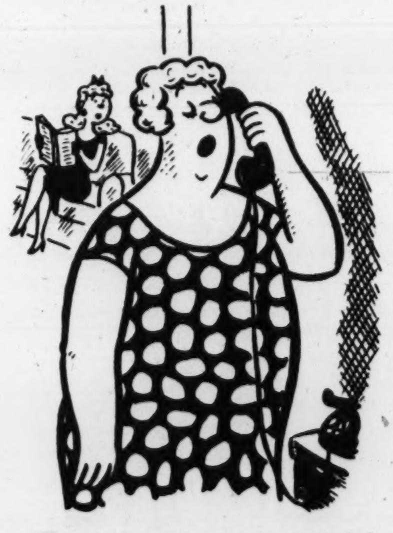
"Supper's ready, Commodore!"

This is a FAMILY?

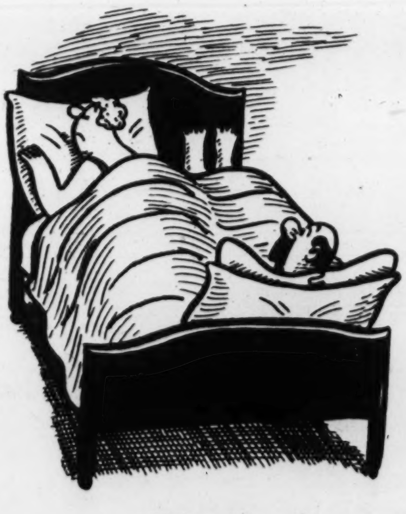
Somewhere in the world lives a group which, for lack of contrary evidence, may be defined as a single family. Papa, a man of strange dignity, suffers daily reverses at many hands—those of Mama, who does a fair amount of suffering herself; of Daughter, who will start to suffer soon if she doesn't catch a husband; of Junior, who has his own problems. Surprisingly, all this adds up to laughter—for those, at least, who see the family through the eyes of its creator, cartoonist Syd Hoff. In his latest book, *Okay—You Can Look Now, Hoff catches his brainchildren at their oddest. Herewith, samples.



"All I did was tell him he takes after me."



"Just a minute, Mr. Carr—I hear her key in the lock now."



"Still mad?"

shows sailfish being pulled upward toward boat. Massive hook protruding from its mouth is baited with a whole squid.

PANAMA CITY, R.P.

Once a year the world's only "floating club" for sportsmen, a barge operated by the Hotel El Panama here, is the center of a fishing tournament in Pinas Bay, about 100 miles down the Pacific Coast of Panama. At the last tourney, when one fisherman snagged a hard-fighting sailfish, photographer Carroll Seghers II tried a novel stunt: donning an aqualung, he had himself tied beneath the boat and aimed his underwater camera toward where the sailfish was trying to break free.

In attempting to shoot this photo from a fish's-eye view, Seghers was taking heavy risks. He could be hooked by the sailfish's sword-like bill. He could be mangled by a pack of voracious thrasher sharks that lurked close by.

Suddenly the struggling sailfish shot up from the shimmery green depths. As the fish was reeled past him, Seghers snapped his shutter several times. The best of his pictures appears above.

Seghers got ready to rise, too. But as he cut the rope that held him, he saw a string of torpedo-shaped objects dart toward the boat. In a moment he freed the rope, kicked to the surface, flung himself aboard. Seconds later the thrasher sharks broke water, jaws agape. Says Seghers: "The temperature was 90, but I was shivering!" ■

FINISH of battle sees sailfish tied to the side. It weighed 100 pounds, small for sailfishes (world record is 148 pounds).
